PARENTS SHOULD KNOW
During the past week or two we have had a larger number of school children than usual brought to us to have their eyes examined for Glasses. Some were near sighted, some du'l at school because of eye strain. Some did not require Glasses. It is well that parents should know whether or not the child's eyes are both doing service equally and well. Immediate, timely attention saves your hild much misery and yourself future regrets. Children require keen sight and easy eyes to compete with their companions in school life.
It is usually advisable to arrange appointment for examination a day or two in advance.

Justice Charbonneau Decides That Ne Temere Decree is Not Law in Quebec Province

THE MARRIAGE OF TWO ROMAN CATHOLIC PERSONS BY A PROTESTANT MINISTER IS HELD LEGAL

INSPECTOR OF BEES APPOINTED FOR THE PROVINCE OF ONTARIO

Our readers must sometime or another have taken a drive or a walk through the suburbs of the city. Possibly the most likely place to see the subject of this article, is in the south part. Here, down near the locks, and elsewhere, are boxes raised on legs or other supports. These boxes are innocent looking enough. But just try to "monkey" with the contents. In about three-quarters of a second there will be about 27,000,000 bees buzzing about him and getting their rear artillery into work. And it is that fire of the rear guard, with a bee that reminds the enemy to be on the defence.

To get back to common sense, the Ontario Government is considering an act to keep the bees of the Province clean and well bred. An inspector of bees is to be appointed.

The inspector may order the owner or possessor of any bees dwelling in box or immovable frame hives to transfer them to movable frame hives within a specified time, and in default the inspector may destroy, or order the destruction of such hives and the bees dwelling therein. 10 Edw. VII. c. 26, s. 27.

Any owner of possessor of diseased colonies of bees, or of any infected appliances for bee-keeping, who knowingly sells or barters or gives away such diseased colonies or infected appliances shall incur a penalty of not less than $50 or more than $100, or he may be imprisoned for any term not exceeding two months.

HON. GEORGE P. GRAHAM IS ELECTED IN RENFREW

Special to The Times.

Renfrew, Feb. 22.—Hon. George P. Graham is probably elected in Renfrew, the returns last night giving him 344 majority, with ten small places to hear from, which will not affect the result.

A blizzard which commenced here on Wednesday afternoon raged all night and continued somewhat abated to-day. Consequently roads are in a fearful condition and the big vote that was anticipated did not materialize. Both sides, however, were very confident, each receiving encouraging reports from other centres and some outside points. The Conservatives lost most by the bad weather, which hampered efforts to get out the voters. In some parts of the riding voters live miles away from the polling places. On most of the roads the tracks were entirely blocked, and there are heavy drifts. The temperature was not low, but the wind was very keen and drifts and drives the small snow hard. The bush roads in the west of the riding are said to be not so badly affected.

PUBLIC OPINION

The Times does not hold itself responsible for opinions of its correspondence.

THEY SHOULD EXPLAIN.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Mr. Burnham's letter in last night's Review has caused considerable comment. The public will await with almost breathless anxiety the explanation of Rev. Canon Davidson and others. I am told that the attention of the Bishop of Toronto has been called to the matter. But, I am sure, Mr. Davidson and the others concerned will be able to explain the matter to the satisfaction of the public. They cannot afford to do otherwise.

VACCINATION.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—A correspondent in your issue of Wednesday, signing himself "Vaccination," admits first his ignorance of the subject on which he writes, then he attempts to insult the intelligence of Protestant Ontario by claiming that we are not afflicted as our neighbours in Quebec, because of the use of vaccination.

"Vaccination" should free himself from the bowls of vaccine vendors, political and power monopolizing doctors, and the scales may fall from his eyes. Then let him investigate the cause of people having disfigured faces through having smallpox, as he describes in the case of Quebec, or any other country. He will likely find that where fear, ignorance, superstition, and dirt predominate, there he will find smallpox or the aftermath of the same—pits in the face.

The antidote for a dirty disease, cannot be the injection of more dirt or poisonous scrums into the system. All the people of Ottawa ask is freedom of conscience to use the best remedies they know of for the preservation of health.

If your correspondent, or others wish to pollute their blood with the scabs from dumb animals they leave them free to use their remedy.

I am pleased to see that the people of Hamilton are awakening from the darkness of superstition into the sunshine of civilization, and are going to demand their God given freedom from compulsory vaccination.

Sincerely yours,

Liberty.

LOCAL OPTION—WHO SHOULD VOTE?

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I read "Fair Play's" letter in this morning's Times and I am surprised at his reasoning. He refers to Lakefield as an example of financial ruin brought upon the village by its adoption of Local Option—I think if he will ask the business men of that little town, they will state that Orillia, Owen Sound and other dry towns say, namely, that Local Option is a blessing, both financially and morally.

He goes on to say that only property owners should vote on such a question—intimating that the only consideration on such a question is the dollar and cent, the landlords, &c. Now I take issue with him, if there was no drink there would be sober tenants who could pay their rents; prosperous men who could pay their shop bills, clothe their children and give the little ones a

THE PROTESTANTS WELCOME DECISION

NEXT QUESTION WILL BE EXTENT TO WHICH PRIESTS WILL TRY TO ENFORCE THE DECREE IN ONTARIO.

Action in the Courts Here to Stop Them, Declares the Rev. Dr. Hincks.

Toronto, Feb. 22.—The announcement that the Hebert marriage has been declared valid was received by the Protestant Ministers of the city with satisfaction.

Rev. Dr. Hincks said the judgment showed that the marriage laws of Quebec have not behind them the force of British law, in the sense that the canonical law has a predominant place in them.

"It not only shows that the ne temere decree has no legal standing in Quebec, but also that the encroachments of the canonical law on the civil law will not be allowed. It will clear up the atmosphere very materially.

"Now the question will be the extent to which the priests will enforce the ne temere decree as far as Ontario is concerned. Since the decree became operative there have been six thousand mixed marriages in this Province. If the priests are wise they will not try to enforce it. The moment they do, even though they do it by putting on the screw through the conscience of the Roman party, they will be cited into court for slander in spite of the motu proprio decree. The moment a priest declares a woman to be a concubine, and her children illegitimate, legal action will be taken. My opinion is that that second decree was only to assist in the enforcement of the ne temere decree."

HOW POOR PATIENTS HAVE HOSPITAL CARE

You, Mr. Reader, not you that has a good business and owns your own residence; but you, my fellow sufferer, that may get sick at any old time and not have a little roll of paper in your pocket marked X in the four corners. To you we speak. The Ontario Legislature is considering an act to amend the "Charity Aid Act." Prominent among the features of this bill is the following stipulation regarding non-paying patients:

"Resident," includes any person who has resided in the municipality continuously for three months, or who, though not having resided therein continuously for such three months was actually employed therein immediately prior to being admitted to a hospital. The Superintendent of a hospital immediately upon the admission of a non-paying patient to a public ward in the hospital shall notify by registered post the Clerk of the Municipality from which such patient represents himself as being brought, that such patient has been admitted to the hospital, giving such particulars as may be ascertainable to the Clerk of the Municipality to identify the patient. Unless the Clerk, within fourteen days after the mailing of the notice, shall notify the Superintendent in writing that the patient is not a resident of such municipality, he shall be so considered for the purpose of this Act.

FAMOUS CASE GOES AGAINST CHURCH MRS. HEBERT WINS BACK NAME OF WIFE

Judge Charbonneau, in Lengthy Decision, Grants Appeal Against Annulment by Judge Laurendeau, Following Archbishop Bruchesi's Action—Case Will be Carried to the Privy Council

Montreal, Feb. 22.—In a judgment it is impossible to conceive could be more sweeping, Mr. Justice Charbonneau this morning "wiped the ne temere marriage decree off the map of Canada," to use the words of a prominent Montreal lawyer, when he delivered his pronouncement on the famous Hebert-Clouatre marriage case. So sweeping is it that it more than surprised the lawyers interested in the case, while Rev. Mr. Timberlake, who performed the ceremony, said it "fairly took his breath away."

His Lordship's findings, in short, are as follows:

1—That the ne temere decree is of absolutely no force in the Province of Quebec as far as the legal aspect of marriage goes. He holds that it is a decree which has spiritual obligations only, and that its jurisdiction in these spiritual matters does not affect any outside the pale of the Roman Catholic Church.

> "The ne temere is a religigious decree only," he said "and its influence is confined to spiritual matters only, and in no way has any effect on the legality of marriage."

HEBERT MARRIAGE VALID.

2—His Lordship holds that the marriage performed by Rev. Wm. Timberlake, Methodist clergyman, between Emma Marie Clouatre and Eugene Hebert, on July 14th, 1908, is now and has always been perfectly valid.

3—The Court holds that no matter what the religious persuasions of the contracting parties are, any duly authorized clergyman can perform marriages which are perfectly legal in the eyes of the law of the Province of Quebec.

4—The Court holds that the annulment of the Hebert Clouatre marriage by the Roman Catholic authorities of Montreal, on November 12, 1909, is of absolutely no affect as far as the legality of the marriage is concerned.

5—The Court holds that Mr. Justice Laurendeau erred when on March 23, 1911, he gave civil effect to the annulment of the marriage done by the Roman Catholic authorities.

All of this is contained in the last part of the judgment, which is as follows:

> "Basing itself on the motives given above, the court declares the marriage of the said Emma Marie Clouatre and Eugene Hebert, celebrated on the 14th July, 1908, before Rev. Wm. Timberlake, on production of a license of the 9th of July, 1908, good and valid, declares the decree promulgated by the congregation of the council of the Roman Catholic Church on the 2nd of August, 1907, starting with the words 'ne temere,' has no civil effect, and that the decree of the ordinary of the diocese of Montreal, dated November 12, 1909, produced in this case by the plaintiff, has no judicial effect in the said case." Each party is to pay its own costs.

CHURCH MAY NOT APPEAL.

It is doubtful that the Church authorities will appeal as the Hebert judgment has no more effect than other decisions as strongly upholding ecclesiastical law, but Hebert's lawyers says he will appeal if the money is forthcoming.

There was a tremendous crowd in the court when the judge appeared on the bench, while the corridors leading to the court were blocked with spectators and lawyers. The judgment took his Lordship over an hour to read.

QUESTION IN A NUTSHELL.

Then came the main point at issue and the Judge said: "The question in the case is to know whether two Catholics, presenting a license from the Crown, which disposes with previous publications, such as banns, can validly be married before the minister of a Protestant sect, or must be united by the cure of their parish after previous publication in said parish, or dispensation by the Catholic religious authorities, in a word, is there respected jurisdiction or concurrent jurisdiction of all officers authorized to keep the civil registers, and can the Crown license dispense with the publication of banns for Catholics as well as the other religious denominations.

MARRIAGE IS A CIVIL CONTRACT

Church Authorities Have No Jurisdiction, Says Lawyer for Mrs. Herbert

Mr. Cousins Says Judgment Vindicates the Laws of the Province—Will, Mr. Hebert Appeal?—His Lawyer Says He Will if Money Is Available for the Purpose.

Montreal, Feb. 22.—"The effect of the Hebert judgment is to declare marriage a civil contract, and a civil contract only, in the Province of Quebec," declared Mr. George V. Cousins, counsel for Mrs. Hebert, when asked for an expression of opinion.

"The judgment further declares that the ecclesiastical authorities have absolutely no jurisdiction on marriage so far as the validity of any marriage is concerned.

"And don't forget to tell your Ontario readers," continued Mr. Cousins, "that the judgment is a vindication of the law of the Province of Quebec. From some of the things I have heard people in Ontario saying they must be under the impression that we in Quebec are governed by laws such as are supposed to have been in the dark ages. That judgment to-day plainly shows what the law really is, and the law itself has been vindicated by it."

HEBERT MAY APPEAL.

Mr. L. F. Lefebvre, counsel for Mr. Hebert, was an interested spectator in the court while his Lordship was reading the judgment.

"I cannot tell you yet whether I will enter an appeal or not," he said. "I will immediately get in touch with my client, and if he says so, I will enter an appeal. It is all a matter of money, and if he decides to fight the case further, I will do so."

"The ground I would take in an appeal is that when we withdrew from the case when I filed a formal notice that Mr. Hebert would not proceed further in the case against Emma Clouatre, before Mr. Justice Archer, that no judge has a right to proceed "ex parte" hear one side of the case only and deliver judgment on that evidence alone, I will contend that the case should have been tried on its merits.

BRUCHESI OUT OF SIGHT.

Practically every newspaper correspondent in Montreal made ineffectual efforts to get in touch Archbishop Bruchesi or some one else high in authority in the Catholic Church, but his Grace could not be seen and no one else would even as much as pretend that the Church was even interested in the judgment.

One who is not a clergyman, but who is interested in the case and says that he knows what he is talking about, stated that the Church will make no appeal.

CHURCH WON'T APPEAL.

"The attitude the Church takes," he said, "is that Mr. Justice Charbonneau's judgment is of no more effect than any number of others which declare that the law of the Church is the civil law of the Province of Quebec as far as marriage goes. There are any number of such judgments, and if the matter is allowed to remain as it is without a higher court pronouncing on it, the attitude of the Church will in no way be affected, as it can fall back on those other judgments."

TIMBERLAKE IS PLEASED.

Mr. Timberlake was acquainted with the judgment by a reporter over the phone.

"Well, I wasn't expecting all of that," was his first explaination. "I would have been in court, but I knew the judgment was to be delivered in French, and it would have done me no good to be present. I must say I am delighted with his Lordship's finding. I was more than a little afraid that he would not go that far. I think the judoment is a perfectly fair one from a civil, moral, and ecclesiastical standpoint."

INTRODUCING HOME RULE IN COMMONS EARLY IN MARCH

London, Feb. 22.—A circular announcing the Irish National banquet on St. Patrick's Day, where John Remond will preside, states:

"It is expected that the Home Rule bill, to which the Irish Nationalists confidently look forward for realization of their country's hopes, will be introduced in the House of Commons shortly before the date of the banquet."

The circular bears the signature of two Irish members of Parliament, Jerry McVeagh and Natthew Keating, and gives importance to the statement that the Home Rule bill will be introduced about the second week in March.

HAT IS IN THE RING, HIS ANSWER MONDAY

Cleveland, O., Feb. 22.—During the brief stay of Col. Roosevelt in Cleveland, W. F. Eirick, well known locally in politics, greeted the former president, whom he knows well.

"I want a direct answer, Colonel," said Mr Eirick. "All your friends want to know whether you are to be a candidate."

"My hat is in the ring," replied Col. Roosevelt. "You will have my answer Monday."

INDIAN BOOZE MEN ARE TO BE PROSECUTED

Yesterday morning at the Lindsay police court, a man named Perrin, a "peripatetic" with no fixed residence of his own, was fined $25.00 and cost ($29.75 in all) for furnishing an Indian with liquor. Inspector Thornbury laid the charge and Magistrate Jackson announced that in future there would be no more $25.00 fines for this offence, as the penalty would be increased. The clause of the Liquor License Act dealing with this matter reads as follows:

"Wherever the sale of liquor to any such drunkard has been so prohibited, if any other person, with a knowledge of such prohibition, gives, sells, purchases or procures for or on behalf of such prohibited person, or for his or her use, any liquor, such [illegible] for every such offence, a penalty not less than $25, and not exceeding $50."

SIR H. M. PELLATT PAYS BIG PRICE FOR FARM

Hamilton, Feb. 22.—On several occasions within the past few months rumors that the Tuckett farm on the beach road had been sold were denied by the owners of the property, but the announcement was made today that the farm had been sold and that Sir Henry M. Pellatt, Toronto, who has been acquiring a great amount of land near Toronto and Hamilton recently, was the purchaser. The rumor that was first circulated regarding this sale of land was that the farm bah brought $250,000, but it was learned that very close to $175,000 was paid for the land.

HOW CHINAMEN ARE SMUGGLED TO U. S.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Feb. 22.—American immigration officials are startled by the audacity of the smugglers whose chief is a resident of Toronto because they smuggled into the United States five Chinamen last week, although the identity of the chief and several members of the gang is known to the authorities. Chinamen smuggled into the Republic last week reached New York safely and members of the gang met in a place not two miles from immigration headquarters on the American side Sunday and divided the proceeds of the adventure, which amounted to about $3,000, according to information obtained to-day. The same gang smuggled a party of Chinamen over three weeks ago.

A FIGHT NOW ON FOR LOWER PRICES IN SOAP

We often hear of the different religious denominations quarreling among themselves. Now there is a saying that cleanliness is next to Godliness. Following this chain of thought, there is a price war on among soap manufacturers of Canada that is likely to be of great benefit to the consumer while it lasts, although it is spoken of by experts as likely to be "pretty sharp and pretty short."

CHEAPER POWER FOR ONTARIO TOWNS WEST

Brantford, Feb. 22.—Lower prices in Berlin, Waterloo, London and in Woodstock will be investigated by A. K. Bunnell, an electrical expert appointed by the city, with the object of applying to the Ontario Railway Board to enforce the terms of the special agreement with the Cataract Company, whereby Brantford is to receive power at ten per cent. less than the rate charged in any Hydro-Electric municipality.

THE FIVE-FINGERED ORANGE

Grows Exactly the Shape of a Half-Opened Hand

A most weird-looking fruit is the five-fingered orange. It grows exactly the shape of a half-open hand. Even the nails are identical, hard-pointed and claw-like, tipping the orange flowers with a length equal, in some cases, to three inches.

It is no freak, but a proper kind of orange, belonging to a special variety. The tree itself is a rugged little shrub that does not average more than five or six feet in height in its native home—Japan. It does not grow straight, as the ordinary orange-tree should, but is curved in all directions.

Even the branches grow in spiral or twisted forms, so that the width of the tree is often greater than the height. The fruit itself is of a pale yellow color, of a pure lemon hue, growing greenish toward the stem. The size is immense, considering the smallness of the tree, the largest ones measuring when mature fully ten inches from the wrist to the point of the middle finger, including the nail.

But the fruit is not good to eat, though what it lacks in flavor it more than makes good in perfume. Perhaps the strangest thing about this perfume is that it is the fruit and not the flower that is odorous.

THOSE BRAINY SCOTS!

A noted Scot is Viscount Haldane, lately plain Mister. He was partly educated at the University of Gottingen. Discussing the German Universities the other day his lordship remarked:—

"Scottish students have quite a reputation at Gottingen. A great German professor said to me:—

"'I think we shall have to exclude young Scotsmen from our schools. They no sooner come here than they begin to cheat.'

"'Cheat?' said I, alarmed. 'How so?'

"'Why,' said the professor, 'they only pay for tuition for one, but they learn enough for three or four!'"

THE BACHELOR'S WISDOM

We must all try to stand erect, not be kept erect by others.

Whether you be men or women you will never do anything without courage.

Prefer diligence before idleness, unless you esteem rust before brightness.

Victories attained by right thought can only be maintained by watchfulness.

God does not look to see if the hands are full. He looks to see if they are clean.

An opportunity is like a pin in the sweeping: you catch sight of it just as it flies away from you, and gets buried again.

WITH A ROYAL ACCOMPLICE

The Queen, like so many members of our Royal Family, is blessed with much tact. On one occasion she was present at a banquet in a large provincial city, when her Majesty sat next to the Lord Mayor.

Soon he confessed that he was greatly worried about the printed address he had presently to read, and that he would far sooner "say a few words" that he really felt.

"Very well, then," replied her Majesty sympathetically; "let us hide that printed speech behind this flower-pot!"

This they did, and the Lord Mayor made a little speech that rang true instead of reading his address.

CARUSO'S BIG LOSS

It is announced that Signor Caruso hopes to benefit by a complete rest and change of air, the physicians having forbidden him to sing this season. The loss sustained by the great tenor through what was in the first place regarded as an ordinary slight cold is estimated at about $60,000, as he has been compelled to refrain from singing for a period of twelve weeks.

PROFITS ON "GLADSTONE"

Morley's "Gladstone" has beaten all records in biographies. The cheque sent by the publishers to the proprietors of the book—that is, to the Gladstone family—for the first year's accounting, was greater by several thousand pounds than Longman's famous $100,000 cheque to Macaulay for the profits on the third and fourth volumes of his History of England.

THE ELEPHANT'S TRUNK

Naturalists consider the elephant's trunk the most marvellous miracle of Nature. It contains over 4,000 muscles—a great many more than are found in the entire human body. By aid of these muscles the trunk will uproot trees or gather grass, lift a cannon or a nut, kill a man or brush off a fly. It is as useful as a hand with all its fingers to supply the elephant with food, and, being hollow, is used as a suction pump. No other animal has a single member or organ so perfect and so useful.

TREMENDOUS WHALE

The largest whale of its type of which there is scientific record was captured recently off Port Arthur, Texas. He measured 63 feet in length, and was estimated to be about 300 years old. Capt. Cob Plummer, mate of a United States pilot boat, sighted the monster in the shoals off the jetties, and the crew of his vessel captured the mammal. The huge body was towed ashore, exhibited and much photographed before being cut up.

PROTECTION OF SMALL BIRDS

The Agricultural Society of the Gironde, France, is convinced that the continually increasing numbers of enemies of crops, and especially of the insects so harmful to vines, Cockylis and Eudemis, is due to a great extent to the disappearance of small birds. The society, therefore, has invited all the agricultural associations of France to unite and insist upon the protection of these valuable auxiliaries of the farmer.

TWO NEW LAKES

A spectacular feature attending the building of the barge canal, in New York State, is a change in the map of the state that will add to its lakes two bodies of water of considerable size.

A profile of the canal across the state shows a continuous descent from Lake Erie to the confluence of Seneca and Oneida rivers, then a rise to the comparatively low divide in the vicinity of Rome, followed by another continuous descent, to the Hudson. From this it will be seen that there are two critical points in furnishing a water supply for the canal. The problem at the western end is readily solved by the abundance to Lake Erie, but throughout the history of the state canals, the question of supplying the Rome summit level has always presented more difficulties, and has led to the building of a chain of reservoirs among the hills to the south and within the Adirondacks on the north. For the enlarged canal these existing sources are retained, and the two large reservoirs are added.

The work of building the dam and clearing the site at Delta, for impounding the waters of the upper Mohawk, about five miles north of Rome is now about three-quarters done. Across the greater part of the river gorge, 600 feet wide at its base, the dam has reached its full height of 100 feet above the loftiest foundation. When the [illegible] the river and an existing canal are closed, and the top of the dam is extended to its 1,000 feet of length, there will be formed a reservoir some four miles long and two miles wide at the base of its triangular shape, having an average depth of twenty-three feet and a capacity of about 20,750,000,000 gallons.

The Mystery of Glass

A correspondent recently reported what he described as the 'curious freak' of a backbird flying against a parlor window many times at the some spot continuously. Such an incident is not uncommon. Birds have been known to fight for hours at a time, day after day, with their own image reflected in a pane of glass, pecking and fluttering against the pane and quite exhausting themselves in their fury to demolish the supposed rival. It is another instance of how the arts of our civilisation corrupt and confuse the birds. It is the same with fishes. Darwin tells a story of a pike in an aquarium separated by plate glass from fish which were its proper food. In trying to get at the fish the pike would often dash with such violence against the glass as to be completely stunned. It did this for more than three months before it learned caution. Then when the glass was removed the pike would not attack those particular fish, but would devour others freshly introduced. It did not at all understand the situation, but associated the punishment it had received, not with the glass, but with a particular kind of fish. Darwin's American monkeys proved themselves more 'knowing.'

A New Cave Wonder

"Cathedral Cave" is the name that has been given to a vast cavity in the earth near Prescott, Arizona, in which are found some of the most awe-inspiring works of nature, in the form of stalactites and stalagmites, that the eye of man ever beheld; also there are evidences that the place

THE ROOSEVELT MEETING.

A few days ago eight Governors and representatives from twenty or more States met in Chicago and decided that they must have Roosevelt as their candidate to save the Republican party and the country from dire calamities. A memorial setting forth the views of the conference was sent to the busy man of Oyster Bay and asking for some expression from him. The conference also adopted a platform which declared that "all who desire prosperity with progress" ought to join in the demand for the nomination and election of Theodore Roosevelt. An overwhelming majority of the people desire prosperity and are firm believers in progress, but there are about seven millions of Democrats in the United States who will not consent to disband their party in order that they may unite with the Republicans who attended the Chicago conference in the demand for the nomination and election of Roosevelt.

"One word," remarks the Indianapolis News, "should be said about the composition of the conference. There were about seventy men in attendance, including the eight Governors. Thirteen delegates came from Illinois. New York and Pennsylvania were represented by one delegate each. Wisconsin and Iowa had no delegates. One, we believe came from Indiana. There was one man from Kansas in addirion to Governor Stubbs. Ohio and Michigan were fairly well represented. The rest were 'scattering.'"

Now that the far Western Provinces are making such atremendous "todo" about the importation of Hindus to Canada. In the eastern provinces we are naturally not so much excited over the subject. Of course should the Sikhs enter this part of the Dominion in large numbers and compete with local labor, the east will wake up and object to the Hindu.

Such antagonism to the free admission of Hindus in Canada as has been manifested in this part of the country is the outcome of sympathy with our fellow-Canadians in British Columbia. We realize that it is in a very important sense a British Columbia question, a question in the settlement of which British Columbia sentiment and British Columbian interests ought to be the main consideration. And the evidence so far has been that in British Columbia the Hindu is persona non grata. Still a well known British Columbia editor represents the Sikhs as very worthy people, who have been sadly misrepresented, and their claim to be treated in all respects as British subjects is held to be sound and just. He declares that "the meaning of all this objection" is that the Sikhs have come to Canada, not like the Chinese and the Japanese, to make money and then go back home, but they have come to Canada to stay.

PARLIAMENTARY PERQUISITES

Members of U. S. Congress Usually Travel Cheaply and Consequently Save Many Cents Per Mile on Allowance.

For each session of the U. S. Congress each member is allowed twenty cents a mile for each mile going and coming between his home and Washington. As railroad fares these times run about two cents a mile, and as the Hon. Jasper on his first trip generally spurns the Pullman, as being fit only for the predatory and plutocratic rich and rides in the day coach with the great common people, it will be seen that on this mileage item alone he cleans up to a considerable extent, especially if he chances to live a long distance from Washington. He gets twenty cents a mile. Every time eight telegraph poles go flittering by there are twenty cents coming in and only about two and a half cents going out. Here, of course, distance counts.

Mileage amounts to a most impressive sum in the case of Prince Cupid, the chubby delegate from the Hawaiian Islands, who comes all the way from Honolulu, and to practically nothing at all in the lamentable case of Representative Charles Creighton Carlin, who resides in Alexandria, right across the river from the district. One or two of the Maryland members, who live only a short distance away, also suffer distressingly in this regard, and are objects of commiseration among their fellows.

Hardly Encouraging.

He was fresh up from the country, and if there was a ruling passion in his life it was politeness—if such a rare accomplishment can be called a passion.

All the days of his two-and-twenty years had been spent in imbibing the lesson that politeness is irresistible, that as a business asset its value is incalculable. He'd had politeness for breakfast, politeness for dinner, for tea, and for supper. Spring, summer, autumn, and winter it had been the same.

And now he was in London, looking for a job.

But, alas! he could find no job. Tired and despondent he tramped along.

Then suddenly he smiled. Surely if they only knew how polite he was he would be given a job at once.

The idea was immediately acted upon.

An affluent-looking old gentleman drew near. Up went a hand, and off into the gutter flew the old gent's hat.

Then began an expoition of the art of politeness. Picking up the hat he had so unceremoniously knocked off, the "polite" one carefully dusted and replaced it, and in a thousand different ways sought to render himself agreeable not forgetting to throw out hints that he desired a job.

And he succeeded. He got a job. He is at it still. He is in gaol.

AN EXCITING PRESENT-DAY ROMANCE

—BY—

WEATHERBY CHESNEY

Supplied Exclusively in Canada by The British & Colonial Press Service, Limited.

"The crops or the weather, or the 'a'ful expense of foreign travel,' as he is a Scot," said Varney.

"'The frivolity of women if my father chose the subject," said Muriel.

"Neither. We discussed apostolic succession, and he claims that the Scotch Kirk has got it through auld Johnnie Knox, as he called him. I haven't spent such an interesting half hour for a long time."

Later in the day they came across the man again in the village of Furnas. His donkey was waiting for him outside the door of the inn, and he himself was inside having a meal. Davis left the other two to amuse themselves by wandering about the village, whilst he went in to continue the discussion on apostolic succession with the man who had interested him so much.

"Now," said Varney, when he had come to this point, "he's our man, isn't he? It was your saying to Miss Carrington that, perhaps you would discuss John Knox with him that made me remember him. He's hunting for the diamonds, and he's doing it on a donkey, because he looks like an Azorean naturally, and every second Azorean peasant you meet is riding one. What did you find out in the venta?"

Scarborough told him, and at the end Varney said:

"Well, if Carrington's enemy who is well known to me,' the hooded woman, the man in the boat, Mrs. Carrington's burglar, and Andrew Gillies, are one and the same person, he's a pretty lively fighter. But will the dates fit?"

"Yes," said Scarborough. "You met him the day before yesterday, the Ring-Rock business was yesterday, and the theft of the letter was this morning. But if he did get about the island like that, I don't see where we are to put our hands on his shoulder, as you said."

"In the Furnas district," said Varney. "He'll go back there."

"Why?"

"Because, for some reason, that's where he thinks the stones are, or he wouldn't be pottering about there on his donkey. That was where Mona met Carrington, you remember, so it's a likely enough place. But as Gillies has that letter now, we shall have to be energetic. Are you on duty tonight?"

"Yes, from midnight till eight."

"Then I shall have to take first watch in the country. I'll go and have supper at the Casa Davis, strap a sleeping bag on my handle-bars, and ride on afterwards to Furnas. It will be no hardship to spend a night in the open in this weather."

"But why not go to the inn?"

"Better not. Gillies might be there, and there's no need to alarm him. If he knows where to look for the diamonds we had better let him do it, and watch for him in the process. I'll camp out. I know the very place—a [illegible] Muriel and I sat there for an hour. I know the trick of waking at daylight, so if Gillies and his donkey are in evidence in the morning, I shall be ready for them."

"Right," said Scarborough cheerfully. "I'll ride over and join you after breakfast. I'm on duty for the next week, so I shall be able to take the day watches, if you will do the nights. It won't matter about my being sleepy in the instrument room; there's not often much coming through, and if a busy spell did come, the other man would wake me. How about you though?"

"Oh, I shall be all right," said Varney. "I'll start now, and you had better go back to the Chinelas and see that the girls are all right. I suppose Mona will stay the night there. We'll tell Madame that she won't return to-night, or he'll fidget. Better tell Elsa when you see her, to keep her eye on Mrs. Carrington, and if she sees anything suspicious, she should send a message to you. And there's another thing, when you ride over to join me to-morrow bring the scratched stone with you, and stop at the Casa Davis on the way. Davis knows the island very well, and he may be able to make a shot at the meaning of 'ache—blue—n. drip.'"

"Right," said Scarborough, "I will."

"Then, I'll be off. Ta-ta, old man; and keep your eyes on Mrs. Carrington. We've rather left her out of the reckoning, but she's a factor that will have to be counted. Don't let her steal a march on you."

Scarborough smiled. He did not think that Mrs. Carrington was likely to be very dangerous now. By allowing her husband's letter to be stolen from her, she had let the best card in the whole game slip out of her hands, and he therefore rather despised her powers as a fighter.

His judgment in the matter was premature. He was to learn shortly that Rachel Carrington was most of all to be feared at that moment, when to others it appeared that she was wholly out of the game.

CHAPTER XX.

An Eavesdropper

It was nearly nine o'clock when Scarborough rode up the gravel path to the door of the Chinelas again. He had been on duty from seven till ten that morning; then had come the message from Elsa, the ride with her into Ponta Delgada, the visit to the venta in the north road, and the ride back; he had had a tiring day already, and he was due for duty again at midnight. But he hardly knew that he was tired. The joy of at last doing something, the knowledge that Elsa was now co-operating with him in the fight, instead of tacitly putting obstacles in his way, the hope that now the misunderstanding between them was at an end a closer understanding would follow in its place, when he had put to her the question he was hundering to put—these things had been tonics, and would have been enough to counterbalance the fatigue of even greater exertions.

He hoped to be able to get an hour's sleep yet, before he had to begin his watch in the instrument-room; but first, as Varney had said, he must see that the girls were all right.

He found them together in the drawingroom and it seemed to him that Elsa's stiffness with other girls had worn off considerable since the afternoon. Had anything happened to bring them closer together? Or was it simply that Mona's sunny nature melted a coldness that was mainly artificial, her persistent offering of friendship had broken down the barrier which Elsa's sensitive fancy had set up?

Scarborough, seeing them, sitting together, in outward amity at least had the thought born in upon him irresistibly that they were surely and obviously meant to be friends. The very difference in the types of their beauty made them such admirable foils to each other—Elsa's the delicate, dainty beauty of carved ivory, and Mona's the vivacity of flashing brown eyes, black hair, and rich creamy coloring. The one was an anemone of the woods, fragile but exquisite; the other a rich blossom of the sunlight.

"Mother has gone to bed with a headache," said Elsa, "and Mona is going to stay with me for the night."

Scarborough noted with pleasure that she said Mona, and not Miss Ryan or Miss de la Mar.

"What has happened?" he asked smiling.

Mona caught his meaning at once.

"Oh," she said, "we've been through a battle together since we saw you. We went into it Miss Carrington and Miss Ryan, and we came out of it Elsa and Mona. Are you pleased?"

"Very," he answered. "But against whom was the battle? Not against each other?"

"No," said Elsa, "against mother."

"That is why she has gone to bed with a headache," said Mona laughing. "It was a hot engagement, you know, and she was utterly routed. She objected to my presence in the house, and Elsa stuck up boldly for me, and for the rites of hospitality, and said I should stay. Mrs. Carrington retorted that I shouldn't, and they fought it out, and that pale fragile little girl there scored a complete victory. I was proud of her. It was glorious."

"Did you sit quietly by and listen?" asked Scarborough with a smile. "Five pounds to nothing you didn't."

"Oh, I chipped in with a remark or two towards the end," said Mona gaily, "I couldn't resist it, you know. But Elsa bore the real brunt of the battle; mine was only a cavalry pursuit at the finish, to cut up the disorganized forces of the enemy, and drive the victory home. I think Mrs. Carrington's headache is probably rather bad. At least that is the only reason I can think of to explain why she made the mistake of losing her temper and blurting out something that we very much wanted to know."

"She told you what was in the letter that was stolen?" cried Scarborough eagerly.

"She admitted that it contained a plan of the place where the diamonds are hidden," said Mona, "and she seemed to think that it was Elsa's fault that it had been stolen. I didn't follow her reasoning there, and I took the liberty of pointing out some of her mistakes. In the first place, I [illegible] secondly, she put the plan in her purse instead of handing it over with her other valuables to the cashier to keep; thirdly, she had a large cup of coffee sent up to her the last thing at night, and didn't suspect that someone had been paid to put an opiate into it, until she awoke next morning about eleven to find that the plan was gone. Of course the man in the small boat had shadowed her from the Ring-Rock, and by sleeping in the hotel she gave him his chance. After all that, instead of abusing herself for her folly, she abuses Elsa. The unreasonableness of this was also one of the things I took the liberty of pointing out to her."

"On what grounds does she blame you?" Scarborough asked Elsa.

"Because I hid that [illegible] at the Ring-Rock at all," said Elsa. "But never mind that. We found out from her that the plan was not complete because it gave no indication of where the place to which it referred was to be found. Father said he dared not put that information in the letter, because it might get into the wrong hands, but that he would convey the knewledge to her in some other way. She believes that I have that knowledge, and that I am keeping it back from her purposely."

"Well, so you are," said Scarborough, smiling.

Elsa sprang to her feet.

"The scratched stone!" she exclaimed. "Blue—N. drip!"

"Exactly," said Scarborough. "By the way, that lock of yours hadn't been tampered with?"

"No."

"Good. Will you give me the stone to keep for you?"

Elsa unlocked the desk and took the stone out. "But, after all, it's unintelligible," she said. "What does 'ache—blue—N. drip' mean?"

"I haven't an idea," said Scarborough. "But if we had the full text, including the words that that idiot of a bean-seller rubbed out with his blouse, I haven't a doubt but that it would prove to be the message that Mrs. Carrington wants."

"Well, now," said Mona approvingly, "I think that's sense, and I'm surprised Elsa and I didn't think of it. Do you know it seems to me rather a pretty situation. The man who stole the plan won't be able to use it, because he hasn't the scratched stone; we have the scratched stone, but it's no use to us because we can't interpret it without the plan; and your mother, Elsa, has lost the plan, and never heard of the scratched stone. It rather looks as though the diamonds stood a good chance of staying undisturbed where they are for a year or two. You and I needn't have bothered about deciding what we were going to do with them when we got them!"

"Have you been doing that?" Scarborough asked with some amusement.

"Oh, yes, we've settled it all! There were rather a lot of people who suffered in the Carrington and Varney smash, you know, and most of them were poor. We had decided thatt he diamonds should be sent to the liquidator in bankruptcy, to be turned into a small dividend of something or other in the pound."

"She resigns all her own claim," said Elsa to Scarborough. "Isn't it

THIN, FRAIL WOMEN WITH PALE CHEEKS

NOW RAPIDLY LEARNING THE WAY TO HEALTH AND VIGOR BY THE USE OF DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS.

Thousands of half-dead, emaciated, worn-out women are dragging out their weary lives simply because they don't know what ails them. Nine times in ten it's indigestion, which directly leads to anaemia, poor circulation, and eventually invalidism.

The first step towards relief is to flush out all wastes and unhealthy matter. Loosen the bowels—stir up the liver—stimulate the kidneys. Once this is done, Dr. Hamilton's Pills will quickly manifest their health-restoring qualities.

"The best way to correct impaired digestion, to cure constipation, headache, liver trouble, and other ailments of the stomach and bowels," writes Mrs. Uriah A. Dempsey, from Woodstock, "is by the frequent use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I didn't know what it was to enjoy a good meal for months. My stomach was sour, I belched gas, was thin, tired, pale, and nervous. I simply housecleaned my system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and have been robust and vigorous ever since."

To keep the machinery of the body in active working order, no remedy is so efficient, so mild, so curative as Dr. Hamilton's Pills—good for men, women and children, 25c. per box, at all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE MORNING TIMES

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1912.

THE CHINESE REPUBLIC.

Chinese Republicans and former Royalists are so courteous to one another that they cannot decide which should be President of the Republic. Dr. Sen was chosen some time ago to the position, but when the Manchu dynasty decided to abdicate Dr. Sen and his followers offered the Presidency to Yuan Sha Kai, the Manchu Premier. The offer was apparently accepted, but now Yuan begs Dr. Sen to accept the honor. The correspondence reads like comic opera, but there may be serious designs behind it all on the part of the Manchu followers.

UNITED STATES NAVY.

The New York Post declares that what the United States should do in naval matters is to return to the conditions which existed between 1870 and 1880 when the country had only sufficient naval vessels to serve for police duty and to represent it abroad.

At the time spoken of the United States had not a single really effective warship and its naval expenditure amounted to only $15,000,000 a year. And yet, as the Post truly says, the Republic was never threatened or insulted in the period named. To-day the United States is spending something like $130,000,000 a year on its navy, it possesses a fleet second in power only to that of Great Britain and still it is no safer now than it was then. Indeed while there was scarcely a ripple on the surface of American foreign relations in the 'seventies hardly a year has passed since the reconstruction of the American navy began that has been without its war scare.

Andrew Carnegie was most emphatically right when he said that the building of warships is not calculated to promote peace but to provoke war. Canada will do well to profit by the lesson talk by her nearest neighbor and to abandon the folly of navy building before she is irrevocably committed to it.

CROATIA'S ELECTIONS.

Last December there was a general election in Croatia; soon there will be another. The reason is that the electors did not vote right the first time. They abused their freedom by failing to support the government.

Croatia has always been a trouble to Hungary and Austria. Incorporated in the former kingdom, she demanded home rule and a Ban of her own. She was given a Ban and a Diet and a regular independent constitutional system. The Ban, who is named by the Hungarian Cabinet, is a kind of viceroy. The post was held until recently by Dr. Tomasic.

Now, in Croatia there is a Serb party, and a peasant party, and numerous other parties. They differ among themselves, but they unite in disliking the Magyars. So, in the December elections, in spite of unprecedented corruption and intimidation, and the use of troops, the returns showed twenty-five for the government and sixty-three for the opposition. Dr. Tomasic was recalled this month, and Mr. Cuvaj, an official already experienced in acts of absolution, sent to succeed him. The new Ban at once dissolved the Diet on the ground that "its composition offers no prospect of fruitful activity."

This, of course, makes a farce of the constitution. The proper course was to choose a ministry from the majority.

MR. A. H. STRATTON'S DISMISSAL.

The evidence filed against Mr. A. H. Stratton in response to his request for an investigation of the charges made against him was very strong and conclusive, and showed that had he his way the election would have gone otherwise than it did. Mr. Burnham's majority being only 42. But apart from the direct and specific charges of serious interference in the election was one over the signature of the vice-president and paymaster of a company in Toronto, showing that, contrary to the statute which is very strong on that point, Mr. A. H. Stratton is a salaried officer of the company. This ipso facto disqualifies him of itself for the postmastership, without any other charge and without any dismissal at all. There will be no sympathy with improper interference in elections or evasions of the statute. The consequences to the intended victim would have been very serious and to the party he represents as well. To ask a man and a party to work like slaves and to go to a large expense simply perhaps to have it all thrown away by reason of the grossly unfair conduct of a partizan official is asking too much. The evidence is all on file and can be brought up and threshed out in parliament at any time. There was a fair trial and there is plenty of opportunity for criticising the verdict if those who take the trouble to look at the evidence feel so inclined. That there were several claimants for the position is to be expected, but Mr. Burnham followed the recommendation of the Committee representing the Conservative Association, and could not therefore make any mistake as to the wishes of the party.

FOR ASSISTANCE OF EMIGRANTS

British Society That Will Advance Part of Necessary Funds—Matrimonial Bureau

New impetus to emigration from Britain to her overseas dominions has been provided by the Empire Emigration Society, an undertaking organized to assist those who wish to emigrate but are unable to do so for lack of funds. Lord Ridley and Lord Stanhurst are actively interested in this society and act as trustees of its funds. Not the ill nourished and poverty stricken but the able bodied with some savings to their credit are the class of emigrant to whom chances are being offered. Soon after it was established, the Empire Emigration Society had over 1,500 people on its books with $10,000 at their disposal, who were anxious to save the balance in order to win through to hoped for prosperity in Canada, Australia or New Zealand.

The intending emigrants have to open an account with the Society with a minimum deposit of four dollars. Each subsequent payment must not be less than one dollar. As soon as the depositor has paid in half the necessary amount his passage is booked and arrangements made to supply him with employment when he arrives at his destination. Every class of worker is dealt with, and steps are taken to help emigrants to follow their own callings overseas. Typical of the variety of applicants in touch with the Society are four cases the secretary selected at random. A nurse, who desires to go to British Columbia has enough money to pay her passage, but is in need of advice as to the best [illegible] means to emigrate as soon as he can raise sufficient funds and who has paid a first instalment of seven dollars; a widow, who is an expert dressmaker, and hopes to have saved enough by the end of June to go out to Canada; a doctor with some capital who wants to know of a colony where he may practice his profession and at the same time give his two sons a start in farming.

The Duke of Marlborough recently gave a broad hint to the surplus women of England to go to the dominions beyond the seas where men were waiting for wives. Said the Duke: "There are a million more women than men in England, and there are a million more men than there are women in the dominions." So, indirectly, the Empire Emigration Society is playing the part of marriage bureau for Canadian bachelors, and domestic helps all over the country are becoming infected with the travel fever after dreaming of more congenial careers in new lands.

THE IMMORTAL WILLIAM

A motorist was stopped by a policeman, the light on his car being insufficient. He gave his card to the constable.

"G. B. Smith," read the man in blue. "Go on with you!" he exclaimed. "I want your proper name and address. We've too many Smiths about here. Now, look sharp!"

"Then," said the motorist, "if you must have it, it's William Shakespeare, Stratford-on-Avon."

"Thank you, sir," replied the policeman. "Sorry to have troubled you." And he carefully entered the particulars in his book.

BOGUS CHEQUE ARTIST

Toronto Banks Victimized by Clever Western Sharper

By means of the old rubber stamp trick, a Vancouver swindler victimized three Toronto banks to the tune of $2,537. The discovery was made when one of the cheques for $845 was returned to the Vancouver branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia. It did not take long for the bank officials to realize that a forger had been at work. Braid & Company bank with the Canadian Bank of Commerce, and the cheque in question was made payable at the Bank of Nova Scotia. The next day two other cheques, one for $847, and the other for $845, drawn on the same bank, reached Vancouver from Toronto, where, like the first, they had been cashed.

The artist provided himself with printed private cheques bearing the name "Wm. Braid & Company, Limited," and drawn on the Vancouver branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia. Each was signed by "Wm. Braid, manager," and countersigned by "Lional Hilary." The forger was slightly in error, as the name of the Vancouver company is "Wm. Braid Company." He, however, dispelled all suspicion by using a forged rubber stamp acceptance of the Vancouver branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia. All three cheques were made payable to C. W. English, presumably an alias of the man who cashed them at three separate banking institutions in Toronto. It was natural that the forgeries could not be detected until they reached the bank's branches at Vancouver for presentation to the Bank of Nova Scotia. The culprit had at least a week's start of the authorities.

THE CITY BEAUTIFUL

Canadian Cities are Appreciating the Value of Civic Beauty

Several Canadian cities are realising to some extent the need to make themselves beautiful. Among these, St. John, N.B., and Lethbridge, Alta., recently gave evidences of that.

In Lethbridge many people turned out, a few nights ago, to hear an address on "The City Beautiful," and they were advised to "get a good landscape gardener to plan things."

In St. John the Daily Telegraph recently gave a long editorial in which it said that a requisition of civic well-being is "a condition of things which will ensure that the maximum of beauty be introduced into the life of our city."

"In the rush of modern life," continues the editorial, "its amenities, especially in new countries, are too easily forgotten. Our homes become merely refuges from our work, and our places of work represent the irreducible minimum of everything which is not directly of value in the making of fortunes."

The Telegraph makes a strong appeal for heeding the impulse toward beauty, and in conclusion it says: "Surely the city beautiful will have its followers and golden money will not destroy all memory of the Golden Fleece. St. John can become in time a city, not merely an aggregation of streets, 'where wealth accumulates [illegible] true men and women may dwell in prosperity, cultivating those precious things in life which enshrine the best thought and the best expression of the world—fine books, fine buildings, fine music, fine paintings."

"AN AXE TO GRIND"

This phrase has frequently been attributed to Benjamin Franklin, but it was first used by Charles Miner—born in 1780, died in 1865—and occurs in an essay entitled "Who'll turn the Grindstone?" originally contributed to the 'Wilkesbarre Gleaner,' a country newspaper published in the interior of Pennsylvania in 1811.

The author says that when he was a little boy he was accosted one cold winter morning by a man with an axe on his shoulder.

"My pretty boy," said he, "has your father a grindstone?"

"Yes, sir," said I.

"You are a fine little fellow!" said he. "Will you let me grind my axe upon it?"

Pleased by the compliment of "fine little fellow," the gentleman's bidding was done by the boy, water being procured for him and the grindstone kept in motion until the boy's hands were blistered, the smiling gentleman keeping up his flattery meanwhile. Before the grinding was done the school bell rang, and after the axe had the proper edge on it the man ungraciously exclaimed:—

"Now, you little rascal, you've played the truant; cut to school, or you'll rue it!"

The author says that he felt very much wounded and never forgot the incident, and ever afterwards when he saw one person flattering another he said to himself, "That man has an axe to grind."

TRAIN STRUCK A DEER

The afternoon train to Gravenhurst ran into an injured deer, but the train crew were unable to tell what had happened beyond the fact that they had run into something. A search on the following day resulted in finding the injured animal, which was speedily put out of its misery. It dressed 240 pounds.

A GREAT SIRE DEAD

Gallinule Was One of the Most Noted English Stallions

Gallinule, whose death has just occurred, was one of the greatest English stallions of all time and the most successful of modern times, with the exception of St. Simon. The son of Seonomy—Moorhen was not born in the purple. His breeder was a sporting tenant-farmer of Lincolnshire, named John Hill, who in his highest flights of fancy could never have dreamed of the fame the horse was destined to achieve. In fact, long before he had a chance of showing what he was made of Gallinule was sold at auction and did not realize half the sum the breeder expected. Later, Mr. "Abingdon" Baird paid $35,000 for the horse, who proved a bad bargain, for he never won a race for his new owner.

It was at the stud that Gallinule became so famous, and his progeny included Pretty Polly, Wildflower, Santry, Slieve Gallion, White Eagle, Game Chick, Santry and Lesterlin. Altogether Gallinule's get won $1,284,666.

DEBUTANTE EVENING FROCK

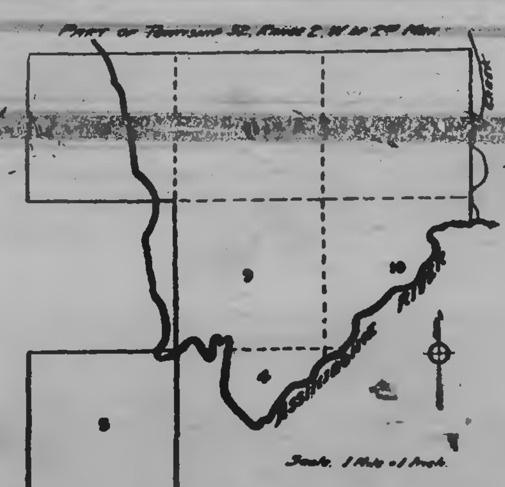
Debutante frocks are still made of chiffon or net over satin and generally garnished with small artificial flowers. One of the daintiest models seen among the new importations was of white point d'esprit over a delicate shade of apple-green satin. Tiny pink roses with natural foliage, trimmed most attractively, and the lace frills on bodice and skirt were also charmingly arranged.

TEACHING RESPONSIBILITY

The yielding, pliant type of child requires to be taught self-reliance. A little responsibility is just what such a girl requires. She should be given pocket-money to lay out for herself, encouraged to decide what she will do with her time, and asked to form her own opinion as to what subjects she should take up.

Life is always difficult for the people who waver in their opinions, who are not quite sure what they should do or how they should act in the everyday things of life. The child who is too dependent upon others at school becomes the adult who does not know how to do anything, who cannot decide to buy a carpet without consulting two or three people beforehand. A mother should realise the danger of allowing such characteristics to go unchecked during the school age.

SASKATCHEWAN GRAIN AND RANCH LANDS



The attention of farmers and stock raisers is invited to the lands shown in the above plan.

The lands are situate in the Port Pelly District, Northern Saskatchewan, long known as probably the richest farming district in the Province. The parcel, which contains approximately 3,681 ACRES in one compact block, is watered on the west and south sides by the Assiniboine River, and by a large creek on the east. It is well wooded, thus assuring as well as evidencing ample rainfall, and plentiful supply of cheap fuel. It is undulating and well drained, having an elevation above the river, and rising gradually from it to a height of about 60 feet, and provides many beautiful residential sites.

In the advantages it offers for mixed farming it is unique, there being some 2,400 acres clear and ready for the plow, while the balance consists of timber and excellent pasture land, admirably suited to stock-raising. The soil is a rich, black loam, from 8 to 10 inches in thickness, resting on a clay subsoil, except along the river, where it is a rich sandy loam. Crops produced on similar neighboring lands are phenomenal for their quantity and quality.

The location is within ten miles of Mikado Station, on the main line between Winnipeg and Edmonton, of the Canadian Northern Railway, with good trails leading to it, and within a short distance of a school, While the settlement going on in the neighborhood is rapidly adding all the adjuncts of an up-to-date farming community.

This is an opportunity for a man with capital, business ability and practical experience. Such a man should clear his whole investment, including all improvements and equipment, in four or five years at the outside. And now is the time to purchase, as the price will shortly be advanced $5.00 per acre. Experienced men predict this land will be worth $50.00 per acre within ten years. Lands immediately adjoining, which last spring could have been bought for $14.00, are held to-day at $20.00 and $25.00 per acre.

We are also offering some 1,100 acres additional, in separate parcels of three half sections, and one quarter sections, situate in the same locality as above.

These lands were selected for the excellence of their location and the magnificent quality of their soil, which latter the official records of the Indian Agency demonstrate.

In bringing before the public of Eastern Canada an idea of the natural wealth of the West we are only carrying out a business proposition, and in doing so are animated solely by the desire of offering you a share of the good things on a ground floor basis. With the assurance of a little of your money we can make some for ourselves and a great deal or you because we have the unexploited natural wealth.

The man who staked our oil land is a pioneer of British Columbia, and for some years past has been living with his family on Graham Island, the most northerly of Queen Charlotte Group, and was in a position to select with care and under experienced advice, the richest oil bearing land, as well as being on a deep water harbor.

The mining of petroleum has for the past forty years been the direct cause and means of making more multi-millionaires on this continent than any other industry into which the same amount of money has been invested. We own 3200 acres of land on which the surface's indications (oil seepages) and geologic conditions are such that it is as near as possible certain that at a comparatively shallow depth there is unlimited quantities of oil of a high grade, as is evidenced by the analysis of the samples collected from the seepage.

A RAPID EDUCATION

Travellers Who Went Through School Very Quickly

When travelling some years ago in the Far West I met with an experience which happily does not fall to the lot of many people, says a correspondent. We were travelling on a special night train from Seattle to Tacoma. The train was going at high speed, when in the small hours of the morning the sleeping travellers were suddenly awakened by a terrific shock. Everyone believed that there had been a collision, and rose up to see what was the matter. A collision there certainly had been, but of a most unusual nature. The train had run through a wooden schoolhouse which some workmen, in moving, had stupidly left on the line. I doubt if many people have passed through school so quickly before or since.

HER LOVE STORY

The Queen of Roumania's Own Description of Meeting the Prince

Here is the Queen of Roumania's charming account of her own love story. The Prince of Roumania (as he then was) came to woo her, and, although "Carmen Sylva" hesitated at first, her mother talked to her of the Prince's good qualities, and, finally, in her own words, "As my mother went on talking, my hesitation seemed to fade away, and it was not long before I said to her, 'Let him come. He is the right one.' In a very short time the Prince had returned, I was summoned to the room, and I remember going towards him with my hand outstretched, which he raised to his lips, and I remember, too, the words he spoke, but my words to him I do not recall, though my mother treasured them in her heart, and had them inscribed below my portrait she sent to him."

Now, the Queen's granddaughter, Princess Elizabeth of Roumania, is about to become engaged to Prince George of Greece, eldest son of the Crown Prince of Greece, whom she will meet for the first time at the Coronation in London.

Mengo Cathedral, in Uganda, which was recently destroyed by lightning, was probably the largest edifice in Central Africa, being capable of containing nearly 5,000 people. It was consecrated about six years ago, and an offertory of grotesquely varied gifts was collected on the occasion. This consisted of 13 cows, four goats, 125 eggs, 130 fowls, 75,000 cowrie shells, and a number of coins. The cows, for lack of room, were not taken inside the Cathedral, but the goats were led up to the altar and presented to the bishop, while the fowls were brought in big bamboo crates.

NEW LIGHT ON COST OF LIVING

Food Products, Not Manufactures, Are the Articles High in Price

Mr. F. W. Field, Editor of "The Monetary Times," Toronto, in a recent article says:

"A significant fact in connection with the volume of talk and discussion that has originated from that hackneyed topic, the cost of living, is that in Canada the chief complaint is made against the high prices of food products, and not so much against manufactured articles. This circumstance is made plain when one begins to seek data regarding the comparative cost to the consumer in the United States and Canada of household furniture, crockery, stoves and other articles of domestic use. While every Government report gives plenty of information about grains and fodder, animals and meats, dairy produce, fish and other foods, there is a remarkable paucity of material showing the cost of certain staple manufacturered products. Those reports, which happen to be more elaborate in their record of the output and consumption of manufacturer, give but few examples in each class of goods. For instance, the report on wholesale prices for 1910, published by the United States Government gives figures relating to furniture under the following heads only—bed room suites, bedroom chairs, kitchen chairs and kitchen tables. The natural deduction from all this is simply that there has been little or no demand for such information, due largely to the fact that no one seems to be greatly dissatisfied with the prices of the common ordinary household article made in the factory. The increasing cost of eating to live, appears to be the backbone of the great economic problem, which is agitating the consumer of the American Continent.

It is sometimes contended that the housewife in Canada, because of our tariff, cannot obtain furniture and other domestic necessities as cheaply as can be purchased in the United States. Those official facts and figures, available, show that in this direction there is little, if any, cause for complaint. Canada has been more fortunate than some countries, for the tendency in the past decade has been one of decline in the prices of bedsteads, crockery, glassware, table cutlery and silver plated ware. It is interesting to analyse this situation more closely. Mr. R. H. Coats, in his special report on wholesale prices in Canada, obtained quotations for six representative lines of furniture, viz: kitchen tables and chairs, dining room tables and sideboards, bedroom suites and iron bedsteads. In all lines of wooden furniture, a steady and pronounced rise occurred in prices during the past twenty years.

In iron and brass bedsteads, on the other hand, there was a pronounced decline in the past ten years. The line quoted was a continuous pillar bed of shipping weight, about seventy-five pounds. It showed a decline from $6.31 in 1890 to $3.50 in 1909. The explanation offered by a leading manufacturer is that the manufacture of this article in Canada has reduced the cost both of brass and iron bedsteads.

The general tendency in crockery and glassware, table cutlery and silver plated ware was downward.

There was an advance of from 12 to 15 per cent. in pails and tubs compared with 1890, and of approximately 39 per cent. compared with the low years, 1896-1897. The most extraordinary advance, however is shown under the heading of brooms, which, in the closing days of 1909, had considerably more than doubled, as compared with the prices ruling in 1890. This, however, was largely accounted for by the scarcity of broom corn last year following a failure of the yield in the United States, the cost of broom corn to the manufacturer having advanced from $8-$10 to $20-$24 per ton. Apart from this advance, the price of brooms was fairly stationary during the decade from 1900 to 1910.

The question of raw materials to manufacturers has been a prominent one in many countries, but Canada probably has felt this phase of the question less than a good man nations. Commenting on this, the London Times said, two years ago: "The steady advance in the cost of raw materials, which is becoming a very serious matter, is due to a number of causes, chief among which may be mentioned the comparative smallness of the production, the great increase in the consumption, the high cost of labor in the producing districts, and the effect upon production and wholesale distribution of artificial restrictions." This fact has affected the cost to the consumer of a large unmber of articles. Too often the comparently high price of a manufactured article is due to the desire of the manufacturer to create or maintain large profits. Aside from the question of wages, freight rates, the increased cost of factory sites, and many other important considerations the factor of raw material is vital and has a tendency to fluctuate more widely than manufactured articles. On summing up the averages of wholesale prices noted by the Dominion Department of Labor, it is seen that in 1890, raw materials were 13.6 points above the average for the base period, 1890-99, while manufactured articles were only 9.6 points above that average. In the recession which followed until 1897 raw materials fell 23.2, while manufactured articles advanced only 26.4 points. Between 1909 and 1910, there was a gain of 4.8 points in raw materials and 2.3 points in manufactured articles. The statistics for 1910 show prices of raw materials at 42.6 per cent. above those of the base decade, and the prices of manufactured articles 17.1 per cent. above those of the base decade."

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 17.—Miss Counter's case will prove of great interest to everyone troubled with sore throat bronchitis or weak lungs.

When asked for a statement, Miss Counter said: "About seven years ago I contracted a heavy cold that settled on my lungs and resisted a treatment. After I had tried several doctors here and specialists in Detroit without benefit, I went to my druggist and asked him for the best remedy he had for cold on the lungs. He recommended Catarrhozone, which cured my cold in one week. It brought back my voice, and I have been ever since free from my old trouble. For coughs, colds and lung trouble I am sure that Catarrhozone is the best remedy. It goes right to the sore spot, gives quick relief, and makes a lasting cure."

Catarrhozone cures because its healing vapor is inhaled to the very places that are sore and inflamed.

To permanently cure your winter ills, your coughs, sneezing and Catarrh, by all means use a tried and proven remedy like Catarrhozone. But beware of the substitutor and imitator. Look for Catarrhozone only, 50c. and $1.00, at all dealers, or by mail from the Catarrhozone Company, Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

GOOD GOLF YEAR

Revival of H. H. Hilton and Harry Vardon a Feature of Season 1911.

There can be no question that the outstanding feature of last year's golf was the renaissance of Harry Vardon and Mr. H. H. Hilton. That they should regain the place they once held in the golfing world is not, perhaps, remarkable in itself, but the fact that their revival should have occurred in the same year is certainly a curious coincidence. For both seemed to have reached the zenith of their careers about seven years ago.

Vardon, of course, won the championship in 1903. At the same time he was in wretched health, and it seemed impossible that he could ever win again. It was about this period, too, that Mr. Hilton began to lose his old skill. In 1904 we seemed to be justified in thinking that the greatest of professionals and one of the finest amateurs had lost their powers.

The return of both men was as unexpected as it was dramatic. Of the two revivals that of Mr. Hilton was probably the more wonderful. He showed signs of regaining some of his old skill last year, and assiduous practice and strict training this season inaugurated such a spell of triumph as has seldom fallen to the lot of any amateur golfer.

FRENCH RACE TRACK

Large American Contingent is Helping on the Sport

"There never was a time when there was such a celan bill of health in the training establishments of France. A great year for racing is anticipated there, and this is reflected by the large attendance at Nice races. The stakes for the jumping events filled remarkably well and the early entries for 'the flat' are excellent." Thus spoke John S. McDonald, well known in American, English and French racing circles, and who has returned to London from Paris and Monte Carlo, in a chat on the prospects of racing in France.

"Indeed," added Mr. McDonald, "there are increased entries in every quarter, and on every hand I noted progress and improvements on every one of their already superb tracks. The large American contingent promises to materially increase the revenues derived from the pari-mutuels and at the turnstiles.

"The uniform courtesy extended to foreign horsemen by the French administration of racing is extremely gratifying to those who desire to race in France. It appears to be a pleasure to the officials to give all the necessary information and assistance to strangers and this certainly looks good for the sport on the other side of the English Channel."

A STRANGE PETITION

By Agnes Thomas

Once upon a time there lived, in Denmark, a little boy whose name was Hans. His father, who was dead, had been one of the King's foresters, and his mother still lived in the cottage on the edge of the forest where Hans and his two little sisters had been born. They were very poor, for their mother could only make a little money by knitting stockings, which were sold in the town of Z—— about four miles off. Hans, who was ten years old, was glad to get odd jobs to do for a neighbouring farmer, such as leading the cows to and from the pasture, carrying water from the spring to the house, or frightening the birds from the farmer's grain. He was a bright, industrious little fellow who loved to be useful, but his great desire was to go to school, so as to become a schoolmaster when he was grown up.

In the winter his mother fell ill, and for several weeks could earn no money. Hans did what he could, but if it had not been for the kindness of the farmer's wife the little family in the forest but would well-nigh have starved to death. Many a time the boy asked the good woman what he could do to earn more money, but she seemed to think he was too young to leave home, and told him to wait till he was older.

One day the farmer brought home great news from Z——. A fine new bridge was to be finished next month, and the King himself was coming to open it. There were no railways in those days, and the King would drive from Copenhagen to Z—— in his own carriage. The road ran through the farm, and all the people, the farmer said, must be prepared to salute His Majesty as he passed.

Hans ran off at once to tell the great news to his mother, and just as he came in sight of the hut a sudden thought jumped into his mind, and it was such a great and surprising thought that he gave a little leap in the air, and burst out laughing. The thought was this, "Why should I not ask the King to help mother?"

Now, Hans had never seen the King but he had often heard that he was a very kind and good man. He was always thinking of what he could do to make his people richer and happier; and he was very charitable to the poor. So our little boy, as he skipped along the forest path, was quite sure that if His Majesty knew his troubles he would help him.

He took a week to think it over, for he felt it would be wiser not to tell his plan to anyone, lest he should be forbidden to carry it out. He decided that the proper thing to do was to present a petition to the King as he drove past the farm. And, as he was a very small boy, he thought it would be wise to make the petition as large as possible. He had neither paper, nor pens, nor ink, and he knew that he could not borrow any without saying why he wanted them. After a great deal of thought he slipped into his mother's room one day when she was asleep, and, opening the chest where the house linen was kept, he took out a pillowslip. It was of coarse linen, but very white from many bleachings in the sun. Upon this Hans wrote in large letters with a piece of burned wood — "Please, Your Majesty, Help Mother."

Carrying it very carefully on the morning of the great day, he ran across the fields to a part of the road where he knew no one else would be, and, sitting down under the hedge, he waited.

By-and-by he heard a sound of cheering, and knew that the cavalcade was passing the farm. Then he heard the trampling of horses' feet and the rumbling of wheels, and suddenly round the bend of the road came the gleam of bright harness and the colours of brilliant uniforms. A company of soldiers came first, and behind them the King's carriage drawn by four horses, with officers riding on each side. Hans waited till the soldiers had passed, then he sprang up and running into the road, held up his petition with both hands, in full sight of the King, quite hiding himself from view.

His Majesty stared for a moment, and then cried—"Halt! What's this?" An officer with a long grey moustache pulled up his horse, and saluted.

"May it please Your Majesty, I think it's a pillow-slip."

The King lay back in his carriage and laughed heartily.

"A pillow-slip, General? But what's on it?"

Now, the General was a kind old gentleman who had grandchildren of his own, and he had caught sight of little Hans's face. The tears were running down it from pure excitement. So the General said:—

"May it please Your Majesty, there's a boy behind it, and I think he's in distress."

"Dear, dear!" said the King; "that is serious. Let me see him."

So the General took the petition from Hans, and the little fellow clasped his hands and gazed anxiously at the King.

"What's your name, boy?" said the latter.

"Hans Petersen, Your Majesty."

"I had a forester of that name," said the King, "who was killed by the fall of a tree."

"It was my father, sire," said Hans, "and my mother's ill and we've no money, and I want to go to school, and the farmer's wife is very kind to us."

"This should have been seen to before," said the King, "but I'll attend to it when I pass this way to-morrow, boy."

And, as you may believe, he saw to it very well, for he gave the poor woman a pension and a house in Z—— to live in, so that Hans and his sisters could go to school. The boy grew up good and clever, and in time became a learned professor in the great University of Copenhagen.

"If it wasn't for me my class in school would not have any standing at all," said Hubert.

"Nonsense," said his aunt. "Your mother says you are at the foot of it."

"I am," said Hubert. "How could it stand if it didn't have a foot?"

IN THE WORLD OF SCIENCE

LATEST ABOUT RADIUM

Inexhaustibility of Radium Emanation Has Been Disproved.

Scarcely twelve years have elapsed since Professor and Madame Curie, by a painstaking and laborious process, succeeded in isolating the radio-active substance from a large mass of mineral having radio-active properties, and to it the name radium was given. This discovery was followed by fantastic theories and elaborate hypotheses brought about by the desire of physicists to account for the wonderful properties of the new substance without doing violence to existing laws. Here was a phenomenon which had to be reconciled to existing laws of energy, though apparently it transgressed the fundamental law of the conservation of energy. Radium gave off energy day by day and year by year without apparent consumption or even diminution in radiating power, and not a few of our leading physicists were ready to disown the law of the conservation of energy under the formidable evidence presented by the untoward phenomenon of this new substance; but recent researches have shown that this barrier to the full acceptance of the law of the conservation of energy has broken down, and that radium slowly wastes away by the dissipation of its energy just as a furnace unreplenished with fuel will eventually lose its radiating power. The extreme slowness of the decline in radiating power of radium was the cause of the first incorrect assumptions regarding it; but under the experimental skill of such men as Professors Soddy, Dewar, and Rutherford the apparent inexhaustibility of radium emanation has been disproved; and, instead of a substance possessed of an inexhaustible store of energy, it may now be regarded as a body possessed of great concentrated energy, which it allows to escape slowly and persistently, and in this respect it fits in with the existing order. As we learn more about it we find that there is less occasion to modify our previous ideas of energy in general.

ARTIFICIAL RUBBER.

Said to be Quite as Good as the Grown Article.

About forty years ago two young chemists announced that they had succeeded in manufacturing indigo. The method used by them was entirely independent of the indigo plants. The yield was extremely small, and there seemed to be no promise in the method of future commercial success. A quarter of a century later or thereabout the manufacturer was supplying the world with artificial indigo, and the occupation of the indigo planter, if not gone, was going. And now the chemical world is all agog about rubber. This substance obtained mainly from South and Centre America, though, of late years, owing to a great increase in the demand for it, plantations have been started, especially in Ceylon and the Malay Peninsula and Archipelago, and these are now contributing to the world's supply. Deep incisions are made near the base of the tree. The liquid flowing from these incisions is heated to drive off most of the water, and the residue is the impure rubber of the market. The valuable constituent is caoutchouc, a colourless, elastic, amorphous substance. This has long been known, but little has been learned in regard to its chemical nature until recently. Last year a specimen of artificial rubber was exhibited at Berlin identical in all its properties with the natural substance. At present there appears, to be sure, to be little prospect of early commercial success along the line suggested, but the results already reached are of such interest as to incite to many efforts to solve the problem.

TEBELDI TREES

How Inhabitants of Soudan Provide Themselves with Water.

A writer gives an interesting account of one of the means by which the inhabitants of Kordofan provide themselves with a copious water supply in that arid springless region. It is nothing more nor less than the "adansonia digitata," called by the natives "homr," but commonly known as "Tebeldi." These tebeldi-trees are from 1 ft. to 25 ft. in diameter; they grow to a considerable height with trunks about 2 ft. to 3 ft., and fine branches giving a vast amount of shade.

Strange to say, the trunks are naturally hollow, and are thus used as cisterns for the storage of water. Should the cavities not be large enough, the natives scoop them further out. An opening is made either in the side of the trunk near the top or right at the top, where the branches start. In the former case, the tree is filled with buckets from pools, which are dug at the foot of the tree to collect the rain-water during the rainy season. In the latter case the tree is filled by nature when the rain falls, the branches acting as sort of gutters.

At times the trees crack — but this occurs very rarely — and the trunks are no longer of any use as reservoirs. However, lately the resourceful native has adopted cement as a means of stopping up the cracks, and a large number of tebeldies have been repaired in this manner. Curiously enough, the presence of such a large quantity of water in the trunk in nowise impedes its growth, and it is certainly one of the most ingenious devices of Nature for circumventing a natural difficulty.

Every cultivator has his tebeldi-tree, which is indispensable to his work. These trees are looked upon as personal property, and on the death of a landowner his "tebeldis" pass as heirlooms to his sons.

WATCH RAIN

Rain Drops on the Car Window

On a rainy day the observing traveller will doubtless be surprised to find that every rain drop on the car window by his side becomes a miniature whirling vortex as long as the car is in motion at speeds above ten or fifteen miles per hour. The effect is most easily noticed when the rain drops have collected enough fine particles of soot to make their motion apparent. While the largest drops show the greatest movement, the rotation can be detected even in droplets down to one-eighth inch in diameter when the train is running at high speed. The direction of rotation for each individual drop is the same as that of the car-wheels, the cause of the motion doubtless being due to wind friction against the lower rounded side of the water drop. The pear-shape form of the drops, especially the larger ones, where the attraction of gravity for the mass gets the better of the surface tension, which tends to hold the spherical form, results in a greater rotational moment at the rounded bottom than at the thin, wedge-like top, so that the wind friction at this lower surface produces movement in the same direction as the car wheels below.

MYSTERIOUS HUMAN RAYS

The recent announcement from Paris that a Major Darget has discovered that the human body emits rays, which he has named "V"-rays, is a reminder that confirmation has not yet been obtained of the mysterious rays which eight years ago M. Blondlot claimed to have seen. These rays, said M. Blondlot, were not only emitted by certain sources of light and heat, but also by the human body, and by animals such as frogs. They varied in their nature so much that a very thin sheet of aluminum was opaque to them when sent out from the brain or nervous system, but when originating in the muscles, the diaphragm, or the heart they easily passed through otherwise opaque screens. M. Blondlot named the rays the "N"-rays, after the town of Nancy, in the University of which he was a professor, but up to the present other investigators have utterly failed to discover their existence.

Tenth of a Second

It is not common to find a person who can correctly estimate the lapse of a single second, says a well known Scientist. But in these days of speeding motor-cars the exact time when each of two colliding vehicles must have occupied particular spots may be a matter of great importance. In a recent experiment a car took nearly two seconds to stop after brakes were applied, and in that time it moved 19 ft. So even fractions of a second are important. One can train himself to estimate even tenths of a second. Try it with a watch, and it will be found that it is just possible to count 10 in the lapse of a single second. But one must count very fast to do it.

A Fountain Pen for Draughtsmen

A detachable container for drawing ink which can be slipped into place on the handle of a draughtsman's pen has been devised by a Los Angeles inventor, and by its use the constant dipping into the ink bottle is obviated. The danger of dropping ink upon the paper is avoided likewise. Another advantage is that a number of these containers may be carried in a pocket case, each of them holding a different colored drawing ink, for use in draughting maps, etc. Thus it is possible to dispense with a tray of ink bottles on the table. For filling this device, an ordinary "dropper" is used. As the photograph shows, the ink flows from the reservoir through a narrow tube to the pen point, where it supplies an even flow.

Blacksmiths to Increase Prices.

On and after March 1st, a new schedule of prices will go into force in the blacksmith shops of Peterborough and the surrounding country. The reason of the advance is due to the increased price of material, of living and of higher wages that assistants demand. Advances have been made on all sides, but the rates received for horse shoeing and general work have remained stationary. Coal horse shoes, and general materials have been steadily increasing in price and it is felt that a schedule of higher prices must obtain if the blacksmiths are to make a fair living.

GENERAL MILES PRAISES CHINESE

War Always Unpopular with the Chinese but they are a Brave People but Nothing Can Stop Revolution.

(Special Cable Service.)

In some respects, China was to me the most interesting country I have ever had the pleasure of visiting. In their ancient civilization we find much that we could adopt with benefit, and still more that has been obsolete for centuries.

Ages ago China passed through some of the experiences that now interest or agitate our people. The controversies between capital and labor and the unequal distribution of wealth were problems in which they were concerned thousands of years ago. As a race they have encouraged industry, art, science and literature.

GENERAL MILES

Compared with some other people their integrity has been proverbial.

It was my good fortune, in 1902, to have the opportunity of seeing the different sections of China, as well as visiting the principal cities of Hong Kong, Canton, Tsiensin, Pekin and other important places. A marked contrast is noticeable between that and our country.

During my sojourn in that country nine years ago I found the leading men greatly exercised concerning the threatened dismemberment of their country. Ostensibly for the purpose of obtaining spheres of commercial influence, Great Britain, France, Germany, Russia and Japan had all acquired control of certain portions of Chinese territory, and it seemed only a question of time when their nation would disappear from the map of the world.

China owes her existence today partly to the fact that two of the aggressive powers became involved in war over a certain portion of her territory.

To realize how far the absorption of that country had extended, one needed only to visit Hong Kong and see the formidable fortification defending the entrance to the harbor—the powerful fleet of battleships, the palace of the governor general and the 5,000 trained, disciplined, veteran (English) troops, all under a foreign flag. Similar occupation could be observed in other parts of the empire.

For hundreds of years war and the military profession has been unpopular with the Chinese people. They abhor the first and if possible would always avoid the latter. Their army now consists of approximately 160,000 men, and the government has recently been endeavoring to increase this number to 350,000.

That great empire of 430,000,000 people is now quaking like the tremors of the earth. From the center to the remotest quarter of that vast territory a political convulsion and revolution is affecting all its conditions and attracting the attention of the world. What will be the result — how far reaching will be its influence, or to what extent it will affect the 400,000,000 of the human race in other countries of the orient, it is impossible now to determine.

GERMANY AGAIN AFTER TERRITORY

PARIS. — It is learned from an authoritative source that Germany is negotiating with Spain for the acquisition of territory in Rio Muni, or Spanish Guinea, where it is proposed to establish warehouses and factories. Rio Muni is in Western Equatorial Africa, between Kamerun and the Muni river. A German commission will be sent to Rio Muni shortly to engage in topographical work.

MADRID. — Prime Minister Canalejas denies the statement that Spain was about to sell her Guinea colony to Germany or any other power. He added that Spain was willing to use great moderation in her negotiations with France about Spanish vested rights and interests in Morocco.

CANADA FOR MANUFACTURERS

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — Hon. J. G. Henderson, commissioner of industries of Hamilton, Ont., declared "Annexation sentiment in Canada is absolutely nil," while addressing the American Hardware Manufacturers' Association convention on the subject, "Canada, the manufacturers' opportunity."

"As a budding nation our loyalty is intense and practical, and our position as one of the leaders of the Empire compels us to maintain our tariff wall," he asserted.

The speaker stated that Canada is a firm believer in the home market and that there was no possibility in the very near future of any reduction in duties levied on articles manufactured this side of the line.

These are the days that some girls when talking together say, "I've given up candy for Lent." "So have I" says another. The two then go to Hooper's and buy 60 cents worth of Charlotte Russe, high grade biscuits, etc.

By reports received, it seems that the Rochester Convention of Iron Workers knew of the recent dynamite outrages. What a pity, that men belonging to so honorable a craft should lend their aid to so contemptible an affair.

RECORDS OF 1911

Fast Time Made by the Trotters and Pacers

The following list of records for the year just closed will be of interest to the admirers of the trotter and pacer, showing as it does the best time made on the half-mile as well as the mile tracks and also showing the world's records.

Only three of them, however, the half-mile track trotting performance of Uhlan (2.02¾), which displaced his own mark of 2.05¼ under like conditions; the 2.15 pacing mile by the yearling, Frank Perry, which removes that of Paul D. Kelly (2.20¾), and the 3-year-old pacing record of 2.05¼, made by Miss De Forrest, displacing the 2.05½ of Kiatawah and a like mark by Jim Logan, are new world's records.

It was confidently expected that Uhlan would reduce his 1910 mile of 1.58½, but the attempt was postponed front runner, and at the same time dethrone Lou Dillon, whose mark is 1.58½, but he attempt was postponed until the Lexington meeting in October, by which time the weather was so unfavorable that after one losing mile the horse was not started again. There is no reasonable doubt, however, that had Uhlan's managers been fortunate in their choice of a day for the big trial the gelding would now have had a mark of 1.58 or better.

Whether he ever will be able to lower his present record is doubtful, as the great trotter is to be shipped in April to Russia, and, as he goes direct from New York to Moscow and will pass the best part of two weeks making the journey, it will be necessary to condition him almost from the beginning for the miles he is to trot in other lands. In any event, he would not be up to much in April, even if his trotting was to be done in America.

SPORT AND SPYING

The London Chronicle Protests Against a Recent Charge

London Daily Chronicle:—Sport has many enemies, we know, and among them there is a class of people who, if they had their way, would entirely sweep away every pastime, good or bad, healthy or the reverse, in the country. And now the faddists have had another opportunity presented them for decrying games, for a German contemporary gravely asserts that "England maintains an army of spies in the Fatherland," and that the organization chiefly comprises members of the best class of English society, who are so fond of sport—the more venturesome and daring the better—that spying has been taken up as one of our national pastimes! Spying certainly requires in the man who is fond of the "game" nerves of steel, and it is a well-known fact that the well-trained sportsman is the most suitable man for daring and dangerous exploits; but it is really too bad to state that sport and spying go hand in hand, and as sportsmen we protest against the imputation.

City Post Office Clerks' Salaries.

It will be of interest to our readers to learn that the Dominion Government is considering an Act to arrange for salaries of employes of city post offices. The schedule of pay for such clerks, by the coming act will be: Grade B, on appointment, $500, with annual increases of $100 to $800; Grade A, on appointment, $800, with annual increases of $50 to $1,000; Second-class clerks, Grade B, on appointment, $1,000, with annual increases of $50 to $1,200; Grade A, on appointment, $1,200, with annual increases of $50 to $1,400.

A Few of the Amazing Things We May Do in the Magical Future, According to Edison

What will the world be like a hundred years hence?

None but a "wizard" dare raise the curtain and disclose the secrets of the future; and what wizard can do it with so sure a hand as Thomas Alva Edison, who has wrested so many secrets from jealous Nature? He alone of all men who live has the necessary courage and gift of foresight; and he has not shrunk from the venture.

Already, Edison tells us, the steam-engine is emitting its last gasps. A century hence it will be as remote an antiquity as the lumbering coach of Tudor days, which took a week to travel from Yorkshire to London. In the year 2011 such railway-trains as survive will be driven at incredible speeds by electricity (which will also be the motive force of all the world's machinery), generated by "hydraulic" wheels.

But the traveller of the future will largely scorn such earth-crawling. He will fly through the air, swifter than any swallow, at a speed of two hundred miles an hour, in colossal machines which will enable him to breakfast in London; transact business in Paris, and eat his luncheon in Cheapside.

Steel Cradles for Babies

The house of the next century will be furnished from basement to attic with steel, at a sixth of the present cost—of steel so light that it will be as easy to move a sideboard as it is to-day to lift a drawing-room chair. The baby of the twenty-first century will be rocked in a steel cradle; his father will sit in a steel chair at a steel dining-table; and his mother's boudoir will be sumptuously equipped with steel furnishings, converted by cunning varnishes to the semblance of rosewood or mahogany, or any other wood her ladyship fancies.

Books of the coming century will all be printed on leaves of nickel, so light to hold that the reader can enjoy a small library in a single volume. A book two inches thick will contain forty thousand pages, the equivalent of a hundred substantial volumes of to-day; three such volumes, six inches in aggregate thickness, would suffice for all the contents of the "Encyclopaedia Britannica." And each volume would weigh less than a pound.

Already Mr. Edison can produce a pound-weight of these nickel leaves, more flexible than paper, and ten times as durable, at a cost of $1.25. In a hundred years' time the cost will probably be reduced to a tenth.

More amazing still, this American wizard sounds the death-knell of gold as a precious metal. "Gold," he says, "has even now but a few years to live; the day is near when bars of it will be as common and as cheap as bars of iron or blocks of steel." We are already on the verge of discovering the secret of transmuting metals, which are all substantially the same in matter, though "combined in different proportions." Before long it will be an easy matter to convert a truck-load of iron bars into as many bars of virgin gold.

We Shall Not be Here

In these magical days to come there is no reason why our great liners should not be of solid gold from stem to stern; why we should not ride in golden taxi-cabs; or substitute gold for steel in our drawing-room suites. Only, steel will be the more durable, and, thus the cheaper in the long run.

And in the world of manufacture the changes of the next hundred years will be just as revolutionary. Where we have now a score of machines, each responsible for a stage of manufacture, one will suffice.

"Before long," says Mr. Edison, without a twinkle in his eye, and certainly without his tongue in his cheek, "we shall have a machine into one end of which you will put cloth, thread, buttons, and so on, and from the other end draw suits complete to the last stitch, and ready folded for delivery."

All our present marvels of phonograph and telephone and aerial telegraphy are but blind gropings in the dark compared with the light that shall flood the next century.

The Briton of 2011 will be able to sit in his armchair and converse with his son at the Cape, or with a friend in Melbourne, as easily as across the hearthrug; and not merely to listen to his friend's or his son's voice, but to see each of them as clearly as if he were in the same room.

"WHERE'S THE MISSIS?"

During the tour round the world of the King and Queen as Duke and Duchess of Cornwall, one of the ceremonies was at the University of Melbourne in Australia.

The Duke was to receive an honorary degree, but the Duchess was unable to be present. There was a vast crowd. At last the solemn procession of the Council and Senate of the University emerged and made its way to the platform, the Chancellor escorting the Duke, gorgeous in his new hood and gown. In the hush of the moment, while the dignitaries were taking their places, a student of the University called out, in a disappointed tone:—

"Hello, George! Where's the missis?"

The shocked expression on the faces of some of the bigwigs only added to the audience's delight at the good-natured smile with which the Duke looked up in the direction of the voice.

Fifty-one Years Clerk

Mr. Elias Taylor, parish clerk of Felsted, has retired on reaching the age of ninety, after fifty-one years of service. During his term of office he daily ascended the church tower to wind the clock. He discharged that duty 18,500 times, and climbed 100 miles of stairs.

A Wedding in the City.

A quietly celebrated wedding was solemnized on Tuesday at the rectory of the Sacred Heart parish. Those united in matrimony were Miss Georgina Laplante and Ira Masters, both residents of Peterborough. Father McCauley tied the nuptial knot. The young couple were attended by Miss Maud Masters, as bridesmaid, and Mr. LaPlante, brother of the bride as best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Masters left on a wedding trip, following which they will reside in Peterborough.

THE ART OF STEWING

A Good Stew is a Very Delicious and Nutritious Dish.

Yes, it is an Art, fair readers, though I can see you turn up your noses at the very suggestion. Yes, and a stew—a good stew—is a very delicious and a most nutritious dish.

Many people seem to think that all that is required for a stew is to put pieces of meat, cooked or uncooked, according to taste, with any vegetables at hand, into a pot on the fire, and then leave it to take care of itself.

Small wonder that a stew is looked on with scorn!

To begin with, to stew is to cook at slow, even heat. Bring up the contents of the pan to near boiling point; then stand it at the side of the fire, and gently simmer till cooked. A stew will not take care of itself on a coal stove, for if the fire gets low, so does the temperature of the pot, and actual cooking ceases.

With gas it is different, for, having regulated your flame to a nicety, the stewing will go on gently until the flame is altered.

Now as to the merits of the stew.

It is economical and nourishing.

Economical because the coarsest, and consequently the cheapest, pieces of meat are by slow cooking rendered palatable.

Nourishing because all the juices of the meat and vegetables are in the meat and gravy, and nothing is thrown away.

So if you wish stews to be appreciated give care and time to their preparation, and success will crown your efforts. When preparing a stew, cut the meat into neat pieces, and if it is raw melt some dripping in your pan, and cook the meat in it till nicely browned. Then take up the meat and fry the vegetables lightly, and put them with the meat. Stir into the fat a level tablespoonful of flour, and when perfectly smooth, add a pint of gravy or water. Stir till it boils, then color, and flavor nicely with pepper and salt. Put the meat and vegetables back and stew gently for two hours. This is a rough, general idea of how stews should be done.

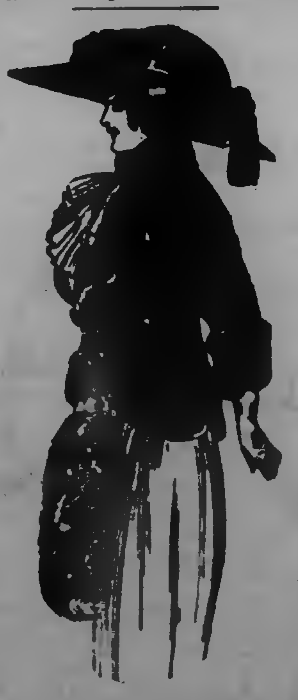
For Irish stew the meat does not require frying, but is put on with the vegetables, brought to the boil, and then stewed slowly for two hours, or two hours and a half.

Again, a delicious white stew of veal can be made by cutting the veal in pieces, and cooking it in milk and water, with an onion, a small blade of mace, and a few herbs. Let it cook slowly for an hour and a half, and then add three or four ounces of macaroni and cook for about half an hour longer. Serve the macaroni arranged round the dish with a garnish of chopped parsley, and the meat in the centre with a few rolls of fried bacon on it.—Exchange.

WHEN TO MARRY

Age is Not the Important Factor Several Writers Say.

A number of prominent women have contributed their opinions on what is the "right age for marriage" to one of the weekly papers. Lady Warwick leads off with: "Marry at any age so long as there is real love." Mme. Sarah Grand says: "That the time to marry must vary according to temperament." "All should marry in their own class in life, in their own professions" is the advice given by Mrs. Kendall. According to Miss Fanny Brough, the best time is twenty-one. Mme. Bernhardt would say to the man: "Look for a wife who will be your companion." To a woman: "Seek a man whom you can trust to be a sympathetic protector." Mr. Plowden is convinced "that marriage is an experiment. The most that can be said is, that when it turns out happily, the age was not badly chosen; but even so it might have been earlier."



COAT OF NEAR-SEAL

'Twill be a "furry" season—weather permitting, and never has there been such a rich display of handsome skins. Manufacturers seem to have reached the high mark of perfection with near-seal, and are showing wonderfully good-looking coats in this fur. The shorter models are made somewhat dressy, with trimmings of lace jabots and large fancy buttons, and are exceedingly popular for afternoon wear.

Fire Brigade Have Trouble.

The Peterborough fire laddies had a run yesterday morning to 122 Boundary Road. The house, from which the alarm came is occupied by Mr. William Thompson, and is owned by Mr. C. Brewer. No damage was done to the building. A funny incident was that the hook and ladder waggon was engulfed in a snowbank and the services of a passing team had to be engaged to get it free. Trouble never comes singly. On the way home the runner of the hose wagon broke down. A quick call to the station was sent in and a set of wheels sent out to relieve the situation.

THE SOLDIER'S PRAYER BOOK

By John Marr

Showing how one Richard Middleton was taken before the Mayor of the city he was in for using cards in church during divine service, being an account of an odd affair that happened to a private soldier in a British regiment.

The sergeant commanded his party to church, and when the parson had ended his prayer he took his text; but this soldier pulled out a pack of cards, and spread them before him. As he sat, while the parson was preaching, he first kept looking at one card and then at another. The sergeant of the company saw him, and said, "Richard, put up your cards, for this is no place for them." "Never mind that," said the soldier, "for you have no business with me here."

The Arraignment

When the parson had ended his sermon and all was over the soldiers repaired to the churchyard, and the commanding officer gave the word of command to fall in. The sergeant of the city came and took the man prisoner. "Man, you are my prisoner," said he. "You have played a game of cards in the church." "No," said the soldier, "I have not played a game for I only looked at a pack." "No matter for that, you are my prisoner."

So he took him before the Mayor. "Well, soldier, what have you to say for yourself?" "Sir," said the soldier, "I have been five weeks on the march, and have but little to subsist on, and have nothing but a pack of cards. I hope to satisfy your honour of the purity of my intention."

The Explanation

Then the soldier pulled out of his pocket the pack of cards, and began with the ace. "When I see the ace," said he, "it puts me in mind that there is one God only. When I see the deuce it puts me in mind of the Father and Son. When I see the three it puts me in mind of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost. When I see the four, it puts me in mind of the four Evangelists that preached the Gospel — Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John. When I see the five it puts me in mind of the five wise virgins, who trimmed their lamps; there were ten, but five were foolish, and were shut out. When I see the six, it puts me in mind that in six days the Lord made Heaven and earth. When I see the seven it puts me in mind that on the seventh day God rested from all his works which he had created and made, wherefore the Lord blessed the seventh day and hallowed it. When I see the eight it puts me in mind of the eight righteous persons who were saved when God drowned the world —Noah, his wife, three sons, and their wives. When I see the nine, it puts me in mind of the nine lepers that were cleansed by our Saviour; there were ten, but nine never returned God thanks. When I see the ten it puts me in mind of the ten Commandments that God gave Moses on Mount Sinai on the two tables of stone."

He took the knave and put it aside.

"When I see the queen it puts me in mind of the Queen of Sheba — who came from the farthermost parts of the world to hear the wisdom of King Solomon, and who was as wise a woman as he was a man, for she brought fifty boys and fifty girls all clothed in boys' apparel to show before King Solomon for him to tell which were boys and which were girls; but he could not until he called for water for them to wash themselves; the girls washed up to their elbows, but the boys only up to their wrists, so King Solomon told by that —and also of Queen Victoria, to pray for her. And when I see the king it puts me in mind of the great King of Heaven and Earth, which is God Almighty.

The Palliation

"Well," said the Mayor, "you have given a very good description of all the cards except one, which is lacking."

"Which is that?" said the soldier.

"The knave," said the Mayor.

"Oh! I can give your honour a good description of that, if your honour won't be angry."

"No, I will not," said the Mayor, "if you will not term me the knave."

"Well," said the soldier, 'the greatest that I know of is the sergeant of the city who brought me here."

"I don't know," said the Mayor, "that he is the greatest knave, but I am sure he is the greatest fool."

"I shall now show your honour," said the soldier, "How I use the cards as an almanack."

"You certainly are a clever fellow," said the Mayor, "but I think you'll have a hard job to make that appear."

"When I count how many spots there are in a pack of cards, I find there are three hundred and sixty-five; there are so many days in the year."

"Stop!" said the Mayor, "that's a mistake."

"I grant it," said the soldier, "but as I have never yet seen an almanck that was thoroughly correct in all points, it would have been impossible for me to imitate an almanck exactly without a mistake."

"Your observations are very correct," said the Mayor. "Go on."

"When I count how many cards there are in a pack, I find there are fifty-two; there are so many weeks in the year. When I count how many tricks there are in a pack, I find there are thirteen; there are so many moinths in the year. You see, sir, that this pack of cards is a Bible, Almanack, and Common Prayer-Book and a pack of cards to me."

Then the Mayor called for a loaf of bread, a piece of cheese, and gave to the soldier a piece of money, bidding him go about his business, saying he was the cleverest man he had ever seen.

The Real Trouble.

The real trouble with Britain is thus stated by a writer: "We cannot repeal the food taxes, nor adequately finance our schemes of relief, because the money is mortgaged to Dreadnoughts, and the money is mortgaged to Dreadnoughts because we are entangled in the schemes of alliances which divide Europe into two camps."

It was no spring zephyr that wafted through Peterborough yesterday. This was one of those old-time, snow laden blizzards that the older generation loves to tell of. The kind that the elderly man, with white whiskers and frazzled trouser legs loves to tell of. The kind that ancient citizens recalls that blew in 1867 when a party of people drove from Cobourg to this city and were snow bound at a farmer's house on the wayside. If the good book did not describe Gehenna as being a place of fire and brimstone, one might say that yesterday's weather was . . . Well! It was cold enough.

Hard on the Street Cars.

The Peterborough Radial Railway Co. had their own troubles with yesterday's blizzard. However, they managed to give a pretty good service. One Park street car became snow bound and required a lot of work to be dug out.

T.A.S. and Campbellford To-Night.

As a result of the defeat of T.A.S. in Campbellford on Tuesday night, the two teams are tied for the district and will decide their differences by home and home games, the first here to-night and the second in Campbellford on Tuesday. There will be a big crowd at Brock street rink to-night for the first battle.

Former Local Man Goes West.

Mr. Will Cahill, formerly of Peterborough, and late of Toronto, has gone to Vancouver, being one of a party of Bank of Toronto employes who have been moved to the West. Mr. Cahill was on the staff of the local branch of the bank, and was moved to the head office in Toronto. He was widely known in this city.

Pro. Baseball in Peterborough.

The question of establishing Pro. baseball in Peterborough on a paying basis will be settled on Saturday evening at a meeting called at the Oriental Hotel. Secretary M. M. Robinson of the Canadian League, President Fitzgerald and Notty Lee, manager of the Hamilton Club are expected to be present.

Busy Times at Cordage.

Things are booming at the former Cordage works, now owned and operated by the International Harvester Co. The works are running at full capacity, but the management finds it difficult to secure enough girls to do the work. There are at present about one hundred and twenty-five employes at work.

Vags Sent to the Central.

Yesterday morning special Constable Pinchin arrested two disreputable looking vags at the C.P.R. Depot. When charged with vagrancy at the Police Court, both admitted the soft impeachment. They will have free transportation to Toronto and be guests at the Central Prison for the next six months.

Three Men Fined for Trepass.

At yesterday's session of the Police Court three young men were each set back $5 worth of fines. It seems that some months ago the dressing room of Jackson Park rink was broken open and some goods stolen. The sleuths of the rink have since done several Sherlock Holmes acts, which resulted in the arrest and fines of the three young men.

Local Hustlers in Toronto.

Three representatives of the Peterborough Ad. Club were in Toronto yesterday, namely, Messrs. F. H. Dobbin, C. F. Hardy and James Hamilton. A big gathering of advertisers in the quarters of the Toronto Ad. Club, representatives of advertising clubs from all over the Dominion were present.

Noted Divine Here Sunday.

Rev. E. Bosworth, of Montreal, General Secretary of the Mission of the Baptist Church to the Roman Catholics of Quebec, will speak Sunday morning in Murray street Baptist church. Lindsay After Dog Nuisance.

Lindsay Post: Mr. Chilton, chief of police of Lindsay, wishes the Post to state that complaints are coming in regarding the number of dogs running at large. He wishes it understood that the dog by-law is in force and if the canines are not kept off the streets, prosecutions will surely follow. How about the 27,361 useless curs that are an ominous risk to Peterborough and a sure breeding ground for the germs of hydrophobia?

Good Show at the Red Mill.

The Red Mill, successor to the Crystal, is certainly making good. The operator, who is "The man behind the gun," in that business, is onto his job, and gets a good clean cut picture. The pictures shown in the Red Mill for the past few days have been bright, sparkling, clean dramas and comedies, that the most fastidious taste could not object to. This theatre is run and operated by a Canadian.

A Local Runaway.

Yesterday afternoon the horse of a delivery waggon belonging to Mr. R. P. Carey, the local grocer, did quite a stunt in the way of speed. The equine, became alarmed and made a dash out Hunter street to George. It was standing with a weight attached outside the store at the corner of Hunter and Aylmer streets, and when making its record for speed dragged the weight with it. The animal was captured on Charlotte street. No damage except to the speed law.

Sad Death at Norwood.

The village of Norwood has lost one of its most respected citizens in the person of Mrs. W. Montgomery, who passed away on the 19th inst. Last Tuesday Mrs. Montgomery was stricken with acute peritonitis and from the first her condition was seen to be serious. The three local doctors were called in but to no avail. Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery have only been married about four years and she leaves her sorrowing husband with three small children, the youngest being an infant of a few weeks. Deceased was the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kempt, of Norwood.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

An eminent scientist, the other day gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poison! Not one species of microb) has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of the thing. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should never forget this.

Again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh tissue from below is Zam-Buk's secret of healing. The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day Mr. Marsh, of 101 Delorimier Avenue, Montreal, called upon Zam-Buk Company and told them that for over twenty-five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. To-day—over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years—he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the eczema!

All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box, or we will send free trial box if you send this advertisement and a 1c stamp (to pay return postage). Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

Yesterday was the limit in bad weather.

The men who contracted for ploughing the snow from the pavements of Peterborough, are certainly earning their money this winter.

Reports from Grimsby and Niagara Falls state that this years peach crop will be a big one. This news will be hailed with joy by every housewife in Peterborough.

One of Peterborough's oldest citizens yesterday remarked to a Times representative, "I've lived in this town for over fifty years, and I never saw such a severe winter as the present one."

Earl Sandt, the aviator, has flown across Lake Erie from Erie, Pa., to Port Dover, a distance of thirty miles. Why do not some of our local capitalists introduce aviation among the sports of Peterborough.

An aviator flew across Lake Erie a few days ago in 30 minutes. A Hunter street boy, caught by his mother stealing cookies, a week ago, flew across four blocks in record time to avoid the material slipper.

Did you hear the thrilling warble of the mocking birds yesterday? No, you did not! What you heard was the cuss words of Mr. Householder, as his snow shovel struck another layer of frozen snow.

Notwithstanding the terrible weather that existed last night the Fire Brigade had to turn out. About 6.30 a chimney was reported on fire at 640 Union street, in a house occupied by Wm. Curtin and owned by the Bradburn estate. The fire boys went to the scene in quick time. No damage was done.

But is it right to put the dollar and cent aspect of the question as primary?

Does liquor bring happiness and comfort and morality into our homes?

What about the women and children? Is their suffering, heart-break and misery in the homes of the drunkards? Do the little ones get a fair chance, are morals improved by the liquor traffic? Who are these men that are in the cells of the police court at night—the sober men or the drunkards? Who are these paupers in the jail—sober men or wrecks of men who spend their earnings in liquor?

All the women want is fair play for their husbands, for themselves and their little ones.

Will the landlords get more out of their property from a sober people, or from poor drunkards? God forbid that men of property should traffic in the bodies and souls of men and boys for a few extra dollars—even if thus they got the dollars, but it is false, temperance is profitable for all classes save the men who fatten on the spendings that should support the home and family, the bar room profits are seldom sure gain.

Yours truly,
Wife and Mother.

IS THIS FAIR PLAY?

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—There is certainly something wrong with the sight or the arithmetic, or the honesty, or the time when "Fair Play" made his count of the men present at the Temperance meeting. I went to that meeting a little late and set well towards the back and I can safely say that in the five rows of seats in front of me there were twice as many men as Fair Play says were present and of the men in the seats referred to not one could fairly be characterized as in "declining years." One wonders if Fair Play saw the inside of the meeting place that night. The chairman urged that every person present make known their views.

Fair Play writes as a property owner of this city and a comparatively heavy tax payer." If that statement is any more reliable than his statement of the number of men present at the meeting in question, it will have strengthened Fair Plays position greatly had he signed his own name. Again, if Fair Play really is a "comparatively heavy tax payer," let me ask him where he gets the money with which he pays his taxes? Is he living under the delusion that he is a philanthropist, because he pays taxes and collects it from his tenants in the form of rent?

Fair Play asks, "Is it square or British fair play that people paying comparatively no taxes shall decide a question which involves property?" The answer to this is yes, because it is a question of property to these people, even more than to Fair Play, because about the only chance that some of these people have of becoming property owners and of paying taxes on their own property instead of on Fair Play's property, is in closing the bar and removing temptation out of the way of the one who holds the purse strings.

I do not admit that Local Option when put into effect will in any general way decrease the price of property in Peterborough, but even if it did since Fair Play evidently thinks that he, as a property owner has profited by the license system, I would remind him that we are all bound up in the bundle of life together, and that it is only fair play, and if he prefers it, British fair play, that the other fellow—the fellow whose financial undoing the open bar has been should get a chance. Turn about is fair play.

Faithfully Yours,
James Rollins.

P.S.—Since writing the above, I learn from Mr. A. B. Cunningham, that twenty men and one lady took part in the discussion at the meeting referred to. "Fair Play" should now be man enough to take it back or in future pose under some more appropriate name than "Fair Play."

The Company owns 8 valuable Mining Claims (310 acres), free and clear of debt. These claims are located in Tisdale, Delora and Shaw Townships, and are known as the Reany, Mapes and James Claims. The development work done on each group of these claims has been most satisfactory and warrants the belief that further development will prove them to be very valuable mining properties. In fact, the Tisdale and Delora Claims have been proven by neighboring properties, while the James Claims in Shaw have one of the widest sulphide veins in that Township.

James F. We offer the first 100,000 shares of Porcupine-Fortuna Gold Mines, Limited, at the extremely low price of 15c per share.

15c--100,000 SHARES at 15c PER SHARE—15c

Considering the capitalization and the fairness of the Directors in placing one-half the capital in the Treasury to be sold for the development of the properties and building mills, and the value of the 8 claims owned by the Company, we believe this stock the best value, at 15c per share, ever offered the public in a Porcupine company. That being true, is it not also true that the second 100,000 shares at 20c per share are equally as good a purchase, as the Company will have sufficient funds in its Treasury to continue developing its valuable properties? Get your orders in at once, at 15c per share, and if the first allotment is sold before we receive them, we will give you the option of having your orders filled at 20c per share. IN THE WORLD OF SCIENCE

BRITAIN'S COAL SUPPLY

Prophesied Exhaustion of Fuel Will Harry the Advance of Improved Engines and Machinery.

Scientific calculation goes to show that the available quantity of coal in the proved British coal fields is in the neighborhood of 100,000 million tons, and that if the rate of working increases as it is doing this will be completely exhausted in 175 years. And in the life of a nation 175 years is a span. It is far from certain, indeed, whether the period named is not an extreme one, for the ever-expanding mechanical activity of the world indicates an acceleration of the rate of output on which the calculation is based, and so it is not beyond the range of possibility that the children of those now living may, before they become octogenarians, witness the contraction of industry, the beginnings of the at first slow but afterwards rapid transformation of Britain's great career.

It is pointed out however that this summing up of our learned men does bolt the door against a more hopeful prospect. At present the greater part of the energy potential in the coal mined is wasted. There can be economy in many ways, it is pointed out, by the substitution of turbine engines for reciprocating engines, thereby reducing the coal required per horse-power from 4lb. or 5lb. to 1½lb. or 2lb.; by the further replacement of turbines by gas engines, raising the economy to 30 per cent. of the total energy available in the coal, and thus lowering the coal consumption per horse-power to 1lb. or 1¼lb.; by creating the power at the pitmouth and distributing it electrically, as is already done in the north of England. There are other methods by which economy can be effected, but none of them perhaps so obvious as that of checking waste in the domestic grate as well as the factory chimney.

Edison's First Invention

The story of Mr. Edison's first invention will bear retelling. One day, when he was a small boy of five, his parents missed him, and after a long search his elder sister discovered him in the fowl-house, where he said he intended to remain three weeks. His clothes were in a terrible condition, being smothered with crushed eggs. "What were you doing that for, Tom?" asked his sister in alarm. "Well, I thought if the hens could hatch eggs by sitting on them I could," was the reply of the youthful genius.

Mr. Edison has often been credited with inventing things which even for him would have been remarkable. Some time ago, an American paper stated that he had invented a wonderful shirt which would last a man for twelve months without requiring to be washed. This shirt, it was stated, was made of 365 layers of material, the composition of which no one knew but the inventor, and all the wearer had to do to restore it to its original spotlessness was to tear off one of the layers, when he would have practically a new shirt. This announcement was reprinted in various other papers, with the result that Mr. Edison received no end of orders for the mystery shirt.

GRAHAM WINS S. RENFREW LAURIER SAYS "HURRAH"

Victor in Bitter Bye-Election Phoned Glad News to Liberal Leader at Ottawa---Low, Who Gave Up Seat, Hired Special Train to Be at Jubilation

Renfrew, Ont., Feb. 23.—"He says 'Hurrah.'" George P. Graham turned from the telephone to the crowd in his committee room to repeat the cry with which Sir Wilfrid Laurier greeted the news of his election in South Renfrew by a majority of about three hundred.

"Laurier is speaking." A profound hush fell on the excited crowd of Liberal workers, flushed with the pride of victory, when these words were spoken as a call to Mr. Graham to the telephone. Sir Wilfrid had called up a half-hour earlier through his secretary, and learned of the first results. Now he himself was speaking.

A BURST OF CHEERING.

"I think you can rest easy," Mr. Graham assured the Liberal chief. "We have now a lead of about three hundred. Arnprior is heard from, and they can't possibly head us off." "He says 'Hurrah,'" said Mr. Graham turning to the crowd, which demanded as a man: "What does he say?"

The announcement provoked a burst of cheering, which must have carried over the wires to Sir Wilfrid in Ottawa. Having started cheering the crowd continued, giving three cheers and a tiger for Laurier, Graham, Low and McGarry.

TORIES DEPRESSED.

Up to the opening of the polls both sides were equally confident of victory. At noon yesterday the first change was noticed: As the afternoon wore away a marked depression settled on the Conservative forces, who had their ears to the ground, the telegraph and the telephone. The confidence of the Liberal workers, on the other hand, grew into positive conviction in the late afternoon, that their candidate would win. Dr. Maloney heard the returns at his home in Eganville, Mr. Graham at his Renfrew headquarters.

The first returns were received very soon after five o'clock. The results up to six o'clock caused consternation on the Conservative side, and corresponding jubilation among the Liberals.

THREW CAPS IN THE AIR.

The results from Arnprior were awaited impatiently. At six o'clock they were received in Renfrew. Instead of giving Dr. Maloney a majority of over two hundred, as had been anticipated, the majority for him was but 121, and Renfrew had given Mr. Graham a lead of 179. The result was not in doubt after that. Mr. Graham's supporters threw their caps in the air and cheered themselves hoarse.

Tom Low called upon the phone from Wilno, thirty miles from Renfrew. He heard the results. Then he hired a special Grand Trunk train He reached Renfrew just before ten o'clock. He was met at the station by Mr. Graham. The Renfrew band escorted the victor to the opera house which was filled to overflowing.

Graham's majority stands this morning at 296, with 4 polls to hear from. The Renfrew Mercury says that probably never before were both [illegible] canvassing and getting out the vote. At E. Dunlop's friends and foes acknowledged that he is a clever campaign manager. On the Liberal side there was assistance from Mr. F. G. Inwood, of Toronto, and his assistant, Mr. Summerhayes. Whether success or failure was achieved, never before had the little loose ends been so well gathered up.

FLYING POST TRAIN "FLEW" FOR RECIPROCITY

Ottawa, Feb. 23.—It has been definitely determined that the "Flying Post" newspaper train running into Western Ontario will be discontinued in May. The Government feels that this must be done or that similar preferential treatment must be extended to the newspapers of Montreal, St. John, Halifax, Winnipeg and other centres of population. It is felt too, that the Government has no right to subsidize morning papers at the expense of evening papers.

FIRST PURPOSE TO CARRY RECIPROCITY.

It is now fully seen that while three newspapers are served by the "Flying Post" the establishment of the service was really part of the reciprocity campaign and that the chief object was to distribute The Globe free of cost throughout Ontario. The first purpose was not to serve the newspapers, but to carry reciprocity.

A FURTIVE SCHEME—COUNTRY BORE FULL COST.

Besides there was something curiously furtive about the whole matter. The impression was conveyed that the train was being paid for by the newspapers concerned and not run at the expense of the general taxpayer. It is now discovered that the newspapers contribute nothing and the actual cost of the train for twelve months will be $46,000.

New York, Feb. 23.—After scrubbing floors and peeling potatoes for a living in the city lodging house here for a fortnight or more, Leopold Hirschberg learned from a relative this week that his father had died and left him real estate in Alabama worth about $100,000. He will leave at once to claim his inheritance

OIL FROM MEXICO TO COMPETE WITH U. S.

New Orleans, La., Feb. 23.—The Mexican Petroleum Company, of Evano, Mexico, is seeking to enter its products at this port. The Dock Board has received a letter from the company asking for information relative to shipping facilities. In the letter it is said that the company desires a track of ground of from 20 to 30 acres, on which to establish a plant.

The company has no representative here, but from shipping offices it was learned that the company has large holdings in the Mexican oil fields, and is considered one of the strongest companies operating there. English capital is understood to be heavily interested in the company.

Seven bodies have been taken from the mine. A dozen men have been rescued alive, but from the stories they tell it is considerd likely that at least fifteen more dead will be found in one of the chambers.

TERMS OF STATED CASE ON MARRIAGE QUESTION

Supreme Court Is Asked Whether Federal Power Has Jurisdiction to Validate all Marriages in Spite of Provincial Legislation and Canonical Decrees

Ottawa, Feb. 23.—The following is the text of the stated case on the marriage question being submitted to the Supreme Court of Canada:

"The Committee of the Privy Council, on the recommendation of the Minister of Justice, advise that, pursuant to section 60 of the Supreme Court Act, the following questions be referred to the Supreme Court of Canada for hearing and consideration, namely: 1. (a) Has the Parliament of Canada authority to enact, in the whole or in part, Bill No. 3 of the first session of the twelfth Parliament of Canada, entitled, 'An Act to Amend the Marriage Act.' The bill provides as follows:

"1. The Marriage Act, chapter 105 of the Revised Statutes, 1906, is amended by adding thereto the following section: 3. Every ceremony or form of marriage heretofore or hereafter performed by any person authorized to perform any ceremony of marriage by the laws of the place where it is performed, and duly performed according to such laws, shall everywhere within Canada be deemed to be a valid marriage, notwithstanding any differences in the religious faith of the persons so married, and without regard to the religions of the person performing the ceremony:

ABSOLUTE AND COMPLETE.

"(2) The rights and duties, as married people of the respective persons married as aforesaid, and of the children of such marriage shall be absolute and complete, and no law or canonical decree or custom of or in any Province of Canada shall have any force or effect to invalidate or qualify any such marriage or any of the rights of the said persons or their children in any manner whatsoever.

"(b) If the provisions of the said bill are not all within the authority of the Parliament of Canada to enact, which, if any, of the provisions are within such authority?

"2. Does the law of the Province of Quebec render null and void unless contracted before a Roman Catholic priest a marriage that would otherwise be legally binding, which takes place in such Province?

"(a) Between persons who are both Roman Catholics, or (b) between persons one of whom, only, is a Roman Catholic.

HAS THE PARLIAMENT AUTHORITY?

"3. If either (a) or (b) of the last preceding question is answered in the affirmative, or if both of them are answered in the affirmative, has the Parliament of Canada authority to enact that all such marriages whether (a) heretofore solemnized, or (b) hereafter to be solemnized, shall be legal and binding?"

I. O. F. ADJOURNED CONCERT PUT OFF UNTIL MARCH

The Independent Order of Foresters of this city have certainly had hard luck with their concert, induced by bad weather this week. Our readers will remember how a few days ago the I.O.F. held a concert in the Conservatory of Music Hall, that the raging blizzard resulted in having a small audience present. The concert was postponed till last night. Mr. Mitchell, the hustling and efficient organizer of the order was unfortunately snow-bound between Cobourg and here, with some of his colleagues last night. Thus the splendid program arranged for has been postponed until some time in March.

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 23.—A Mexican National passenger train, which left here last night, returned to-day, having encountered burned bridges south of Jaurez. There were several bands of rebels along the line, the crew reported. The bridges were burned yesterday after the troop trains bearing the Jaurez garrison had passed on their way to Chihuahua.

THE TEMPERANCE MEETING.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I note with regret that Rev. Mr. Rollins takes exception to the letter I wrote to The Times regarding the temperance meeting in the George street church. I can only say that when I made my count of the men present, the census, that night, of masculinity present was, as far as I could see just as I wrote.

as I could see just as I wrote. I can assure the Reverend gentleman that I had no object or reason in perverting the truth. I must admit that the count, as mentioned in my letter was made early in the evening. Again, owing to the size of some of the ladies' hats a few men present may have been concealed from my point of vision. As regards the remainder of Mr. Rollins' letter is concerned, he will, I hope, allow me to retain my own opinion.

Fair Play.

WHO ARE THE BIGOTS?

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The party in a local paper, signing himself "Anti-Bigotry," is himself somewhat of a bigot. For his benefit, and for the benefit of certain of our Roman Catholic friends who think there is no virtue outside their own Church, I would quote the following from the Western Watchman, a Roman Catholic paper published in St. Louis, Mo.

What do Roman Catholics think of a co-religionist who becomes a Protestant? The question is answered by The Watchman as follows: "Protestants think that it is possible for an honest man to change his religion. Catholics believe so also, provided the change is from one Protestant sect to another, or from a Protestant sect to the Catholic Church. But Catholics not only believe, but know with a knowledge as firm as the rock of Gibraltar, that the man who apostatizes from the Catholic Church is an unmitigated scoundrel, a renegade to every honest and honorable principle. People may call that bigorty. It matters not what it is called: there is not a Catholic in the world who would not prefer to see his mother or sister dead than turned a Protestant."

MACKENZIE KING MAY TRY TO ENTER BY SOUTH ESSEX

Some Liberals, Following Mr. Graham's Victory, Propose That Mr. Clarke Vacate on Going West---Will Laurier Resign?

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 23.—It is rumored this morning that Mr. A. H. Clarke, M.P., for South Essex, will resign very shortly and that Hon. Mackenzie King will run for his seat. Mr. Clarke has formed a partnership with Maitland S. McCarthy, ex-M.P. for Calgary, and is moving west.

While he stated that he had not considered resigning, the Liberals are anxious for him to give up his seat, so as to allow the former Minister of Labor to stand for the riding.

ALL DUE TO HON. G. P. GRAHAM

The success of Hon. Geo. P. Graham is South Renfrew has raised the hopes of the Liberals and they want to make a fight to get King back into the House. South Essex has returned A. H. Clarke by large majorities although it is not a traditionally liberal riding.

The election of Graham has revived the stories that Sir Wilfrid Laurier intends to resign very shortly and Graham will be made Liberal leader. However, those who are in closest touch with the ex-Premier throw doubt on the story.

MRS. HEBERT IS JOYFUL, BUT HUSBAND THREATENS FIGHT

Montreal, Feb. 23.—Eugene Hebert the legally divorced and re-married principal of the famous suit decided yesterday, was seen this morning by a Canadian Press Association representative. He said that his legal advisers were considering the question of an appeal.

Asked how it was after dropping the case and pleading poverty, he was contemplating going on with the case, he said that if his wife could afford the litigation he would have to.

Mrs. Hebert could not be seen, but her lawyer, G. V. Cousins, said she was overjoyed by the result. He said he was ready to go on and fight any appeal that might be made, as the highest legal authorities that he had spoken to, said the judgment was the most thorough that had ever been delivered on the subject.

QUEBEC TO ACT.

Quebec, Feb. 23.—When the question of the marriage law of Quebec is brought up this afternoon before the Legislative Assembly, the chief of the Opposition, Mr. Tellier, will ask the Government to appoint a lawyer so defend before the Privy Council the autonomy of the Province of Quebec.

Mr. Tellier is of opinion, with Messrs. Aylesworth, Doherty and Borden, that the Province of Quebec has the exclusive right to legislate on the question of marriages, notwithstanding the judgment rendered yesterday by Judge Charbonneau.

Mr. Tellier continues to think that a marriage between Catholics must be celebrated before a Catholic priest, that a marriage between Protestants must be celebrated before a Protestant minister, and that a marriage between persons belonging to different religions can be celebrated either before a Catholic priest or a Protestant minister.

COUSINS TO ASSIST?

Montreal, Feb. 23.—It was hinted this morning in legal circles that George V. Cousins, counsel for Mrs. Hebert in the famous marriage case upon which judgment was rendered yesterday, would be chief associate of Mr. Wallace Nesbitt in presenting the stated case on the ne temere decree to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Old And Young Toil, End is Loan Shark

Washington, Feb. 23.—As sordid and tragic a tale of poverty of the laborer as was ever told in a Government publication, was unfolded to-day in the report on the standard of living among southern cotton mill-workers, made public by the Bureau of Labor. Government investigators selected twenty-one typical southern cotton mill families and studied their incomes and expenditures in detail for the year 1908.

In almost every case these conditions were found: The father and two or three of the older children at work in the mill, yet the total income of the family bread-winner often is less than $1,000 a year. The account at the company's store running steadily above the family income. At the end of the year a debt which is met by an appeal to a loan shark.

To meet the added demand of interest and principal for the debt another child is sent to work, and so on "until the trapped family has sent all its children into the maw of the mill."

The report records shocking statistics of disease and death, decimating the stunted weakened population.

DOMINION LIFE REPORT

Excellent Financial Statement Presented at the Annual Meeting of Shareholders.

The annual report of the Dominion Life Assurance Company, with head office at Waterloo, Ont., shows that considerable progress has been made by the company in 1911. The total business now in force, amounts to $12,230,657, which is an increase of over $1,500,000, the largest in the company's history. The mortality experienced was very low, being only 33 per cent. of that expected, according to the Government tables, and the average rate of interest earned, on the invested assets, was 7.96 per cent., being the highest rates of interest earned by any company in Canada. This enabled the company to increase its net surplus by 29 per cent., making the total surplus over all liabilities $366,372.29.

A detailed report will be found elsewhere in these columns. Mr. Gordon Hall is the manager of Peterborough District.

WARRANT FOR THE PLANT FOREMAN

Winnipeg, Feb. 23.—As a result of the Commission investigation into the administration of the Manitoba Government telephone system, a warrant was to-day issued for Thomas Mulhall, foreman of the plant department. He is charged with falsefying vouchers and filing them out for larger sums than were actually expended. Much evidence on wide-spread incompetency and peculations has been given and other prosecutions will be the result. It is said this sort of thing revealed by many witnesses may account for the necessity of raising the rates which has caused so much dissatisfaction. When the Government took over the Bell System a commission was appointed consisting of three chief officials of the Bell company to administer the system on a non-partisan basis

Results show a very serious muddle and a reorganization is imminent Commissioner Horan has already resigned. The result of three years operation has been a serious blow to Government ownership.

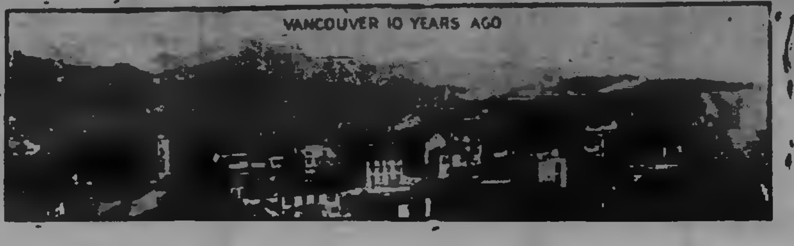
BUILDERS' PROFITS with Bankers' Security



100,000 SHARES AT $1.00

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has been organized recently with an authorized capital of $500,000, to do a general building, real estate, and insurance business, and is actively engaged in Vancouver and Victoria—two most promising fields. The profits from building houses for cash and selling on instalments is well known, and will be one of the principal channels from which profits will be derived. BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its own building department and architect, and does its own construction. In addition to building houses, BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its real estate department, where it carries on a general real estate business, discounting agreements of Sale, subdividing and transacting a general insurance business.

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS LIMITED, is a new concern, having been in business less than two months in Vancouver, but is becoming well known as the Company without any promotion shares and with a strong board of directors, made up of well known Vancouver and Victoria business men.

Shareholders may conservatively look for a 10 per cent dividend the first year, increasing thereafter and a steady advance in the value of their shares caused by the substantial reserve it will always be the policy of the directors to build up.

Companies run on similar lines, notably the Los Angeles Investment Company' and "Home Builders," both of Los Angeles, have proved phenominally successful, the former, which has been in business some sixteen years, having accumulated assets of over $6,000,000, and paying 28 per cent. dividends; and the latter, which started business three years ago, with only $1,250 capital, has assets to-day of over $1,089,000, a surplus of over $308,000, is paying 17 per cent. dividends, and its $1.00 shares are selling at $2.30.

THE WORKING HEN

Select the Best Layers as the Foundation of a Flock

There is just as much difference in hens as in horses. It is the individual capacity to put feed to good use that makes a hen or a horse valuable, and pure-bred horses and hens have been bred for this sort of a capacity to make them good, because that is what careful breeding is for.

Otherwise, we might just as well go back to "pennyroyal" cows, scrub horses and mongrel fowls without considering their blood lines, writes W. M. Phillips, in the Twentieth Century Farmer.

If eggs are more profitable than poultry for market, then we should seek to select our best layers as the dams of our flocks. This is not such a hard task as one might think. If we select the long-bodied, bright-combed, healthy-eating hen we will find her among the best layers.

The hen that is out as soon as the poultry house is opened in the morning and lingers out of doors until all the others have gone to roost is almost sure to be the best layer in the flock.

A good layer is indicated by a big crop, legs set well apart and a body that is deep in the rear.

No delicate, dainty hen was ever a good layer; she lacks the vitality that leads to great powers of reproduction. The good layer is always alert; and any hen can be kept tame and quiet if she is properly treated. What a test of patience it is to have the hens dig up things that we have planted and get in the way in the places where they have no particular business!

It is often a temptation to throw clubs at them or set the dog on them when they get into mischief.

Hens lay better when yarded than they do when allowed to have a run. By this means they are kept from learning how to get into mischief.

NATIONAL FLOWERS

Plants Which Are Regarded as Symbolical in Many Nations

Every nation seems to have a desire to equip itself with a symbolical plant. Most people are acquainted with the legend of St. Patrick and the shamrock, which has given Irishmen their special decoration.

Scotchmen are said to owe theirs to the fact that, when a party of invading Danes were approaching the slumbering camp in the darkness, one of them trod on the pricky thistle, and announced his contact with it in rather loud tones. The Scots were awakened and drove off the enemy.

Patriotic Welshmen decorate their [illegible] on the first of March from an ancient custom of contributing a leek to the common feast at the annual gathering. England has always been famed for her roses; but the adoption of the rose as the national symbol does not seem to have taken place till Edward IV. introduced it on his seal. The lily of France has been traced to very early times, but probably owes its adoption to the Franks at the battle of Tolbiac, who crowned themselves with lilies after the battle.

Violets were especially associated with the fortunes of the Bonapartes.

In heathen countries certain trees are held sacred owing to their supposed connection with the heathen gods. The banyan of India is sacred to the Hindu because the Hindu god Vishnu was said to be born under it. The peepul was supposed to be the favorite tree of Buddha.

The national plant of Upper Egypt is the lotus, on which the sun was supposed to rise; that of Lower Egypt, a tuft of papyrus reed; while the palm is typical of Judaea. The leaf and flower of the chrysanthemum were long ago adopted and are still used as the special emblem of the Mikado of Japan, and a festival in honor of the golden chrysanthemum is held yearly.

THE KING AS A "LADY"

It was in Malta, years ago, when his Majesty (then Duke of York) was stationed there, and a dance was organized, literally on the spur of the moment, on one of the ships.

His Royal Highness was—and is, for the matter of that—always willing to join in anything that promises a bit of fun, so a "ballroom" was rigged up on the quarter-deck in about record time.

It was agreed that, since it was a men's party, those who were to take the ladies' parts were to wear a white handkerchief on their left sleeve.

Presently a "lady" approached the present King and, with what was meant to be a demure simper, asked for the pleasure of a dance.

"Go away, you juggins," was the Royal retort. "I am a 'lady' myself, but I have lost my blessed handkerchief. Come and have a cigar!"

FIDDLESTICKS!

It is said the beams and heavy timbers taken from old Swiss "chalets" and other old styles of houses make the source of supply from which some of the best violins are made.

But if age of material counts for anything, the violin made by an Indiana man should eclipse the finest "Strad."

The body of it, according to a violin paper, is made of a variety of cedar taken from an old log dug out of a New Jersey swamp, and is said by experts to be at least three thousand years old. The back of this instrument is from an old Scotch table that has reached the age of four centuries.

If age gives fineness of tone, how would a plank from Noah's Ark sound when worked into a fiddle?

THE EMIGRANT'S OUTFIT

What to Take With You When Leaving the Old Country

"It is nothing short of a misfortune that so many Englishmen should offend Canadian taste by landing in, and persisting in wearing, a costum which Canadians look upon as the acme of absurdity."

So writes Mr. L. O. Armstrong, a well-known Canadian railway official says Answers. He continues "I refer principally to the little tweed cap and red leather leggings. Canadians all over the Dominion immediately imbibe an ineradicable prejudice against a man who parades the street in such an outfit. They shun him, he cannot get work. It is, in fact, a [illegible] handicap, where competition is [illegible] keen."

Whether the emigrant [illegible] Canada, Australia or South Africa, he should avoid any garb which [illegible] him conspicuous. What he [illegible] quiet patterned, strong [illegible] clothes.

Don't leave [illegible] dress behind, [illegible] colonies, and [illegible] tial.

For the [illegible] the climate [illegible] to [illegible] vince [illegible] broad-brimmed [illegible] and very warm underwear [illegible]

Wherever [illegible] to need a good store of [illegible] shirts. [illegible] should be [illegible] and of good quality. It [illegible] to purchase these at [illegible] the duty on them.

Cotton goods on the other [illegible] boots, are fairly cheap in [illegible] do not overburden your [illegible] with these.

Some years ago the writer went out to farm in America, and before he started spent twenty pounds on an outfit, which included three suits of white duck, a huge cork solar helmet with pugaree complete, a set of boot-mending implements, and a number of white flannel shirts.

And all these, and a good many similar things, he was only too glad to give away soon after his arrival.

Working-clothes suitable for the country can be bought ready-made at cheap prices anywhere in America, either in the States or Canada; therefore, you had much better wait till you reach your destination before purchasing them. If I were going out again I should take three good tweed suits of quiet pattern, one blue serge for better wear, a dozen good flannel shirts, two dozen pairs of strong merino socks, and all the boots I happened to have. I should also have four suits of thick underwear and four of thin, four suits of pyjamas, a good overcoat of dark-blue pilot-cloth, two soft felt hats, one bowler, one straw hat, three or four good knitted ties, some flannel collars, and a warm woollen comforter.

I should carry my goods in a very strong wooden trunk, clamped with iron and provided with two locks, and have in addition a kitbag for articles required on the voyage.

The emigrant must always remember that the more he takes the more he will have to pay in duty and in carriage.

A BERESFORD STORY

Of the many stories told of Lord Charles Beresford, few are better than the following. It is said that he made a wager of $500 with some clubmen that he would drive down Rotten Row in broad daylight. (Vehicles were forbidden in Rotten Row). Those interested posted themselves on the railings in the Park and awaited developments. The first thing to come along was a water-cart. The driver came slowly past to the railings and pretty nearly drenched the waiting ones in the Row. The water-cart man at once became the object of forcible and searching remarks. To the amazement of the bystanders he pushed his oilskin hat back and revealed the beaming face of Charlie Beresford, who said, "Hand over that hundred, old man." Lord Charles had squared the water-cart man to let him play the part, which he did to perfection. His friends had been watching for a smart turn-out of some description.

A SWIFT BIRD

The Mexican road runner has only two short legs, but he can beat a horse, a hound, and an electric carriage, and give them a handicap start. Speed is not his only recommendation. He eats as he runs, or, rather, as the things run away with him. Snakes are the principal part of his diet, big and little. His crop is as elastic as his legs are swift, and when he wants to prepare for a long journey he coils up a rattler or two inside of his neck and sets out across the Mexican desert with a swiftness that makes it look like a bunch of dust on a record-breaking tour around the world.

UNITED STATES NAVY.

The New York Post declares that what the United States should do in naval matters is to return to the conditions which existed between 1870 and 1880 when the country had only sufficient naval vessels to serve for police duty and to represent it abroad.

At the time spoken of the United States had not a single really effective warship and its naval expenditure amounted to only $15,000,000 a year. And yet, as the Post truly says, the Republic was never threatened or insulted in the period named. To-day the United States is spending something like $130,000,000 a year on its navy, it possesses a fleet second in power only to that of Great Britain and still it is no safer now than it was then. Indeed while there was scarcely a ripple on the surface of American foreign relations in the 'seventies hardly a year has passed since the reconstruction of the American navy began that has been without its war scare.

Andrew Carnegie was most emphatically right when he said that the building of warships is not calculated to promote peace but to provoke war. Canada will do well to profit by the lesson talk by her nearest neighbor and to abandon the folly of navy building before she is irrevocably committed to it.

CROATIA'S ELECTIONS.

Last December there was a general election in Croatia; soon there will be another. The reason is that the electors did not vote right the first time. They abused their freedom by failing to support the government.

Croatia has always been a trouble to Hungary and Austria. Incorporated in the former kingdom, she demanded home rule and a Ban of her own. She was given a Ban and a Diet and a regular independent constitutional system. The Ban, who is named by the Hungarian Cabinet, is a kind of viceroy. The post was held until recently by Dr. Tomasic.

Now, in Croatia there is a Serb party, and a peasant party, and numerous other parties. They differ among themselves, but they unite in disliking the Magyars. So, in the December elections, in spite of unprecedented corruption and intimidation, and the use of troops, the returns showed twenty-five for the government and sixty-three for the opposition. Dr. Tomasic was recalled this month, and Mr. Cuvaj, an official already experienced in acts of absolution, sent to succeed him. The new Ban at once dissolved the Diet on the ground that "its composition offers no prospect of fruitful activity."

This, of course, makes a farce of the constitution. The proper course was to choose a ministry from the majority.

Reports from Grimsby and Niagara Falls state that this years peach crop will be a big one. This news will be hailed with joy by every housewife in Peterborough.

One of Peterborough's oldest citizens yesterday remarked to a Times representative, "I've lived in this town for over fifty years, and I never saw such a severe winter as the present one."

MR. A. H. STRATTON'S DISMISSAL.

The evidence filed against Mr. A. H. Stratton in response to his request for an investigation of the charges made against him was very strong and conclusive, and showed that had he his way the election would have gone otherwise than it did, Mr. Burnham's majority being only 42. But apart from the direct and specific charges of serious interference in the election was one over the signature of tne vice president and paymaster of a company in Toronto, showing that, contrary to the statute which is very strong on that point, Mr. A. H. Stratton is a salaried officer of the company. This ipso facto disqualifies him of itself for the postmastership, without any other charge and without any dismissal at all. There will be no sympathy with improper interference in elections or evasions of the statute. The consequences to the intended victim would have been very serious and to the party he represents as well. To ask a man and a party to work like slaves and to go to a large expense simply perhaps to have it all thrown away by reason of the grossly unfair conduct of a partisan official is asking too much. The evidence is all on file and can be brought up and threshed out in parliament at any time. There was a fair trial and there is plenty of opportunity for criticising the verdict if those who take the trouble to look at the evidence feel so inclined. That there were several claimants for the position is to be expected, but Mr Burnham followed the recommendation of the Committee representing the Conservative Association, and could not therefore make any mistake as to the wishes of the party.

THE CHINESE REPUBLIC.

Chinese Republicans and former Royalists are so courteous to one another that they cannot decide which should be President of the Republic. Dr. Sen was chosen some time ago to the position, but when the Manchu dynasty decided to abdicate Dr. Sen and his followers offered the Presidency to Yuan Sha Kai, the Manchu Premier. The offer was apparently accepted, but now Yuan begs Dr. Sen to accept the honor. The correspondence reads like comic opera, but there may be serious designs behind it all on the part of the Manchu followers.

Vags Sent to the Central.

Yesterday morning special Constable Pinchin arrested two disreputable looking vags at the C.P.R. Depot. When charged with vagrancy at the Police Court, both admitted the soft impeachment. They will have free transportation to Toronto and be guests at the Central Prison for the next six months.

splendid of her? She says that the poor people suffered more than she did."

"Oh, no, it isn't splendid, or heroic, or anything of the sort," Mona cut in before Scarborough could answer. "Don't [illegible] away with that idea, Elsa. I've got two reasons, both are very ordinary ones. The first is that I've got a feeling that I should hate to touch a penny of the money which the man who stole it from me lost his life in defending. That's silly perhaps, but I can't help it. The second is that I don't need it."

"Not just now," said Scarborough. "But if you grow tired of your wandering life with the circus-troupe—"

"Oh, don't bother!" said Mona. "I've got plenty of money, I tell you, but it's a theme I don't want to discuss just now. I have a reason for that, too, which I shall perhaps tell you some day, and perhaps not. It all depends upon whether something I very much want to happen, does happen. See?"

The others noted with astonishment that she was blushing, and Elsa began:

"Why, Mona—"

"Change the subject, please!" said Mona with a laugh. "Mr. Scarborough, you haven't reported what you and Phil found at the venta."

Scarborough told them the result of the visit to the venta, and of Varney's suggestion that the Furnas district should be watched night and day, in order to catch the man Gillies. Of course Gillies knew nothing about the scratched stone, and if it was he who had stolen the plan from Mrs. Carrington, there was still that link missing in his knowledge, but it was also possible that he had other reasons for knowing, or guessing, the place to which the plan referred, and so could do without the stone. Anyway Varney was quite right in saying that he must be watched."

"You are going to ride over and relieve Phil in the morning?" Mona asked.

"Yes."

"I can improve on that plan. Elsa and I will go with you, and we'll call on the way for Miss Davie. We will make a regular picnic of it."

Scarborough shook his head.

"Too conspicuous," he said. "We shall frighten our man if we go in a swarm. Phil suggests, and I think he's right, that as Gillies seems to know more than we do, we should let him go ahead without interference for the present, and be ready to come in at the last minute. So you see, we oughtn't to frighten him yet."

"Exactly," said Mona. "But that's just what I meant by suggesting a picnic. If he sees you and Phil mooning about here, he'll know that you are watching him, and you may be sure he will see you. But if we all go, he'll think it's just a picnic party, and we shall be able to explore the whole neighborhood without exciting his or anybody else's suspicions."

"And Mrs. Carrington?" said Scarborough. "Who's going to stay and watch her? I had counted on you for that duty, you know."

"I forgot about her," said Mona ruefully.

"I don't think it will pay to forget her."

As he said this, the door of the room opened suddenly, and Mrs. Carrington herself stood smiling on the threshold.

"No," she said softly, "it won't do to forget me. Elsa, introduce the young man to me."

Elsa had jumped up, and was gazing at her mother with a look of mingled contempt and anger.

"Mother!" she said scornfully. "You have been—"

"Listening," said Mrs. Carrington calmly. "Yes, child, I have. Do you expect me to be ashamed of admitting it? Don't be foolish. Introduce me."

Elsa stood where she was, and made no movement to do so. Mrs. Carrington laughed.

"Very well," she said. "I must introduce myself. I am Rachel Carrington, the woman who retired to bed with a headache, utterly routed after a battle of words with two young girls. But even after a defeat the enemy sometimes rallies, you know, and while I have been standing behind that door I have rallied considerably. You, I presume, are Mr. Horace Scarborough, the young man who, my husband informed me, would very possibly be my son-in-law one day."

"Mother!" cried Elsa again.

Mrs. Carrington laughed again. "Elsa's blushes suggest that I am indiscreet," she said mockingly. "But, Horace, if I am to be your mother-in-law, you ought to have the opportunity of knowing something of me. I shall join your picnic to-morrow, and we can enjoy a talk together. You don't look pleased. Surely the arrangement is a good one. It will obviate the necessity of leaving anyone here to watch me!"

She threw herself into a chair, and her mocking laughter rang out again.

CHAPTER XXI.

A Letter of Introduction

Mrs. Carrington was enjoying the situation. These young people were really delicious. They thought they had outwitted her, and were discussing gravely what they meant to do with the diamonds when they got them. The stones were to be handed over to her husband's creditors, for distribution amongst the widows and orphans in England; it was a touching scheme, but it was not the one which Mrs. Carrington proposed to see carried out.

But though she enjoyed her triumph, and did not mind in the least that she had gained it by admitted eavesdropping, she was really tired. Moreover her headache had not benefited by half an hour's crouching with her ear to the keyhole of the door. She expected to spend an energetic day to-morrow, and she did not think she was likely to gain any other information to-night, so she sacrificed present gratification to future profit, and announced that she was going to bed.

"Really to bed, this time," she said. "But don't go, Mr. Scarborough, on that account! I don't suppose a chaperon is really necessary, as Elsa's friend is with her. No doubt that was why Mademoiseulle Mona de la Mar—I have got your professional name right, my dear, have I?—that, no doubt, is why Mademoiselle Mona de la Mar insisted upon staying. I am not needed, so I will retire. You have arrangements to make for to-morrow. I am afraid I have complicated them somewhat."

"You have," said Scarborough, quietly. She was trying to anger him, he thought; but he was not even annoyed; and he rather admired the woman's impudence. She was a type that he had not met before, and he realised for the first time the tremendous advantage that a simple shamelessness gives a plotter who has brains to use it effectively. Mrs. Carrington had the gift of shamelessness, but she also undoubtedly had the gift of brains. She was an added difficulty of course, but his hands were not tied by misunderstanding now; he was free to grapple with difficulties, and he rather welcomed them as adding zest to the game.

"I should like to hear what you mean to do with me," she said sweetly. "I am coming to your picnic, but I realize that I shall not be very welcome. I am an unfortunate complication—how are you going to deal with it?"

Scarborough smiled.

"I don't think there is anything to be gained by saying," he answered.

"You hope to be able to leave me out, after all?"

"Oh, no," said Scarborough. "If you say you are coming, I have no doubt that you will. But you will probably make your own arrangements."

Mrs. Carrington gave him a quick glance.

"Young man," she said, "you are not a fool! I admit that I hoped you were. Good-night."

She swept smiling from the room and Mona jumped up and opened the long French windows that led to the garden.

"Elsa and I will see you on your way to the Cable station," she said to Scarborough. "There are no keyholes in the open air! Never mind your hat, Elsa. It's warm."

When they were clear of the house and the trees round it, Mona halted in an open space of the road.

"I think this will do," she said. "There isn't a hedge within fifty yards, and the sick-room of our headache patient is double that distance away. Our voices won't be heard. But speak without pointing at things. There's a bright moon, and an intelligent observer can deduce a good deal from gestures. Now, then, what's to be done?"

"I think," said Scarborough, "that you two had better give up your plan of going with me to-morrow; stay here, and watch Mrs. Carrington. If she goes—"

"Oh, she'll go right enough," said Mona.

"Yes, I think she will. If she does, you can follow her. Does she bicycle, Elsa?"

"No."

"[illegible] on your bicycles can prevent her giving you the slip. I'll carry out my original plan of joining Phil at Furnas."

Mona turned to Elsa.

"Are you willing to give up your picnic?" she asked.

"I don't mean to give it up," said Elsa quietly. "I am going."

Mona looked at Scarborough queerly. "A determined family, the Carrington's," she said. "I thought Elsa wouldn't submit to be bullied by the lady with the headache. You see, Mr. Scarborough, we're going. But instead of Mrs. Carrington giving us the slip, I suggest that we should inflict that experience on her. What time can you call for us in the morning?"

"I am on duty till eight," said Scarborough.

"Couldn't you get one of the other men to take the last bit for you, just for once? Couldn't you be here by six—or better, half-past five?"

"Perhaps Scott would do it," said Scarborough doubtfully; "but what's your plan?"

"To be off before the lady suspects that we are even awake," said Mona. "She will follow, of course, but we'll leave a competent detective to shadow her."

"Who?"

"Val B. He's at the Cable Station now; he has been dining with Mr. Scott there, and he's going to stay the night. He'll do it if you say I told you to ask him, and he'll do it thoroughly."

"Does he know Mrs. Carrington?"

"No; so you can tell him what you like of her. Say that she's an interesting woman with a very sad past, a fascinating creature with abnormally developed criminal tendencies, and that a day spent in watching her will be well worth while to a close observer of character. Val B. Montague thinks himself rather a connoisseur of character, and is always complaining that the female villains he meets are bloodless and feeble—no real gritty vice in 'em, sir! Explain to him," said Mona laughing, "that this one is real hard sand, and he'll do anything you ask for the chance of studying her."

Scarborough thought for a moment.

"You know him better than I do," he said at length. "Don't be annoyed at what I am going to ask. Is he absolutely trustworthy?"

Mona became suddenly grave, and the moonlight flashed in her eyes.

"Yes," she said simply.

"I mean," said Scarborough, "would it be safe to tell him, not what you suggest, but the simple truth? Can we make him one of us in this matter?"

"It is safe to trust Val B. Montague in anything," said Mona. She drew herself up, and it seemed almost that she said it proudly. "He is eccentric, perhaps, but he is the truest-hearted gentleman I have ever met."

"Then I think I prefer to tell him the truth."

Mona hesitated, and then held out her hand. "You are right," she said, with a straight look from her hazel eyes. "I am sorry I suggested that you should play upon one of his weaknesses. From me he doesn't deserve that. Elsa, shall we go back now"

"You will come back for us at half-past five, Horace," said Elsa.

"Yes."

The girls went back, and Scarborough rode on to the Cable Station. He found Montague in the billiard room, playing snooker-pool with Scott and another man. The Yankee circus man welcomed him characteristically

A Mother's Cares Destructive to Health

ANAEMIA, BAD BLOOD, HEADACHES, AND LASSITUDE VERY COMMON.

Mrs. Wilkinson's Letter Gives Advice That Every Mother Can Well Follow.

From her home in Newton where she resides with her large family, Mrs. Wilkinson writes: "For years I was pale, anaemic and lacking in vitality. I was a constant sufferer from indigestion, and the distress and pain it caused me, coupled with ever-increasing anaemia, made me weaker day by day. Constant headaches, specks before the eyes and attacks of dizziness made me feel as if life were not worth living. My constitution was completely undermined and the constant pallor and dullness in my eyes showed what a sick woman I was. I began to take Dr. Hamilton's Pills and the improvement, although slow, was sure.

"I gradually got back my strength and my appetite grew much stronger, and I enjoyed my meals thoroughly. I felt happier and more contented and the sickly pallor of my face was replaced by a bright, rosy color, which proved that a strong medicine was at work. In a few months Dr. Hamilton's Pills brought me from a condition of deathly pallor to robust health."

You can obtain the same results by using Dr Hamilton's Pills—beware of the substitutor that offers you anything except Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1.00, at all dealers or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

THE MORNING TIMES

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1912.

THE GOVERNMENT'S STRONG POSITION.

The Church is thought to have supported Laurier and Graham pretty solidly in South Renfrew. It is an open secret that the Government's prompt action in the matter of ecclesiastical interference with the State, and particularly Mr. Borden's powerful assertion of State Supremacy in contrast to Sir Wilfrid's vacillating attitude on the night of the ne temere debate, (Jan. 22nd), has displaced the Church. That and the almost positive assurance that the Government will in no sense interfere with Manitoba have changed the face of conditions in Canada altogether. Although Mr. Graham's majority was pulled down slightly, the future is fraught with importance to all Canadians. Mr. Lancaster has expressed himself as greatly pleased with the case, as stated for reference to the courts.

PRECIOUS PARROTS

Remarkable Bird that Speaks 200 Words in German

The Dutch New Guinea parrot, only three inches in length, whose skin has just been presented to the Natural History Museum at South Kensington, has, of course, been outdone for shortness of stature by the smallest species of humming bird, which is only an inch and a quarter in length, and weighs about twenty grains.

It has been outdone in value by the parrot for which Baron Alfred de Rothschild paid a record sum in 1906.

Laura is the bird's name, which familiarity it usually corrects with "Laura from Africa, please." Her plumage is brilliant green, her manners perfect, her expression one of soulful wisdom, and her voice like the banjo's twang. She sings with effect quite a number of songs, she speaks 200 words of German, and can answer all kinds of queries—but not in English.

SUCCEEDS IN THE WEST

Wm. Barnett, a Saskatchewan farmer, grew the Marquis wheat that ranked highest in prize-winning samples submitted to a milling and baking test. Mr. Barnett came to Canada from Wales nine years ago. Three years have been spent as hired man, and six as homesteader. During recent years he has won prizes for wheat and oats at local shows and also at Brandon and Regina. He started with oxen, and has them yet; but he also has some fine Clydesdales and hopes soon to show what he can do with them at exhibitions. A recent purchase of three quarter-sections places him in position to farm on a large scale.

HIS MEDITATIONS

Soon after Singleton's first baby was born, Mrs. Singleton went upstairs one evening and found her husband standing by the side of the crib and gazing earnestly at the child.

As she stood still for the moment, touched by the sight, the tears filled her eyes as she thought—

"Oh, how dearly Charlie loves that boy!"

Her arms stole softly round his neck, as she rubbed her cheek caressingly against his shoulder. Singleton started slightly att he touch.

"Darling," he murmured dreamily, "it is incomprehensible to me how they can get up such a crib as that for four dollars and a half."

Potato Dumplings

Take one egg well beaten, one pint of sweet milk, a cupful of mashed potatoes, hot and seasoned, a small lump of butter, and enough flour to make a stiff batter. When nearly all the flour is used, add two scant teaspoonfuls of baking-powder, and work in as lightly as possible. Drop in small lumps into boiling gravy, and cook for twenty minutes. These will help out nicely a dinner that threatens to be rather scanty.

Dustless Dusters

A great deal can be saved by making your own dustless dust cloths by the following recipe: One-third ounce oil of paraffin mixed with one pint of coal oil. Wash a piece of black cheesecloth in this and you will have a dustless dust cloth harmless to any furniture. The above quantity makes three yards.

RELIABLE REPRESENTATIVE WANTED.

SIR JOSEPH WARD

Started Life as a Messenger, Is Now a Prime Minister

"Cement of Empire" is a favorite theme with the Rt. Hon. Sir Joseph Ward, Prime Minister of New Zealand.

"Stick to it," has been Sir Joseph Ward's motto in life.

Irish by parentage, Sir Joseph first saw the light in Australia, but he was only a child when his parents moved to Campbelltown, in the South Island of New Zealand.

Of his schooldays he said, in the course of a chat:

"They were brief, but happy. I was educated at a private school first, and next at a State school. I was out in the world by the time I was twelve. My education, however, continued long after I had left school, for I attended night schools and classes for some six years after I began work."

The lad got his start in life as a telegraph-boy in the Postal and Telegraph Department. Sir Joseph Ward is not fond of talking about himself, but as illustrating how wages go in New Zealand he delights to tell you that his commencing salary was $5 a week, while as a fourteen-year-old telegraph-boy he was getting $680 a year!

SIR JOSEPH WARD

Leaving the telegraph service at fourteen, he entered a big "store" or shop. He remained there three years, then became a railwayman, and soon after his twenty-first birthday young Ward started a successful export and general business.

About the same time that he became his own "boss," Sir Joseph Ward entered public life as a member of the Campbelltown Borough Council, and via the District Harbor Board he soon found his way to the New Zealand Parliament.

Sir Joseph Ward has filled many ministerial posts, but perhaps he is proudest of his work as Minister of Defence, a position he still holds.

"Within twelve months from now," he said, "we shall have a citizen army for home defence of 100,000 well-armed, fully-trained men."

The New Zealander is trained almost from the cradle to be able to defend his country. From five to twelve years of age he receives [illegible] physical education and training. This is continued from twelve to seventeen, plus semi-military training. Then he enters one or other branch of the New Zealand forces, serving until he is twenty-five, when he passes into the reserve.

Military service is compulsory for all, and woe betide the New Zealand employer who dares to dock a man's salary when he is away for his annual training.

If Britain's safety depends on her Navy, so, Sir Joseph says, does that of her Oversea Dominons.

SHELTER FOR FOWLS

It Will Soon Pay for Itself in Good Results

Damp is probably the worst enemy to fowls, but cold winds are a very good rival. Fowls will not lay and make progress when they have to face these biting winds, and it would pay the fancier who wishes for success to provide shelter under these circumstances. As to the nature of this shelter, it may consist of a dense hedge, of a screen of canvas, or of a proper shelter-shed. The latter is infinitely the best, and it will pay for itself in excellent results in a very short time.

A very peculiar thing that you have probably noticed is that fowls seldom avail themselves of their roosting place in the daytime, and the shelter shed I suggest is in no way like the sleeping quarters. It may, indeed, be as rough-and-ready as one likes, so long as it is wind-proof on three sides, and open to the south. If a perch or two are provided, the birds will appreciate the attention, while it is an excellent [illegible] to air the household [illegible] in the shelter-shed.

A MATTER FOR GRATITUDE

Balfour and Erskine Principals in an Amusing Story

Of two celebrated barristers, Balfour and Erskine, this story is told. The former's style, it should be mentioned, was very verbose, while the latter's, on the contrary, was crisp and vigorous. In court one day Erskine noticed that Balfour's ankle was bandaged. "Why, what's the matter?" asked Erskine. Instead of replying, "I fell from a gate," Balfour answered in these words: "I was taking a romantic ramble in my brother's garden, and on coming to a gate I discovered that I had to climb over it, by which I came into contact with the first bar and grazed the epidermis of my leg, which has caused a slight extravasation of the blood."

"You may thank your lucky stars," replied Erskine, "that your brother's gate was not as lofty as your style, or you would have broken your neck!"

REASSURING THE AUDIENCE

The facetious Joe Hall (the original Lockit in the Beggars' Opera) in the year 1730, when the scene room at Covent Garden being on fire, and the audience greatly alarmed, was ordered by Rich, the manager, to run on the stage and explain the matter, which honest Joe did in the following address: "Ladies and gentlemen, for Heaven's sake, don't be frightened; don't stir; keep your seats; the fire is almost out. But if it was not, we have a reservoir of one hundred hogsheads of water over your heads that would drown you all in five minutes."

SAVED BY A SONG

Santley, By Singing to the Bandits, Escaped Torture

The following thrilling story of Santley, the famous singer, whose life was on one occasion saved by a song, is worth telling. Mr. Santley, who had not then attained to fame, was [illegible]trict in Mexico, when his party was suddenly attacked by a horde of half bred bandits, who roughly demanded their valuables, and threatened, as an alternative, to take them up into the hills and torture them until a ransom should be forthcoming. At the first alarm the guards who had accompanied Santley and his friends fled.

They were conducted through devious footpaths for miles, until they arrived at a rocky cave high up among the hills, where they were forcibly robbed of their money and valuables, including the best of their clothing. Then it transpired that the leader of the bandits had taken them for a wealthy party, and was angry to find that they yielded so little spoil. He also told them, through their Mexican servant, that he suspected they had sent back their best valuables by their guards, but this they denied. Then he threatened to hold them until they were released by a ransom, and named a considerable sum of money. Over their rude supper that memorable night, surrounded by friend and foe, Santley sung an aria, as he had never sung before. His voice was then much lighter in tone than it is to-day. As the song rippled forth on the clear mountain air, the dusky Mexican faces lighted up with pleasure, and at its close the leader expressed his delight, and asked the senor to sing again. Santley saw his chance and seized it. He asked, through his servant, if he might sing for his liberty, and a reluctant consent was given. For two hours that night he charmed his captors with a lengthy programme of exquisite melodies. The next day the party were taken down the mountain side and set at liberty to their great relief and delight.

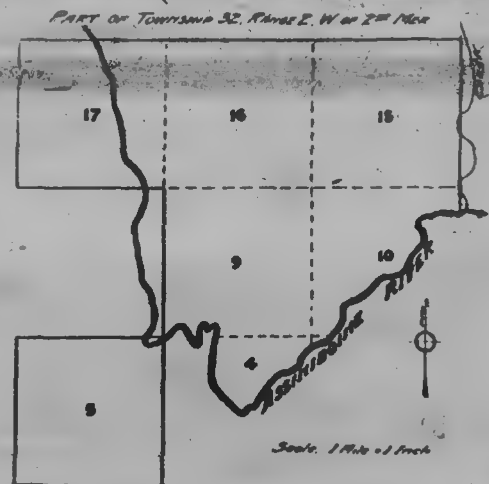
Never Met Before

At a [illegible] London inquest, the name of one of the witnesses, and also of the [illegible] officer, was Thomas [illegible], and, though both [illegible] within five minutes' walk of each other, they had never previously met.

EMPLOYMENT OF WOMEN

An American Consular report says that in Germany [illegible], France 6,800,000, Austria [illegible], and England 5,[illegible] women are employed in manufactures and trades. To every 100 workmen in Austria there are 42 women, France 34, Italy 32, Germany 30, Switzerland 29, England 24, and Sweden 21. The amount of work done by women is steadily increasing, especially in small ventures. The percentage of women who have independent businesses has risen rapidly, and to every 22 small businesses carried on by men there are 16 carried on by women.

SASKATCHEWAN GRAIN AND RANCH LANDS



The attention of farmers and stock raisers is invited to the lands shown in the above plan.

The lands are situate in the Port Pelly District, Northern Saskatchewan, long known as probably the richest farming district in the Province. The parcel, which contains approximately 3,681 ACRES in one compact block, is watered on the west and south sides by the Assiniboine River, and by a large creek on the east. It is well wooded, thus assuring as well as evidencing ample rainfall, and plentiful supply of cheap fuel. It is undulating and well drained, having an elevation above the river, and rising gradually from it to a heightof about 60 feet, and provides many beautiful residential sites.

In the advantages it offers for mixed farming it is unique, there being some 2,400 acres clear and ready for the plow, while the balance consists of timber and excellent pasture land, admirably suited to stock-raising. The soil is a rich, black loam, from 8 to 10 inches in thickness, resting on a clay subsoil, except along the river, where it is arich sandy loam. Crops produced on similar neighboring lands are phenomenal for their quantity and quality.

The location is within ten miles of Mikado Station, on the main line between Winnipeg and Edmonton, of the Canadian Northern Railway, with good trails leading to it, and within a short distance of a school. While the settlement going on in the neighborhood is rapidly adding all the adjuncts of an up-to-date farming community.

This is an opportunity for a man with capital, business ability and practical experience. Such a man should clear his whole investment, including all improvements and equipment, in four or five years at the outside. And now is the time to purchase, as the price will shortly be advanced $5.00 per acre. Experienced men predict this land will be worth $50.00 per acre within ten years. Lands immediately adjoining, which last spring could have been bought for $14.00, are held to-day at $20.00 and $25.00 per acre.

We are also offering some 1,100 acres additional, in separate parcels of three half sections, and one quarter sections, situate in the same locality as above.

These lands were selected for the excellence of their location and the magnificent quality of their soil, which latter the official records of the Indian Agency demonstrate.

The Natural Wealth Of The West

Get a Share of the Good Things on the Ground Floor Basis

In bringing before the public of Eastern Canada an idea of the natural wealth of the West we are only carrying out a business proposition, and in doing so are animated solely by the desire of offering you a share of the good things on a ground floor basis. With the assurance of a little of your money we can make some for ourselves and a great deal or you because we have the unexploited natural wealth.

The man who staked our oil land is a pioneer of British Columbia, and for some years past has been living with his family on Graham Island, the most northerly of Queen Charlotte Group, and was in a position to select with care and under experienced advice, the richest oil bearing land, as well as being on a deep water harbor.

The mining of petroleum has for the past forty years been the direct cause and means of making more multi-millionaires on this continent than any other industry into which the same amount of money has been invested. We own 3200 acres of land on which the surface's indications (oil seepages) and geologic conditions are such that it is as near as possible certain that at a comparatively shallow depth there is unlimited quantities of oil of a high grade, as is evidenced by the analysis of the samples collected from the seepage.

LORD HALDANE

Doesn't Believe in Eight Hours of Sleep, and Thinks Nothing of a Forty-Mile Walk

Lord Haldane is a tremendous worker. He is said to consider more than three hours' sleep at night to be mere waste of time!

To look at him you would never imagine Lord Haldane to be possessed of the energy, both mental and physical, that he has.

He is decidedly substantial in build, but this is not due to lack of exercise.

Behind him are a long line of sturdy Scotch ancestors, and from them he has inherited a love of walking.

His grandfather at eighty-three could do his eight miles and be as "fresh as paint" afterwards; while a great-uncle could reduce many a younger man to a state of exhaustion by taking them for long tramps, which he himself did with the greatest ease.

Many a time Lord Haldane has covered between thirty and forty miles a day; but his brother can beat this record, and has to his credit no less than 103½ miles, which he covered in thirty-one hours.

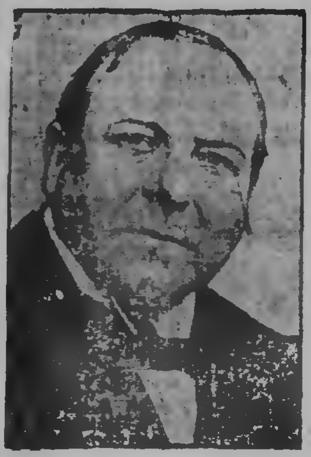
Lord Haldane is a great smoker, and large black cheroots are his favorite "smokes." Not long ago the doctor told him he was smoking too much, and advised him to go easy in that direction.

A short time later an old friend met him, soon after lunch, and inquired sympathetically how he was getting on without his smokes.

"Oh, fairly well—fairly well," was the reply. "I've only had six so far to-day!"

The Haldanes belong to an ancient family, and many of their ancestors have served their country in Parliament or on the field.

Two of the most famous of the Haldanes were, perhaps, the brothers James and Robert, who a century ago gave up all to become itinerant preachers.



MR. HALDANE

They threw themselves heart and soul into the cause that appealed to them, and were probably the greatest lay evangelists Scotland has ever produced.

Lord Haldane was born in Edinburgh in 185[illegible].

He was first of all educated at Edinburgh University, going afterwards to Gottingen.

He decided to become a lawyer, was called to the Bar in 1879, and became a K.C. in 1890.

He has a Scotch seat—Cloan, near Auchterarder, Perthshire, until quite lately called Cloanden.

But this he has shortened by a syllable, and is now known as Viscount Haldane of Cloan.

In addition to his many other activities, Lord Haldane has found time to write a number of books, and, with the help of Mr. Kemp, he made a translation of Schopenhauer's "World as Will and Ideas," a work which ran into three volumes, and took some time to complete.

DIVERTING THE TRAFFIC

Amusing Rivalry Among Three Adjoining Merchants

It is the smart man who is able to seize opportunity who generally succeeds. If you have any advantage to offer to the public, the only way to bring trade is to advertise, and exercise ingenuity.

In a busy thoroughfare there were three clothing stores in a row. The proprietors of these stores were bitter enemies as well as business rivals, and each taxed his ingenuity to the utmost to outwit the others in attracting customers.

The proprietor of the store in the middle one day found himself momentarily beaten when he discovered that the shop on his right was placarded with sensational announcements of a "great fire sale," while the rival on his left hand covered his building with huge posters proclaiming a "receiver's sale."

After a little thought, however, his features relaxed in a gradually expanding smile.

An hour later the crowds that had been attracted to the scene by the "fire sale" and the "receiver's sale" announcements flocked into the middle store.

The proprietor had caused to be stretched across the top of his doorway a sheet on which were painted in letters two feet high the words, "Main Entrance."

THE WORLD'S LARGEST ROOM

The largest room in existence under a single arched roof, and entirely unsupported by pillars or buttresses away from the walls, is said to be a huge building in St. Petersburg, measuring 620 feet long and 150 feet wide, used mainly for military purposes. This giant apartment is of such a size that a whole battalion—1,000 men—can drill in it with the greatest ease. It requires no fewer than 20,000 wax tapers to light it satisfactorily by night.

TELL THEM SO!

Don't be afraid to give praise.

It is a great mistake to withhold those easily-said words of approval and satisfaction. Even the humble crossing-sweeper likes to hear his work commended.

Flattery is deadly insult, but true praise spells encouragement and makes the world seem brighter.

Wake up! Look out for the chance of praising someone, honestly and sincerely. And don't forget the home folks! Your praise means more to them than to anyone.

VALUABLE ASSET

Nothing is sacred nowadays. A bankrupt was telling the court how poor he was, and how much money he had lost by commercial depression, when the official receiver remarked:

"You have very good teeth, Mr. Stylish."

"Yes," innocently replied the bankrupt, "they are very sound."

"How much did you give for them?" was the next question, and it was a poser.

"Must I answer such a rude question?" asked the bankrupt, appealing to the judge.

"Certainly," answered the man of law.

"Well, I gave fifty dollars for them."

"Ah, very good," said the official receiver; "then hand them over for the benefit of your creditors."

IF THE TREE COULD SPEAK

Bishop Seymour was very fond of trees, and one day while walking with a young woman he pointed out to her some of the fine trees of the neighborhood. She professed great interest and delight. She cried.

"How the noble aspects of beautiful trees stir up the keenest emotions of the soul."

Then, patting a great rough trunk, she went on:

"You superb oak, what would you say to me if you could talk?"

The bishop smiled.

"I believe I can be his interpreter," he murmured. "He would probably say, 'I beg your pardon, miss; I am a beech.'"

WOMEN COLONELS

Kings, princes and dukes are frequently made hon. colonels of various battalions and regiments, although, as a rule, the actual command is held by an officer belonging to the corps. Now, however, there are even women colonels attached to some of the Prussian regiments, and these frequently ride at the head of their troops on state occasions.

SMALLEST INHABITED ISLAND

The smallest inhabited island in the world is that on which the Eddystone Lighthouse stands. At low water it is 30 feet in diameter; at high water the lighthouse, whose diameter at the base is 28¾ feet, completely covers it. It is inhabited by three persons. It lies nine miles off the Cornish coast, and fourteen miles south-west of Plymouth Breakwater. Flatholme, an island in the British Channel, is only a mile and a half in circumference, but, consisting mostly of rich pasture land, supports a farmhouse, besides the lighthouse with a revolving light 165 feet above the sea.

HARROWING GRAIN

Prof. Thomas Shaw, of Minnesota, states that he thought the four harrowings he gave the grain after it was up saved his crop last year. It was so dry that the grass never got green, yet the yields went from twenty to thirty bushels. The harrowings were given when the grain was just coming up, when it was four to five inches high; six to seven inches, and when eight to nine inches.

Busy Times at Cordage.

Things are booming at the former Cordage works, now owned and operated by the International Harvester Co. The works are running at full capacity, but the management finds it difficult to secure enough girls to do the work. There are at present about one hundred and twenty-five employes at work.

THE STEAMER STEWARD

One of the Busiest Men on Board, But Poorly Paid

There is no single individual in the service of the public, from the stoker down, who is perforce so versatile in his attainments and so enduring in his service as the steamer steward. His hours are from five in the morning until ten at night, his pay on the foreign-owned lines averages about $15 a month, and the steward in second-class does not double his wages from his tips and the fund that is raised among the passengers to pay the band.

Stewards have been known to sleep, eighteen in a triangular room sixteen feet long, and eleven wide, with two small port-holes for ventilation. They must wait at the table at breakfast, previously having set it, then they wash the dishes. Next they make up the beds, then serve the little luncheon on deck which comes about ten o'clock. Next they arrange the table for lunch, wait upon the table, wash the dishes on some lines, and eat their own lunch. In the middle of the afternoon there is another light luncheon which they must serve, then they set the tables for dinner, which they subsequently serve. After getting the remnants out of sight and eating their own meal, they give a concert from eight to ten, after which they are free to spend the night as they please.

In spite of all this hard work and the degrading treatment which they receive from many passengers, one finds scores of intelligent, well educated youths, on the German lines especially, and one wonders how the lines manage to inveigle them into their service. For the most part they are enterprising boys who are eager to see the world after they have left their gymnasium or universities, and have not the means to travel, so they put to sea as stewards, content to endure the abuses and hardships of the life for the glimpses they get of the various ports.

One boy from Berlin whom a passenger interviewed some time ago had run away from home and gone into the service of the Hamburg-American line so that his parents might not know that he was doing menial labor. His family was one of aristocratic tendencies, but too poor to send him on his travels in the proper style. Had they known that he had adapted a life so degrading in their eyes, it would have broken their hearts, he said, but he was accomplishing his purpose. In two years he had served on six different branches of the Hamburg lines and had seen almost every port from the Far East to the Atlantic coast of America.

NORTHERN ONTARIO

Area, 140,000 square miles.

Northern boundary, the Arctic regions.

Eastern boundary, the Province of Quebec.

Western boundary, the Province of Manitoba and the Territory of Keewatin.

Southern boundary is practically the Canadian Pacific Railway direct line from Montreal to Winnipeg, which runs across Ontario for a distance of 1,785 miles.

Telegraph and telephone connections are spreading with amazing rapidity all over the land.

Minerals are found extensively, and in splendid paying quantities, especially gold, silver, nickel, copper and iron.

Game is plentiful, including moose, caribou, red deer, bear, beaver, otter, wild duck, partridge and ruffed grouse.

The country is divided into six great divisions, known as Nipissing, Sudbury, Algoma, Thunder Bay, Rainy River and Kenora.

There are now a number of villages and towns scattered over the country whose population runs from fifty up to several thousands.

The parks and forest reserves are large. Algonquin Park covers an area of 1,216,000 acres; Temagami Forest Reserve covers 3,563,600 acres, and contains an estimate of from three to four billion feet of timber; the Nepigon Reserve covers 4,670,080 acres; the Mississaga Reserve covers 1,980,000 acres, with several smaller reserves.

THE SHAPES OF EGGS

A mathematical discussion has taken place, before the Zoological Society, as to the differences in the shapes of eggs. A few eggs, like those of the owl and the tortoise, are spherical, or nearly so; a few, like the grebe's or the cormorant's, are elliptical, with symmetrical ends; the great majority, like the hen's, are ovoid, or blunter at one end than the other. The hen's egg is always laid blunt end fore-most. Eggs that are the most unsymmetrical are also eggs of large size relatively to the parent bird. The yolks of eggs are spherical, whatever the form of the entire egg may be. This has been shown to be due to their being enclosed in a fluid, the "white," which makes the pressure everywhere on the surface of the yolk practically constant.—Science Siftings.

WHAT THE PUBLIC WANT

Hiss succeeded hiss. Boo succeeded boo. The audience showered their hostile verdict at the stage in the form of such useful commodities as carrots, eggs, and onions.

They called for the author. But he did not appear. He stood shaking in the wings, watching the whizzing vegetables with tearful eyes.

"Listen to them now!" he said, as a loud roar arose, intermingled with shrill whistling and cat-calls. He turned to the manager, threw up his hands despairingly, and exclaimed: "You give them tragedy, and they want comedy. You give them comedy, and they want tragedy. It's hard to find out what they do want."

"On the contrary, it's painfully easy," replied the manager. "They want their money back!"

Earl Sandt, the aviator, has flown across Lake Erie from Erie, Pa., to Port Dover, a distance of thirty miles. Why do not some of our local capitalists introduce aviation among the sports of Peterborough.

An aviator flew across Lake Erie a few days ago in 30 minutes. A Hunter street boy, caught by his mother stealing cookies, a week ago, flew across four blocks in record time to avoid the material slipper.

WHALING OFF NEW ZEALAND

Graphic Description of the Work of the Whalers with Their Deadly Harpoons

At the cry of "There she blows!" out go the steam launches to replace the nets, three in number, that suffice to close the narrow channel. These, unanchored, are allowed to float loose, the ends of each slightly overlapping. Kept taut by their own weight, they hang stretched on the float line, an invisible curtain of wire mesh barring the water run.

No human fastening, says the Wide World, has yet been invented that would stop the rush of a charging whale. The principal of the detached floating net is not to stop, but so to hamper the monster with a gossamer of wire rope that he falls an easy prey to the hunters. For this reason also the nets are so placed that on striking an entangled whale may race seaward or sound downward, carrying the enveloping net, without fear of disturbing the remaining two.

When the nets are in position the launches and attendant whaleboats with their crews, take up their stations at some distance to watch for an unheaval and dancing floating line that marks the striking of a whale.

Often a whale's presence is first indicated by great masses of broken barnacles and torn sea-grass that come floating upward to the surface as the whale, floundering among the rocks of the sea-floor, eases himself with delighted scratchings in the depths.

In the boats all is tense expectancy and ordered preparation. Harpoon guns are loaded and made ready, lines are carefully flaked down in the tubs, lances are looked to, and everyone is on the qui vive. Suddenly a sort of shudder runs through the sea. There are tossing billows and wild commotion made by the bobbing float lines. "Hurrah! she's struck!" is the cry.

Away go the boats, each racing to be the first fast to the struggling fish and so earn the bonus that rewards the winning crew. A mighty, grey black head, entangled in a clinging web of wire, rears from out the water. Up, up, it goes, till a huge bulk of body towers a good fifty feet in the air, its side fins thrashing wildly in a smother of foam. It curves in an arch, and then, like an arrow, down go whale and net together for the sound.

Not for long though. The upward drag of bunched net floats, and its necessity for breath brings the animal quickly to the surface—a spouting, snorting, wallowing mass; mad with rage, wild with terror of the unknown clinging horror that envelops it.

Bang! bang! go the guns from each boat in quick succession. Both irons are home and well placed. A wild quiver of flukes and fins, and the whale either sounds again or races along the surface, towing the boats after it at express speed. But the net holds fast, and at each new effort for freedom the victim becomes more helplessly wound [illegible]. Soon exhausted with [illegible] struggling, the whale comes to rest, and there is a momentary cessation of the mad fight, as the leviathan pauses for breath. Huge panting air gasps are plainly audible at a distance of half a mile.

The crews are quick to seize the opportunity. With the lancemen ready in the bow the boats sweep in, one on either side. "Steady with the lance." "Now!" Eight foot steel made a drive deep for the heart behind the pectoral fins.

A shiver, a hissing spout of water and blood, a wallow and roll of the huge wire-tangled carcass, flashes of red and white foam in the sunlight, and the black heave of a twentyfoot fin that for one dread instant, scimitar-shaped, a falling wall of bone and sinew, hangs over the boat and its occupants. The boat's crew back out like lightning, just in time. Down crashes the mighty flail, missing its blow by a bare foot. There is a roar and clap of many thunders, and jetting spurts of spray leap high into the blue.

The boats, backed clear, still hang to the lines, the crews watching events and waiting the end. It may be that the dying whale will sound again or race in a final effort. But the lances have got home. A few more wallows of despair, the great tail flukes thrash the water with lessening force, and presently the huge body, inert, lifeless, lies quietly on the surface. Hawsers are made fast to the dead whale, and while the boats return to their stations to watch the remaining nets, it is towed by the launch to the jetty ashore.

SHADES AND STYLES

Satin Gowns Will be Fashionable for Some Time—Models Suggesting the Apron Tunic

Satin finish crepe de Chine is included in the list of satin gowns, and will be fashionable for some time; in fact, is growing in favor again, although it has never been relegated entirely to the background. It is used for the draped gowns without trimming that are smart from their very simplicity and their artistic handling.

Heliotrope and Mauve

There are many shades in heliotrope and mauve in crepe de Chine that are wonderfully becoming, and these in draped gowns are fascinating. They have always a double skirt, but so draped that it is difficult to tell which is the lower and which is the upper. The design is high waisted in effect with the straight lines looking straighter than ever and the figure appears more slender; the folds are caught together with a soft knot or rosette at one side, low down on the skirt. This is one of the models that is to all appearance most carelessly put together and without lining or bones. In reality it can never be well carried out unless there is a perfect fitted skirt lining; the skirt lining is short and finished with a deep flounce of chiffon to make the gown hang better, without being as stiff as if made of silk.

Tartan Plaid Frock

Handsome satins showing one-half or two-thirds of the width in black and the rest in bold plaid of skilfully blended coloring afford opportunity for border-like use of the plaid, while the border is also wide enough to be handled as bodice, sleeve or underskirt material. In one charming Tartan plaid frock, the big black satin collar, cuffs and girdle left but little of the plaid bodice in view, and that little in the blues and greens with lines of white and yellow, and in silk of exquisite lustre and texture, was gay and chic without being garish. The skirt bottom showed clever detail in the straight shirring of the black satin where the over lapping right side of the front rounds away at the bottom from the left side, and in the narrow puff band of green silk which borders this curve, narrowing to the point of disappearance as the curve ends. Small jet buttons were used along the whole line of the skirt opening and on the collar and cuffs.

Tailored Skirts

Side Opening Skirts

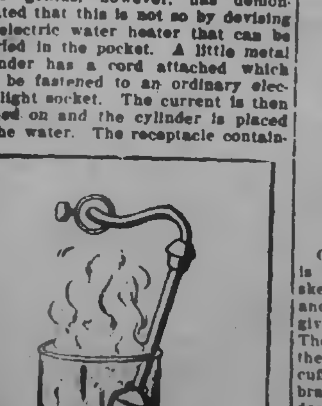
There are numerous side opening skirts with panel or underskirt arrangements, and a sort of apron tunic which has been developed on some of the smart summer frocks, appears with variations in new models. A simple clinging robe of satin has an apron with square cornered bibs in fine cloth, front and back, the under robe slit [illegible] for its full length at the sides. The cloth in one model of this type was cleverly braided, and a girdle passing under the apron which fell comparatively straight, was drawn snugly on the sides to define the natural waist curves.

A New Tunic

Another model suggesting the apron tunic had what might be called a triple apron, one section dropping over the other and each edged with a narrow fringe. The tunic was in black cloth and fell over an underskirt of black satin which buttoned for its full length on each side with white pearl buttons. Over a bodice of black satin fell flat separate panels of the cloth, fringed at the bottom, where they met a girdle of the satin. White pearl buttons were upon the cuffs and upon the little satin yoke showing above the cloth over-blouse.

POCKET WATER HEATER

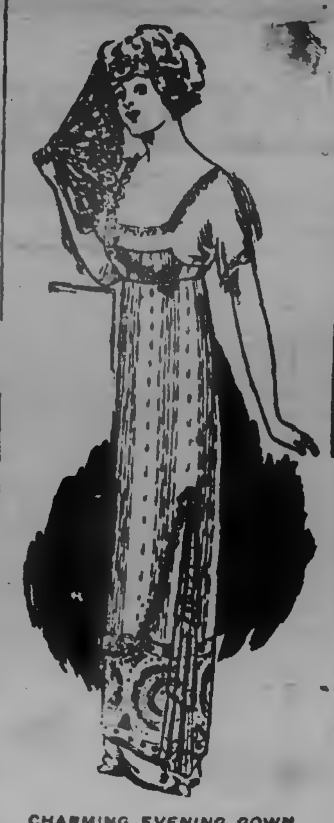
Heretofore it has always been supposed that some kind of a stove was required to heat water, even if only a stove the size of your hand. An Ohio genius, however, has demonstrated that this is not so by devising an electric water heater that can be carried in the pocket. A little metal cylinder has a cord attached which can be fastened to an ordinary electric-light socket. The current is then turned on and the cylinder is placed in the water. The receptacle containing the liquid must be brought to the heater, as the latter cannot be moved farther than the length of the cord. The heater will produce hot water in two minutes and boiling water in four minutes. It is useful to heat water for shaving, and as a steriliser is just what is required. At the same time it does not charge the water and may be handled without fear of contact with the current.



Does Not Charge the Water

Good Show at the Red Mill.

The Red Mill, successor to the Crystal, is certainly making good. The operator, who is "The man behind the gun," in that business, is onto his job, and gets a good clean cut picture. The pictures shown in the Red Mill for the past few days have been bright, sparkling, clean dramas and comedies, that the most fastidious taste could not object to. This theatre is run and operated by a Canadian.



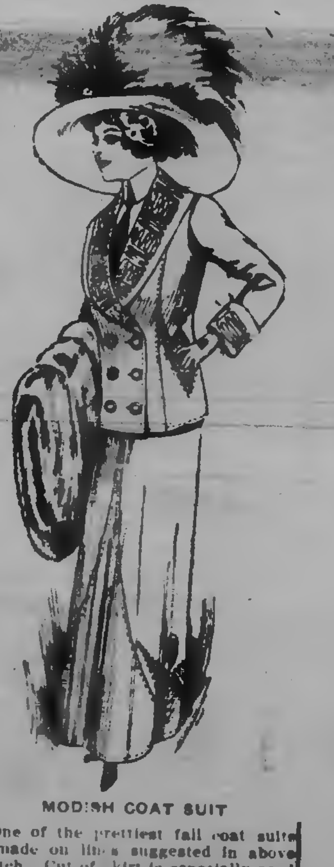
CHARMING EVENING GOWN

A truly beautiful evening gown of gray gauze dotted with silver beads over pale blue satin. The tulle tunic is bordered by a band of deep silver lace and a garland of forget-me-nots fasten at knee depth on left side under a rosette of narrow white lace, from which falls three flounces of wide lace arranged as indicated. Top part of decollete bodice is plain blue satin embroidered around neck and sleeves with silver beads and a wreath of forget-me-nots fastens on shoulder and at waist line under rosettes of lace.

FREAK FASHIONS GO

New Skirt Which Approaches the Dreaded Crinoline

Mercifully, freak fashions have had their day, for a while at any rate. Coming modes are both saner and more beautiful than they have been for some time past. The only approach to the much dreaded crinoline is a new and very fascinating skirt that is finished with a deep ruche around the hem, which has the effect of making the feet appear much smaller than they look under the usual severely cut short skirt. Ruches are quite a feature of smart dressing to-day, and one big Parisian house is making a speciality of ruched trimming for both day and evening frocks alike. Fringes, likewise, are a craze of the coming fashion, particularly those made of heavy silk or very light chenille.



MODISH COAT SUIT

One of the prettiest fall coat suits is made on lines suggested in above sketch. Cut of skirt is especially good and the braiding in black soutache gives the needed touch of dressy finish. The material is purple broadcloth and the coat has a deep shawl collar and cuffs of greenish gray corded silk braided in black soutache. The same design of braiding on skirt is carried out on jacket under arms and waist line.

ORANGE MARMALADE

Select one orange and one lemon with a thin skin. Cut in slices and then in cubes. To this add six cupfuls of water. Let stand over night. Next morning boil twenty minutes, measure liquid, and to one cupful of mixture add one cupful of sugar. Boil evenly for one-half hour, or until it jells. This will make eight medium sized glasses.

Grape Sherbet

Two pounds Concord grapes, two lemons, one quart water, one pound sugar; lay a square of cheesecloth over a large bowl; put in the washed grapes and mash thoroughly; squeeze out all the juice and add an equal amount of sugar, the lemon juice. Use sugar enough to make it quite sweet, then freeze.

Pro. Baseball in Peterborough.

The question of establishing Pro. baseball in Peterborough on a paying basis will be settled on Saturday evening at a meeting called at the Oriental Hotel. Secretary M. M. Robinson of the Canadian League, President Fitzgerald and Notty Lee, manager of the Hamilton Club are expected to be present.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

THE CLIMBING ROSE

Points to be Observed in the Cultivation of This Flower

There are climbing roses that will bloom continuously from June until the end of October. But it is just the past score years that have witnessed this remarkable development of climbing roses. Before that, the varieties most common were not at all hardy, their flowers were not nearly so large nor so beautiful as those of to-day. But twenty years ago someone introduced the memorial rose, and about the same time the crimson rambler, a hardy, snowy, climbing rose, with flowers in clusters, came over from China and aroused great interest among horticulturists. The question arose whether it could not be combined with the memorial, for the crimson rambler, though strong and bearing beautiful flowers, had nevertheless many defects which were absent in the memorial. The grafting was done and successfully. New hybrids were produced, which combined hardiness, abundance of bloom, rapid growth and grace of form, with great resistance to disease and insects. It was the beginning of a new era in climbing roses. The new roses spread everywhere, and rose-growers were enthusiastic over the results of the experiment. Other combinations were attempted with success, and we have the results to-day in the multiplicity of lovely climbing rose vines that make beautiful so many gardens.

There are three groups of the climbing roses: the multiflora, which bloom early in June only; the prairie roses, heavy in flower and with grey-green foliage, and, most important of all, the memorial group, which flowers all summer and often until the frost has come. Nearly everyone knows one variety of the memorial group, the Dorothy Perkins. It is much like the crimson rambler, save that its flowers are pink: its foliage is thick and glossy, and it is altogether a very desirable variety to cultivate.

In growing climbing roses the secret of success is simply good soil. The earth can hardly be too rich nor the trench too deep. If strong plants are bought at the outset, and they are planted in good soil and well watered, success is almost absolutely certain. The only harm possible might come from insects, but these may be guarded against by judicious spraying.

BABYLONIAN SURGEON'S FEES

The French newspapers contain interesting references to the discovery of a Babylonian stone which shows the fees that were paid to surgeons some four thousand centuries ago. The fees, considering the risk, were extremely moderate; and they were fees literally with a vengeance, and not honorariums, in those far-away days. An operation to the neck, we learn, cost about five francs. Setting a broken leg is, we are informed, put down at $3. Dentistry was paid for at a better rate, seeing that the tariff for removing a tooth was $1.25. This seems a very stiff sum relatively, but there is a reverse to this beautiful medal. If the operation turned out badly, and the patient died, then the unfortunate practitioner had both his hands cut off.

London Pensioners

Of the 69,200 odd in receipt of old-age pensions in London, 61,314 receive the full amount of $1.25; 2,675, $1; 2,991, 75c.; 1,413, 50c., and 840, 25c.

The Youngest Member

Only twenty-two years old, Mr. W. A. Redmond, M.P., son of Mr. John Redmond, M.P., is the youngest member of the present Parliament of Great Britain.

Three Men Fined for Trespass.

At yesterday's session of the Police Court three young men were each set back $5 worth of fines. It seems that some months ago the dressing room of Jackson Park rink was broken open and some goods stolen. The sleuths of the rink have since done several Sherlock Holmes acts, which resulted in the arrest and fines of the three young men.

The men who contracted for ploughing the snow from the pavements of Peterborough, are certainly earning their money this winter.

RIDE SOME DAY IN GOLDEN TAXIS

A Few of the Amazing Things We May Do in the Magical Future, According to Edison

What will the world be like a hundred years hence?

None but a "wizard" dare raise the curtain and disclose the secrets of the future; and what wizard can do it with so sure a hand as Thomas Alva Edison, who has wrested so many secrets from jealous Nature? He alone of all men who live has the necessary courage and gift of foresight; and he has not shrunk from the venture.

Already, Edison tells us, the steam-engine is emitting its last gasps. A century hence it will be as remote an antiquity as the lumbering coach of Tudor days, which took a week to travel from Yorkshire to London. In the year 2011 such railway-trains as survive will be driven at incredible speeds by electricity (which will also be the motive force of all the world's machinery), generated by "hydraulic" wheels.

But the traveller of the future will largely scorn such earth-crawling. He will fly through the air, swifter than any swallow, at a speed of two hundred miles an hour, in colossal machines which will enable him to breakfast in London; transact business in Paris, and eat his luncheon in Cheapside.

Steel Cradles for Babies

The house of the next century will be furnished from basement to attic with steel, at a sixth of the present cost—of steel so light that it will be as easy to move a sideboard as it is to-day to lift a drawing-room chair. The baby of the twenty-first century will be rocked in a steel cradle; his father will sit in a steel chair at a steel dining-table; and his mother's boudoir will be sumptuously equipped with steel furnishings, converted by cunning varnishes to the semblance of rosewood or mahogany, or any other wood her ladyship fancies.

Books of the coming century will all be printed on leaves of nickel, so light to hold that the reader can enjoy a small library in a single volume. A book two inches thick will contain forty thousand pages, the equivalent of a hundred substantial volumes of to-day; three such volumes, six inches in aggregate thickness, would suffice for all the contents of the "Encyclopaedia Britannica." And each volume would weigh less than a pound.

Already Mr. Edison can produce a pound-weight of these nickel leaves, more flexible than paper, and ten times as durable, at a cost of $1.25. In a hundred years' time the cost will probably be reduced to a tenth.

More amazing still, this American wizard sounds the death-knell of gold as a precious metal. "Gold," he says, "has even now but a few years to live; the day is near when bars of it will be as common and as cheap as bars of iron or blocks of steel." We are already on the verge of discovering the secret of transmuting metals, which are all substantially the same in matter, though "combined in different proportions." Before long it will be an easy matter to convert a truck-load of iron bars into as many bars of virgin gold.

We Shall Not be Here

In these magical days to come there is no reason why our great liners should not be of solid gold from stem to stern; why we should not ride in golden taxi-cabs; or substitute gold for steel in our drawing-room suites. Only, steel will be the more durable, and, thus the cheaper in the long run.

And in the world of manufacture the changes of the next hundred years will be just as revolutionary. Where we have now a score of machines, each responsible for a stage of manufacture, one will suffice.

"Before long," says Mr. Edison, without a twinkle in his eye, and certainly without his tongue in his cheek, "we shall have a machine into one end of which you will put cloth, thread, buttons, and so on, and from the other end draw suits complete to the last stitch, and ready folded for delivery."

All our present marvels of phonograph and telephone and aerial telegraphy are but blind gropings in the dark compared with the light that shall flood the next century.

The Briton of 2011 will be able to sit in his armchair and converse with his son at the Cape, or with a friend in Melbourne, as easily as across the hearthrug; and not merely to listen to his friend's or his son's voice, but to see each of them as clearly as if he were in the same room.

"WHERE'S THE MISSIS?"

During the tour round the world of the King and Queen as Duke and Duchess of Cornwall, one of the ceremonies was at the University of Melbourne in Australia.

The Duke was to receive an honorary degree, but the Duchess was unable to be present. There was a vast crowd. At last the solemn procession of the Council and Senate of the University emerged and made its way to the platform, the Chancellor escorting the Duke, gorgeous in his new hood and gown. In the hush of the moment, while the dignitaries were taking their places, a student of the University called out, in a disappointed tone:—

"Hello, George! Where's the missis?"

The shocked expression on the faces of some of the bigwigs only added to the audience's delight at the good-natured smile with which the Duke looked up in the direction of the voice.

Fifty-one Years Clerk

Mr. Elias Taylor, parish clerk of Felsted, has retired on reaching the age of ninety, after fifty-one years of service. During his term of office he daily ascended the church tower to wind the clock. He discharged that duty 18,500 times, and climbed 100 miles of stairs.

Noted Divine Here Sunday.

Rev. E. Bosworth, of Montreal, General Secretary of the Mission of the Baptist Church to the Roman Catholics of Quebec, will speak Sunday morning in Murray street Baptist church. It was the predecessor of Mr. Bosworth in this office, who was instrumental in the conversion of Father Chiniquy, the author of the book "Forty Years in the Church of Rome."

Yesterday was the limit in bad weather.

SPORTING COLUMN.

WOLGAST'S LOSS

An appendix is a useless sort of thing, doctors say. Adolph Wolgast's was worse than useless; for, when it went on a rampage and had to be knifed, it cost the whirlwind middleweight fight champion not less than $50,000. And it wasn't all surgeons' fees, either.

Wolgast was confronted with one of the happiest outlooks ever enjoyed by a fighter, two days before Thanksgiving Day. Besides good health and a strong right arm, he was confronting the following eventualities:

Bout with Fred Welsh, $10,000.

Bout with Packey McFarland, $15,000.

EARL DENNING

One of the best lightweights on this Continent.

Bout with Knockout Brown, $10,000.

Lesser bouts, all told, $10,000.

This makes a grand total of $55,000. Wolgast expected to complete his clean-up of the championship field in six months. Now, however, Dr. Pollard, who is in charge of Wolgast's case, says that the little fellow positively must not get into the ring again within six months.

It's even money he agrees with the physician that an appendix is worse than useless.

CANADIAN VS. AMERICAN FOOTBALL.

"Reddy" Griffith, the famous Varsity coach, writing on American football, says:

So much has been written and so well written during the last few days about the American football game that it is almost impossible to add anything to the criticisms. Still, the writer in a moment of weakness, promised to give a few of his views in the way of comparison between the game as it is played in Canada and in the United States.

The great outstanding difference is in the matter of offside interference. To the average Canadian offside interference is something to be avoided as destructive of most that is highly cherished in his game; to the American it is the essential, the pivot around which the whole games swings. Take it out of American football and you have at once eliminated practically every means of attack and defence known to American coaches. In fact, it is a very difficult matter to convince American footballers that gains can be made, kicks pulled off, or anything else effective done unless the runner or the kicker be protected by his interference. In itself, interference is not so awful as it sounds, particularly in the open field; as a matter of fact it often is one of the prettiest and cleverest parts of the game, and the team with this department highly developed is always the one most feared by others.

RAICEVICH THREW SIX.

Giovanni Raicevich, holder of the Italian heavyweight wrestling title, threw six heavyweights in less than twenty minutes actual wrestling time at Madison Square Garden, upon his first appearance on the mat in America. The Italian champion undertook to throw all the men in two hours at catch-as-catch-can style, with only a moment's rest between bouts, and to forfeit $1,000 to each man he did not throw in twenty minutes.

His first victim was Harry Petopsky, who succumbed to a half-nelson in 2.02. A body hold and a half-nelson brought August Faust to the mat in 1.40. George Sandele was disposed of with a back hammerlock in 2.35, Oom Paul Schmidt, a 265-pound German, put up quite a tussle, and lasted 4.40, being pinioned with a half-nelson. A double nelson forced Hans Lehner to the mat in 4.55. Fritz Mohl, a stock Hollander, was the victim of a wrist hold and a half-nelson in 2.55.

WALTER CAMP

Editor of Spalding's

Walter Camp, who picks the All-American eleven team, has been Yales' last word in football for 30 years. He is on the rules committee. He played for Yale and his son is now on the Varsity. Camp edits Spalding's football guide. His All-American team is considered the country's best.

Sad Death at Norwood.

The village of Norwood has lost one of its most respected citizens in the person of Mrs. W. Montgomery, who passed away on the 19th inst. Last Tuesday Mrs. Montgomery was stricken with acute peritonitis and from the first her condition was seen to be serious. The three local doctors were called in but to no avail. Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery have only been married about four years and she leaves her sorrowing husband with three small children, the youngest being an infant of a few weeks. Deceased was the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kempt, of Norwood.

OVERBID

Mrs. Musek:—"Dollie, why don't you practise your music? I said I'd give you a penny an hour to do so."

Dollie:—"Yes, mother, but father promised me 5 cents an hour if I sit still on the piano-stool."

AN INDUSTRIOUS HEN

"Is that hen of yours industrious?"

"Well, rather. She tried to do two days' work in one to-day."

"How so?"

"She laid a double-yolked egg."

A TRIUMPH

"Do you think it is becoming?" she asks, appearing in her newest gown.

"Don't bother about that!" gushes the friend. "It is perfect! It is simply delicious! My dear, it makes you look absolutely helpless."

HIS SORT OF DONKEY

"I see you advertise for a donkey," said a man who looked as if he had something to sell.

"Oh, yes," said the busy man, stopping his work for a minute to look up, "but I want one with four legs."

PICKED BEFORE RIPE

"Do you call this a band of picked musicians?" said the hotel manager to the leader of a band.

"Ach! dot vos so. I bick 'em mineselief," replied the bandmaster.

"Well, then, you picked them before they were ripe."

A DRY TOWN

A tourist, while travelling through Arizona, noticed the dry, dusty appearance of the country. "Doesn't it ever rain around here?" he asked one of the natives.

"Rain?" The native smiled. "Rain! Why, say, pardner, there's bull-frogs in this yere town over five years of age that haven't learned to swim yet."

DISILLUSIONED

The young man sat beside the beautiful maiden on the sofa.

"Miss Nora," he began hesitatingly, "may I ask you not to call me 'Mr. Durand'?"

A rosy blush crept to the girl's cheeks, and she cast her glorious eyes down at the carpet.

"Well," she stammered, "our acquaintance is so short. Why should I not call you that?"

"Because, Miss Nora," answered the young man, "the fact is, my name is not Durand, my name is Dupont."

NOT OUT?

A match was in progress between a well-known Surrey village team and a team from London. The village parson was batting, and the village barber was umpire at one end.

The parson hit a ball towards mid-on and went for a run. The ball was fielded smartly, and the parson seemingly run out.

But, to the astonishment of the London team, the umpire said "not out."

When the parson got a chance he said to the barber, "That was a close shave!"

"Yes," said the barber; "and if you wasn't in the habit of having a shampoo, I would have said, "Next gentleman, please."

WHAT'S THE USE?

In one of the council schools there was a little girl who was well up in most of her studies, but she disliked geography, and it seemed impossible to teach the study to her.

One day her teacher sent to Rosie's mother a note requesting her to see that the girl studied her lessons. The next day showed no improvement, however.

"Did your mother read the note, Rosie?" asked the teacher.

"Yes, ma'am," was the reply.

"What did she say?"

"My mother said that she didn't know geography and she got married, and my aunt didn't know any and she got married, and you know geography and you didn't get married!"

HUBBY'S DISAPPOINTMENT

Wife:—"Would you be lonely and miserable if I went away for a week?"

Husband:—"No, not a bit, my dear."

Wife:—"Then I won't go."

Lindsay After Dog Nuisance.

Lindsay Post: Mr. Chilton, chief of police of Lindsay, wishes the Post to state that complaints are coming in regarding the number of dogs running at large. He wishes it understood that the dog by-law is in force and if the canines are not kept off the streets, prosecutions will surely follow. How about the 27,361 useless curs that are an ominous risk to Peterborough and a sure breeding ground for the germs of hydrophobia?

Local Man Takes Hotel.

Mr. N. D. King, of this city, we understand has leased the Norwood House in that village, and will take possession in a few weeks. As the hotel is to be refinished and decorated, and the new proprietor is a former Norwood man, he will probably get a good share of the public patronage.

Instructive Lecture on T.B.C.

Last night Dr. Frank Neal, the well known local authority on "The Great White Plague," gave an eloquent and instructive lecture in St James church on Tuberculosis. The meeting was for men only. Those present were, to use a sland expression, "put wise," to a whole lot of information regarding the ravages and cure of this prevalent disease. Dr. Neal, in his remarks demonstrated that he is fully posted on the subject matter of last night's lecture.

Havelock Case Dismissed.

Even school trustees do not always get along as amicably as so many little birds in the same nest. It seems that the trustees at Havelock had a falling out. One of the three laid a charge against the other two. County Magistrate Edmison went to that busy little railway centre to settle the charge. The case was thrown out of court. The evidence was too weak to have condemned the family cat of stealing milk even when caught with the cream on its whiskers.

Get the News for Breakfast.

Readers of the Times yesterday morning were just five hours and thirty minutes ahead of the man who waits for the Toronto papers who was anxious to get the returns from Renfrew. The Toronto paper were one hour late, whilst the Times was on the breakfast table of every subscriber with full results of the election. We had full returns, as an up-to-date papers should have had. The only sequel to this little story is this: If you do not take the Times you are missing a daily treat at breakfast time.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive Cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires as constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. Mr. Mein Laid at Rest.

After an impressive service at the family residence, 423 Mark street, yesterday afternoon, the funeral of Mr. John W. Mein proceeded to Little Lake cemetery, where the remains were laid in their last resting place. The Rev. Mr. Pogue officiated. Including representatives from the local lodges of Masons and Oddfellows many friends of the deceased assembled at the funeral, as a last token of esteem. The pallbearers were Messrs. Geo. Gillespie, A. Archibald, Wm. Hill, H. Long, G. McDonald, F. Drummond, Wm. Savigny and Dr. R. F. Morrow.

Local Boy Before the Cadi.

This afternoon a boy hailing from Ashburnham will appear for trial before his Worship, County Magistrate Edmison. It seems that the boy in question, by name Moore, whilst stealing a sleigh ride, stole also satchel from under the driver's seat. This portmonaie contained $61.00 in cash. It is alleged that the boy started in as though a blood relation of J. Pierpont Morgan, and of Rockefeller combined. He first purchased three cheap watches and then invested in boots and shoes. Part of the spoils, he is said to have given to a younger brother. At a local Sunday school he flashed a roll of bank bills that led to suspicion.

Church Union.

Knox Church Young People's Society is looking for a large audience on Monday evening in Knox Church, when the question of Church Union between the Methodist, Congregational and Presbyterian churches will be the subject of debate. McLaren of St. James will represent the Methodists. An interesting and instructive evening is promised and all who are interested in the great question of Church Union will be anxious to hear it discussed in this public way. A programme of music has been prepared and will commence at 8 o'clock.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

Mr. E. Meredith received $250 as Crown Counsel Prosecutor for Peterborough in 1911.

The Orangemen of East Peterborough will celebrate the glorious 12th in Norwood this year.

The Montreal Star says "Montreal gets a taste of snow." Peterborough has had a deluge of the beautiful.

Peterborough is not the only "Pebble on the Beach," covered up by Thursday blizzard. All Ontario got a dose of the breeze.

"Great Ceasar's Ghost," said a local merchant yesterday to The Times "Business is quiet enough without that Thursday blizzard coming along to kill things altogether!"

Yesterday a local express man had an order to take some goods to Lakefield. He started and he returned and said "It's ——! Well! it's terrible, the state of the roads."

And now the Manchu dynasty may get back to power. Our local Chinks don't bother about Governments. They are happy to go ahead ripping up shirts and removing buttons.

Belleville was snowbound on Thursday. With all due sympathy for that city, let us give thanks that the Peterborough was not the only victim of the blizzard.

The average local man who has lost pounds of weight through perspiring over the business end of a snow shovel lately, can thank Providence he is not a railroad director with trains late every day.

Those Renfrew voters certainly did their duty in turning out to vote in Thursday's blizzard. As their duty regarded in the light of results depends on whether you are Grit or Tory. That makes all the difference.

Kingston papers are kicking because the snow on their sidewalks is not cleaned off for men going to work in the morning. Kingston should send a few of their aldermen to Peterborough and see how things are run here.

Montreal is considering a change in their civic system of voting, to make their elections on the same basis as in Peterborough—one man, one vote. At present a rich man could vote in twenty wards if he owned property in each of them.

We note that in the Ontario Government blue book of the Provincial accounts, Mr. Geo. J. Sherry, of this city received $450 in the month ending Oct. 31st, 1911, as Deputy Clerk of the Crown and $225 as Local Registrar of the County of Peterborough.

THIS IS INDEED A SEVERE TEST

C. MATTESON HAS HAD RHEUMATISM ALL HIS LIFE.

But Dodd's Kidney Pills Have Benefited Him so Much He Recommends Them to Others—Why They Always Cure Rheumatism.

Holberg, B.C., Feb. 23.—(Special).—That Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure Rheumatism has been proved again and again. Where the dread disease is making its first inroads into the system the cure is quick and complete. Where the rheumatism is of longer standing it takes longer treatment, but the result is always the same, Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure. Probably the hardest test Dodd's Kidney Pills have ever been given is in the case of Mr. C. Mattesen of this place. It is best stated in his own words:—

"I have been troubled with rheumatism all my life," Mr. Mattesen states, "but I am happy to tell you that I have received so much benefit from Dodd's Kidney Pills that I can recommend them to others."

Here is a case of the longest possible standing. But Dodd's Kidney Pills will surely cure it. Why? Because uric acid in the blood is the cause of rheumatism, and Dodd's Kidney Pills take the uric acid out of the blood by making the kidneys do their proper work.

ALONE HE DID IT

A Captain Who for Three Days Ran the Ship Himself

For one man to do the work of twenty with his own hands for three days and nights, and with forty lives under his charge, is a feat that takes some beating. It was done by Captain Morell, who brought the steamship Scindhia home by himself, although the crew considered necessary to work her was twenty-five, including engineers.

With $35,000 worth of cargo and fifteen passengers on board, she broke down in the Atlantic, and was driven hundreds of miles north out of her course. An accident spoiled the fresh water, and distilled water gave the crew dysentery, which, together with mishaps, left the captain without an officer or a man capable of work. The first officer and five of the crew were washed overboard, the two chief engineers were killed in the mishap, and the third only managed to make the damage good before he was laid up.

The captain, when the storm subsided, actually started one of the fires himself, got one of the engines to work at slow speed, and, by superhuman efforts, he managed to navigate the ship and keep her going, backed by great good luck.

He brought the Scindhia homeward round the North of Ireland, getting no wink of sleep for three days and nights; as he was out of the line of traffic, nobody saw his distress signals. He brought his ship to within twenty miles of the Mersey, and there a pilot boat met him. Once boarded, he collapsed, and slept soundly for twenty-four hours; but he had, says The Mariner, the biggest ovation any merchant captain ever received when he got ashore.

CURIOUS MASCOTS

Singers Who Have Real Faith in Such Company

Madame Patti, who has enraptured all music-lovers, places great belief in an old doll, called "Henriette," which she has treasured as her special talisman since she was seven years of age.

Another great singer with a real faith in mascots is Madame Alice Esty, and she never sings in public without wearing a small green heart attached to a delicate necklace of gold.

The Shah of Persia and a small table, upon which are five splendid portraits, are quite inseparable. This mascot accompanies him everywhere, and is placed close to his pillow while he sleeps. The portrait consists of himself, the late King Edward and his Consort, and the Tsar and Tsaritza of Russia. The late Baroness Burdett-Coutts was almost convinced that good luck would desert her if she parted with a lucky guinea. This coin was given to her grandfather, who dressed rather carelessly, by a benevolent old gentleman who had mistaken the former for one seeking charity!

Among ladies in French society there is a great desire to possess to "luck" bits of the hangman's rope, and applications are frequently made—but without success—to influential Britons connected with the Home Office to obtain such unpleasant relics from the hangman!

PORCUPINE - FORCUNA GOLD MINES, LIMITED.

Incorporated under Ontario Companies Act.

CAPITAL $2,000,000. SHARES PAR VALUE $1.00 EACH, FULLY PAID AND NON-ASSESSABLE. TREASURY SHARES, 1,000,000.

The Company owns 8 valuable Mining Claims (310 acres), free and clear of debt. These claims are located in Tisdale, Delora and Shaw Townships, and are known as the Reany, Mapes and James Claims. The development work done on each group of these claims has been most satisfactory and warrants the belief that further development will prove them to be very valuable mining properties. In fact, the Tisdale and Delora Claims have been proven by neighboring properties, while the James Claims in Shaw have one of the widest sulphide veins in that Township.

James F. Gallagher & Company made the first offering of the stock of the Porcupine-Fortuna Gold Mines, Limited, through twenty of the leading newspapers in Ontario and the western part of New York State, the first "ads." appearing four days before opening the subscription books for the sale of this stock at 15c per share, and if the sales and reservations received by telephone, telegraph and letters the first two days are any criterion of the sales for the balance of the week, the first offering will be over-subscribed.

We offer the first 100,000 shares of Porcupine-Fortuna Gold Mines, Limited, at the extremely low price of 15c per share.

15c--100,000 SHARES at 15c PER SHARE—15c

Considering the capitalization and the fairness of the Directors in placing one-half the capital in the Treasury to be sold for the development of the properties and building mills, and the value of the 8 claims owned by the Company, we believe this stock the best value, at 15c per share, ever offered the public in a Porcupine company. That being true, is it not also true that the second 100,000 shares at 20c per share are equally as good a purchase, as the Company will have sufficient funds in its Treasury to continue developing its valuable properties? Get your orders in at once, at 15c per share, and if the first allotment is sold before we receive them, we will give you the option of having your orders filled at 20c per share. POLICE STOP STRIKERS FROM SENDING CHILDREN AWAY

Armed With Revolvers, They Arrested Parents, Who Persisted in Their Endeavors

Strike Leaders Say It Is to Force Them to Give In by Making the Kiddies Suffer—Eight Women and Ten Children Under Arrest.

Lawrence, Mass., Feb. 24.—Fifty policemen, under direct command of Marshal Sullivan and two companies of militia interfered to-day with the attempt of the strike committee to send 50 children from this city to outside towns where they would be cared for. Eight women, five men, and ten children were arrested and rushed to the police station.

The interference by the police and militia has added to the gravity of the situation.

The strike leaders contend that if the children had plenty and were safely housed the parents would get along somehow.

START WAS MADE EARLY.

The children who were innocently responsible for the day's trouble were brought to the railway station to be placed on the board the 7.11 train They were to be taken to Philadelphia and Providence via Boston. Applications for them had been filled more than a week ago and a special car for their transfer had been provided.

Shortly before six o'clock, Marshal Sullivan ordered out the police reserves, and at the head of 50 members of his force, marched to the station. A few minutes later the two companies of militia, their belts filled with ball cartridges and their pieces ready for action, put in an appearance. Sullivan then pressed into service a big, two-horse covered truck for use as a patrol waggon, and backed it up against the station entrance.

When the strikers appeared with their children, the Marshal asked why the children were to be sent away. The women were all plainly frightened by the display of force Sullivan finally ordered a number of the men women and children to go home. Those who refused were gathered up, hustled into the waggon, and driven to the police station.

STRIKERS' PICKETS LOCKED UP.

While this was going on, under orders from the Mayor, police and soldiers were gathering in ten strike pickets.

Not a child was permitted to leave Lawrence, and Marshal Sullivan refused to make any explanation of his action.

The militia in addition to their rifles were armed with clubs, which they used freely on the male strikers. In many instances where women threw themselves in front of the men to protect them, no discrimination was shown, and the women were beaten.

NEWS OF DASH TO SOUTH POLE ANY DAY NOW

London, Feb. 24.—News of the discovery of the South Pole is expected [illegible] London at any moment, and [illegible] the newspapers are beginning to discuss the chance of the rival expeditions of Capt. Roald Amundsen and Capt. R. N. Scott.

The Westminster Gazette has a timely article by a man experienced in Polar matters, who says:

"At any moment one of the southernmost cable stations may spread over the world the message that the second of the great Polar mysteries has been solved, and that an explorer has succeeded in doing in the Antarctic what Admiral Peary did and Dr. Cook said he did in the farthest north.

LOST AND WON.

"In the midst of all uncertainty all that we know practically certain is that the great race, which is surely the most remarkable that has ever been run, is by this time lost or won.

"Who was the winner only a cablegram from Stewart Island or Tasmania, to which it is expected Amundsen will steer the Fram can tell us, but if Amundsen made the earliest start and the earlier return, the two expected messages will not be far apart.

"The Fram has the longer journey to make and the Terra Nova is the faster vessel, so that what we are waiting may actually be the result of a race to give the news of the result of the greater race that preceded it."

BANKS ON THE NORWEGIAN.

Sir Ernest Shackleton, the famous Antarctic explorer, when interviewed on the subject yesterday, favored the chances of the Norwegian.

"Of course Captain Scott has great experience," he said, "but then, you know, the Norwegians can live on the smell of a tone. On the other hand Capt. Scott's equipment is splendid, and that is a great point in his favor. The two parties must meet somewhere on the journey. Whichever party loses in the race will join hands and come back with the winners. If they should both meet at the Pole, it will be a race to see who sends the first news. Amundseas ship is slower, but Scott has a party to pick up at Cape Adair."

NEWS BY MARCH.

A Copenhagen dispatch says that the Geographical Society at Christiania held a meeting to discuss when Amundsen might be expected back from the expedition to the South Pole. All the members agreed that no news of the expedition could reasonably be expected before March.

It was generally held that Amundsen and party reached the ice barrier long ago, but they were unable to advance, owing to the ice being much thicker than it was last year.

It is also believed that they have better chances than Capt. Scott, the Norwegian explorers having taken dogs with them as these animals can stand the cold better than horses, which accompany the Scott expedition.

ITALIAN WARSHIPS BOMBARDED CITY BEFORE GOVERNOR HAD TIME TO REPLY

Sixty Peaceful Citizens of Beirut, Syria, Slaughtered by Cruisers Which Opened Fire Before They Could Escape to Hills—Turkish Gunboats Sunk

Beirut, Suria, Feb. 24.—A flotilla of Italian warships this morning bombarded this city, killing sixty peaceful inhabitants and wounding a large number of others. They also sank a number of small Turkish gunboats anchored in the port.

Appearing suddenly off the port, the commanders of the Italian gunboat Volturno and the armoured cruiser Guiseppe Garibaldi sent to the authorities a peremptory demand for the surrender of the Turkish gunboats in the harbor.

Before the provincial governor could deliver his reply to the Italian commanders or ask for time to negotiate the cruisers opened a devastating fire.

In a short time the Turkish gunboats in the harbor were disabled and in a sinking condition. The custom house was greatly damaged and other buildings also suffered severely.

A great number of people who came within the zone of fire while passing along the streets were slaughtered.

A panic set in and the people fled in droves towards the Lebanon Hills.

PUBLIC OPINION

The Times does not hold itself responsible for opinions of its correspondents

THE POST OFFICE CLOCK.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—It may seem a small thing to bother a newspaper about, but there is a principle behind my complaint. Why should the hands of the Post Office clock be stopped for four days running. That clock is a public utility, when it is in operation and I can see no reason why our citizens should be deprived of the use or benefit of the clock.

Right Time.

HIGH PRICE OF LIVING.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I shall probably be considered a crank by what I suggest in this letter. Mr. Editor, the price of living has got to such a stage that it is hard work for an honest man to maintain a family. It is not the luxuries, but the actual necessities of life that have risen in price beyond reason. Even the poorest laborer has to occasionally buy butter, eggs and meat. Now, with butter at 35c eggs at 40c and meat at aeroplane heights of price, how can people live?

Political economists and those posted in prices of such commodities give us all kinds of reasons why prices are so high. I do not profess to put up my opinion against their arguments. Still, I believe, the reason for the present high prices is this: The farmers' sons leave the farm and come to the towns and cities for work. Every farmer's son coming to a town is one less to raise crops and meat and one more to consume the same. As this is so vital a question to all the world, let alone Canada, why not have the Government pass a law to either compel farmers' sons to remain on the land, or to insist that a certain percentage of the Immigrants entering Canada be compelled to go to work on our farms? Things have come to such a pass that something must be done, or the people in our towns and cities must starve.

Hardluck.

BELLEVILLE SUICIDE CHARGE DISMISSED

Belleville, Feb. 24.—Mrs. Florence Mundeville was tried before Magistrate Mason charged with attempting suicide by the poison route. Through her counsel, Mr. Flint, she pleaded not guilty. Her sworn statement was that she was in the habit of taking vinegar from a pickle bottle. On the morning in question she took up the bottle and poured out some of the liquid. After tasting it she recognized that it was muriatic acid used in soldering. Her throat was burned. She hastened to her mother's. The drinking of the acid was a mistake and not intentional.

The Crown Attorney said there was no evidence to contradict her statement.

Woodstock, Ont., Feb. 24.—Charged with burning a barn on a farm belonging to George Patterson, 10th concession, East Zorra, on October 19th, 1911, George Patterson, the owner and Warren Dennis a friend, appeared in the police court here today and remande to jail till Thursday. Bail of $2,000 for each will be accepted. The defendants did not plead nor elect.

At the time this barn was burned, another on an adjacent farm was also destroyed by fire and the arrests are the outcome of an investigation.

HORRIBLE MURDER OF ALABAMA WOMAN

Dothan, Ala., Feb. 24.—Lying upon a bed with a 22-calibre rifle resting across the upper part of her body, and two bullet holes in her head, the corpse of Miss Estelle Brown, aged 23, who lives near here, provided the officers with the most perplexing murder in this section for years. Following the first report that a white woman had been killed and assaulted by a negro a mob of whites congregated in Dixie and cleared that part of the town of all blacks. In the melee one negro was practically cut into ribbons, and it was reported that several others had been injured. Officer Pittman of the local police, said he had the situation under control and was not expecting further trouble.

ARRESTED WITH OPIUM AND GAMBLING TOOLS

Sudbury, Ont., Feb. 24.—Chief Walker has made an important capture, when he took two young men and a young lady into custody. The trio were passengers on the Toronto to Sudbury day train on Monday, and during the journey held an extended conversation with a plain clothes railway official Their conversation included the gambling possibilities in Sudbury and other practices against the law. These facts were quietly placed in the possession of Chief Walker, who had a search warrant issued, and all three were taken into custody. They were arrested at the White House. The Chief made a search of their possessions, which revealed about two pounds of opium, and pipes for smoking same. The cards and dice were also found. They had $1,027.30 in cash in their possession.

The trio were allowed out on $1000 bail.

SAY WOMAN ADMITS TO THE KILLING OF EIGHT BABIES

New York Police State Woman in Hospital Kitchen Has Made a Confession—Was Mad at the Nurses

New York, Feb. 24.—The mystery of the deaths of eight babies in the Brooklyn Nursery and Infants' Hospital was solved, the police say, by the confession last night of Winnifred Ankers, a kitchen woman at the hospital, admitting that she placed oxalic acid in the babies' milk bottles. The alleged confession was obtained by a police lieutenant and detective after two hours examination of the kitchen woman, who had been under surveillance since autopsies developed the probability that the infants had been poisoned.

"On Saturday night after the bottles had been prepared for the babies," the police version of the confession runs, "I put two or three drops of oxalic acid into the bottles. I did not do it with intent to kill the babies, but I wanted to get square with the nurses, who were my enemies."

The police believe that the Ankers woman is demented. Her story they regard as true, however, and it was officially stated that she would be placed under formal arrest on the charges of homicide.

Winnifred Ankers is 24 years old. She came to the hospital last July with her infant.

LONDON JAILBIRDS ALL BUT MADE THEIR ESCAPE

London, Ont., Feb. 24.—Patrick O'Brien, alias, Robt. Maloney, arrested here on the charge of deliberately shooting a woman whom he had robbed on the street, and Gordon Lamotte, aged 22, held on the charge of holding up a Strathroy merchant at the point of a revolver, made a desperate attempt to break jail here to-day. They knocked down Turnkey Spoule as he was giving them their breakfast, and snatching his heavy keys beat him into insensibility. Prior to this they threw pepper in his eyes. They knocked Turnkey Kennedy down with a big pail, and rushing through the corridors unlocked several doors and had gained the courtyard. The jail matron, Miss Harris, saw them in the yard and telephoned to the police. A patrol waggon with a squad of armed men rushed down the street and just as the men had the gates open they were met with about six revolvers pointed at them. They submitted.

For some days the pair had been closely watched, as recently a heavy steel leg of the bed was found loosened ready to be used as a club on an instant's notice.

Maloney is widely known to the police all over Canada and the United States as a desperate character.

SERIOUS CHARGE RE PANKHURST TROUBLE

London, Feb. 24.—The speech made by Mrs. H. Pankhurst at a meeting of women suffragettes in the Connaught rooms, Holborn recently will be the subject of a question in the house of commons, when Sir William Byles will ask the Home Secretary whether his attention has been drawn to it. The question will declare that Mrs. Pankhurst openly and emphatically incited her hearers to violent outrage and destruction of property and threatens the use of arms if the stones did not prove sufficiently effective, and will ask what steps the Home Secretary proposes to take to protect against this outbreak of lawlessness.

LINDSAY MAN'S GOOD WORK AT PORCUPINE

A former resident of Lindsay, but now a Porcupine citizen of Pearl lake Nipissing, was in the midst of the great and disastrous fire, which swept Porcupine and Pearl Lake, some time ago. The first intimation that the dwellers of the little mining town received that made them aware a dreadful calamity was rapidly swooping down upon them was when a cloud of darkness overshadowed the village, and obscured the noonday sun. Mr. Moore cached all his goods, and was fortunate enough to save his wife and four children, by miraculous work.

BUILDERS' PROFITS with Bankers' Security

VANCOUVER 10 YEARS AGO

100,000 SHARES AT $1.00

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has been organized recently with an authorized capital of $500,000, to do a general building, real estate, and insurance business, and is actively engaged in Vancouver and Victoria—two most promising fields. The profits from building houses for cash and selling on instalments is well known, and will be one of the principal channels from which profits will be derived. BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its own building department and architect, and does its own construction. In addition to building houses, BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its real estate department, where it carries on a general real estate business, discounting agreements of Sale, subdividing and transacting a general insurance business.

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS LIMITED, is a new concern, having been in business less than two months in Vancouver, but is becoming well known as the Company without any promotion shares and with a strong board of directors, made up of well known Vancouver and Victoria business men.

Shareholders may conservatively look for a 10 per cent dividend the first year, increasing thereafter and a steady advance in the value of their shares caused by the substantial reserve it will always be the policy of the directors to build up.

Companies run on similar lines, notably the Los Angeles Investment Company' and "Home Builders," both of Los Angeles, have proved phenominally successful, the former, which has been in business some sixteen years, having accumulated assets of over $6,000,000, and paying 28 per cent. dividends; and the latter, which started business three years ago, with only $1,250 capital, has assets to-day of over $1,089,000, a surplus of over $308,000, is paying 17 per cent. dividends, and its $1.00 shares are selling at $2.30.

THE FASCINATING STAGE

A Middle-Aged Lady Who Paid to be Allowed to Dance.

It was during the course of an interview that Mr. H. Brandeth, theatrical manager, related to the writer an incident which provides a striking illustration of the fascination which the stage has for some people.

Some time ago Mr. Brandeth happened to visit a large and popular music-hall in the province. One of the turns was a dance by a lady nearing middle age. "Her dancing was technically perfect," he said; "but, oh, dear, how ungainly! She was more like a loose windmill moving around than a woman.' Afterwards I learnt that she had paid the management $5,000 to be permitted to dance a solo in public, and she paid another $5,000 to give a second performance. What her reason was for appearing behind the footlights I don't know, for she was unmistakably well-off, and after the second performance she informed the management that she would not appear again. So far as I know she never has."

Mr. Brandreth also related another instance of a young-lady of considerable means who, wishing to gain some stage experience, paid a premium to a certain manager, not only for herself, but also for her maid. The latter was a very bright and attractive girl, and had not been long in the chorus before she showed excellent promise. Her mistress, on the other hand, seemed quite unsuitable for stage work. The manager ultimately gave the maid a good part and made her a generous offer, with the result that she gave notice to her mistress. To-day the maid is one of the brightest "stars" in the musical-comedy firmament. Curiously enough, the mistress stuck to the stage, and actually upon occasions played a minor part in a play in which her late maid was the principal performer.

"There is no denying the fact," continued Mr. Brandreth, "that advancement on the stage can, to the right person, be very rapid. Take, for instance, the following example. A young girl employed in a suburban theatre in South London, which many musical-comedy companies visit, picked up a special style of her own by watching. Eventually she procured an engagement in one of Mr. George Edwarde's companies. In two years she became a London 'star,' and married a husband worth some $50,000 a year, retiring from the stage at the same time."

BIG PRIZE MONEY

Mulford's Automobile Earnings Far Exceed Ty. Cobb's Receipts.

Somewhere between the round numbers $17,000 and $18,000 lies the exact amount of "Smiling" Ralph Mulford's share of automobile prize money for the fifteen months following his victory in the Elgin race of August, 1910. Pretty fair returns for less than a year and a half's work, the average man will agree. It is more by some thousands of dollars than Tyrus Cobb, the greatest ball player in the major leagues, receives for his services in the same period of time.

Calculating the running time of the races where Mulford drew down cash prizes as actual working hours, the modest sum of $500 per hour is found to be the reward for a winning driver. The 500 mile race at Indianapolis last May in which Mulford finished second proved one of the Lozier driver's big bread-winners. This race occupied seven hours in the running. Mulford's share amounted to about $700 or payment at the rate of $1,000 an hour.

As in other branches of sport where large purses are at stake, having once obtained the money, the more serious question, of how to hang on to it, presents itself to the driver whom fortune has favored.

Mulford has never had to solve the latter problem. His bad habits do not include alcohol or tobacco and consequently the wine supper and its accompaniments is an unknown feature of his celebrations of racing victories. In fact all a Mulford celebration consists of is the donating of a share of the prize money to Mechanician "Bill" Chandeler, and a return trip to the simple life with Mrs. Mulford. By applying themselves to the task of living within salary limits, the Mulford family has been enabled to bank or invest the major portion of every cash prize won by the head of the household. Ralph Mulford has been in the racing game long enough to realize that it is not without its attendant dangers, and he intends to quit just as soon as the bank account can get along without his assistance.

JUST BY CHANCE

Many of the Interesting Contrivances of To-day Were Discovered by Mere Accident

Many common objects of the present, many little personal adornments and useful articles which are seen and utilized by us day after day, have interesting though little-known histories of their own. Many of the contrivances of to-day were discovered through sheer chance. Soap, for instance, was the outcome of an accident. A woman found occasion to boil some lye of soda in an iron pot, and discovered that by so doing she had produced a substance which would form a thick lather in water, and [illegible] a great help in removing dirt. This set her thinking. She [illegible] that the pot used was a dirty one, which had still remaining in it [illegible] vestiges of olive oil. This had combined with the lye of soda, and this led to the discovery of soap.

It [illegible] a de[illegible] Several centuries ago, [illegible] of Arab[illegible] [illegible] and d[illegible] Christians [illegible] were [illegible] common [illegible] sulting from [illegible] and [illegible] Moslems and who were Christians. It was therefore determined that the Christians should wear some badge of their faith by which they might always be known and [illegible] feelings on this point avoided in the future. The moustache was given to every male Christian in [illegible] and this custom has been followed for hundreds of years. The moustache is supposed, [illegible] the name, to [illegible] a rough representation of the Cross.

The origin of the silk top hat may be traced to a little advertising scheme of a London haberdasher. In order to attract attention, this man walked out in the streets wearing the first silk hat ever made. So great was the crowd that followed him that he was suspected of inciting a riot, and he was severely reprimanded by the magistrates. He had set a fashion, however, and silk hats became very popular.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY

O'Reilly Denied That His Name was "O-blitherated"

In some country districts in Ireland, it is not unusual to see the owners' names simply chalked on traders' carts and other vehicles, in order to comply with the regulations. Unfortunately the custom lends itself to the playing of pranks on the part of "bhoys" maliciously inclined, who sometimes rub out the lettering. A case of this kind having occurred, a constabulary sergeant accosted a countryman whose name had been thus wiped out unknown to him.

"Is this cart yours, my good man?" asked the sergeant.

"Av coorse it is," was the reply. "Do you see annything the matter wid it?"

"I observe," said the pompous officer, "that yer name is o-blitherated."

"Then, ye're wrong, sorr," retorted the countryman, who had never come across the long dictionary word before, "for me name's O'Reilly, an' I don't care who knows it!"

FAMOUS EYES

Geniuses as a Rule Have Blue or Blue-Grey Orbs

It is said that the majority of the world's geniuses have had blue or blue-grey eyes; while the predominating color in lunatic asylums and criminal institutions is mentioned as brown.

The following are the eye-colors of some of the most famous people in history.

The eyes of Caesar were black and piercing.

Cleopatra's eyes were light hazel.

Helen of Troy had blue orbs; those of Joan of Arc and Mary Queen of Scots, liquid grey; Queen Elizabeth's were hazel.

Washington had very forceful grey eyes that commanded respect and obedience.

Keen glances came from Napoleon's grey eyes that seemed to search men's hearts.

Mark Twain's eyes were small, black and keen.

Gladstone had large, luminous grey eyes.

Disraeli's eyes in his youth were quite black, and it is remarked that [illegible] had "the most mocking, lying-in[illegible]t of expression conceivable. [illegible] describes the eyes of Wel[illegible] "beautiful light-blue, full of [illegible]niality."

POSITION.

The Church is thought to have supported Laurier and Graham pretty solidly in South Renfrew. It is an open secret that the Government's prompt action in the matter of ecclesiastical interference with the State, and particularly Mr. Borden's powerful assertion of State Supremacy in contrast to Sir Wilfrid's vacillating attitude on the night of the ne temere debate, (Jan. 22nd), has displaced the Church. That and the almost positive assurance that the Government will in no sense interfere with Manitoba have changed the face of conditions in Canada altogether. Although Mr. Graham's majority was pulled down slightly, the future is fraught with importance to all Canadians. Mr. Lancaste has expressed himself as greatly pleased with the case, as stated [illegible] reference to the courts

BEARDS AND KINGS

George V. is the First of His Name Not Clean Shaven

It was often remarked at the accession of Edward VII. that he was the first bearded King for nearly three hundred years. The ill-fated King Charles I. was his immediate predecessor in this respect, and he came to the throne in 1625, whereas the late King succeeded his mother in 1901. Charles was the last of the Kings for a very long time to represent the Elizabethan or Shakespearean fashion of the pointed beard and to wear his own hair on his head.

Cromwell, the uncrowned King of England, certainly wore no wig like the long line of his successors; but, though he wore his own hair, he wore it pretty long. Charles II. wore a tremendous wig, curled in a hundred ringlets, but the only hair on his face was a slight moustache. None of his successors until Edward VII. boasted even that. Both beards and moustaches went clean out of fashion, and James II., William III., all the Georges and William IV. were just as clean-shaven as all the rest of their masculine subjects. There was a time when a beard had not been seen in England within living memory.

In wearing a beard Charles I. followed the example of his father James, and, as he was a Scottish before he was an English King, he probably followed the fashion of his predecessors in the northern kingdom, for he was preceded by two Queens and a boy King, and had no precedent in this respect to follow, even if he had desired one. Henry VIII., nearly a hundred years before James I.'s time, had been as much an innovator in respect to whiskers as Edward VII. was, for, like our late King, this much-married monarch could look back upon several bare-faced predecessors without a break, for none of the Kings from Henry V to Henry VII. wore the least hair upon their faces.

Prior to Henry V.'s time, however, beards might be said to be almost the rule; and, indeed, from William I., in 1066, to the death of Henry IV., in 1413, no King sat on the English throne who was clean-shaven. The Conqueror and his two sons and successors were content with a moustache only, as were Henry II. and Richard II.; but Richard the Lion Hearted would seem to have made the beard fashionable, for his brother John, Henry III., and the first three Edwards entirely gave the razor the go-by.

Thus, though George V. is the first of his name to wear a beard, Edward VII. was only following the example of his most famous predecessors.

Thus out of the thirty-three kings who have ruled in England, the beard wearers and the clean-shaven almost provide a tie, for there are thirteen of the former and fourteen of the latter. Six Kings wore moustaches.

AN EXCITING PRESENT-DAY ROMANCE

WEATHERBY CHESNEY

"Mr. Scarborough, sir," said he, "I would say I was glad to meet you if I dared. I told you I was not a superstitious man, but what is the crisis in my affairs this time? You and I never meet except when fate has been sneaking something into my lap out of her bag of worries. What is it, sir, this time? Any misfortune happened to my schooner, or to my children of Val B. Montague's Combination? Or does your appearance merely portend tha I am about to miss this easy shot at snooker?"

"Try the shot and see," said Scarborough.

Montague did so. The balls kissed, and his own ran into the pocket.

"Off the pink, too!" he exclaimed ruefully. "Six off my score. But I'm glad. I was afraid the Sea-Horse had gone to the bottom at the least."

"Is your game nearly over?" Scarborough asked Scott.

"Yes. Want to join in?"

"No, thanks; but will you bring Montague to my room when you've finished? There's something I want to tell you both."

Val B. Montague looked up quickly. "There is a crisis!" he said. "I was sure of it."

"Yes," said Scarborough, "there is a crisis. But not in your affairs this time, Montague. I'm going to ask for your help, that's all; and Miss de la Mar told me I should find you would give it. But finish your game first."

Montague had thrown down his cue. "No," he said. "If Miss de la Mar promised that I should help you, I opine that she did not calculate that I should let a game of snooker delay me. Lead the way to your room, sir! Mr. Scott and I will follow."

"Very well, if you prefer it."

"I do, sir."

Scarborough kept nothing back in what he told these two; he gave them the whole tale simply, and did not fear that he was violating confidences in so doing. He guessed that he probably had a clever adversary in Gillies, and he was quite sure that he had an extremely clever one in Mrs. Carrington; and he judged with a cool prudence that was characteristic, that the heavier the battalions which he could bring to bear against them, the more likely was he to win in the end. He would have liked, of course, to win without the heavy battalions, but it was safer if less glorious, to be as strong as possible. The best general is not he who brings off forlorn hopes by gallant fighting, but he who concentrates all available forces, leaves the leading of forlorn hopes to the enemy, and never requires to lead one himself. Scarborough did not despise the glory which is won by making a gallant fight against odds, but he was a good enough general to prefer safety to glory. Had he been fighting for his own hand, he would probably have reasoned differently; but just now he was fighting for Elsa.

These two, then, would be staunch recruits. Scott he could vouch for himself, and Mona had vouched for Montague. It was all right.

When he had finished Montague said:

"That's all right, sonny. Of course we'll chip in and help you to beat the widow. You're boss in this show. Just tell us what you want us to do, and we'll do it. Is that right, Mr. Scott?"

"Oh, yes," said Scott, laughing. "But I see the part I'm cast for without being told. Extra spells in front of the siphon-recorder, while Scarborough goes treasure-hunting. That's the form of excitement I'm billed for, isn't it, Horace?"

"I do want you to relieve me to-morrow morning at five, if you will," said Scarborough. "I'm afraid it's a deadly slow part for you, old man."

"Never mind, I'll do it. I've just laid in a fresh stock of modern French fiction in paper-backs, so I'll yawn through an extra spell all right with their help. Give me a chance of being in at the death, as a reward, if you get any real fighting."

"Now, Mr. Scarborough, your orders to me!" said Montague. "I gather that I'm to look after the widow. Any particular way of doing it?"

"The most effective you can think of, please," said Scarborough. "I leave it to you to decide. Better wait till you see to-morrow what she means to do."

"No, sir," said the circus-man. "That's not my way of doing business. If I put my finger into this pie, it's going to be my pie. I shall arrange the programme, not the Widow Carrington. You give me a free hand?"

"Oh, yes; short of actual violence. We may come to that in the end, but I don't want our side to begin it."

"Then get up and go to that writing table, and write me a letter of introduction to her."

"What's the good of that?" asked Scarborough laughing. "She will laugh at you."

"Maybe she will, but that's the way I'm going to do it. You said I could have a free hand, and I said it was going to be my pie. Don't know how to word it, don't you? I'll dictate. 'Dear Madam,—During my unavoidable absence on a picnic with your daughter and Mademoiselle Mona de la Mar, our Mr. Val B. Montague, of Val B. Montague's American Circus Combination is fully empowered to represent me, and to make any arrangements that may be necessary for your comfort. He is a man in whose ability I have perfect confidence, and I have given him a free hand in the matter. He requests me to inform you that this is his pie, and though the metaphor is not very clear to me, he promises that you shall understand it before the day is over. Horace Scarborough, Cable Station, Ribiera Grande.'—Sign it!"

Scarborough threw down his pen, and heard Scott burst into a roar of laughter. Val B. Montague gravely picked up the paper, blotted it, and put it into his pocket-book.

"Now tell us what you really mean to do," said Scott.

Montague turned to him solemnly. "Mr. Scott," he said, "you don't show the intelligence which I have gathered, from your conversation on other subjects, that you possess. I am going to call at the Chinelas to-morrow morning early, and present this admirably worded letter of introduction to the widow of the late Richmond Carrington."

"Oh, nonsense, man!"

"I am sir. And I anticipate that as a result I shall enjoy a very pleasant day. It may be a somewhat strenuous one, though, so I will wish you good-night. My room is two doors away, I think."

"By Jove!" said Scott, when Montague had bowed himself out of the room, "he really means it! I don't think all the fun will be at Furna to-morrow, Horace!"

CHAPTER XXII.

Las Furnas

Phil Varney, lying on his back under a golden roof formed by toldas of maize cobs, found the morning very pleasant. The drying maize, strung in bundles on three poles stacked in a tripod, whispered softly as the breeze crept through the air-spaces between the cobs. The sun was not yet hot enough to be unpleasant, and the view in front of him was perhaps the most beatiful in all the island. He found nature's morning mood restful, his pipe was drawing well, and Muriel Davis had promised last night that she would ride over in the course of the day. Everything, therefore, was peace; he indulged himself in dreams, and sentry though he was, he showed unmistakable signs of a tendency to sleep at his post.

Beneath him in the valley lay the lake of Las Furnas, three miles in circumference; and the roofs of the long straggling village, half hidden by the trees which grew everywhere on the lower ground, made dots of darker color on the landscape. The village is situated in the bottom of a vast crater, and the steep pointed hills, once active volcanoes, but clothed now with a dense garment of pines, form a complete ring round it. Down the flanks of the great Peak of the Cedars, and its twin mountain the Peak of the Locust, waterfalls flashed in white spray; and the Ribeira Quente, the "Hot River," wound through the valley, changing color continually as it received the tinted waters of the many vocanic springs by which it is fed.

Nature was beautiful, but somnolent; and Phil Varney, feeling quite contented with his lot just now, was inclined to be somnolent too.

A voice hailing him from the lower level broke the reverie into which he was drifting. He raised himself on his elbow and saw Scarborough pushing a bicycle up the rough ground of the hillside.

"Any sign of Gillies yet?" asked Scarborough, when he reached the maize stack.

"No. Where is Muriel? She said she would ride over with you."

"She and the other two girls are behind. I left them at the Casa Davis, packing luncheon baskets, and came on first."

"The other two girls?" queried Varney. "Mona and Miss Carrington? They coming too? You're turning this into a regular picnic!"

"That is the idea," said Scarborough. "And Mrs. Carrington and Val B. will poin us later, I fancy."

"Here, hold hard!" Varney exclaimed. "I don't understand this. What's Mrs. Carrington coming for? Explain, please!"

"All right, but give me some breakfast first. Got anything?"

"Frogs' legs," said Varney with a grin. "I'll heat you a panful in no time. Ever tasted them?"

"No," said Scarborough, and added, doubtfully: "Not sure that I want to now."

"Oh, they're capital! Wait till you taste! It was Davis who put me up to the idea. The place swarms with them, and they're the real edible kind, though the natives haven't found that out. Davis is thinking of starting a pickle factory and exporting them to Paris. By the way, did you show him the scratched stone?"

"Yes."

"Well? What's his idea?"

"He fancies that he can make some more of it legible. He's going to dust lycopodium powder over it, and then photograph it, and he thinks the powder may show up in the photograph where the pencil marks were. He's working at it now."

"Cunning man, Davis!" said Varney with satisfaction. "He and I will make a success of our partnership, if it comes off. Think it will, too! Now tell me about Mrs. Carrington."

Scarborough gave him an account of the scene at the Chinelas the evening before, and of the modification in their plans which it had rendered necessary. At the end he asked:

"Which is the inn where you saw Gillies the other day?"

"That rambling block at the end of the village nearest to us," said Varney. "I've had my eye on it more or less since daybreak, but there's been no sign of either him or his donkey. I don't think he can be there, or he would have been stirring before now."

"I'll go and see before the girls come," said Scarborough. "After they arrive, if we haven't seen him before then, we'll quarter the country, and get a thorough notion of the lie of the land. If Davis makes anything out from the scratched stone, it will be an advantage to us to know as much as possible beforehand of the main features of the district. It's what Gillies has been working at, I imagine. I wish we knew where he is now, and what he is doing."

"Any chance that he has recovered the stones already and is off?"

"Oh, yes, there's a chance. But he only got the plan yesterday, you know. What I'm more afraid of is that he may have found that he was on a wrong scent here, and is working somewhere else. Still, we'll take the opportunity of his absence to do a bit of hunting here ourselves."

"In couples, of course!" said Varney. "Miss Carrington and you, Muriel and me! Capital! But where does Mona come in?"

"Oh," said Scarborough laughing, "she's not the girl to spoil an arrangement of that sort. She'll probably say that she prefers to work alone, and shall have to be ungallant enough to let her have her own way. I say, old chap, I don't care much for these frog things. The taste isn't bad, but the idea's nasty. I'm going down to the inn for breakfast. Will you come?"

"No, thanks, I'll wait for you here. The girls might turn up, you see. What shall you do if you meet Gillies there?"

"Don't know. Wait and see what he does, I suppose."

Back Full of Aches Headaches and Depression

MUCH OF WOMEN'S SUFFERIN IS NEEDLESS AND CAN BE PREVENTED BY THE USE OF DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS.

That Stab-like Pain in the Back is Sore Indication of Kidney Trouble.

Mrs. Anna Rodriguez writes as follows from her home in Valencia: "For a long time I suffered with failing strength and nagging headaches. My condition grew steadily worse, my limbs became bloated and shaky, I was sallow and thin, felt rheumatic pains, dizziness and chills. I unfortunately didn't suspect my kidneys, and was nearly dead when I discovered the true cause of my sufferings. I read so much about the wonderful health and strength that comes to all who use Dr. Hamilton's Pills that I felt sure they would help me. Such blessings of health and comfort I got from Dr. Hamilton's Pills I can't describe. They speedily put me right, and their steady use keeps me active, energetic, strong and happy. I strongly urge others to regulate and tone their system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut."

No greater medicine exists than Dr. Hamilton's Pills for the cure of indigestion, constipation, flatulence, liver bladder and kidney trouble. Refuse substitutes for Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1.00, at all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

THE MORNING TIMES

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 1912.

The Surprising Cousin

"Pish!" said Mr. Barnaby Tolchard when he had re-read the last few lines of the letter.

"Tush!" he remarked, gazing at the signature contemptuously from underneath his eyeglasses.

"Bah!" he ejaculated finally, and viciously thrusting the communication back into its envelope, he proceeded to devour his breakfast. Presently his wife joined him.

"Letter for you," growled her lord, indicating a missive beside her plate.

"For me!" exclaimed Mrs. Tolchard, examining the postmark. "Who on earth can it be from?"

"Maybe there's some clue inside," retorted her husband, with a sarcasm born of a bad night.

"It's from Hackney Wick—Brother Geoffrey!" Mrs. Tolchard tore open the envelope in destructive zig-zags. "Yes, it is!"

Mr. Baranaby Tolchard gave a short grunt, indicating that he had known that long ago.

"I know. You needn't tell me. Chap turned up calling himself—er—" he opened out his own letter irritably—"Haslope—Hosea Q. Haslope—whatever the Q. may stand for—Queer, perhaps—say he is your cousin. What does Geoffrey say about him?" And without awaiting his wife's reply, Mr. Barnaby Tolchard snatched up her letter. "Hum," he read mumblingly. "'Evidently not impostor—has the family nose—says he works on a railway at home—is apparently poor, whom we have always with us.' (Cantingly as ever—I see," commented Mr. Tolchard.) "'I gave him some good advice and told him firmly, but I trust, not unfeelingly, that I could not extend him further hospitalities than the meal—a very hearty one—which he had just devoured, we having been unfortunately about to commence dinner when he arrived. I writ ein order to warn you'—hum-hum."

Mr. Barnaby Tolchard tossed back the letter, with a barking laugh.

"Blow me," he whispered, "if I don't believe he's coming up the garden this very minute!"

Mrs. Tolchard rose flutteringly, her hands instinctively at her back hair. A short, spare man, with a sandy, goatee beard, was stepping briskly up. He wore a broad-brimmed hat tilted knowingly over his right eye, and he cast quick, alert glances about him. His clothes, without being absolutely shabby, were by no means smart.

"He has got the family nose," murmured Mrs. Tolchard.

There was a brisk knock. Mr. Tolchard, with thunder on his brow, went to the door, for they kept no maid.

"Mr. Barnaby Tolchard, I surmise," said the visitor, with a rising inflection.

"That is my name. I suppose you are Mr. Hosannah——"

"Hosea," interrupted the other calmly. "Hosea Q. Haslope, son of Pender Haslope, who emigrated from Sussex in 'forty-three, and thus sorter cousin to your respected wife. Reckon I'll step right in and see her."

And before Mr. Tolchard could raise any protest the stranger coolly slid past him and stood, hat in hand, in the little dining-room. He held out his hand to Mrs. Tolchard with a pleasant smile.

"Uncle Amos's daughter Jeannie, I can see. I expected to find an older lady. Glad to see you, cousin. Shake."

Mrs. Tolchard caught her husband's eye glowering at her over the intruder's head, but she held out her hand with a sudden impulse.

"Won't you sit down, Mister——"

"'Mister' is a misfit," he put in quickly. "I'm Hosea to kinfolk. Ho—se—a, if yew please," and he sat down.

"And you've come to England to look up your family connections, Hosea" asked Mrs. Tolchard.

He turned to her again and his smile reappeared.

"That's so. I've seen Cousin Fluter at Margate, the two old maids at Greenwich, the queer lot at Swansea, an' your brother, Geoffrey—and now I've come to see you."

"Ho!" exclaimed Mr. Tolchard, with startling suddenness. "Well, I've got to be off, so I'll say good-bye, mister. You won't be here when I get back, I reckon."

Look here Mr. Haslope," he said, "I'm a plain man——"

Teh other gave a quick nod of assent.

"'Or'nary' we call it in the States," he said gently.

"I'm a plain man," repeated Mr. Tolchard, in louder tones. "And I'll be frank with you. You may be the man you claim——"

"I can prove it in five words."

Mr. Tolchard waved a large hand. "I'm not questioning it," he said. "But then, I've never met you before—never heard of you before this morning—and yet you expect us to—to give you bed and board at a moment's notice. How many of the others did it?" asked Mr. Tolchard suddenly.

"Not one," replied Mr. Hosea Q. Haslope calmly, and Mr. Tolchard gave a chuckle of triumph. The little man picked up his hat with a little sigh. "Very good. I am obliged to you for allowing me to rest here awhile. Goodbye, Jeannie. I do believe you would have made me more welcome had you dared." Then he turned to Mr. Tolchard. "You are more out-[illegible] Geoffrey, was, but you evidently mean the same thing. Perhaps, however, you will not mind giving me the addrers of Edward Napier. He is the next member of the family on my list, and the last upon whom I wish to call."

Mr. Tolchard burst into a loud horse-laugh.

"Ted Napier! Oh, you don't need any address for here he comes!"

There entered a brisk young man, with a good-natured laughing face. He wore a waistcoat of a generous pattern, upon which Hosea Q. Haslope looked approvingly.

"Hallo!" exclaimed the breezy arrival. "Just called on my way to the station—oh, beg pardon. Didn't know ————" and drew back apologetically.

"It's all right," said Mr. Tolchard mischievously. "Here's a gentleman as wants to make your acquantance. Let me introduce you. Mr. Hosann—Hosea Haslope, of America—Mr. Edward Napier, of Devonshire, England—sort of ninth cousin of yours, Ted."

"Shake," said Mr. Hosea Q. Haslope gravely. "And you live in Devonshire. I've heard of that part."

"Two hundred miles from here," interjected Mr. Tolchard.

Mr. Hosea Q. Haslope turned to Mr. Tolchard.

"You don't mind my thus leaving?"

"Barnaby Tolchard is my name." said that gentleman. "I'd advise you to go, by all means."

"Thank you—er—Barnaby," said the little man, "for all you have done for me. I never smelt better breakfast bacon in my life. Don't forget to write at least twice a week," and he was gone.

"Well, I'm——" spluttered Mr. Tolchard. "Of all the—— And that young fool has taken him off home, without knowing a thing about him! Why, he'll simply rob that poor young couple!"

Mr. Tolchard was still mournfully prophesying when there arrived a third visitor, a tall, lanky, yellow-faced individual in a violent hurry—and a huge motor-car, driven by a statuesque liveried chauffeur, with an absolutely expressionless face.

"Excuse me," he said breathlessly, with an intonation which stiffened Mr. Tolchard in a moment. "But I am chasing a friend of mine—Hosea Q. Haslope—is he here?"

"Gone—left for Devonshire an hour ago," replied Mr. Tolchard, marvelling at the inquirer's evident opulence. The rings on his long, thin, restless fingers must be worth a fortune! The lanky man threw up his hands.

"Devonshire! Great Smoke!" he exclaimed somewhat inappropriately. "He's played the shake act on me once more! What town has he made a break for, sir?"

"Barnstaple," replied Mr. Tolchard. Then a strange hope dawned upon him. "What has he done?" he whispered. The long man stared.

"Done!" then he laughed like a pistol shot. "Snakes, if the man doesn't take me for a sleuth. Wall, I reckon it's natural under the circs. No, sir. I am Virginius N. Blascheck, of Shicawgo—guess you've eaten some of my pork before now—at British prices. Hosea is a great friend of mine. I've been trying to get next to him these four days—but Hosea always was a hustler, and he's shook me every time."

"But, excuse me," panted Mr. Tolchard—for the long man was already in the car. "P'raps this isn't the man you [illegible]"

"Little sandy runt—chin trimmings, and baked-apple face like mine—eh?" interposed Mr. Blascheck sharply.

"Yes—yes," gasped Mr. Tolchard. "He—he works on a railway when he's at home, doesn't he?"

"Shucks!" exclaimed Mr. Virginius N. Blascheck. "Hosea's been playin' it on you. Works on a railway! Wall, I should surmise! Why, man, he's president—president of the Inter-Ocean Palantic—biggest mileage in Amurrica. Works! Gee! Why this is his first holiday for thirty years! He slipped off quietly; and I reckon he's grubbing around her in the old country to find somebody he can leave his millions to—for Hosea's a bachelor. And, I suppose, instead of giving him the merry ha-ha, you've handed him the lemon! Sent him off to Devonshire. Oh, you're the wise guy!"

The long man finished up with another whoop of delight, and with a hoarse preliminary cough, the car glided away.

Mrs. Tolchard had heard all, and she came forward to meet her husband as he stumbled blindly in. He had gathered something of the truth from Virginius N. Blascheck's whirling figures of speech.

"Don't speak to me—don't speak to me," he muttered brokenly, and forthwith collapsed. Then, with grim determination, he roused himself and [illegible] Margate, wrote to "Cousin Fluter [illegible] the two old maids at Greenwich, the queer lot at Swansea" and his brother-in-law Geoffrey.

A few months later some dozen lives were further embittered by full-page advertisements in the daily newspapers announcing that Mr. Edward Napier had acquired magnificent premises in the West End of London, and was about to open a huge establishment, where you would be able to buy anything from a tin tack to a traction-engine.—Answers.

OVERWORK AT SCHOOL.

A medical officer of a large school said the other day that he found very few cases of breakdown among children at school from overwork.

When we talk of people breaking down in adult life from overwork, in many cases it is worry that is the real cause, and the healthy, bouyant schoolchild very rarely suffers from worry.

When a child seems to be suffering from overwork, it is more often that he is not getting enough sleep, outdoor play, or good, nourishing food. Without plenty of these a child cannot keep sufficiently "fit" to tackle the the fairly stiff curriculum that modern education demands. A most important factor in maintaining health at school is fresh air in abundance.

COMPLIMENTED

His landlady was a dear old soul, and the young man was loth to call attention to any fault. But the beautiful silver shaving-mug that stood on his dressing-table had been a gift from one he counted dear. And it was really getting terribly tarnished.

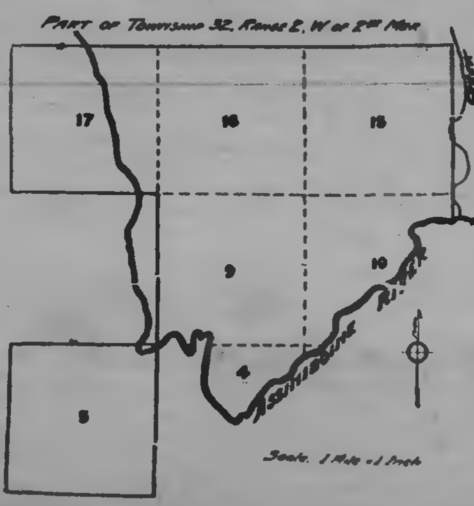
So, very tactfully, he pointed it out, and the old lady agreed that a little cleaning would not harm it. Next morning when the young man came to his dressing-table the shaving-mug was shining like the sun.

So the young man went to the kitchen to thank her.

"Mrs. Jewell," he said, "I think my mug looks a lot nicer this morning."

"It surely does, sir," she answered, looking critically into his face. "I always says you look a lot nicer when you've had a good wash and a clean shave!"

SASKATCHEWAN GRAIN AND RANCH LANDS



The attention of farmers and stock raisers is invited to the lands shown in the above plan.

The lands are situate in the Port Pelly District, Northern Saskatchewan, long known as probably the richest farming district in the Province. The parcel, which contains approximately 3,681 ACRES in one compact block, is watered on the west and south sides by the Assiniboine River, and by a large creek on the east. It is well wooded, thus assuring as well as evidencing ample rainfall, and plentiful supply of cheap fuel. It is undulating and well drained, having an elevation above the river, and rising gradually from it to a heightof about 60 feet, and provides many beautiful residential sites.

In the advantages it offers for mixed farming it is unique, there being some 2,400 acres clear and ready for the plow, while the balance consists of timber and excellent pasture land, admirably suited to stock-raising. The soil is a rich, black loam, from 8 to 10 inches in thickness, resting on a clay subsoil, except along the river, where it is arich sandy loam. Crops produced on similar neighboring lands are phenomenal for their quantity and quality.

The location is within ten miles of Mikado Station, on the main line between Winnipeg and Edmonton, of the Canadian Northern Railway, with good trails leading to it, and within a short distance of a school, While the settlement going on in the neighborhood is rapidly adding all the adjuncts of an up-to-date farming community.

This is an opportunity for a man with capital, business ability and practical experience. Such a man should clear his whole investment, including all improvements and equipment, in four or five years at the outside. And now is the time to purchase, as the price will shortly be advanced $5.00 per acre. Experienced men predict this land will be worth $50.00 per acre within ten years. Lands immediately adjoining, which last spring could have been bought for $14.00, are held to-day at $20.00 and $25.00 per acre.

We are also offering some 1,100 acres additional, in separate parcels of three half sections, and one quarter sections, situate in the same locality as above.

These lands were selected for the excellence of their location and the magnificent quality of their soil, which latter the official records of the Indian Agency demonstrate.

Children don't care!

If they did care they would forget!

Wrigley's SPEARMINT makes it easier for them to care for their teeth than not to care.

If your children chew it every day, the friction and the mint leaf juice preserve their teeth indefinitely.

While they chew it they also help digestion. Most children don't chew food properly—don't create enough saliva. Chewing this dainty helps digest the "gulpings."

And all this applies to you—Mr. or Mrs. or Miss!

POR UPINE OUTPUT THIS YEAR WILL RUN INTO MILLIONS

Says Toronto Sunday World, February 18th, 1912.

PORCUPINE - FORCUNA GOLD MINES, LIMITED.

Incorporated under Ontario Companies Act.

CAPITAL $2,000,000. SHARES PAR VALUE $1.00 EACH, FULLY PAID AND NON-ASSESSABLE. TREASURY SHARES, 1,000,000.

The Company owns 8 valuable Mining Claims (310 acres), free and clear of debt. These claims are located in Tisdale, Delora and Shaw Townships, and are known as the Reany, Mapes and James Claims. The development work done on each group of these claims has been most satisfactory and warrants the belief that further development will prove them to be very valuable mining properties. In fact, the Tisdale and Delora Claims have been proven by neighboring properties, while the James Claims in Shaw have one of the widest sulphide veins in that Township.

OFFICERS OF THE COMPANY.

James F. Gallagher & Company made the first offering of the stock of the Porcupine-Fortuna Gold Mines, Limited, through twenty of the leading newspapers in Ontario and the western part of New York State, the first "ads." appearing four days before opening the subscription books for the sale of this stock at 15c per share, and if the sales and reservations received by telephone, telegraph and letters the first two days are any criterion of the sales for the balance of the week, the first offering will be over-subscribed.

We offer the first 100,000 shares of Porcupine-Fortuna Gold Mines, Limited, at the extremely low price of 15c per share.

15c—100,000 SHARES at 15c PER SHARE—15c

Considering the capitalization and the fairness of the Directors in placing one-half the capital in the Treasury to be sold for the development of the properties and building mills, and the value of the 8 claims owned by the Company, we believe this stock the best value, at 15c per share, ever offered the public in a Porcupine company. That being true, is it not also true that the second 100,000 shares at 20c per share are equally as good a purchase, as the Company will have sufficient funds in its Treasury to continue developing its valuable properties? Get your orders in at once, at 15c per share, and if the first allotment is sold before we receive them, we will give you the option of having your orders filled at 20c per share. Our subscription books close promptly at noon Saturday, February 24, 1912. Make all cheques or money orders payable to

The Natural Wealth Of The West

Get a Share of the Good Things on the Ground Floor Basis

In bringing before the public of Eastern Canada an idea of the natural wealth of the West we are only carrying out a business proposition, and in doing so are animated solely by the desire of offering you a share of the good things on a ground floor basis. With the assurance of a little of your money we can make some for ourselves and a great deal or you because we have the unexploited natural wealth.

The man who staked our oil land is a pioneer of British Columbia, and for some years past has been living with his family on Graham Island, the most northerly of Queen Charlotte Group, and was in a position to select with care and under experienced advice, the richest oil bearing land, as well as being on a deep water harbor.

The mining of petroleum has for the past forty years been the direct cause and means of making more multi-millionaires on this continent than any other industry into which the same amount of money has been invested. We own 3200 acres of land on which the surface's indications (oil seepages) and geologic conditions are such that it is as near as possible certain that at a comparatively shallow depth there is unlimited quantities of oil of a high grade, as is evidenced by the analysis of the samples collected from the seepage.

FASHIONS IN FURS

Ermine is to be a most fashionable fur this winter, and it is a very lovely, though perishable fur, therefore, it behoves madame to have more than one set of furs, so that the ermine can be used only when en grande tenue.

A soft black satin, the long-skirted coat of which had a deep pelerine of ermine draped in the soft folds now so fashionable, was most effective. Skunk and bear will be much worn, fashioned into straight stoles and big pillow-shaped muffs. Hats are made of cream plush which has almost the effect of fur, and trimmed very simply with but a couple of large velvet bows in the shade of the gown.

Fur hats will be worn later on, though in our warm Canadian houses they are uncomfortable often at a reception or [illegible], but no one can deny their becomingness. Large plumes and big motifs of handsome passementerie are suitable additions to these hats. The large black velvet is always charming in its soft outline next to hair and face; the brim lined with white or the shade of the dress is a charming finish to a pretty costume.

Mole-color faced with pale blue; chestnut brown with cerise; grey with richest red; dark blue and pale green, black and white, are all delightful combinations.

SATIN-LINED STOLE POPULAR

Several very beautiful new fashions in furs have made their appearance lately, notably a new fur scarf that is in the form of a long satin-lined stole, fashioned of musquash or chinchilla, which is cut in a deep cape-like point behind and long slanting pointed ends; the whole being edged with some rare fur such as ermine, Russian sable, or, in case of mourning, deep black fox of finest quality. A muff to match is necessary to show off the real beauty of these new stoles, which form a charming wrap for chill autumn days. Deep pockets are set in either end of the stole, and from these appear real lace-edged handkerchiefs that give a very dainty effect.

COMFORT FOR AIRMEN

H. B. Wild Tells of Wonders He saw At Paris Exhibition.

Absolute comfort for both pilots and passengers is being provided for by the leading aeroplane designers abroad. Horace B. Wild, of the Aero Club of Illinois, recently returned from a visit to Europe, has a lot of interesting things to tell of what he saw at the Aero Show in Paris. One three-passenger monoplane at the show had elaborately upholstered seats with arm rests, foot-warmers, whose heat was received from the exhaust, and speaking-tubes for communication between passengers and driver. In another monoplane the driver was covered all but his head with a thin waterproof hood, fastened to the edges of the cockpit with easily released glove clasps. Mr. Wild says Italy sent a great many more aeroplanes out to the seat of war in Tripoli than was publically admitted. With his own eyes the Chicago aeronaut saw three carloads of flying machines being shipped to the front. He knows eighteen Nieuports were purchased for the Italian army, and from what he afterward heard at the Bleriot works, is convinced that at least sixty monoplanes and biplanes are now available for the Italian forces in Africa.

SPORT FOR SPORT SAKE

Object of Amateur Athletic Federation Recently Formed in United States

It will be interesting to watch the progress of the new Amateur Athletic Federation, but in the present condition of things it will have a hard row to hoe, if it sticks closely to the lines laid down for it—sport for sport's sake, with prizes of little or no intrinsic value. This sort of thing will not appeal strongly to the average amateur athlete of to-day, who trains constantly with little regard for his studies, who is accustomed to gold watches, gold medals, and other valuables or prizes, who is sought after by the rich athletic clubs, and generally lives in clover.

The members of the Federation will have to [illegible] the younger class of the genuine amateur, the athlete who has no desire to make money out of sport. The competitions will consist of school boys and young men who have a moderate amount of time to give to athletics, and want to meet rivals of their kind. It is difficult for anyone to take up any sport and have to do his work alone because he has no chance whatever against those who are seen constantly in the meets of the clubs under the control of the Amateur Athletic Union. No athlete, who is really fond of sport, cares to take a big handicap all the time, and never see even a bronze medal. To excel in any sport one must compete against better men, but one does not maintain interest in any sport on earth when he is constantly in the "also ran" class. The new athletic federation may do good in this respect. It may encourage the youngsters and bring out some good ones from their ranks. Athletics are too expensive nowadays, and the federation may succeed in changing this. Dr. H. L. Chadwick, athletic director at the Friends' Central School of Philadelphia, for years active in the Y.M.C.A. and A.A.U., and still an official in the latter body, thinks there is room for both the Union and the Federation. He says: "There is plenty of work for the federation without in any way interfering with the Amateur Athletic Union. In the Amateur Athletic Union we have been feeding the amateurs on gold watches so long that the federation way of running athletics will not tempt them to compete. Our new field deals with a class of athletics which the Amateur Athletic Union never has and never can touch, and includes that very desirable younger element, the schoolboy."

Against High Speeding.

Believing that high-speed motor car racing no longer serves a useful purpose, besides bringing discredit upon motoring and the motor-car trade, Benjamin Briscoe, president of the United States Motor Company, has prepared a letter to the American Automobile Association advising that it abandon the control of speed contests and devote its time to the promotion and encouragement of touring and reliability contests and particularly further its work for good roads, a work which the national organization has done with excellent results during the last five years.

The Cost of Golf.

The Royal Montreal Golf Club's expenditure last year was $11,234. Green sages and upkeep of links cost $4,429. President J. T. McCall, who is also President of the Royal Canadian Golf Association, was re-elected at the annual meeting. The Canadian championships will be held on the club's links this year.

COOKING ON A LARGE SCALE

The Government is boiling an Indian village in Wyoming.

Everything about the settlement that can be boiled—tepees, clothing, blankets, harness, etc.—is being subjected to that treatment to destroy the traces of small-pox. This village is where a hundred Indians were quarantined while they suffered from small-pox in mild form. There were no deaths, and the quarantine is practically lifted.

This "hot-water disinfection" was resorted to as the Indians more readily understood it.

5 Year's Throat Trouble and Influenza Cured

EMINENT DOCTORS FAILED TO CURE—HAD GIVEN UP HOPE.

This Case Does Prove That When Catarrhozone is Breathed Every Trace of Catarrh Disappears.

Milford Haven, Da., Jan. 19—Every one in this neighborhood knows of the long suffering from influenza and catarrh endured by Mrs. D. Gurney. Today she is well. Her recovery is due entirely to Catarrhozone. This is her own statement: "I was a great sufferer from catarrh in the head, throat and nose, and endured the manifold tortures of influenza for five years. My life was despaired of. Catarrh was undermining my strength very fast. I used treatments from eminent doctors, but all failed to cure me. I had given up hope of ever being well. Then I read of a wonderful cure made by Catarrhozone. Immediately I sent for Catarrhozone, and before I had used one bottle I was greatly relieved. To-day I am cured. We would not be without Catarrhozone in our home—it's so sure in colds, coughs, bronchial and throat trouble. I feel it is my duty to publicly recommend Catarrhozone."

Get the large dollar size of Catarrhozone; it contains a beautiful hard rubber inhaler, and medicine that lasts two months. Smaller sizes, 25c. and 50c. each. Beware of imitations—accept only Catarrhozone, sold by all reliable dealers or by mail from The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont., and Buffalo, N. Y.

WHERE HE WORKED

The prisoner—of Hibernian extraction—was making his appearance before the "beak" for the fiftieth time at least.

"Well," said the magistrate, "you here again?"

"Yes, your honor," responded the prisoner.

"What's the charge?"

"Drinking, same as before, bedad."

"It seems to me you are here about half your time."

"Rather more than less, your honor."

"Well, what do you do for it? Why don't you work?"

"I do, your honor, more than half my time."

"Now," said the magistrate, surprised, "if you can tell me where you have ever worked I'll let you off."

The prisoner smiled, and exclaimed: "In prison, bedad."

The court kept its word.

"Yes, rather. I've seen his pictures."

VERY UNFORTUNATE

Old Mr. and Mrs. Smiley were giving their annual party, and Mr. Smiley was making his usual speech.

"For forty years have my good wife and I travelled hand-in-hand down life's thorny path," he said. "In all those years not one single harsh, hasty, unkind word has passed our lips. Isn't that true, mother?"

"Mother" had quietly fallen asleep on the sofa, and as he laid his hand caressingly on her shoulder she snorted defiantly, and said sharply:—

"Get up yourself and light the fire, Sam. I lit it last, and I'll see you far enough before I'll do it this morning, you— Oh, oh, I—I—why, I must have dropped off to sleep!"

"And I think you'd better have stayed asleep," said Samuel.

COOL AS A CUCUMBER

"You women fret too much about trifles," said Jones to his wife, when she began to complain of the butcher. "You allow yourselves to be upset over nothing at all. Now, we men act differently. We learn to look at things in a calm, critical light. We know the value of impassionate discipline. Now, where's my hat? I'm sure I laid it on that table last night! Don't stand staring there, help me to find it, Mary! Where is that servant? She must have moved it! Children! Vi! Tom! Harry! Mabel! Run around and see if you can find my hat! No! I did not put it upstairs! I'll find that hat, by George, if I have to tear the house down! There goes a vase! Whose fault was that? Who is it moves my things, that's what I want to know? I shall miss my car, I say! Ah! There it is! Who put it there? Of all the silly—Here, I must be off!"

NO USE

A well known clergyman was one day in a barber's shop, when four or five men walked in whim he knew by their voices, but who did not recognize the man in the chair, with lather all over his face. They proceeded to spend the time by telling stories and using expressions which, to say the least, were rather strong. When the barber pulled away the towel the clergyman, cleanly shaved, stood before theh. So nonplussed were they that no one tried to take the vacant chair, and the barber called several times—"Next gentleman! Next gentleman!"

The clergyman smiled somewhat grimly as he said:—

"It isn't a bit of use, John. Theres not a man here who has the effrontery to answer to that name."

EXCITING STRUGGLE WITH A WILD BOAR

A Soldier in India Tells of His Experience While Jungling in that Country

Private Cufflin, India, gives the following description of a struggle he had with a wild boar:

"While out 'jungling' some few months ago, in company with a chum, I had rather an exciting experience with a wild boar. We had been out several hours without meeting anything worth the shooting, and were traversing a deep ravine, or nullah, as they are called in India—I on one side, and my chum on the left—when the shikari who accompanied us suddenly called my attention to a large boar that was scrambling up the side of the nullah, about 200 yards on my left front. I instantly fired, and caught the boar in his hind quarters, tumbling him back into the nullah. As soon as he dropped, my chum put down his rifle and ran towards him with a clasp knife, intending to put the finishing touch to him. He had scarcely gone fifty yards when the boar suddenly jumped to its feet, turned, and charged, and caught my chum by his legs, throwing him to the ground, and commenced to worry him with his tusks. My chum, who was an old hand at jungling, had the presence of mind to lay flat upon his stomach, and thus escaped the serious injuries he would have sustained had he attempted to rise to his feet and run away, as the formation of a pig's snout debars it from using its tusks upon an object that is very close to the ground. However, all this happened in the space of a very few seconds, and this old tusker succeeded in inflicting several bruises about my chum's arms and shoulders before I was able to get near enough to be sure of an aim consistent with safety to my chum. As soon as I got the boar in an advantageous position, I fired, this time hitting him clean through the brain, and he dropped like a log. But for my chum's presence of mind in lying prone as soon as he fell this incident might have terminated with serious results; but, as the saying goes, 'All's well that ends well,' and, after all, it is such incidents as these that do so much towards enlivening the monotony of a soldier's life in India—a life which requires enlivenment at times."

SUBDUING A TIGER

It Was Kindness That Made the Animal Tame

Illustrating that it is nothing but kindness that makes wild animals really tame, Herr Hagenbeck, the world-famous animal trainer, tells the following story:—"I remember a savage Bengal tiger which was sent to me from Calcutta some years ago. When it arrived it was in a state of fury and rage, and for several days would fly at me whenever I approached the cage. I paid him a daily visit, purring as I approached, which was like speaking in his own language, and he gave up gradually his furious greeting. After a week I took a piece of meat at each visit, for the way to the heart is through the stomach, and that does not apply to tigers alone! At the end of four weeks I could touch him, and three months after he had quite realized that no one wanted to hurt him, and used to come quietly to the bars to be stroked each day."

AS A LAST RESOURCE

The Japanese Final Method of Restoring Life

The Japanese have discovered an extraordinarily simple and effective method of "restoring life" in people who appear to all intents and purposes dead and beyond the aid of medicine. If an accident occurs so that a person is three-fourths drowned, beaten senseless, or severely attacked by sunstroke or heart-disease, the operator takes the body of the seemingly dead victim, and extends the arms to either side, having previously rolled the sufferer over on his face. That done, he delivers a succession of hard, regular blows on the seventh vertebra of the "dead" man's spine, using his wrist as a kind of hammer. Unless life is utterly extinct, this causes the patient to regain consciousness, when he is at once seized, turned over, made to sit up, has has arms swung and waved about, as in our own system of what is called artificial respiration, and is then forced to walk with the aid of supporters.

The exertion is an essential part of this curious treatment, having undergone which the patient is ready to be handed over to the doctors for ordinary medical attention.

NERVE TONIC NOT WANTED

Why the Cost of a Prescription Was Reduced

The big-hearted, eminent physician had consented to see the patient without making any charge. There was a lingering doubt as to whether this was altogether a deserving case; but, as usual, the patient was given the benefit of the doubt. "There," he said, when the examination was finished, "take this prescription to a chemist; he'll make it up for you for fifty cents."

"Thanks, doctor," was the reply. "Oh, by the way, would you mind lending me the half dollar?"

The medico bent a stern gaze upon his unprofitable customer. "Give me that prescription back," he said. It was handed back, and a swift deletion made. "There," he said, returning it, "you can get that made up for ten cents. The drug I crossed out was for nerves; but it seems to me that your nerves are pretty healthy."

The most important mining centres are Sudbury, Michipicoten, Temiscaming, Cobalt, Porcupine and Gowganda. The mineral output now exceeds $37,000,000 annually, and is increasing.

We note that in the Ontario Government blue book of the Provincial accounts, Mr. Geo. J. Sherry, of this city received $450 in the month ending Oct. 31st, 1911, as Deputy Clerk of the Crown and $225 as Local Registrar of the County of Peterborough.

DEFENDS BOXING

A London Vicar Says There is Nothing Like It

Rev. A. Newman Guest, 'the fighting vicar' of Stanbury, Buckinghamshire, recently arranged a friendly spar on the village green with an army reservist of local fame who offered to "take on the vicar." Unfortunately, the contest aroused such enthusiasm in the locality that enterprising villagers made books on the event, and the betting became fast and furious. People for miles around expressed their intention of being present, and the vicar fearing too much notoriety regretfully decided to abandon the fight. The vicar, giving a London paper his views on boxing in relation to the morals and physique of Englishmen, said:—

Now, it is evident that the whole range of the seven deadly sins—called "deadly" by the Church because of their effect on soul and body—are successfully resisted by the employment of nature's own knuckle dusters.

For example, a young man is given to bad temper. By sparing under an instructor he rids himself of the evil. No use boxing if the bile begins to rise—you are knocked out. Keep your head!

Take advice. The desire for mere money grabbing is changed into the desire for glory—"Excelsior!" as the poet said, even if one dies in the effort.

Envy becomes emulation. Instead of longing to drag down some fellow who has risen by his own exertions in life, a boxer learns to rise to the level by copying his principle.

Hatred becomes good-will. No man meeting in the freemasonry of the gymnasium will leave the floor and [illegible] brother. He becomes altruist.

Gluttony in eating, drinking or smoking are all taboo. No beer, please!

Pride. Boxing is a great leveller. It knows no wealth, station, country only distinction. The votary slowly and surely learns real self-help and self-respect by many defeats and falls into the dust.

In fact, there is nothing like boxing. It kills the seven deadly sins. The fighter—not necessarily the prize fighter—becomes a kind father, a good husband, a friend to his boys a good comrade, and a citizen who is a credit to the Union Jack.

He looks the world in the face with a clear eye, and says with Terence: "I am a man, and no element that is human is foreign to me."

LONGBOAT'S PURSE

The Indian Cashed About $500 in His Glasgow Race

Tom Longboat got $375 and a percentage of the gate receipts, probably $500 in all, for winning the fifteen challenge race at Glasgow. The Indian went away at a red-hot clip, and tried to lose them all the first two miles. He did get about thirty yards but they brought him back in three miles. He led the bunch up to six miles, and at seven and a half led by 60 yards. Kohlemainen loosened up at nine miles, caught the Indian, and led to the thirteenth mile. Then the Redskin came to the front again, and from then on set a stiff pace. The Finn was right with him until the stretchhead where the Redskin cut loose his wonderful sprint, and came home a winner by two feet in the world's record time of 1.20.04 2-5. The world's record up to that time was Fred Appleby's 1.20.04 3-5, made at Stamford Bridge, in England, on September 22, 1894, while the latter was an amateur. The world's professional record was held by Jack Price, who, on August 10, in 1910, ran the fifteen miles in Glasgow on the same track in 1.21.40. The Indian's new world record is all the more creditable when it is considered that he made the journey in a snow storm.

TROTTING A POPULAR SPORT

New Zealand Sporting Review:—There is no shadow of doubt that today "trots" rank as one of the honoured pastimes of a large and ever increasing section of the public; in fact, trotting seems destined to become one of our national and most popular sports. The gratifying change effected has been almost solely due to the sport being brought under capable and zealous management, the better classing of races and the more strict scrutiny of the performances of contesting horses. Certainly it must be admitted that owners are entitled to a fair quota of praise, for they have undoubtedly given more careful attention to the breeding and training of their horses, and that naturally has had a marked benefit on the racing. But the all-important essential to popularising a sport is to gain the confidence of the public. Once that is achieved the improvement of the sport by a better system of classing, more attention to breeding, and the careful preparation of contestants are natural corollaries.

Kingston papers are kicking because the snow on their sidewalks is not cleaned off for men going to work in the morning. Kingston should send a few of their aldermen to Peterborough and see how things are run here.

Montreal is considering a change in their civic system of voting, to make their elections on the same basis as in Peterborough—one man, one vote. At present a rich man could vote in twenty wards if he owned property in each of them.

SEVERE

A good story is going the rounds at a certain university regarding one of the sarcastic professors, who was recently conducting an oral examination in a very scientific way.

There was one student, handsome, easy, and self-possessed, who appeared to be utterly ignorant of the simplest phases of the subject.

Professor W. put question after question to him, without receiving one intelligent reply. Finally, the student said, naively:—

"I'm very unfortunate, Professor; you never ask me anything I know."

The professor said nothing, but gravely tore off a tiny piece of paper from a convenient pad.

"Here, Mr. B.," he said, handing it to the student, "write all you know. Take plenty of time—there's no hurry."

"John, a pedlar came around to-day selling stove polish. He was a very agreeable gentleman. Why, he talked so pleasantly about the weather."

"Really?"

"Yes, and I bought a packet. Then he complimented the baby and I bought another packet."

"H'm!"

"Presently he said our hall was kept in better order than any in the neighborhood, and then I bought another packet."

"Great Scot!"

"Before he left he said he thought I was your daughter instead of being old enough to be your wife. Then I bought three additional packets. Oh, it doesn't do any harm to encourage a real gentleman when you meet one."

Householder:—"Do you guarantee that the meter registers the amount of gas we burn?"

LOST HER TRAIN

An Irishman was lately employed by one of our large railway companies as a porter. Shortly after he began his duties a woman went up to him and said:

"I have just lost the train; how long shall I have to wait for the next?"

"Be jabers! you had better go and find the one you lost, else the company will be after yes," returned Pat.

SECURING SEATS FOR THE OLYMPIC

Remarkable Activity in Anticipation Of the Great Gathering This Year at Stockholm.

Advance booking for seats to view the Olympic games testifies to the immense and world-wide interest in the events. Big blocks of tickets have been bespoken by American, Asiatic, and European syndicates for the whole of the games. Some little irritation has been experienced at the start, through varying causes. There is a squabble in England between two rival football organisations as to which should select the teams. Ireland set up a claim for separate national recognition, apart from Britain, but it has not been allowed; nor has a similar claim from Bohemia, to be considered independent of Austria, met with greater sympathy. It is hoped that the Bohemian football team will put in an appearance, notwithstanding the decision to bar them, as a protest against the ruling. Finland has definitely entered a team—making at least one international football competitors.

In Germany the Crown Prince is honorary president of the committee and is taking a keen interest. Next to his second cousin, the Crown Prince of Sweden, he is the best all-round princely sportsman in Europe. In all probability he will be Protector of the games when the Stadium is located in Berlin in 1916. It is understood to be due to his influence that the Kaiser gave permission for German officers to participate in the Olympic Games in the Swedish capital. Several German princes are expected to head the list of the German visitors at the forthcoming gathering.

Dr. Martin, of the German committee, with representatives of the various sections, has been discussing with the local Council the rule as to amateurs. Germany and England think differently at to the status of the amateur. England forbids amateurs to receive pecuniary aid of any kind; Germany contends that sportsmen not well provided with wealth should be supported by the athletic organisations, otherwise the supposed advocates of pure amateur sports play directly in the direction of professionalism. Altogether something like 200 Germans will take part in the games.

Austria and France still seek minor alterations in the program, and have asked other nations to support their demands, but Germany, though approving some of the proposed alterations, will not bring any pressure to bear on the Swedish organisers. The Germans are not very favorable to heavy sports, such as wrestling and weight-lifting, considering them too much akin to acrobatism. They will not be represented in those sections, in all probability. There is also disappointment among the 60,000 members of the 1,500 German cycling clubs that no place has been given to cycle-polo and fancy cycling. An effort is being made to repair this omission.

At the expense of the State, twenty German cavalry officers will take part in the equestrian contests. Most careful arrangements are being made by the Germans to secure while here a supply of the special foods to which they attach importance in training.

COBB'S RECIPES FOR SUCCESS

You can't become a great batter by copying. You can't become a great base runner by copying alone, but copying the style of some great fielder, combined with hard practice, will assist materially in making it much easier for the fielding aspirant.

Never hold the ball, but get it back into play as quickly as possible. Fractions of seconds are too valuable to be lost when you are taking part in a play which may prevent a score.

Always try to block a ground ball. Don't try to make a grand stand play out of a stop merely to draw the applause of the spectators when you have plenty of time to play the ball safe.

A fielder should try for anything and everything, no matter how seemingly impossible it is to get. If you don't make the attempt the breaks which might afterward come in your favor will be of no avail.

Play the game to the limit from the time you start it until the last man is called out in the last inning. Baseball is a funny thing and no game is hopelessly lost simply because the other side is a run or two to the good.

Never give up. Don't be a quitter, and if you have any business in baseball at all you'd enjoy the same measure of success as a baseball player as you would in any other vocation in life.

NEW WEDDING GLOVE

No More Anxious Waiting for the Bride to Remove Her Glove

A happy era has dawned for the bride at the fateful moment when the ring is about to be placed on her finger. Instead of the usual struggle to remove her left-hand glove, she will now be able to uncover the third finger without effort and without losing her composure. This delightful result is to be obtained by an ingenious "wedding glove" device. The inside seam on the third finger of the left glove is unstitched, so that all that the bride need do is to slip her finger through the slit to receive the ring. The finger can just as easily be slipped back into the glove after the ceremony. The device will be greatly appreciated, not only by the bride, but also by the nervous bridegroom.

The story of the origin of the wedding glove has come to light. Some time ago a girl who had lost her right arm in the hunting field asked for a single wedding glove. She remarked on the awkwardness of having to remove her glove with the help of her teeth, and it was then seen that matters would be greatly facilitated for the bride if she only had to uncover the ring finger. The experiment was so successful that it aroused the interest of other prospective brides, who saw in it a boon which would save them from the usual difficulties of removing a whole glove at the moment when the ring was about to be put on.

BLAMES THE HOBBLE SKIRT

The hobble skirt is stated to have caused a considerable reduction in the returns of the dress manufacturing trade throughout England. The construction of ladies' dresses has done so much to hinder profit-making as it had to impede ladies' movements, according to cloth manufacturers. Forty-two per cent. less material was used in making ladies' dresses than formerly.

BEATING WHITES OF EGGS

Difficulty is often met with in beating whites of eggs, when they absolutely refuse to froth. Do not be discouraged, but for every white add two drops of pure glycerine, then they will whip quickly to a froth, light and stiff. The glycerine is harmless and merely has a drying effect, causing the evaporation of moisture from the egg. It is an excess of moisture which excludes the air from the cellsof albumen. Also add the glycerine to fresh eggs and they will froth in half of the usual time required. The above has been proved by repeated experiments.

SASH CURTAIN HINT

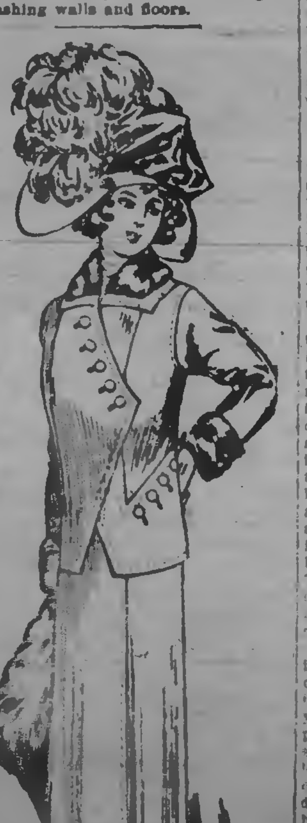
When laundering sash curtains, starch them only part way up, as the rod can be more quickly inserted with less danger of tearing the curtains. This is a great improvement on the fully starched curtains.

PATTY SHELLS

When baking patty shells for creamed fish, vegetables, or tarts, line baking tins with puff paste, and before placing in the oven fill with corn meal, packing it down. When baked shake out the meal, which can be used over again, and the shells will be found in perfect shape.

Apple Butter Hint

To avoid the long, tiresome stirring of apple butter, set the pan in the oven of the range with a slow fire. It will cook evenly without burning or splashing walls and floors.



LATE FRENCH MODEL

This suit bears all the earmarks of French design with its short skirt, striped cloth and fur trimming. Note the cut of coat with its inset sleeves and side pieces. The back is in three pieces with seam down centre and the top part is trimmed with three buttons on each side. The material in model suit was a dark green cloth with black shadow stripe, and the collar, cuffs and muff were of sable.

Mr. N. D. King, of this city, we understand, has leased the Norwood House in that village, and will take possession in a few weeks. As the hotel is to be refinished and decorated, and the new proprietor is a former Norwood man, he will probably get a good share of the public patronage.

WHEN PRINCES GO A-WOOING

By the Author of "In Cupid's Toils."

In the annals of Royal love-making there are few prettier stories than that which tells how the German Emperor won (to quote his own words) "the jewel that sparkles by his side." When, more than thirty years ago, the youthful Prince Wilhelm left Berlin for a few days' shooting as the guest of Duke Friedrich of Schleswig-Holstein, he little dreamt, we may be sure, that he was making the most important journey of his life. The moment the castle came in sight, with boylike impatience, he left the carriage to take a "short cut" across the park; but he had not proceeded far before his steps were stayed at sight of a young lady swinging dreamily in a hammock, the book she had evidently been reading lying open in her lap.

It was an idyllic picture, which might well have arrested the steps of a much less romantic young man. Under the somewhat flimsy pretext of inquiring his way, the Prince advanced to the young lady and exchanged a few pleasant words with her before continuing his journey. An hour later he was laughingly making his formal bow on introduction to the blushing Princess Augusta Victoria whose siesta he had disturbed. Idyllic weeks followed, when, with the beautiful Princess by his side, he forgot, in many a blissful ramble, that there was such a weapon as a gun; and when at last he returned to Berlin it was to announce to his parents that he had left his heart behind in the Castle of Prinkenau.

The wooing of the present Emperor of Austria was no less romantic and "quick in the doing." When, nearly sixty years ago, Francis Joseph was spending his twenty-third birthday with his mother, the Archduchess Sophia, she decided to give a ball in honour of the anniversary; and among the invited guests were the Duchess of Bavaria and her two beautiful daughters, Hélène and Elizabeth. The Duchess accepted the invitation for herself and elder daughter, Hélène, but regretted that Elizabeth would be unable to come as she had not yet made her début, and moreover had no dress suitable to such an occasion. "But she must come!" exclaimed the young Emperor impetuously; "let her wear the simplest dress and a rose in her hair, and we will make her 'Queen of the Ball.'"

To such a command there could be no refusal. Attired in a simple muslin [illegible] with a red rose nestling in her glorious hair, the Princess Elizabeth dazzled all eyes by the radiance of her girlish beauty, and so effectually captured the Emperor's heart that he would dance with no other lady, however fair. Long before the last strains of music died away, he took his lovely partner to an adjacent room, and, opening an album full of pictures of Austrian costumes, said: "All these are my subjects. Will you not help me to rule over them?" The Princess with downcast head and quivering lips, placed her hand timidly in the strong ardent grasp of her lover, and the [illegible] compact was sealed.

The love-romance of the Czar of Russia had for its first setting the nursery of the Palace of Darmstadt, when the youthful heir to one of the most splendid thrones in the world shared the romps and games of Princess Alix, the loveliest daughter of the Grand Duke of Hesse, and, child as he was, fell under the witchery of his "sunny" little playmate. But it was not until many years later that the romance thus begun in the Royal nursery reached its zenith, on the banks of the Thames, when the child-lovers were the guests of a royal relative at Walton-on-Thames.

Those were indeed halcyon weeks that the two young people spent together, in long, delightful rambles through the country lanes, "paddling in little wherries, or exploring backwaters"—the world forgetting in their blissful solitude à deux; and sealing the compact made when they had "played at sweethearts" among the toys of the Hesse nursery.

When Princess Elizabeth, the beautiful and gifted daughter of Prince Hermann of Wied, paid a visit some fifty years ago to the Court of Berlin, no maid, Royal or plebian, was more heart-free. From early childhood, indeed, she had declared that she would never marry; but Cupid only smiled in his sleeve, and bided his time. On the very first day of her stay in Berlin she was running hurriedly down a palace staircase when she tripped, and was only saved from disaster by falling into the outstretched arms of Prince Charles of Hohenzollern. Though she little suspected it in her confusion, she had fallen into the arms of her future husband, who was to offer a crown as Queen of Roumania.

It was also by accident (if accident it can be called) that the present King of Italy met the charming lady who to-day shares his throne. When, some years ago, he was present at a gala performance at a Venice theatre his eyes fell on a radiant vision of girlish loveliness in an opposite box. So fascinated was he by a sight so fair that during the rest of the performance he had no eyes but for the unknown beauty with the glorious dark eyes, and he knew no peace until he had not only made the acquaintance of, but secured as his own, the Princess Hélène, the fairest of the daughters of Montenegro.

It was during a chance stroll in the Thuringian Forest that the young Queen and idol of Holland met her fate in the form of the stalwart and handsome Duke Henry of Mecklenburg-Schwerin—the first of many equally idyllic meetings which rendered their happy climax in the Odenwald when she gave her hand and a share of her throne to the young soldier. "Never," wrote one of the Queen's ladies, "has a wooing been more unalloyedly happy. They are just like two children, so frankly and blissfully happy in each other's company, and sharing all their pleasures and games."

And similarly romantic and charming are the love-stories of our own Royal Family, since the girl-Queen, Victoria, "blushing deeply and trembling with emotion," took her courage in her hands and invited her cousin Albert (of whose love she was assured) to share her life. Nothing could have been more idyllic than the wooing of Queen Victoria's eldest daughter by the heir to the Russian Throne—the long rambles, hand in hand, over the Scottish moors, culminating in that moment when the Prince stooped to pick a sprig of white heather, and offered it with his heart to the blushing girl who was to wear with him an Imperial Crown.

The curtain rose on the life-romance of King Edward in the Cathedral of Worms when his eyes first fell on the beauty and exquisite grace of the Danish Princess Alexandra, who chanced to be visiting the cathedral at the same time. An introduction to the lovely stranger quickly followed, and the climax was reached when the Princess, flushed and radiant, one day produced a photograph from her pocket, and announced her betrothal to her excited relatives at Rumpenheim.

There is a charming story of the late King Oscar, of Sweden, who, when the "yes" had faltered from the pretty lips of the Princess Sophie, of Nassau, produced from his pocket a knife and carved on the nearest oak tree a heart between the letters of O. and S.

But it would be an easy matter to fill many columns with Royal love stories, all equally romantic and pretty.—Weekly Telegraph.

Port Hope Lady Breaks Hip.

The many friends in this city of Mrs. E. J. W. Burton, of Port Hope will regret to learn that that lady had the misfortune to fall on the corner of Pine and Augusta streets Wednesday last and dislocated her hip. Drs. Clemesha and Forrest were called and it is thought a small bone is also broken. Mrs. Burton suffered intense pain and was removed to the Hospital in Toronto the next day.

WESTMINSTER ABBEY TELLS ITS OWN STORY

The Famous Old Cathedral is Represented by Answers as Giving Its Own History.

I was built in fulfilment of a vow. Edward the Confessor had promised to make a pilgrimage to Rome, but hung back on account of the length and the difficulty of the journey. The Pope released him from his promise on condition he vowed a splendid church to St. Peter.

And so the tangled Isle of Thorns was cleared, and the deer and wild oxen that straggled in from the forests around London banished for ever, and I arose. I was then low and squat, but the finest Saxon building ever erected, and covered almost as much ground as now. It was solemnly dedicated to St. Peter in 1065, only a few days before my founder's death.

I did not last very long in this form, however, for within two centuries I was ruthlessly torn down. That most religious of monarchs, Henry III., had determined, even in his boyhood, to build for himself the most glorious abbey in Christendom. He was barely fifteen when in 12[illegible]0, he laid my new foundation-stone. He lived fifty-one years longer, and in those years he spent the equivalent of half a million sterling on me, all out of his own privy purse. He kept down his expenses, indeed, by living in turn on other English abbeys, so that he might devote his income to me.

Years after his death his plans were still being carried out, till at last they were complete. During three of those centuries I housed the House of Commons.

In Reformation times I was in great danger, as then abbeys and churches were being sacked and destroyed all over England. I sacrificed my lands to save myself. The Protector Somerset demanded twenty tons of my good Caen stone to help build his new palace in the Strand. I yielded, meekly hoping "that he would be good and gracious." All London rose to help me. There were riots in the Strand, and the crowd brought me the stones back.

The only outer change in me since then is that Sir Christopher Wren added a couple of towers at the west front. I had hitherto been towerless, and the matter had been discussed for generations. Though no fresh building has been done since then, the smoky air of London keeps eating my outer surface away, and I am always undergoing recasing.

Though not quite the biggest church in England, I am one of the tallest, inside. My transepts, nave, and choir are the highest in England, and average over a hundred feet from floor to vaulting.

The most beautiful thing about me is undoubtedly the Henry VII. chapel, an architectural jewel which holds the dust of some of our greatest monarchs. The ceiling, probably the most wonderful in Europe, is so intricately and delicately carved that it has been compared to old lace.

Nearly all the Kings and Queens from the time of Henry III. to that of George II. are buried beneath my floor. Nowdays I am not so much a royal as a national burying place; but for centuries every King as he was crowned had the solemn knowledge that has stood face to face with the spot where his grave would some day be dug.

THE TALL-HATTED HIGHLANDER

Field Marshal Sir Evelyn Wood, V.C., who assumed his new position as Constable of the Tower of London, surely holds the record for versatility among the distinguished Army officers, having served and fought in the Navy, Light Dragoons, Lancers, Irregular Horse, and Highlanders, in addition to which he joined the Middle Temple and was called to the Bar in 1874, and is the author of works renowned for their high literary distinction. A good story may be told of his attachment to a regiment of Highlanders, when the latter were stationed at Portsmouth. Sir Evelyn, then a captain, one day returned from London, and with great hurry proceeded to array himself for parade. When he at last emerged, he observed that his men were evidently at great pains to conceal their laughter, and he quietly questioned his subaltern as to the probable reason.

"Well, sir," replied the latter, "you are dressed correctly as to kilt, sporran, and all the rest of it; but you have forgotten to remove your tall hat!"

Havelock Case Dismissed.

Even school trustees do not always get along as amicably as so many little birds in the same nest. It seems that the trustees at Havelock had a falling out. One of the three laid a charge against the other two. County Magistrate Edmison went to that busy little railway centre to settle the charge. The case was thrown out of court. The evidence was too weak to have condemned the family cat of stealing milk even when caught with the cream on its whiskers.

McLAUGHLIN MODEL 43

Service.

To be able to get what you want, where and when you want it, sums up what is meant by SERVICE in connection with automobiles. That is what you will get if you buy a McLaughlin-Buick car. Should your car need attention, or you meet with an accident and need repairs, we have branch houses in almost every large centre, and agencies in almost every leading town in Canada that carry parts and have facilities for taking care of your car.

You look somewhat bewildered at the many cars of different makers, each of whom claim their production to be the best. Certain it is they cannot all be the best. You will find upon close investigation, there is a great difierence in cars. It is found particularly in their mechanism. One safe guide to the real merit of any machine is the degree of quietness and smoothness with which it runs.

Patented Inside Control.

To devise some plan of conveniently disposing of the brake pedals and control levers to the best advantage, yet out of the way of the driver, has been a matter that has caused car builders considerable thought. The McLaughlin-Buick 1912 design offers the only acceptable device. The grip handles are right at the driver's hand as its drops from the steering wheel, thus avoiding the necessity of reaching over the side of the car or even changing position. The levers are enclosed so they do not interfere with the free use of the brake pedals or chafe the limbs.

See our 1912 Models. Compare them, part by part with the other machines, prices considered, and we are satisfied you will do as the United States Goverment recently did in selecting a car for their War Department. With all the leading manufacturers' cars in competition, the cars were driven to a designated place and the drivers dismissed. The cars were tested part by part, each piece of their car being measured, tested and appraised by Government experts. One by one the cars were eliminated until THE BUICK STOOD ALONE, and another victory was added to the many it had one before. The Government Experts pronounced it to be the best of American made cars.

The largest automobile order on record was received by THE BUICK MOTOR CO., January 3rd, 1912. It was from the Pense Automobile Co., Minneapolis for 567 automobiles.

A WORD ABOUT OUR 1912 MODELS

Court of Revision Held.

A meeting of the Court of Revision has been held at the city hall committee room, with Wm. Langford, Sr., (chairman), W. F. Johnston and B. Morrow present. Nine communications were received complaining of over-assessment, and wrong taxation.

A Peterborough Girl's Progress.

The many friends of Miss Gladys Seward, whose musical career in Germany is phenominal, will be pleased to learn that in Dresden she has made another triumph. She is a pupil of Harry Field of that city, and, under his tuition will undoubtedly reflect great credit, not only on herself, but on her native town.

Lindsay Curlers Welcomed Home.

Messrs. J. D. Flavelle and L. V. O'Connor have returned from Winnipeg bonspiel, and were warmly welcomed at the C.P.R. station by a number of the members of the curling club. They expressed themselves as thoroughly delighted with the trip and of the splendid treatment meted out to them at the big spiel.

Another Kick Over That Clock.

Yesterday morning a George street merchant hailed a Times representative and asked "why in the name of business and common sense (of course his language was a trifle louder) does not the official in charge take a club or put a charge of dynamite behind the hands of the Post Office clock. I'm sick of seeing these hands at 2.10 for four consecutive days!"

The Light Went Off.

On Friday night residents along Water street supplied with light by the Peterborough Light and Power Co., had to use candles, matches, coal oil lamps or anything they could use for light. One citizen living on that street declares that he used 136 matches whilst taking a trip to his bath room. Still that is probably an exaggeration.

Special Service in St. John's.

Yesterday morning Rev. Canon Gould, M.D., gave a special address in connection with the Lenten course in Missions held in St. John's church. The Rev. genetleman was again present at the afternoon Sunday school of that church and gave the children a most interesting discription of conditions in Jerusalem from which city the speaker comes.

Another Rural Mail Route.

Arrangements are rapidly reaching completion for a rural mail route from Peterborough along the Norwood Road, returning by what is locally known as the Block Road. Mr. J. A. Sexsmith, M.P. for the East Riding, has the matter in hand and is taking it up with the Post Office Inspector at Kingston. This official considers that this addition to the County's mail service will soon be in operation.

Bobcaygeon Independent on the Thaw

Bobcaygeon Independent: The delightful break of summer warmth that floated in during last week, started the sparrows singing, the hens cackling, at 2½c per cackle, the wood pecker tapping his merry tattoo on the electric poles, and actually opened the ice cream parlours. When the gallants are called upon to steer their ownest owns to the chilled goods and fudge parlours in February, it eases off the storm jolts.

Dan Whetung Is Tied Up.

That good old stage driver, known as Dan Whetung, the man who brings the mails and passengers from Chemong, arrived in the city yesterday on his first trip since Wednesday last owing to the severe storm of this week. Mr. Whetung says that he was unable even to get his sleigh to the road, so great were the drifts. It was one of the worst series of road drifts he has witnessed for several years.

Park Street Baptist Hustlers.

A new musical and vocal organization has come into existence. At a well attended meeting of the Men's Social Club in the Parlours of the Park street Baptist church. It is to be known as the "Park Street Pierrot Troupe," the first of its kind ever organized in the city. There will be a chorus of twenty male voices, besides other local talent. The first practice will be held to-morrow evening at the church, unless otherwise ordered by the management.

Knox Church Young People's Society is looking for a large audience to-night in Knox church, when the question of Church Union, between the Methodists, Congregationalists and Presbyterian churches will be the subject of debate. Mr. H. B. Cowan of St. Paul's church and Mr. A. McKenzie of Knox church will represent the Presbyterians, while Mr. A. B. Cunningham of Charlotte street Methodist church and J. McLaren of St. James will represent the Methodists. An interesting evening is promised.

York Loaners Must Wait.

That defunct institution in which more than one was "stung" will not be finally wound up for several years yet. At least so says Mr. C. E. Herrington, the liquidator. Before the final dividend is paid there must be $250,000 on hand. All the property owned by the Company, valued at approximately $2,000,000, has been sold, with the exception of about $50,000 worth, and a great deal of the purchase money remains yet to be paid. There are 114,000 interested, 17,000 of whom have not yet returned their pass books, and in consequence, have not participated in the two former dividends declared. These dividends were paid in November, 1909, 25 per cent., and in December, 1911, 25 per cent.

Mrs. George Elliott's Funeral.

A death that will be regretted throughout the whole county was that of Mrs. Geo. Elliott, of the township of Emily, who passed away on Friday afternoon. The deceased resided in the township of Emily and was 67 years of age. Death was due to a paralytic stroke. The late Mrs. Elliott was born in Cavan, her maiden name being Sarah McPherson. Surviving her besides her husband, are three sons and three daughters, namely, Harry, of Calgary; Melville and James at home, Mrs. Tighe and Mrs. Ford, of Vancouver, and Mrs. Tully, of Cavan. In religion the late Mrs. Elliott was an Anglican, and was an active worker of St. John's church, of Emily, and in the Ladies' Guild.

The funeral was held yesterday afternoon from the late residence to Emily cemetery.

A SEAT OF GYPSY ROYALTY

Kirk Yetholm, which for several centuries was the headquarters of the Scottish gipsies and the seat of their royal "palace," nestles at the foot of the Cheviot Hills, about seven miles south of [illegible]. A little way below the village [illegible] Water, which separates it from Town Yetholm, [illegible] into the [illegible] [illegible] on Flodden were conveyed to Kirk Yetholm, and were buried in the church and churchyard. In the same churchyard repose many generations of gipsy kings and queens, princes and princesses, lords and commons. But in the village there are now few gipsies left. Those of them who remain are known by the vulgar and unromantic name of "muggers" (potters).

ROMANCE OF A DIAMOND

One of the finest diamonds in the world is the Florentine Diamond, held by the Imperial Treasury of Austria. This diamond is principally interesting, however, on account of its curious history. It may be said to have had an adventurous career. Originally it belonged to Charles the Bold, Duke of Burgundy, who carelessly thrust it into his pocket as one day he sallied forth to battle. In the fury of the engagement the diamond dropped out of the Duke's pocket, and was lost. Later, a Swiss soldier espied it lying in a roadway. Having no idea of its enormous value, he one day showed it to a priest, who offered him about two shillings for it, which the soldier gladly accepted. The priest sold it to a jeweller for half-a-crown, the jeweller to a merchant for something like $2,500, and the merchant sold it to an Italian noble for $1,000 more. Eventually it became the property of the Pope, and, after many further adventures, passed into the hands of the Imperial Family of Austria.

HEBERT DECISION WON'T CHANGE CHURCH POLICY

Archbishop Bruchesi Says Doctrine of the Church Hasn't Changed Since the Protestant Reformation

Montreal, Feb. 26.—The Charbonneau decision in the Hebert case has not changed the attitude of Archbishop Bruchesi or the Roman Church. Preaching here yesterday the Archbishop said:

"Whatever happens, the holy laws of the Church on the marriage question will always continue to bind the conscience of its children, and those alone in the eyes of the church will be worthy of the title of husband and wife who will have contracted a marriage according to her forms and rulings."

"Marriage, like all other sacraments, belongs to the Church, and consequently it belongs to the church to direct everything that concerns the validity of marriage," declared Mgr. Bruchesi. "Such was the doctrine of the Catholic Church before the Protestant Reformation, and such will it be in all time. If, however, our separated brethren have rejected it, if they have made marriage a simple contract, submitted like all others to the civil power, which may be dissolved or governed at its will, let them at least allow us to remain faithful to our secular traditions, and in the name of that liberty which they claim for themselves let them permit us to act according to the convictions of our faith.

"If Governments make laws for the valid and legitimate celebration of marriage, and if these laws contradict those of the Church, the latter can in no way be affected, for the reason that the faithful and all those to whom the laws of the Church apply will remain loyal unless they want to be excluded from her sacred jurisdiction."

EASY TO VALIDATE THEM.

His Grace then quoted the ne temere decree, and proceeded: "So here is this ne temere decree with which a scare has been created throughout the land, and which they represent as an attempt to destroy the peace of families and the liberty of conscience. Marriage celebrated outside these essential conditions, the conditions mentioned in the decree, is consequently null by the fact both as regards conscience and religion. It is a very easy thing, however, to render such a union valid, as they have only to present themselves before a competent minister. Should they, however, refuse, the case is submitted to the ordinary of the diocese. The latter has but one sentence to render, and that is to declare the marriage invalid according to the canon law."

SOME REAL HOT STUFF

The Catholic Register Hands Out a Few Good Sized "Lemons."

The eleven hundred Ulstermen from Winnipeg who are going over to fight the Tipperary and Kilarney Home Rulers, should take the gold-cure before starting.

* * *

Romolo Murri, ex-priest and Deputy of the Chamber, who lies under a sentence of excommunication, is about to go through the form of marriage with a "converted" Norwegian, and has found it necessary to make a declaration as to the religion he professes. The reading public has been surprised to learn that he has declared himself a Catholic.

* * *

"All Canadian Orangemen," declares the Middlesex County Orange Lodge, "should be prepared to go to Ireland and fight the Government in case Home Rule is granted." There is enough of drunken oratory in Belfast just now without adding to the infliction. And the "booers" might not welcome a presumptuous Canadian, who might be rashly tempted to crack a Home Ruler's skull. Fighting in the North of Ireland merely means airing one's opinion over a bar.

* * *

The following appeared in the Register, which stated that it was written by a Protestant (?) to a Jesuit in Montreal, and refers to Rev. C. O. Johnston, pastor of the Queen St. Methodist church, in Toronto, who has lately been devoting his attention to the Jesuits:

"I hope your people in Montreal will not judge the citizens of Toronto by a certain windbag and blatherskite we have living here, named C. O. Johnston. No person of intelligence in Toronto or anywhere else pays any attention to this fellow. To illustrate the public regard in which he is held, I may tell you that when he lived in Kingston as the Minister of a Methodist Church there he was generally known and designated by students and professors of Queen's University as CO₂. I am not enough of a chemist to know whether this CO₂ is an actual gas or whether it is an arbitrary name, used to designate the particular brand of gas dispensed by Mr. Johnston. At all events that is what they called him, and it very appropriately illustrates how he is regarded everywhere he goes."

To the above, Rev. Father Burke, editor of the Register adds:

"The fact that the Toronto Protestant did not realize the full meaning of CO₂ is an indirect proof that his story is authentic. None but College or University Students could have hit upon so clever a use of Mr. Johnston's initials. For CO₂ is the chemical formula of carbonic acid or carbon dioxide, which is the bad hot air exhaled from the lungs, a gas that acts as a narcotic poison even when present in as low a proportion as four per cent. of the ordinary atmosphere. That is why a crowd in an unventilated room is so unhealthy. Most of the 120 victims of the Calcutta Black Hole in 1756 were asphyxiated in a few hours by the carbonic acid breathed out by 146 people imprisoned in a badly ventilated room twenty feet square. Carbonic acid will extinguish a lighted candle lowered into it, and it is used for putting out fires. Thus "CO₂" means that Mr. Johnston is an extinguisher of the light of truth and of the fire of charity, a slayer of the souls of the hearers who willing breathe his used up air.

"A curious fact about carbonic acid is that, though poisonous when inhaled by the lungs, it is rather refreshing when taken into the stomach. Aerated beverages of all kinds—beer, champagne and carbonated mineral waters—owe their exhilarating qualities to carbonic acid. Hence it is that, while benighted fanatics who breathe Mr. Johnston's CO₂ are poisoned thereby, we Catholics can safely swallow it when diluted in the pure waters of truth, for the gas merely sparkles and bubbles harmlessly up, making truth more tasty by contrast."

LOCAL LECTURE ON GREAT WHITE PLAGUE

To-night a lecture, not only of local, but Provincial interest will be given in the Collegiate Institute by Mr. E. H. Jones of the Toronto Board of Health. Mr. Jones arrived here yesterday and gave The Times a call. This gentleman not only describes the evils and possible preventative of tuberculosis, but brings many practical proofs of his contentions. Among these are a film, already shown in Peterborough, but unfortunately not advertized in its medical instructive capacity, entitled, "The Fly Pest." This moving picture shows clearly how the noxious house fly is a direct and too prevalent carrier of the dread germs of consumption. Another picture that Mr. Jones will show, displays the terrible evils arising from carelessness in handling milk. He will also display magnificent specimens of the awful germ that carry the contagion of "T.B.C." The meetings to be held by this Provincial Health representative will be assisted by the medical men of Peterborough. Meetings are to be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings at the Collegiate Institute Hall.

ST. GEORGE'S CHORAL

First Annual Concert to be Given by This Prominent Musical Society in Grand Opera House.

The above society will hold their first annual concert early in April, in the Grand Opera House. It is intended to put on a high class concert with purely local talent. The Choral Society are practicing "part" songs, glees, etc., by such celebrated composers as Lohr, Pinsuti, Danby, Sir Edward Edgar, and others equally famous. The society was formed at the beginning of the present year and has already a roll of 70 members. Practically every church choir in the city is represented, and, although the majority of the members hail from across the Atlantic, no hard and fast line is drawn. The committee will be pleased to see any ladies and gentlemen interested in choral work attend the rehearsals and become members. The society is entirely undenominational. All Saints Parish Hall has been secured for rehearsals through the kindness of the Wardens. The society intends taking up the practice of one of the well-known oratorio's later in the year; possibly Handel's well known masterpiece "The Messiah." Intending members are requested to join at once in order to attend necessary number of rehearsals for the April concert.

"There's a Reason"

Bourassa Demands Separate Schools; Will Oppose Government

Federal Ministers Will Not Give Way, Despite Fanciful Liberal Stories—So-Called Political Dinner a Purely Literary Affair

Ottawa, Feb. 26.—The Liberal papers are working overtime trying to stir up strife over the Manitoba boundaries question and have been publishing wild stories about trouble between the Nationalists and the Conservatives over the question of Separate Schools. Yesterday it was stated that Bourassa was in Ottawa personally to see Borden and the Cabinet. At a matter of fact BOURASSA WAS NOT IN THE CAPITAL AT ALL, AND HAS NOT BEEN HERE FOR OVER A MONTH. Armande Lavergne has been in Ottawa for several days and has undoubtedly been appealing for a clause guaranteeing Separate Schools in Keewatin. However, as far as can be learned there is no change in the situation. The bill as drafted it is understood HAS NO REFERENCE AT ALL TO THE SCHOOL QUESTION and the Manitoba members are standing firm against any change.

NATIONALISTS MAY BE WRECKED.

It is not expected that more than six or eight Nationalists will desert the Government on the question. If the French members in the Cabinet stand by the Government it will probably mean a cleavage between Monk and Bourassa, as Bourassa is evidently preparing to make a big fight for a school clause. If there is a cleavage it is predicted it will mean the end of the Nationalist party.

THAT "POLITICAL" DINNER WAS LITERARY.

The Liberal press also yesterday made much of a private dinner which was given last night by Hon. F. D. Monk, where it was alleged the political situation and the school question was discussed. THE DINNER, IT TURNS OUT, WAS LITERARY RATHER THAN POLITICAL. Dr. Duruoure, Professor of French Literature at Laval, lectured Sunday afternoon before the French-Canadian Literature Institute. He is a great friend of Monk and a fellow professor for years in Laval, and Monk naturally gave a dinner in his honor. The principal guests were Dr. Roy, of the Archives, former president of the Royal Society of Canada; A. D. Decelles, Parliamentary Librarian; Fathers Feyens and Jeannotte, professors in Ottawa University and Armande Lavergne.

THE TELEPHONE SITUATION

In this world there is a standing army of knockers. Because the Bell Telephone Co., for first-class service and most modern appliances available, charges fair and only living rates, there are people shortsighted enough to kick. Right here in Peterborough we have had sufficient proof of this fact. A few years ago the Ontario Telephone, with great blare of triumphs and whole car loads of promises for the future, undertook to give telephone service for half what the Bell people charged. What was the result? Simply a matter of business! No man can buy goods for $2 and sell them for a dollar and live. It was only a matter of time. The Bell Co. may be, in fact is a comparative monopoly. The telephone business is unique in that respect. For the accommodation and advantage of its customers ONE service is essential. Now Manitoba has tried the experiment of Government ownership—what is the result? A saving in telephone rates, "so that the poorest could have a telephone?" Not on your life! What is the financial result? Thousands of dollars for the Government? No! The Government was out just a little over $150,000 last year for trying to handle a business that is, as we said above, unique of its kind and that can only be carried on by one company and that is the Bell. Of course if philanthropy is to be weighed in the scales with business, right here in Peterborough we have a little local opposition to the recognized and established telephone company. The telephone users of this little opposition company have never yet, as far as we know paid for their telephone service. Of course, if telephone stockholders can afford to invest money without any dividends payable thereon, they reap their reward in the sweet subsequently, but it's not business.

THAT $10 BLUFF.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Some cunning gent puts a $10 bluff in the Examiner to the effect that the dispatch from Ottawa, giving names on a certain petition sent in to the Department was a fake. I happen to know that while the inclusion of Paddy Carroll's name was an error, the others were "all there." It was a great petition and fully worthy of the man who conceived the great idea of getting it up.

Yours, &c.,
Elector.

P.S.—I would like to see that petition published, could you not get it, Mr. Editor?

TRUTH RE LOCAL POLITICIANS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I think I not only express my own views, but those of the rank and file of the Conservative party when I make the statement that only the "Stratton-Conservatives" are opposed to Mr. Edgar's appointment as Postmaster. For the benefit of such of your readers as are new-comers to our city, I might explain that the "Stratton-Conservative" is, or was, recruited almost entirely from the ranks of our leading Tory business men who for years past never helped their party in election contests, or at any other time, but stood aloof, professing their party creed, but covertly voting the other way and sneering at the loyal efforts of humbler members who were putting up the fight. They followed this course on Sept. 21st, never dreaming that Mr. Burnham would be elected, much less that the Laurier administration would be defeated, and now when the plums are being handed out without regard to their nominal allegiance to the party for a lifetime, they naturally feel sore. Had they been true and loyal Mr. Edgar would never have been appointed nor would he have expected the position. I could name a round dozen who would have filled the position creditably, and the claims of any one of whom would have had to be recognized had it not been for their "two-faced" conduct. Mr. Burnham won't lose a single vote over the appointment, for the simple reason that those who have been attempting to cajole him never voted for him last September. No matter how much they would like to make it appear that way now. It is certainly most refreshing to know that Mr. Burnham is a man with some backbone, and not a will-o'-the-wisp, like some of our representatives in the past. He strikes out straight from the shoulder and can always be depended upon to do the square thing at the right time.

Yours truly,
One of the Rank and File.

Italian's Narrow Escape.

Talking of good (or was it bad) luck a Lakefield Italian had a narrow escape in that village a few days ago. This immigrant from the olive fields and Camorra ridden hills of Sunny Italy, was walking along the railway track there, in the vicinity of the cement works. A train backed up, caught the Italian and caused him to fall so that one hand went under the car across the rail. Now if the average Canadian citizen had fallen in such a predicament his whole arm would have parted company with his body. The benial Dago lost one little finger. Was his luck good or bad?

EFFORTS TO BE MADE TO ANNUL FREAK MARRIAGE

Seventeen-Year-Old Daughter of Prominent Civil Engineer Married a Well-to-Do Bachelor and Left Him in an Hour

Winnipeg, Feb. 26.—It developed today that the 17-year-old girl, who under the name of Ida Belle Russell, married George E. Watson, a well-to-do bachelor of Winnipeg, last week, and left him within an hour, was Miss Dorothy Rogers, of 600 Corrydon avenue. Her father is a well-known civil engineer, and did not suspect his daughter was the girl whose curious wedding freak has filled the local papers for the past week.

The girl claims she did it as a joke corresponding with Watson as the result of a matrimonial advertisement. She left him in a department store en route from the minister's house.

As the girl is under age, an effort will be made to have the marriage nullified.

Rogers is a C.N.R. engineer, residing on Corrydon avenue. His daughter is a stenographer in the C.P.R. master mechanics' office. Her parents were informed of the marriage by the Deputy Attorney-General. In response to an advertisement, the girl met Watson, a Saskatchewan farmer, in a drug store, being identified by a red ribbon pinned to a fur boa, walked to the church, and was married by Rev. Eber Crummy, of Grace Methodist church. She went to Eaton's store, and asked her husband to wait at the foot of the elevator while she purchased some woman's apparel, and then came down the adjoining elevator.

Miss Rogers is twenty, a pretty, comely English girl. Watson is rough and uncouth, and fifty-two years old.

PERISHED WHILE TRYING TO RESCUE HER CHILDREN

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Feb. 26.—A woman named Meza, who had made a heroic effort to save her six children, was burned to death along with two of her offspring in Luzerne Borough early to-day, when their home was completely destroyed. The husband was absent when the fire started and the mother was alone with the children. She cried for help, and entering the burning frame dwelling four times. On three of the trips she rescued four of her children. One child, a boy of six years, she threw from a second storey window, and his leg was broken.

The fourth time the mother rushed back into the flames to bring out the remaining children the floor gave way and the woman and the two children were carried down into the debris. Their charred bodies were found when the fire was extinguished.

GYPSIES IN GERMANY TERRIFY SMALL VILLAGE

Fulda, Germany, Feb. 26.—The district surrounding this city has been in a state of virtual war for a week, owing to the presence of a band of Gypsies, who after committing three murders sought refuge in the forests. They have killed or wounded several of the police who have been attemuting their arrest.

A detachment of 200 soldiers assisted by 50 military police and volunteers are now engaged in beating the woods in order to discover the Gypsies' hiding place.

The jail in this city has been placed under a strong guard owing to the fear of the authorities that an attempt will be made to rescue the prisoners.

FEDERAL LIFE HAS A SUCCESSFUL YEAR

In this issue of The Times appears the annual statement of the Federal Life Assurance Company, whose head offices are in Hamilton, Ont. 1911 war the company's banner year. During that year the company issued $4,655,104 of new business. This demonstrates what the public of Canada thinks of the Federal Life. In 1911 the cash income from premiums was $1,034,437 or an increase of $83,464 over their business in 1910. The assets of that company amount to the splendid sum of $4,446,969, an increase of $450,526 over the preceding year. The surplus of the company is $329,974, an increase over 1910 of $54,386. This is sufficient proof that the Federal not only is in the front ranks of Canadian Insurance Companies, but is strong beyond any shadow of contradiction. The company has now $23,887,142 of business in force.

Mr. G. G. Pope, 406 George street, is district manager and in charge of the local business of the Federal. Any enquiries made at his office will be met with prompt and courteous reply.

POLICE COURT RETURNS

Local Carter on Blacklist is Heavily Fined and Summons Issued for Absentee.

It seems that a local carter, who in days gone by, tarried too long and often with the "yellow seduction" that makes you feel like a king for an hour and a pauper for life, has been on the blacklist. Yesterday morning he was charged in the police court with a relapse from his recent way of avoiding even a corkscrew. He asked for a private hearing. His Worship refused, however, and to the evident satisfaction of the "rail-birds," he insisted that the case be conducted in the usual way.

In the witness box the defendant stated that this was his second term as a blacklister, he having been put on the Indian list in January last, for the second time. Seemingly, in desperation, he fell from grace and laid in a supply. This lapse from the orders of the powers-that-be cost him $13.40, for payment of which he was allowed ten days with an alternative of 30 days as a guest of Castle Nesbitt.

William Lavery was charged with being drunk and disorderly, but failed to respond in court. The court suspended business for two minutes, when after a short halt of court proceedings, a summons was issued for the accused.

FORMER LOCAL MAN Writes From The U. S.

A local citizen yesterday was in receipt of a letter from Mr. Rufus Stevenson, formerly of this city, but now manager of a gas plant at Brazil, Ind. In this letter the writer says, "Everything over here, in the shape of business, is strictly to the bad. The miners here are about to strike, probably on April 1st, unless the operators grant their demands, which they have already refused. Any one out of a position here is in a bad way. It's a good thing you people refused to pass reciprocity."

BUILDERS' PROFITS with Bankers' Security

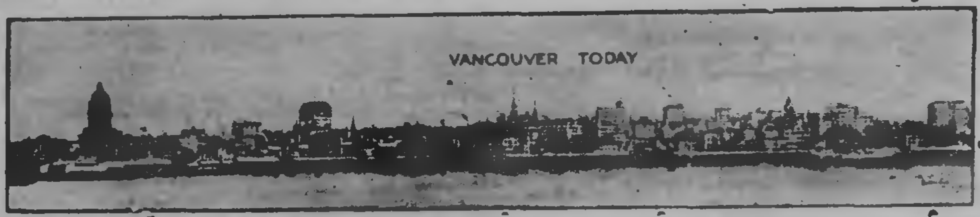
100,000 SHARES AT $1.00

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has been organized recently with an authorized capital of $500,000, to do a general building, real estate, and insurance business, and is actively engaged in Vancouver and Victoria—two most promising fields. The profits from building houses for cash and selling on instalments is well known, and will be one of the principal channels from which profits will be derived. BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its own building department and architect, and does its own construction. In addition to building houses, BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its real estate department, where it carries on a general real estate business, discounting agreements of Sale, subdividing and transacting a general insurance business.

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS LIMITED, is a new concern, having been in business less than two months in Vancouver, but is becoming well known as the Company without any promotion shares and with a strong board of directors, made up of well known Vancouver and Victoria business men.

Shareholders may conservatively look for a 10 per cent dividend the first year, increasing thereafter and a steady advance in the value of their shares caused by the substantial reserve it will always be the policy of the directors to build up.

Companies run on similar lines, notably the Los Angeles Investment Company' and "Home Builders," both of Los Angeles, have proved phenominally successful, the former, which has been in business some sixteen years, having accumulated assets of over $6,000,000, and paying 28 per cent. dividends; and the latter, which started business three years ago, with only $1,250 capital, has assets to-day of over $1,089,000, a surplus of over $308,000, is paying 17 per cent. dividends, and its $1.00 shares are selling at $2.30.



FIRST ISSUE OF SHARES

100,000 Thousand Shares are offered at $1.00 per share, 44,500 of which have been subscribed. These shares may be purchased for cash or on the instalment plan. $10.00 cash and $5.00 per month handles 100 shares Mail your subscription To-day.

THE STEAMER STEWARD

One of the Busiest Men on Board, But Poorly Paid

There is no single individual in the service of the public, from the stoker down, who is perforce so versatile in his attainments and so enduring in his service as the steamer steward. His hours are from five in the morning until ten at night, his pay on the foreign-owned lines averages about $15 a month, and the steward in second-class does not double his wages from his tips and the fund that is raised among the passengers to pay the band.

Stewards have been known to sleep, eighteen in a triangular room sixteen feet long, and eleven wide, with two small port-holes for ventilation. They must wait at the table at breakfast, previously having set it, then they wash the dishes. Next they make up the beds, then serve the little luncheon on deck which comes about ten o'clock. Next they arrange the table for lunch, wait upon the table, wash the dishes on some lines, and eat their own lunch. In the middle of the afternoon there is another light luncheon which they must serve, then they set the tables for dinner, which they subsequently serve. After getting the remnants out of sight and eating their own meal, they give a concert from eight to ten, after which they are free to spend the night as they please.

In spite of all this hard work and the degrading treatment which they receive from many passengers, one finds scores of intelligent, well educated youths, on the German lines especially, and one wonders how the lines manage to inveigle them into their service. For the most part they are enterprising boys who are eager to see the world after they have left their gymnasium or universities, and have not the means to travel, so they put to sea as stewards, content to endure the abuses and hardships of the life for the glimpses they get of the various ports.

One boy from Berlin whom a passenger interviewed some time ago had run away from home and gone into the service of the Hamburg-American line so that his parents might not know that he was doing menial labor. His family was one of aristocratic tendencies, but too poor to send him on his travels in the proper style. Had they known that he had adapted a life so degrading in their eyes, it would have broken their hearts, he said, but he was accomplishing his purpose. In two years he had served on six different branches of the Hamburg lines and had seen almost every port from the Far East to the Atlantic coast of America.

NORTHERN ONTARIO

Area, 140,000 square miles.

Northern boundary, the Arctic regions.

Eastern boundary, the Province of Quebec.

Western boundary, the Province of Manitoba and the Territory of Keewatin.

Southern boundary is practically the Canadian Pacific Railway direct line from Montreal to Winnipeg, which runs across Ontario for a distance of 1,285 miles.

Telegraph and telephone connections are spreading with amazing rapidity all over the land.

Minerals are found extensively, and in splendid paying quantities, especially gold, silver, nickel, copper and iron.

Game is plentiful, including moose, caribou, red deer, bear, beaver, otter wild duck, partridge and ruffed grouse.

The country is divided into six great divisions, known as Nipissing, Sudbury, Algoma, Thunder Bay, Rainy River and Kenora.

There are now a number of villages and towns scattered over the country whose population runs from fifty up to several thousands.

The parks and forest reserves are large. Algonquin Park covers an area of 1,216,000 acres; Temagami Forest Reserve covers 3,563,600 acres, and contains an estimate of from thre to four billion feet of timber; the Nepigon Reserve covers 4,676,050 acres; the Mississaga Reserve covers 1,950,000 acres, with several smaller reserves.

THE SHAPES OF EGGS

A mathematical discussion has taken place, before the Zoological Society, as to the differences in the shapes of eggs. A few eggs, like those of the owl and the tortoise, are spherical, or nearly so; a few, like the grebe's or the cormorant's, are elliptical, with symmetrical ends; the great majority, like the hen's, are ovoid, or blunter at one end than the other. The hen's egg is always laid blunt end foremost. Eggs that are the most unsymmetrical are also eggs of large size relatively to the parent bird. The yolks of eggs are spherical, whatever the form of the entire egg may be. This has been shown to be due to their being enclosed in a fluid, the "white," which makes the pressure everywhere on the surface of the yolk practically constant.—Science Siftings.

WHAT THE PUBLIC WANT

Hiss succeeded hiss. Boo succeeded boo. The audience showered their hostile verdict at the stage in the form of such useful commodities as carrots, eggs, and onions.

They called for the author. But he did not appear. He stood shaking in the wings, watching the whizzing vegetables with tearful eyes.

"Listen to them now!" he said, as a loud roar arose, intermingled with shrill whistling and cat-calls. He turned to the manager, threw up his hands despairingly, and exclaimed: "You give them tragedy, and they want comedy. You give them comedy, and they want tragedy. It's hard to find out what they do want."

"On the contrary, it's painfully easy," replied the manager. "They want their money back!"

THE EMIGRANT'S OUTFIT

What to Take With You When Leaving the Old Country

"It is nothing short of a misfortune that so many Englishmen should offend Canadian taste by landing in and persisting in wearing, a costume which Canadians look upon as the acme of absurdity."

So writes Mr. L. O. Armstrong, a well-known Canadian railway official, says Answers. He continues: "I refer principally to the little tweed cap and red leather leggings. Canadians all over the Dominion immediately imbibe an ineradicable prejudice against a man who parades the street in such an outfit. They shun him; he cannot get work. It is, in fact, a [illegible] handicap, where competition is deadly keen."

Whether the emigrant [illegible] to Canada, Australia or South Africa, he should avoid any garb which [illegible] him conspicuous. What he wants [illegible] quiet-patterned, strong, [illegible] clothes.

Don't leave smart suits of [illegible] dress behind, however. There is plenty of social life everywhere in the colonies, and party clothes are essential.

For the rest, the emigrant [illegible] chas[illegible] outfit meant [illegible] the climate of the country [illegible] is [illegible] nitely hotter and dryer [illegible] winters much colder [illegible] broad-brimmed felt hats [illegible] and very [illegible] underwear [illegible]. Whatever [illegible] to need a good store of good [illegible] shirts. These should be [illegible] in [illegible] and of good quality. It will pay you to purchase these at home and pay the duty on them.

Cotton goods, on the other hand, and boots, are fairly cheap in Canada, so do not overburden your [illegible] with these.

Some years ago the writer went out to farm in America, and before he started spent twenty pounds on his outfit, which included three suits of white duck, a huge cork solar helmet with pugaree complete, a set of boot-mending implements, and a number of white flannel shirts.

And all these, and a good many similar things, he was only too glad to give away soon after his arrival.

Working-clothes suitable for the country can be bought ready-made at cheap prices anywhere in America, either in the States or Canada; therefore, you had much better wait till you reach your destination before purchasing them. If I were going out again I should take three good tweed suits of quiet pattern, one blue serge for better wear, a dozen good flannel shirts, two dozen pairs of strong merino socks, and all the boots I happened to have. I should also have four suits of thick underwear and four of thin, four suits of pyjamas, a good overcoat of dark-blue pilot-cloth, two soft felt hats, one bowler, one straw hat, three or four good knitted ties, some flannel collars, and a warm woollen comforter.

I should carry my goods in a very strong wooden trunk, clamped with iron and provided with two locks, and have in addition a kitbag for articles required on the voyage.

The emigrant must always remember that the more he takes the more he will have to pay in duty and in carriage.

A BERESFORD STORY

Of the many stories told of Lord Charles Beresford, few are better than the following. It is said that he made a wager of $500 with some clubmen that he would drive down Rotten Row in broad daylight. (Vehicles were forbidden in Rotten Row). Those interested posted themselves on the railings in the Park and awaited developments. The first thing to come along was a water-cart. The driver came slowly past to the railings and pretty nearly drenched the waiting ones in the Row. The water-cart man at once became the object of forcible and searching remarks. To the amazement of the bystanders he pushed his oilskin hat back and revealed the beaming face of Charlie Beresford, who said, "Hand over that hundred, old man." Lord Charles had squared the water-cart man to let him play the part, which he did to perfection. His friends had been watching for a smart turn-out of some description.

A SWIFT BIRD

The Mexican road runner has only two short legs, but he can beat a horse, a hound, and an electric carriage, and give them a handicap start. Speed is not his only recommendation. He eats as he runs, or, rather, as the things run away with him. Snakes are the principal part of his diet, big and little. His crop is as elastic as his legs are swift, and when he wants to prepare for a long journey he coils up a rattler or two inside of his neck and sets out across the Mexican desert with a swiftness that makes it look like a bunch of dust on a record-breaking tour around the world.

That defunct institution in which more than one was "stung" will not be finally wound up for several years yet. At least so says Mr. C. E. Herrington, the liquidator. Before the final dividend is paid there must be $250,000 on hand. All the property owned by the Company, valued at approximately, $2,000,000, has been sold, with the exception of about $50,000 worth, and a great deal of the purchase money remains yet to be paid. There are 114,000 interested, 17,000 of whom have not yet returned their pass books, and in consequence, have not participated in the two former dividends declared. These dividends were paid in November, 1909, 25 per cent., and in December, 1911, 25 per cent.

Why all this talk about Home Rule? We would like to see the men in Peterborough who are not under home or petticoat rule! He may not acknowledge it but its there just the same!

A number of Lindsay people were tied up in a snow bank a night or two ago. The train they were on encountered drifts that were one too much for the engine's power. The train was stalled all night at Janetville.

POINTS FOR GIRLS.

Some rules worth following for young girls are: Be natural. Young girls, from lack of selfconfidence, often try to copy the style and manners of someone they admire, and the result is not a success. It is better to be oneself. Be above jealousies. When another girl is criticised, be the first to say the generous word in defence of the absent one. Be a good listener. It is a safe rule that everyone you meet likes to be listened to quite as well as to listen.

"HA, HA!" HERBS

There is a curious plant that grows in Arabia, and is known by the name of "laughing plant."

This name comes from the fact that anyone who eats the seed cannot control his laughter. The natives of the district where this plant grows dry the seeds, and reduce them to powder. A small dose of this powder makes those who eat it act very much like foolish people. The soberest person will dance, shout, and laugh like a madman, and runs about, cutting the most ridiculous capers for an hour.

At the end of this time the reaction comes. The dancer is exhausted, and a deep sleep comes upon him. After a nap of several hours, he awakens with no recollection of the antics he has performed.

WHERE TIME IS MONEY

The Colonia Cosme, on the Paraguay, above Asuncion, is one of the most curious in the world.

The members of the colony make or grow everything they want, and import nothing. The workmen have seven hours' work a day, and earn, not money, but time. Their wages are hours and half-hours. These they save up till they have a week in hand, and then they go off on an excursion.

If a man wants a chair or a table, he pays for it in hours of work, which are deducted from the balance to his credit.

THE FOWL'S PRAYER

A Few Pointers as to How to Feed Hens

A prayer of the domestic fowl to its owner is printed in the Smallholder. The following are some of its clauses:

For breakfast, on cold days, I like warm mash with a little mustard; some good corn will do when it is warmer.

Flint and shell grit hung in boxes within my reach.

At noon sprinkle a little corn between the straws in my covered scratching shed; I am fond of exercise.

I have also a weakness for anything green; give it to me in plenty.

Place a sunken box filled with ashes in my run, this is my bath.

Ere the sun sets give me as much corn as I can eat, so that I may sleep peacefully.

borough went in, and asked the landlady in Portuguese what she could give him for breakfast. To his surprise he was answered in his own tongue, spoken with a strong northern accent.

"Weel, there's just salt cod and beans and if ye dinna like that, there's the bitter mixture. It's what the folk hereabouts breakfast on as a general thing, and if ye're the American tourist I take ye for, ye'll be wanting to taste it. They all do, but there's no many of them can take a second helping."

"What's the bitter mixture?" asked Scarborough.

"Oh, just half a loaf o' maize bread, b'iled up wi' lard, garlic, onions, vinegar, whole peppers and saffron. Will I get you a plateful?"

"No, thank you," said Scarborough with decision. "I'm not an American tourist, you see, so I haven't the curiosity or the courage to try it. I'm a plain Britisher, hungry, and looking to a fellow Britisher to give him a better meal than that. By the way, you have had a countryman of yours staying at your inn lately, haven't you?"

"The Scotchman who goes about the country on a donkey, and thinks that folks will take him for a native? Yes, he's been here; but who told you that he was a fellow countryman o' mine?"

"Well, you are Scotch too, aren't you?"

"I was born in Fraser's Wynd in the High Street o' Edinburgh," said the woman proudly. "But I'm thinking I hadn't told you that, and it's no likely you would be able to guess it from my tongue. What's it to be? Salt cod and beans, or will it be yams and a red sausage?"

"You gave the Scotchman something better than any of these, didn't you?" asked Scarborough.

"Oh, him! He was a pernickety body, and gave me a lot o' trouble getting things for him. I couldna' please him with anything, until I put an eel from the Hot River before him. He liked that."

"I like eels too," said Scarborough, "and I have been told that the worm mud of the Ribeira Quente breeds the best in the world."

"Ay, but I havena one in the house. Not but what there might be one, or even two, in the eel baskets; but my guidman hasn't been down to the river yet to see."

In the end Scarborough breakfasted off bread and wine, but when the landlady learned that three ladies were coming, she promised to have a proper meal, including fried eels from the Hot River, ready for the whole party in an hour. Scarborough drew her out on the subject of the likes and dislikes of the Scotchman, for he saw that Gillies had [illegible] his meals here, [illegible] in Ponta Delgada, and that the woman had resented this. He did not find it necessary to ask her questions about Gillies' movements during the time that he stayed in her house; she had a grievance, and was voluble about it, and Scarborough let her rattle on while he munched his breakfast.

However, beyond the fact that Gillies had not been seen in the district since yesterday morning, he learned little. The woman knew nothing of how he spent his time when he was there, except he was often seen near the edge of the lake, fishing in the water with a net at the end of a pole. He never caught anything, she expected anybody would, and wasn't likely to, with such a useless way of fishing.

When she showed signs of becoming [illegible] and had started [illegible] it came about that she, a respectable Edinburgh woman with a Free Kirk upbringing, was now the wife of a Portuguese innkeeper, Scarborough remembered hurriedly that he had finished his meal, and must go. Her history might possibly be interesting, but he did not wait to hear it. Other things of greater importance filled his thoughts just now.

He returned to where he had left Varney under the maize-cobs.

"Gillies goes fishing at the edge of the lake with a net at the end of a long pole," said he. "What does that mean, Phil?"

"That the diamonds are hidden in the water," said Varney promptly.

"But he has given up the occupation since yesterday morning. Got an interpretation of that?"

"Yes. Either he has found them and is off—or he hasn't, and is fishing somewhere else."

"In either case we are wasting time by staying here?"

"Shouldn't wonder," said Varney calmly. "But we must wait for the girls anyway. What have you discovered?"

Scarborough told him what the Scotchwoman had said.

"Then I tell you what," said Varney. "When the girls come, we'll have that meal you've ordered for us, and then we'll ride back to the Casa Davis to hear how the photographic experiment has turned out. We can't go chasing Gillies aimlessly about the island of San Miguel, because we don't know which way he's gone; but if Davis has managed to interpret the message on the scratched stone, we shall have something to guide us. If the stone tells us where to go, we'll go there, and I hope we won't find that Gillies is before us."

"Why should he be? He doesn't know about the stone."

"No but maybe the stolen plan wasn't quite so indefinite as Mrs. Carrington says it was. It is since he has had it in his possession that he has ceased to work here. We shall have to give up the happy day of hunting in couples that we had arranged. That's the pity," he added ruefully.

"You can ride with Muriel," said Scarborough laughing. "You've earned it. I'll look after the other two."

"Thanks, old man," said Varney, brightening at once. "I'll take you at that!"

Half an hour later the girls arrived, and when they heard what Scarborough had learned at the inn, they agreed that Varney's proposal was the right one. However, when they were on the point of remounting their machines to ride back to Casa Davis, Mona pointed with an exclamation to a figure that was limping down the hill towards them.

"It's Val B.!" she cried. "Then what has become of Mrs. Carrington?"

"I think he's hurt," said Scarborough, anxiously. "I'll ride on and meet him."

He brought the circus man back to the group by the door of the inn, and after a long draught of wine, Val B. Montague opened his mouth to explain.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he said, "you see before you a cock-sure fool who has been taken down a peg. I dictated a letter of introduction last night, did I?- in which I got our friend here to say that Our Mr. Montague was a man in whose ability he had entire faith! Mr. Scarborough, sir, I was a fool. I also stated, I believe, that it was going to be my pie. 'Tisn't my pie at all, as it turns out; it's the widow's."

He paused and took another long drink.

"She has given you the slip?" asked Mona.

"Where is she?" asked Scarborough.

Montague looked from one to the other.

"No," he said. "She did not give me the slip. She merely rode away from me on her own donkey, and told me I wasn't to follow, and I didn't care to disobey her. Where is she? I don't know. The only thing I am absolutely sure of is that Our Mr. Montague, of Val B. Montague's American Circus Combination, has been made a complete fool of, and that by a woman whom he thought all the time that he was himself fooling. Anybody like to kick me?"

"Tell us what has happened," said Elsa.

"This!" he answered. "Your mother and the scoundrel Gillies have joined forces; and the man in whose ability Mr. Scarborough expressed entire confidence, allowed them to do it."

CHAPTER XXIII.

The Widow Makes the Pie

"Mrs. Carrington and Gillies have joined forces!" Scarborough repeated with dismay, and the others echoed his exclamation of astonishment.

"That was what I said, sir," responded Montague. "And it struck me, from what I saw of the pair of them, that it will be a strong coalition. More fool I for letting it come about! Guess you're sorry you enlisted me as a recruit, aren't you?"

"Are you hurt?" asked Mona anxiously.

"Twisted my ankle on a stone, and got a large blister on my heel, that's all. I'm a poor walker, and walking wasn't part of my plan for the day. The widow arranged that too, and didn't consult me about my preferences."

"Give us the tale, Montague, and we'll condole with you afterwards," said Varney.

"The tale, sir, is one that I am ashamed of," said Montague; "but I suppose you've got to know it. After Mr. Scarborough had started this morning, without waiting for breakfast, as he is young enough and foolish enough to be imprudent in these matters, I made a good breakfast and then started myself. When I reached the Chinelas I found it would have been better if I had hurried, for the widow had already gone into the town of Ribeira Grande. I had let her get ahead of me at the start, you see. However, I followed at once, and found her at the livery stables, bargaining for a carriage to take her to Las Furnas. I presented my letter of introduction, and, as Mr. Scott and Mr. Scarborough warned me last night would be the case, she laughed at me. However, I don't mind that; in fact I had counted upon her doing so, and should have been put out if she hadn't. I improved the opportunity of her laughter to make a quaint and possibly outrageous remark or two, and thereby succeeded in amusing her further. She saw that I was a man of some originality of thought, and she was piqued into answering me in my own vein. That again was what I wanted. We indulged in a regular duel of badinage in that stable yard, and if a third party had been there to listen, I think he would have agreed with my opinion, that in the clash of wit against wit, we both emitted some quite brilliant sparks of fancy. The result was what I had foreseen; the widow was pleased with herself, and began to think that an hour or two spent in my company would be interesting and stimulating. I worked hard to keep that impression alive in her mind, until I had got her to agree to what I wanted; and I succeeded—as I had of course thought I should—in doing so.

"She accepted my offer to be her cicerone, and she even adopted my suggestion that we should go, not in a carriage, but on donkeys. I pointed out that the carriage road made a long sweep round, whereas on donkeys we could take a short cut across the hills which I knew of. Moreover the San Miguel donkeys are good, and are the favorite instruments of travel in these parts; and when one is in Rome—it was not necessary to argue further; she saw the advantage of my proposal, and I think there was a certain quaintness in the idea which pleased her. I ordered the donkeys, and I had a private word with their owner first.

"Your mother, Miss Carrington, is a brilliant conversationalist, when she meets with someone who is capable of appreciating and replying to her sallies; and if I may say so without undue boasting, I think she found that person in me. Indeed, had not past experience justified me in relying to a certain extent on my own powers in this respect, I should have made a different plan. I think we both enjoyed the ride, at any rate in its earlier stages. I know, at least, that I did.

"After about three miles, the beast she was riding went dead lame. It was a contingency for which I was not unprepared. In fact, in my private words with the man from whom we had hired the donkeys, I had stipulated expressly that the one be supplied to the lady should not be able to go five miles without breaking down. The man performed more than his contract, for it broke down, as I say, in three.

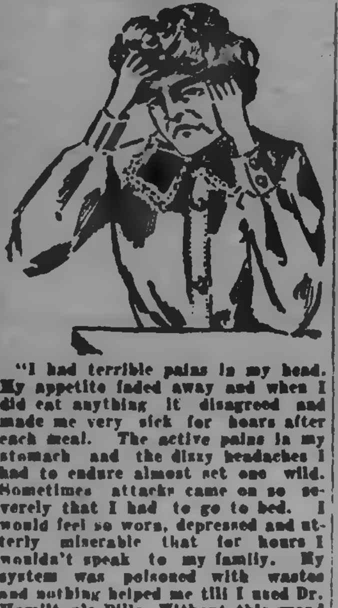
DIZZY HEADACHES CURED IN ONE NIGHT

IF TROUBLED WITH HEAD-FULLNESS, RINGING NOISES, SPECS BEFORE THE EYES, THE STOMACH IS AT FAULT.



"I had terrible pains in my head. My appetite faded away and when I did eat anything it disagreed and made me very sick for hours after each meal. The active pains in my stomach and the dizzy headaches I had to endure almost set one wild. Sometimes attacks came on so severely that I had to go to bed. I would feel so worn, depressed and utterly miserable that for hours I wouldn't speak to my family. My system was poisoned with wastes and nothing helped me till I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Without this grand system-cleaning remedy I would be sick, but each day brought me better health and spirits. I was cured and made strong, ruddy and healthy looking as one could wish, and will always use and recommend Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

CONSCIENCE AND LAW.

In the claim by clergy and laity of the Roman Catholic faith that the Ne Temere decree is a matter binding on the Roman Catholic conscience only, there is ambiguity, says The News. Mr. Justice Charbonneau's view is expressed in the same words. But although the decree was binding on Mr. and Mrs. Hebert's consciences and although they violated it knowingly, the judge does not say that they were not legally married. He makes a clear distinction between a matter of conscience and a matter of law. Mgr. Bruchesi, the Archbishop, declared that the marriage was null and void. Because the Heberts had failed to observe the form prescribed by the Church, he said that there had been no marriage. Tdat means that the child was illegitimate. The civil law, as interpreted by the judge holds that a marriage has taken place and that the child is legitimate. Is it possible for a couple to be married outside the church door and unmarried within?

If the King recognizes their marriage as affected through the license of his advisers, what right has any Church to demur? The Archbishop of Montreal would be justified in disciplining Catholics for marrying in defiance of the Church rebulations, but he goes too far in this country when he presumes to doubt the competency of the King's representatives and declares the marriage null. In that case disciplining includes an arrogation to himself of the Crown.

The assertion that the judgment has to do with civil law while the action of the Archbishop was taken under ecclesiastical law is begging the question. Ecclesiastical law has no force in this country save as it squares with civil law. If civil law says that the Heberts are married there can be no nullity by ecclesiastical law. Indeed, it might be possible, if the Church authorities insisted on the force of their own decree of annulment, to bring the clergy to court to show cause for contempt. It is impossible to allow "a mere matter of conscience" to become a matter of law or to encroach in the least degree upon the field where civil law is supreme.

The Church is competent to express its preference for a certain form of betrothal and marriage. If it imposes no radical penalties, for disobedience, the thing remains a matter of conscience, and up to that point it is not a question of general interest to the community. But the penalty of a decree of nullity is beyond the competency of the Church and wholly in the powers of the Crown. Once the Church issues such a decree the question becomes one of civil law and of vital interest to Every British subject.

Editorial Notes

The birth rate in England and Wales has dropped off materially during 1911. The married folks of the Mother Country should follow the example set in Peterborough!

Portugal, Brazil and Ecuador have a movement on hand to increase the price of cocoa. Good Ceasar's ghost! If the Governments of different countries continue to put up the prices of living, where will be long-suffering Canucks come out?

Paris, France, has a famine in copper coins just now. Their banks should apply to the average Peterborough newsboy, and the city on the Seine would quickly learn where to raise coppers.

The Canadian Journal of Commerce one of Canada's leading financial papers, quotes the prices for the Dominion on chickens as 12c to 15c. We would like to see the editor or reporter of the J. of C. buy chickens here at the price quoted.

Lindsay Lost Her Blizzard.

A Lindsay paper of last issue gives a graphic description of a blizzard they had there. The paper says, "Who would have thought such a blizzard could have blown? where did it go?" To which The Times might add, that this blame blizzard probably got lost looking for people on Kent street. It lost its ambition crossing that prairie in search of victims to freeze, and then, whirling down by the river, caught a sight of the scugog That stumped it!

Accident Near Haliburton.

Do you know where Haliburton is? It's a village somewhere between the northern boundary of Lindsay and where Peary claims to have found the North Pole, and got busy with his thermos bottle. Well, that far-off northern village had a little excitement a few days ago. A double headed train, near the village met with an accident. Fortunately no lives were lost. The engines and the snowploughs were damaged and the mental equilibrium of the village, over a real occurrence, is just returning to normal conditions.

Local Grocer Gets Bad Fall.

Now, you, our readers, all know there was a miniature blizzard here yesterday. Before that storm of wind and snow struck the city, our pavements were as slippery as the statements of the average stock company shares seller. Well, yesterday at about 2 p.m., a well known local grocer was cautiously feeling his way along Water street. The treacherous glassy footing on the pavement was covered by a drift of possibly three quarters of an inch of snow. Near the post office, his rubber-covered feet sped heavenwards, whilst his head descended towards the Antipodies. He was half stunned, but recovered. As he resumed normal position, the dispenser of groceries arose and remarked "I've often heard from my mother 'that wicked stand in slippery places.' By the great ghost of the North Pole Bear, I'll swear that to-day, the righteous also stand in this city in —— slippery places."

NO WONDER SHE FAINTED

The smoke curled out of the windows in thick, black clouds. Flames shot out, and it was evident that the building was doomed. But the firemen were working bravely, and all the men, women, and children were saved.

Suddenly a young woman rushed up to a fireman, her hair hanging down her back and her eyes wide open with terror.

"Save it!" she cried, pointing to a second-storey window. "Save it, for it is not mine."

With a fearless smile the fireman mounted the ladder, amid the cheers of the people.

"How old was it?" asked a lady of the distressed one.

"Only a month, and he is coming back without it!"

"Madam," said the fireman, "I could find no child."

"Child!" screamed the woman. "I said nothing about a child."

"What, then?" asked the puzzled fireman.

"A bike I had on the hire system."

Then she fainted.

For 30 Years the Standard Remedy for Diseases of Mucous Membranes

Experienced pharmacists will tell you Big G is the accepted standard remedy for diseases of mucous membranes—discharges from the nose, throat and urinary organs. Avoid substitutes. To experiment is dangerous. Big G, used everywhere since 1880, has proved safe and reliable. Non-poisonous, antiseptic and tonic in its properties, containing no silver nitrate, zinc sulphate, alcohol, cocaine, or any narcotic. It may be used full strength without fear. Why not cure yourself? Sold by druggists; or we ship express prepaid, upon receipt of $1. Full particulars enclosed with each bottle or mailed sealed in plain envelope on request.

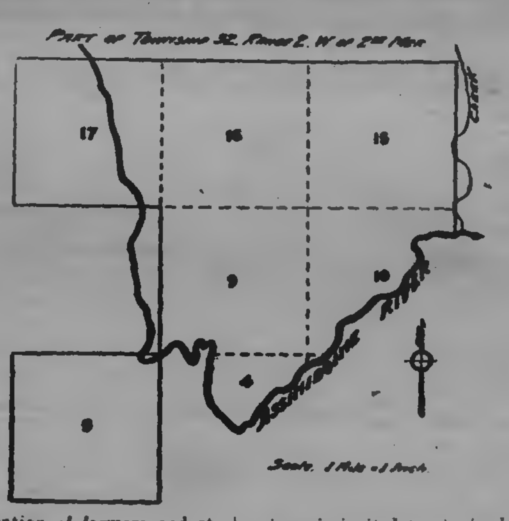
SASKATCHEWAN GRAIN AND RANCH LANDS



The attention of farmers and stock raisers is invited to the lands shown in the above plan.

The lands are situate in the Port Pelly District, Northern Saskatchewan, long known as probably the richest farming district in the Province. The parcel, which contains approximately 3,681 ACRES in one compact block, is watered on the west and south sides by the Assiniboine River, and by a large creek on the east. It is well wooded, thus assuring as well as evidencing ample rainfall, and plentiful supply of cheap fuel. It is undulating and well drained, having an elevation above the river, and rising gradually from it to a heightof about 60 feet, and provides many beautiful residential sites.

In the advantages it offers for mixed farming it is unique, there being some 2,400 acres clear and ready for the plow, while the balance consists of timber and excellent pasture land, admirably suited to stock-raising. The soil is a rich, black loam, from 8 to 10 inches in thickness, resting on a clay subsoil, except along the river, where it is arich sandy loam. Crops produced on similar neighboring lands are phenomenal for their quantity and quality.

The location is within ten miles of Mikado Station, on the main line between Winnipeg and Edmonton, of the Canadian Northern Railway, with good trails leading to it, and within a short distance of a school, While the settlement going on in the neighborhood is rapidly adding all the adjuncts of an up-to-date farming community.

This is an opportunity for a man with capital, business ability and practical experience. Such a man should clear his whole investment, including all improvements and equipment, in four or five years at the outside. And now is the time to purchase, as the price will shortly be advanced $5.00 per acre. Experienced men predict this land will be worth $50.00 per acre within ten years. Lands immediately adjoining, which last spring could have been bought for $14.00, are held to-day at $20.00 and $25.00 per acre.

We are also offering some 1,100 acres additional, in separate parcels of three half sections, and one quarter sections, situate in the same locality as above.

These lands were selected for the excellence of their location and the magnificent quality of their soil, which latter the official records of the Indian Agency demonstrate.

Another Kick Over That Clock.

Yesterday morning a George street merchant hailed a Times representative and asked "why in the name of business and common sense (of course his language was a trifle louder) does not the official in charge take a club or put a charge of dynamite behind the hands of the Post Office clock. I'm sick of seeing these hands at 2.10 for four consecutive days!"

SUPERSTITIOUS DRIVERS

An Ordinary Incident Frequently Unnerves Them

Superstition plays an important part in the career of every automobile dare-devil or speed maniac as he is often called. An ordinary incident which would not so much as attract the attention of the average man will cause the great driver to fret and often unnerve him until he is unfit to start in one of the long grinds which make up most of the interesting chapters in gasoline history.

Barney Oldfield, the best known of all our great American drivers and really the father of the speed game in this country, never starts in a race without having tucked safely away in the pocket in his shirt next to his heart a beautiful prayer which his wife gave him several years ago.

David Bruce-Brown, winner of the Grand Prize, and one of the greatest road drivers in the world, believes a kiss from his mother brings him good luck and he never starts on a long grind without bidding her the last good-bye.

The late Lewis Strang, who was largely responsible for the wonderful speed of the Case car wore a heirloom in the shape of a ring. He was always afraid in a touring car, and finally was killed while travelling along a country road at a speed less than five miles an hour.

Louis Disbrow, who succeeds Strang on the Case racing team, and probably the greatest all-round track and road driver in the world to-day, says that the figure five has played an important part in his career.

Bobcaygeon Independent on the Thaw

Bobcaygeon Independent: The delightful break of summer warmth that floated in during last week, started the sparrows singing, the hens cackling, at 2½c per cackle, the wood pecker tapping his merry tattoo on the electric poles, and actually opened the ice cream parlours. When the gallants are called upon to steer their ownest owns to the chilled goods and fudge parlours in February, it eases off the storm jolts.

BROKE BABY'S BONES TO MAKE HIM ATHLETE

Humane Society Witnesses Private Performance, But Will Not Interfere With Career.

Humane society officers at Cincinnati witnessed a private performance given by a three-year-old boy whose ankles and wrists had been broken when he was ten days old in order to make him an acrobat and wrestler. The youngster is the son of R. G. Neof, a Greek, who claims that he was a student of physical culture in Greece. Neof told the officers that he had broken the wrists and ankles of his son when he was ten days old and a month later began training the baby for an athletic career. In his performance the Neof child dislocated his ankles and wrists at will and caused them to assume many unnatural positions. By bending backwards with hands and feet on the floor in a wrestler's bridge, the child easily supported 150 pounds on his chest. The humane officers decided not to interfere with Neof's plan of developing the child, but exacted a promise that no public exhibition would be given by the boy for at least five years.

TIGER SHOOTING

Thrilling Episodes in Connection With This Rare Sport

It is probable that the King's bag in the Nepal hunting grounds constituted a record in big game shooting, says an English correspondent. Thirty tigers, and thirteen rhinos, in a little more than a week was certainly a wonderful achievement. But then it is to be remembered that his Majesty is one of the finest shots, either with gun or rifle, now living. The late Maharajah of Cooch Behar in his very interesting book on sport in his country, gives seven tigers in a day—three in the morning, and four in the afternoon—as the record bag during 37 years of shooting in his preserves. This happened in 1907, when Lord and Lady Minto were shooting in the Terai. Not all of these tigers, however, were full grown. The biggest of the day, a tigress, was knocked over by Lady Minto, while galloping away, at over 60 yards distance, a very fine performance even for a male rifle shot. During the proceedings in the Nepal Terai, where the King has enjoyed his sport, a very large number of elephants have been employed to drive in the game and beat the enormous jungle thoroughly. Some people seem to imagine that these shoots from elephant backs are quite free from risk. This is by no means the case. The Maharajah of Cooch Behar gives several instances of mishaps. In one case a tiger charging in among the elephants, mauled several badly before he was killed. A mahout, in this scrimmage, lost his seat and fell actually on top of the tiger, who was so astonished that he bolted away, to be secured later. In instance, where an enraged tiger was charging his pursuers, one elephant was [illegible] clean over by another and an English sportsman being split was for some time in a very awkward predicament on foot and unarmed in close proximity to "stripes" in his most ferocious mood. Luckily the sportsman was presently rescued. The Indian rhinoceros also often charges, and occasionally gores the hunting elephants very severely.

The King's Plate.

The Kings Plate, run for each year at Toronto in May, has become not alone the most ancient annual fixture run continuously on this continent, but also the most valuable national race. It is a long cry back more than half a century, when Don Juan won the first Queen's Plate and the certificate for $262.60 that went with it was thought a princely fortune. Little then did the late King Edward, at the time Prince of Wales, imagine the service he was rendering alike the turf in Canada, the industry of horsebreeding and the pleasure, sport and health of the people of this great country.

Polo is making great headway in Europe. Spain has several good clubs and has sent teams to play in Britain. Belgium, Australia and Hungary also have clubs.

The next is civility. Treat rich and poor alike. The poor man's twenty shillings is as good as the rich man's sovereign. The workman's wife with her basket on her arm is entitled to as much respect as the lady who comes in her carriage.

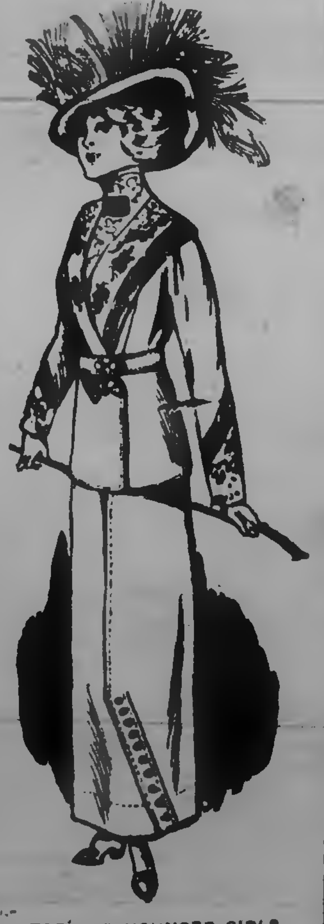
And as an illustration of the benefit of humility I will tell you the following story of Benjamin Franklin, who, when Ambassador for the United States at the French Court, speaking to a young man, said: "The last time I saw your father, he received me in his study. As I was leaving he showed me a short way out of the house through a narrow passage crossed by a beam overhead. He suddenly cried, 'Stoop! Stoop!' I did not understand what he meant until I felt my head thump against the beam. He was a man who never failed to give good advice. 'You are going,' he said, 'and have to go through the world. Stoop as you go through it, and you will miss many hard thumps.'"

Thirdly, I would recommend punctuality, which is said to be the soul of business. It is said of Charles Lamb, who at one time held a Government appointment, and who was proverbial for coming in late, that one morning, being later than usual, his superior found fault. Lamb offered this excuse: "If I do come late in the morning I try to make up for it by leaving early in the afternoon." This was a good joke, but hardly the style of business to gain promotion. If you stick to business, business will stick to you.

But all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy, as the saying goes, so I would recommend a useful hobby and moderate recreations.

I have always taken a keen interest in outdoor sports. In the old Glasgow days rowing and sailing on the Clyde were to me a great delight, both physically and mentally. It was after the defeat of the Thistle in 1887 that I first resolved to build a challenger for the Cup won by America. Since then, as everyone knows, I have tried three times, and failed on each occasion. We shall never win back the Cup until as great a builder as Herreshoff arises in Great Britain. It has been the boats, not the crews, that have won the races. The sailors on board the three Shamrocks were the finest in the world. Apart from Herreshoff our designers are equal, if not superior, to those of America. Mr. Fife and the late Mr. Watson did their [illegible] were as anxious to win the Cup as I was. It is a mistake to say that the American boats could not stand the stress of a voyage across the Atlantic. Boats capable of carrying such [illegible] sails could go anywhere if rigged up as were the Shamrocks. I hope yet to bring back the Cup.

Finally, let me say that at the beginning of my career, when I acted as my own salesman, and then my own errand boy after the shop was closed at night, I laid down a few hard and fast rules which were the recipe for my success. These were: Be honest. Keep pushing. Use judgment. Treat your customers well.



FOR THE YOUNGER GIRLS

The Norfolk suit seems to belong exclusively to the younger girls, and to them this model will be especially pleasing. For color combination a dark blue serge with collar and cuffs of embroidered ecru linen would be good-looking and stylish.

NO PLAY, NO PAY

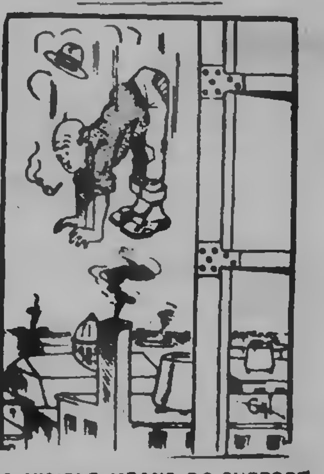
Some little time ago a stranger strolled into a billiard-room of one of our largest hotels, and was immediately accosted by a youth, who challenged him to a game of 100 up.

Nothing loth, the stranger accepted, won the toss for first shot, went to the table, and did not leave till he had amassed 102, and was still in play.

He then noticed that his would-be opponent had put away his cue, and was making for the door.

"Hi, there, young fellow," he called; "who's paying for this game?"

"Not me, you bet. No play, no pay! is my motto, and when I pay to be a spectator, I'll have a reserved seat for my money, and not stand holding a cue, like a blooming marker!"



NO VISIBLE MEANS OF SUPPORT

WHAT THEY WOULD DO

The captain of a certain pleasure-steamer related an amusing yarn of one of his stokers, who was not given to wasting words:

On a sultry afternoon the stoker had popped up on deck for a breath of fresh air, when he was buttonholed by an inquisitive old lady, and the subsequent conversation was carried on in this fashion:

Old Lady:—"Are you the stoker, my man?"

Stoker nods.

"Aren't you afraid of an accident, leaving your boilers to look after themselves?"

"No."

"But I—I thought there was grave danger. If the boilers get over-heated, what would they do?"

"Bust!"

"Yes; but—but what would you do? What would we all do?"

"Die!"

And for the rest of the voyage the old lady was as silent as the stoker.

DRILLED HIM

Even an extremely aggressive enemy can be conquered by strategy; it is only a question of employing the stratagem fitted to the case.

An open-air preacher of East London understood this, and his stratagem fitted to a charm. He was addressing a crowd, when a soldier, who had been drinking, came up and ridiculed the service. Finding it was useless to ignore the man, the preacher said:

"Ah, my friend, you're no soldier. No servant of the King would get drunk and interrupt a peaceful service."

The man said he was a soldier, and asked the preacher to test him.

"Very well," was the reply, "I will. Now, then. Attention!"

This the soldier did as well as his condition would allow.

"About—turn!"

This order was also obeyed, though with some trouble.

"Quick march!"

And off went the valiant soldier, marching down the road at a quick pace, while the preacher returned to his address.

Canada has 21,600,000 acres of peat bogs. Why in the name of the Almighty dollar, does not some of that peat come to Peterborough to compete (pardon the pun) with the price of coal here?

Those who complain that there is excessive use of stimulants in Peterborough should visit Port Arthur. It is said that for every cork drawn in this city, in Port Arthur, enough are extracted to make a buoy.

"Love, Laughter and Life"

HOW TO BE A SUCCESSFUL WIFE

The wife of Maeterlinck, the famous Belgian dramatist, who, as Georgette Leblanc, earned considerable fame as an actress prior to her marriage, claims to have discovered the real secrets of domestic happiness, and in the following ten commandments for wives she tells how other ladies may make successful wives:—

1. Remember always that the true wife is the inseparable half of the only complete human unit, in which two small and imperfect individualities have become merged in a large and perfect one.
2. Each half of the welded whole retains special functions; yours are to discern, to anticipate, to yield, to cheer, to soothe—and thus to strengthen.
3. Never trust to hirelings the essentials of your husband's physical well-being; understand, and frequently practise, the art of selecting and preparing his food.
4. Be sure each day that his garments are whole and clean and suited to the season.
5. Constitute yourself an infallible barometer whereby to forecast and render harmless those electrical disturbances peculiar to the married state.
6. Be to your husband's dark moods the subtle, unsuspected antidote; to his joyous mood the companion spirit of joy.
7. Save your caress until you perceive that his dinner has been without a flaw; kisses to a hungry man are like froth to a parched tongue.
8. Your tongue for assent; for argument use only your eyes.
9. If you would convince your husband that you are a better actress than Bernhardt, a better dancer than Pavlova, prove to him that you are a better cook than M. Escoffier.

NEW TWEEDS

Some of the Smartest of the New Patterns

Tweed coats and skirts are very popular just now, both for town and country wear. The smartest of the new patterns shows a rough surface, and very decided colors, such as orange and black, or black and white flecked with bright blue or vivid scarlet, are in high favor. In nearly every case costumes made of "loud" tweeds are toned down by the addition of a black velvet collar, while large black velvet buttons and immense imitation button-holes are a feature of trimming much in vogue for tweed coats and skirts just now.

PUMPKIN PIE

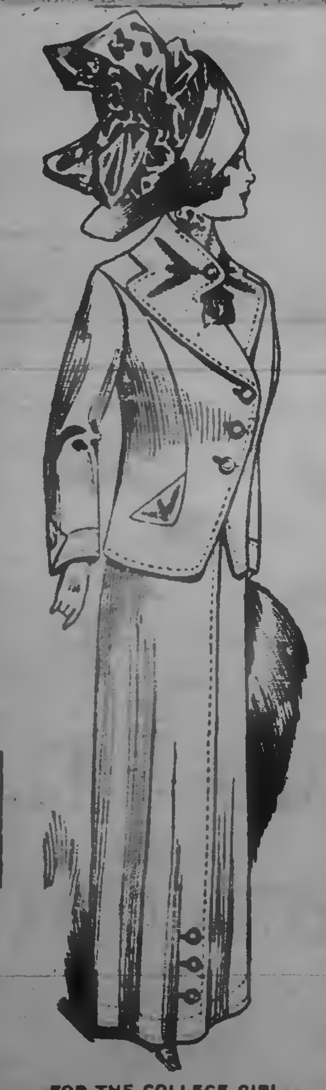
One cup pumpkin, cooked fine; one egg, one level tablespoonful of flour, two-thirds of a cupful of sugar or sweeter if desired, a pinch of salt, one-half teaspoonful ginger, one-quarter teaspoonful cinnamon or allspice, enough milk to fill one pie. Bake with lower crust only and brown slightly on top.

Tart Filling

Lemon or orange paste for tarts: Juice of one lemon or orange and pulp, one egg, one cupful of sugar, one tablespoonful of melted butter. Set it in boiling water to thicken. Put on the tart crusts. If they are deep enough this can be frosted.

Apple Nectar

This is a very nice drink for children. Bake six large apples without paring; when done, put them in a jar and pour over three pints of boiling water, add a little grated lemon, and four or five cloves. When cool, strain, and sweeten with honey.



FOR THE COLLEGE GIRL

Here is a suit in heavy serge made almost plain save a very little braiding on collar and shaped inset pieces on each side of coat. Its chief charm, however, lies in the splendid lines and effective arrangement of coat collar and revers. Buttons serve as decoration on skirt and jacket. Suits of this type are shown in several shades, but in each instance the braiding is done in black.

GAS JET DRIVES FAN

Runs as Long as Desired Without Heat or Noise

At this season in particular the news that a portable fan driven by an air motor has been placed on the market is of especial interest. The apparatus has been invented by a New York man, and the motive power is the flame of an ordinary gas jet. The motor is a little engine operated by the simple process of the expansion and contraction of air, and it drives a fan big enough to keep the air fresh in a whole room. The gas flame expands the air and forces out the piston of the motor, and as the air is contracted by the cooling effect of the fan the piston is drawn back again. This operation completes one revolution of the fan, and speed enough for between 500 and 600 revolutions a minute can be obtained. A tube, like that used on a reading lamp, connects the fan with the gas burner, and the apparatus can be stood in any convenient place. A good feature is the absence of odor or any noise of exhaust.

PEACHES

Spiced Peaches

Peel seven pounds of fruit, but do not remove the stones; to one pint of cider vinegar add three and one-half pounds of sugar, one tablespoon of ground cinnamon, and one of mace, and one teaspoon of cloves. Tie the spices in a bag. Cook the vinegar, spices and sugar for fifteen minutes, then add the peaches, a few at a time, and cook until tender; pack in jars, pour over them the scalding syrup and cover closely. Let them stand twenty-four hours, then drain, cook the syrup ten minutes, and again pour over the fruit. Put a plate over the fruit in the jar and tie a cloth over the top and keep in a cool place.

Peach Marmalade

Peel, stone, and cut ripe peaches in small pieces, take three-quarters of a pound of sugar to each pound of fruit, and one cup of water to each pound of sugar. Place on fire, boil, and skim; then put in the peaches and let them boil hard, stir and mash them until the whole is a thick mass. Then put in glass jars and seal.

Peach Catsup

Pare and quarter eight quarts of ripe peaches. Simmer the parings for thirty minutes in one pint of water. Then strain, add the peaches, and simmer thirty minutes longer. Add one and one-half cups of best cider vinegar and one-half cup of sugar, two teaspoons of ground cinnamon, and one-half teaspoon each of cloves, mace, and pepper. Simmer slowly until quite thick, and seal hot in pint jars.

Preserved Peaches

Allow three-quarters of a pound of sugar and one cupful of water to every pound of fruit. Peel the peaches, cut them in half if the fruit is large. Cook the sugar and water and skim, then drop in the fruit and cook until tender. Take out carefully and pack in heated glass jars; boil the syrup until thick and clear, then strain over the fruit and seal at once.

Grape Juice

To two gallons of grapes put three quarts of water; cover and let boil until grapes break. Steam, and to six quarts of juice add two pounds of granulated sugar. Let come to a boil, skim, put into bottles hot, and seal.

THE Novelist AND The Girl

By Elise Nokes

In a small, bare attic room in North Edinburgh a girl was sitting at a table. Her elbows rested upon its edge, her chin was in her hands, and she was staring into the wavering candle-flame with a hopeless expression. The manuscript at her elbow, recently torn from its wrapper, with the slip containing the editor's printed regrets, told their own tale.

She was a young girl—twenty-four, perhaps—with a pale face and a tired, drooping mouth. There was nothing particularly attractive about her, save for her eyes—dark eyes, expressive because of the knowledge that comes to a lonely girl striving for a place in the world.

She had been striving for two years, since her mother's death had left her alone and already she was weary of the struggle. She could remember a time during her father's life when, in their country home, she had enjoyed a modest comfort. Since then she had known actual want, she had had difficlty in earning even bread; and women can scarcely live by bread alone, even when there is a thin scraping of butter on it.

Elaine Raeburn withdrew her eyes from the candle at last. Reaching wearily across the table, she picked up a copy of a magazine some two months old. It contained her last success a short sketch, two pages in length, for which she had received a guinea. She could recall her joy at its acceptance.

But it was not at her own work that she now opened its pages. It was at an illustrated interview with a noted Scotch writer of fiction, whose name was becoming familiar to the magazine public. He was not a great writer, but a very popular one. In the article there were photographs and letterpress descriptive of his dining-room, his library, his study.

Moreover, it contained the information that his literary work was the product only of his spare hours; that during the day he made a handsome income as a manager in a big bank. A photo of the man himself at work before an American desk finished the article.

Elaine had read it before, but now she found herself scanning it with indignation and passionate hatred. Failure and hunger had done their work, and she was in no condition to think clearly.

To her at that moment, it seemed a monstrous thing that the man, already in receipt of a comfortable income, should enter into competition with her, and with those like her, who depended upon their pens alone for a bare subsistence. It was men like him who made her task so hard, so seemingly impossible.

The thing was intolerable—it was sheer cruelty! It could only be the result of want of thought on his part. If he knew what he was doing he would stop. Suddenly she clenched her hands. He should know. She would tell him herself!

The idea, once it had taken hold, gripped her fast. She knew where he lived. It was more than two miles away, but what matter? She told herself over and over again that he should know, as she walked swiftly along the streets, in which the lamps had just been lit, drawing her thin summer coat closer about her, to shield her from the bitter cold of the winter's evening.

She reached the house, and with purposeful eyes and tightly pressed lips, walked up to the door and rang the bell.

A man servant opened the door. He listened without surprise to her request to see his master, and showed her into a room.

"Mr. Graham is not home yet," he explained; "but we are expecting him every moment. What name shall I say?"

"It doesn't matter," she answered. "Mr. Graham wouldn't know me."

The man bowed and departed. Left alone, Elaine looked around the study. It was the study—she recognized it from the photograph. There was the roll-top desk, and beside it on a small table a typewriter. The room was comfortable—even luxurious.

Mr. Graham arrived, closed the door and came forward briskly.

"Good evening," he said.

"Excuse me," he said, brusquely, "I have a note to write."

He sat down at the desk and scribbled busily. She was meditating the possibility of flight when he turned around.

"Now," he said, "if you will tell me your name?"

"Raeburn," she answered, stammering.

"You wished to see me——"

"You earn a good living in a bank, and yet you write. You write and take the bread out of the mouths of people like me, who have no other way of earning a living than by writing. It is because of you that we cannot get our stories published; if you didn't write we might have a chance. That is what I came here to tell you. And I did take a sandwich because I was hungry, and I wish—I wish I hadn't now. I feel as though it would choke me. If you want to, you can send for the police and give me in charge. So, there!"

By the time she had finished her tirade the novelist was gazing at her with very wide eyes. Then he smiled—a very pleasant smile.

"Upon my word I was not aware of the harm I was doing. We must find some way of repairing it. You haven't a sample of your work with you, have you? That paper, for instance, that is sticking out of your pocket. Will you let me see it?"

She flushed up to the roots of her hair.

"I did not come here for help," she said ungraciously. "I came to tell you what I thought of you."

"And now you have done it. Well, let me see the manuscript. I should like to see some of your work."

She handed him the paper, and he sat down with it at the roll-top desk. She felt bitterly humiliated as she, too, sank into a chair. But, despite her anger against him, she was conscious of an intense desire to hear his opinion of her work.

When he had finished he folded the manuscript.

"The ending of your story is a disappointing one," he said, as she stood up to go. "There is a certain type of story that should always end with a marriage. Reconsider it in the light of that suggestion. And now I'll tell you what we will do. We'll collaborate in a few stories. You shall come here to tea to-morrow, and we will discuss the matter further. No, I will take no denial. Consider it as the pricking of a guilty conscience seeking means of reparation."

"Don't!" she murmured, ashamed; but her heart was light as she walked home to her attic lodging.

The meeting was the beginning of many. Her heart was filled with gratitude towards her new friend, and perhaps with some feeling warmer than gratitude, to which as yet she dared not put a name.

"You are better fitted to stand alone now," he told her one evening, as he looked over her manuscript. "I still detect a certain weakness in your endings. Let me direct your attention to this."

He handed her a magazine, open at a certain page. It contained a story by a well-konwn writer, but the tale was left unfinished. A note by the editor explained that a prize would be given for the ending most in accordance with the orginal author's ideas. All efforts were to be sent in by a certain date, which was given.

"But I'm too late for this," she said. "The day is past."

"There will be another in the next issue," he replied. "Promise me that you will try?"

Elaine gave the required promise.

She had a fortnight to wait before the next number of the magazine appeared. She found a copy on a bookstall, and opened it. Then she flushed a deep crimson, and stood rooted in indignation. The author's name was Garth Graham, and the story—was her own story!

A burning anger against him surged within her. He had pretended friendship, and all the time he had been laughing at her, had been making in her on the way home, and, sitting in her attic, she began to write the end of the story as she conceived it.

A bitter production it was. It took her some days to accomplish it, during which period she never went near him. On the evening on which it was completed, she folded it in an envelope, and took her way to his house. She found him at his desk in the study, correcting proofs. He looked round at her entrance, and rose.

"This is a pleasant surprise," he said. "I thought you were lost. You have not been here for an age."

"I shall not come here again," she answered. "I called to fulfil a promise. Here is my attempt to finish the story you wrote in the magazine that you showed me."

She threw the envelope towards him. He glanced at her, and smiled.

"Tell me the main line," he said. "I will read it later."

"I will," she said steadily. "When the girl in the story found that the man who had been kind to her merely wanted her that he might write a story about her, she called at his house and told him what she thought of him, and she said that she would never speak to him again."

"And that finished the story?" he queried.

She nodded. She could not trust herself to speak further.

He seemed not the least abashed or ashamed. His smile was broader than ever, and somehow she found it very hard not to smile back. Moreover, he was coming closer to her.

"I told you you were weak in your endings," he said. "You'll never get the prize with that. It won't do at all."

"Why?" she asked, with a half-hearted attempt at defiance.

"Because," he answered taking both her hands and looking intently into her eyes—"because if you wish to earn the prize, you must get as near as you can to the author's own ending. And, as I told you once before, there is a certain type of story which should always end with a marriage. And this story of yours and mine, sweetheart, is one of them."—Abbreviated from The Weekly Telegraph.

TO IRON EMBROIDERY

A woman who has some very beautiful Indian embroidered blouses always does them up herself at home, and they come out each time looking as good as new.

The ironing is the most important part, she says, and a special ironing cloth should be kept for this purpose.

A piece of heavy cotton felt, such as is used for covering a dining-room table, is the best thing to use as an ironing cloth. Fold it in two and fasten the edges together. The embroidery should be laid on this, right side down, then covered with a thin damp cloth, and ironed with a moderately-hot iron. The worked parts will stand out beautifully if treated in this way. After the cloth has served its purpose it should be wrapped in paper and laid away where it is not likely to get soiled or dusty. A clean cloth is half the battle.

DIRTY OVENS POISON FOOD.

When the top of the stove has been cleaned the oven must receive the same attention. Food cooked in an unclean oven cannot be wholesome. Have ready a pail of hot water and soda, and after removing the grid shelves or the plates scour the top and side of the oven. Then clean the shelves, and when dry replace them in the oven.

The Light Went Off.

On Friday night residents along Water street supplied with light by the Peterborough Light and Power Co., had to use candles, matches, coal oil lamps or anything they could use for light. One citizen living on that street declares that he used 136 matches whilst taking a trip to his bath room. Still that is probably an exaggeration.

Another Rural Mail Route.

Arrangements are rapidly reaching completion for a rural mail route from Peterborough along the Norwood Road, returning by what is locally known as the Block Road. Mr. J. A. This official considers that this addition to the County's mail service will soon be in operation.

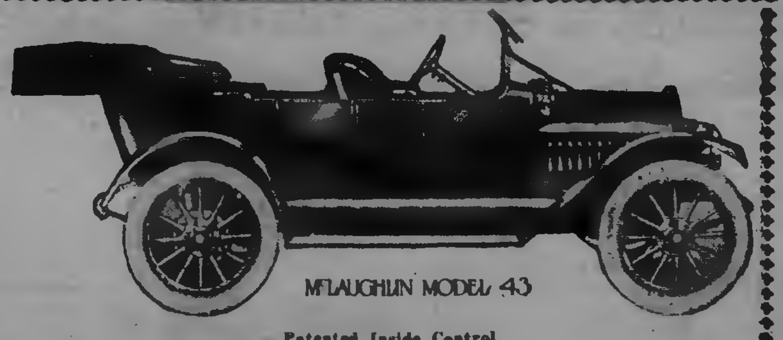
Class Distinction
in the
McLAUGHLIN-BUICK CARS



Service.

To be able to get what you want, where and when you want it, sums up what is meant by SERVICE in connection with automobiles. That is what you will get if you buy a McLaughlin-Buick car. Should your car need attention, or you meet with an accident and need repairs, we have branch houses in almost every large centre, and agencies in almost every leading town in Canada that carry parts and have facilities for taking care of your car.

You look somewhat bewildered at the many cars of different makers, each of whom claim their production to be the best. Certain it is they cannot all be the best. You will find upon close investigation, there is a great difference in cars. It is found particularly in their mechanism. One safe guide to the real merit of any machine is the degree of quietness and smoothness with which it runs.

Patented Inside Control.

To devise some plan of conveniently disposing of the brake pedals and control levers to the best advantage, yet out of the way of the driver, has been a matter that has caused car builders considerable thought. The McLaughlin-Buick 1912 design offers the only acceptable device. The grip handles are right at the driver's hand as its drops from the steering wheel, thus avoiding the necessity of reaching over the side of the car or even changing position. The levers are enclosed so they do not interfere with the free use of the brake pedals or chafe the limbs.

See our 1912 Models. Compare them, part by part with the other machines, prices considered, and we are satisfied you will do as the United States Goverment recently did in selecting a car for their War Department. With all the leading manufacturers' cars in competition, the cars were driven to a designated place and the drivers dismissed. The cars were tested part by part, each piece of their car being measured, tested and appraised by Government experts. One by one the cars were eliminated until THE BUICK STOOD ALONE, and another victory was added to the many it had one before. The Government Experts pronounced it to be the best of American made cars.

The largest automobile order on record was received by THE BUICK MOTOR CO., January 3rd, 1912. It was from the Pense Automobile Co., Minneapolis for 567 automobiles.

Death of Bobcaygeon Lady.

The friends of Mrs. W. Kennedy, of Bobcaygeon, in this city, and they are many, will regret to learn of that lady's death, in the rockbound village, from pneumonia. Dr. Wood, of Lindsay, and Dr. H. H. Boyd, attended the deceased, but death ended her sufferings on Friday evening.

Green Grass in February.

Mr. J. C. Shook, of this city, has shown the Times a bunch of green grass grown on his farm a short distance from Lethbridge, Alberta. This grass, known locally as Prairie grass standing four inches high was cut on the 16th of this month. Quite a difference from conditions existing in this particular part of Ontario.

Fire Brigade on Short Run.

Shortly after the average citizen had swallowed that second cup of tea or coffee, or put the cork-screw away after dinner, the fire laddies were given a run to 218 Wolfe street. A chemical engine put out the fire, but a cart load of sympathy is due to the brigade on their prompt response to the call in the cold weather.

A British Columbia Investment.

One of the strongest and most reliable firms in that far Province on the Pacific, is the Locators, Ltd., of Vancouver. Their advertisement in this issue is well worth serious consideration by those seeking investment at large interest on absolute securities. The company guarantees an annual interest of 8 per cent to investors.

Mr. Flavelle Well Received.

Lindsay Warder calls Mr. J. D. Flavelle, in three column heading, "The King of Curlers." Whilst that is possibly a little small, infinitisally and trifling approach to exaggeration Mr. Flavelle did well at Winnipeg. The only kings we know here are people with surnames spelled "King." We have a few batons, however, they are in the coal and chicken business.

Peterboro Compared With Brampton

Geo. Harle, a Brampton, Ont., man, in default of a $500 fine for selling in a no license municipality, has been sent to jail for three months. "If some of the men who sold liquor here under the Scott Act had been jailed in proportion to their sales, they would be up on the top of Victoria Park for years after Gabriel's trumpet sounded!" At least so said a local merchant yesterday.

Local Man in Northern Choir.

Mr. J. Harry Quinlan, who was recently moved to Prince Albert (Sask.) branch of the Bank of Ottawa, has had his musical talent already recognized. He was recently appointed leader of the Catholic Church choir in Prince Albert, the position having been recently made vacant. While in Peterborough he acceptably filled a similar position at St. Peter's Cathedral.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive Cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires as constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Local Curlers Busy To-day.

This is opening day of the Big Charlotte street Bonspiel. With seven sheets of good curling ice in readiness, the event should prove of great interest to curlers. There will be a primary and consolation class, and already a large number of local curlers have announced their intention of entering.

Four rinks will go to Orillia on Thursday to play off the second round in the Neil-sheppard fixture.

Fall of Local Church Bell.

St. Luke's church, whilst still carrying on its splendid work, is for the moment minus a church bell. On Sunday the sonorous appeal of that church to its communicants fell. The heavy bell went right through the pavement and its entire top was broken. This is hard luck for that enterprising church as this is the second time their bell has taken the facilis decensus terram.

The Clock Moves On.

Thank Providence and the Government powers that be also the local caretaker of the Post Office clock! Whomsoever, our thanks are due to, the point is, the P.O. clock, after a five days' slumber at 2.10 (whether a.m. or p.m. is not known) has once more resumed business and its hands have left 2.10 mark. Now, honest! Why should a public local utility, with the Government behind to pay the bill, deprive our citizens of what they are daily expecting?

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

Was there a blizzard in Peterborough yesterday? Well! Those northwest Provinces that blow about 60 below weather, have nothing to put over weather conditions here.

The four esteemed local exchanges has a so-called photograph of one of the leading judges of Quebec. The cut, as shown, would make the man a Beau Brummell, by comparison.

The "Belmonts" are to take the Pasteur treatment for hydrophobia. This does not refer to the famous local club, but to a father and children bitten by a dog in Babylon, N.Y.

It is rumored that the city officials have been round Peterborough assisting representatives of a manufacturing concern to procure a location for a proposed factory to be installed by the latter.

In another column of this issue appears an item of how $800 was spent in litigation over an $8 hog. There is at least one member of the porcine family who spends $800 a year on booze, while his wife wears an 80 cent kimona to cover a 30 cent pair of stays, played out two years ago.

The Princess Theatre, one of Peterborough's leading places of amusement has, for this week, secured the services of Mr. W. M. Donaldson, Detroit's celebrated baritone singer. Judging by the way Mr. Donaldson delighted the large audience last night at the Princess, Mr. King, the proprietor has made a wise choice.

Kingston Kold-foot Kick.

The Peterborough hockey players may do the rock act—go up quickly and come down quick. Still here, we would not, as does a Kingston paper, take up seven columns of a local paper, showing pictures of the local heroes, with the title "The Kingston-Frontenacs Lose to an Inferior Team." If you win, yell, yell like, well, yell, and your friends will yell with you. Still if you happen to lose, don't for goodness sake kick over the team that whips you, as being inferior.

Child's Narrow Escape.

Little nine year old Violet Tobin, daughter of Mr. Patrick Tobin, of Donegal street, had a close call from death or terrible injury on Sunday night. The child who was in a neighbor's house had her apparel catch fire. Messrs. Comstock's ambulance took the injured child to St. Joseph's hospital, where her burns were attended to by Dr. Gallivan. It seems she tried to rebuild a half dead fire and, the fire picking up quickly her clothing became ignited. Yesterday evening, the hospital authorities reported her as doing as well as can be expected.

Health and Beauty Advice

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN.

L.T.: From what you say, I judge your trouble is eczema, but a rash caused by the too profuse use of face powder, and the only remedy is to employ a good massage cream to thoroughly cleanse the skin of local impurities. A greaseless cream-jelly of exceptional value can be made at little cost by stirring two teaspoonfuls glycerine in a half-pint cold water, and adding one ounce of almozoin. Let stand over night, then apply to face, neck and arms and massage in thoroughly. A few such treatments rid the skin of roughness, eradicate pimples and blackheads and dispel sallowness, while the complexion will take on a youthful tint and freshness.

Mrs. L. B.: I know it is discouraging to be over-fat, but this can be quickly remedied if you buy four ounces parnotis from your druggist and dissolve it in one pine-and-a-half hot water. When it cools take a tablespoonful before meals. Keep up treatment regularly until desired weight is reached. You will find this method will not injure you or inconvenience you in any way, and will not leave the skin flabby or wrinkled.

Q.T.: You can restore the original color to the hair and correct those scalp troubles by using this inexpensive hair-tonic: Mix together one-half pint each alcohol and water and in this put one ounce of quinzoin. Massaging the scalp well with this will gradually restore the natural tint and glassiness to the hair and put the scalp in a healthy condition. If you use the quinzoin hair-tonic regularly, it will make the hair come in thick and beautiful.

Worried: That ugly growth of fuzz can be permanently removed from your chin by the application of a paste made with powdered delatone and water. After this has been on two or three minutes rub off and wash the skin and the hairs will have vanished. Druggists charge a dollar for an ounce package of delatone, but this cost is trifling.

Ruth M.: The insomnia and loss of appetite of which you speak are caused by an impoverished condition of the blood. What you require is a blood-cleanser and tonic. For a small sum you can make your own, by getting an ounce of kardene and a half-pint alcohol. Dissolve one-half cupful sugar in the alcohol, then add the kardene and hot water to make a full quart. Take a tablespoonful three times each day and your natural health and strength will soon return. The kardene is gentle in action and quickly rebuilds worn or waste tissues.

Edna: A dry itchy scalp usually follows the use of an alkali shampoo mixture. This robs the glands of their necessary oils and causes the tissues to die. The only way to restore vitality and banish the dandruff is to shampoo occasionally with plain canthrox, a teaspoonful of which dissolved in hot water is enough for a thorough cleansing. You can obtain an original package of canthrox at any drug store, and you will find that aside from keeping the scalp in a clean, healthy condition, it will induce an abundant growth of fluffy, brilliant hair.

A.D.L.: The shiny oily condition of your skin is due to excessive use of powder, which clogs pores and frequently causes pimples, blackheads and other complexion upsets. I would advise discarding powder and employing a plain spurmax lotion. This is prepared by adding two teaspoonfuls glycerine to a half-pint of hot water, then stirring in four ounces of spurmax. Apply sparingly to the skin and rub lightly until it dries. You will find this nicer than powder as it is invisible when on, does not rub off, and gives to the complexion a charm and richness impossible any other way.

X.X.: Nothing so detracts from beauty like weak, watery eyes, and to overcome this trouble, I would suggest using a plain crystos eye-tonic. You can easily prepare this at home by dissolving one ounce of crystos in a pint of cold water. Putting two or three drops in each eye daily, quickly relieves the smart or ache, soothes the tired muscles and gives to the eyes a delightful sparkle and brilliancy.

BRITISH COLUMBIA ELECTIONS || MANITOBA ACTS GENEROUSLY WITH ONTARIO ACCESS TO PORT AND EXEMPTION FROM TAXES || 32,000 BRITISH MINERS QUIT

32,000 BRITISH MINERS QUIT WORK THIS MORNING

London, Feb. 27.—It is anticipated that a settlement of the British coal dispute will be officially announced this evening, according to a report published by a news agency.

London, Feb. 27.—Until the broad basis of an agreement has been reached by the executive committee of the coal owners and miners federation, nothing can be done to suspend the notices to quit handed in by the miners. For this reason many thousands of miners whose notices expired to-day laid down their tools. Fully 20,000 colliers in Derbyshire ceased work this morning, while another twelve thousand left the pits in Nottinghamshire.

SETTLEMENT IN SIGHT.

London, Feb. 27.—An early settlement of the dispute in the coal trade which has threatened to throw nearly a million miners out of employment on March 1st, is apparently more than probable, although it cannot yet be definitely announced.

The executive committee of the Miners' Federation has agreed to meet the representatives of the owners together with some members of the Government and representatives of the Board of Trade at the Premier's official residence in Downing street this afternoon. This meeting of the deputants with the mediators in an effort to smooth away the rough places, is confidently regarded as foreshadowing the avoidance of what promised to be the greatest struggle in modern times in this country.

MUTUAL CONCESSIONS.

This clearing of the atmosphere followed a conference between Premier Asquith and some of his colleagues with the members of the Executive Committee of the Miners' Federation, 160 of whom discussed the situation with the Premier for nearly two hours before noon.

Mutual concessions are to form the basis of the expected settlement of the dispute.

WELSHMEN YIELDING.

New York, Feb. 27.—A London cable to The Tribune this morning says: Tremendous pressure has been brought to bear upon D. A. Thomas, the millionaire coal owner of South Wales, for a settlement of the impending strike, on the basis of a minimum wage. It is currently reported that he has yielded to Mr. Lloyd-George's entreaties, and that the Prime Minister in the address which he is to make to the Miners' Federation conference to-day, will announce a conditional acceptance of the main demand of the workmen.

SPENT EIGHT HUNDRED ON EIGHT DOLLAR HOG

Hazard, N.J., Feb. 27.—After years of litigation involving expenses aggregating a hundred times the value of the property of Stanton, the locally famous "Amis-Combs hog case" being a case in which two mountain neighbors agreed to submit their differences to a judge, has resulted in a "dog fall" in the circuit court. The hog in the case was valued at $8 at the beginning of the suit, but is now deceased. The court costs amounted to a trifle over $500, besides the Attorney's fees. Two verdicts have been awarded at different times, and the last action was concerning the costs. The court decided that each side should bear its own costs.

VOORHIES INDICTED FOR THEARDS MURDER

New Orleans, Feb. 27.—After returning an indictment against Cornelius P. Voorhies for the murder of Alfred J. Theard, the proprietor of the Smile Saloon, last Saturday night, the grand jury presented its last report and was discharged, subject to further call Friday. The finding of an indictment against Voorhies was expected. As was stated on Thursday, not a single woman appeared as a witness. Dr. A. L. Metz, city chemist, was one of those who testified. Dr. Metz, it is believed, was wanted to testify as to whether the marks on the front of Theard's shirt at the time he was shot, were powder burns.

PUBLIC OPINION

OLEO VS. BUTTER PRICES.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—There is certainly a general kick over the price of the actual living necessities of life. Among these is butter. Now, I understand the Dominion Government prohibits the importation of oleomargerine. This butter is only a lubricant to spread on bread. It is clean animal fat. The difference between it and butter just now is about 18 cents a pound. The manufacturer of the oleomargerine makes a good profit. What the farmer makes out of 38c to 40c butter, he or the Lord only knows, what city people want is something (any old thing) to lubricate their bread at a price compatible with present conditions. There is no desire to clip a cent off the farmer's honest profits, but, honestly, Mr. Reader, don't you think butter is too dear.

Householder.

THE USE OF PIGTAILS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—To settle a discussion a few of us had last night, involving a small wager, will you kindly tell me whether the Chinese Empire has or has not forbidden the wearing of "pig-tails" by its population. Has any other nation ever worn pigtails?

Wageholder.

Reply—We understand, from intelligence in the public press, that some months ago, the Chinese Government seriously considered such an order. However, all the pictures of the Chinese revolution by war correspondents of the Graphic and Illustrated London News, show the Chinese troops wearing the queues. Yes, England used to wear pig-tails. waistlong pigtails were fashionable wear in the Mother Country about 1700. In fact as late as 1858 an old gentleman could be seen on Cheapside with his grey hair tied in a pigtail or queue.—Ed. Times.

THE WEATHER.

Mostly fair and cold.

ANOTHER TALE OF THE GREAT FAR WEST

The Lindsay Post has a long and well written article about a former son of that town going to Peace River District. Whilst the article is interesting, our readers will remember that two years ago we gave a long [illegible] of conditions in that part of Canada, sent us by Max Hamilton of this city. Still there are a few items that may be news to Peterborough readers. The Lindsay man referred to is Mr. Cecil Waller. He, and a companion at Edmonton, bought agricultural implements and provisions. The loads on the dog sleighs amounted to two tons each. They proceeded north to Athabasca Landing, a distance of 110 miles in 5 days. A short rest was made. The route then lay over the ice of Athabasca river, Lesser Slave river and full length of Lesser Slave Lake, making a distance of 220 miles from Athabasca Landing. The weather was warm in the daytime, the ice being covered with several inches of water. They reached the head of Lesser Slave Lake on March 18th. At Grouard he met a body of settlers from Edmonton warned to keep back by the Mounted Police. The whole party however, went ahead to Smoky River.

TWO HAMILTON THIEVES STEAL CASH REGISTER

Hamilton, Ont., Feb. 27.—While the constable, John Clark, was patrolling his beat, near the corner of Macnab and Merrick streets about 2 a.m. on Sunday, he noticed two men going along Merrick street carrying a heavy bundle. His suspicions were at once aroused, and he walked toward them. They dropped the bundle instantly and took to their heels. The officer found that it was a cash register they had been carrying, the property of a restaurant at 51 Macnab street. It contained about $8 in cash. The men disappeared, but the police are investigating the case.

Literary Treat at Y.W.C.A.

Last night, Mrs. (Rev.) Rollins gave a most instructive talk on "Modern Fiction" before an audience at the Y.W.C.A. The affair was a purely literary evening and informal, no chairman presiding. Mrs. Rollins, who is known by her former teaching at the "Y" gave a most interesting resume of modern writers of fiction. She referred to Carmon Hardy, Kipling, Oivand and others. This talented speaker said practically that whilst there is much trash in current local fiction, to get acquainted with modern conditions of life, one must read novels. The whole idea is to discriminate between the good novel and the trashy one. It is to be hoped that Mrs. Rollins will give a special talk on Dickens and his works.

Alderman Wants Local Control.

Following upon our report a few days ago, giving the particulars of a charter some Lakefield and Peterborough men are after for a street railway through the nearby townships, it is of interest to learn that Ald. Gordon has been working along the line of street railway ownership by the municipality in which it is located. This recent and energetic addition to the City Fathers of Peterborough, has given to the press of the city some interesting facts concerning the Port Arthur and Fort William electric road. Mr. Gordon claims that these nearby Ontario towns are proud of this enterprise and anyone going to Port Arthur or Fort William is first made acquainted with this railway, by the citizens, as one of the most successful plants in America and the result is that they and Calgary have indicated sound business sense. Mr Gordon is of the opinion that Peterborough should consider the question of taking over the local street railroad.

TUBERCULOSIS MEETING AT THE COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE

Either Peterborough is not afraid of or does not care much about Tuberculosis. This was demonstrated last night at the hall of the Collegiate Institute, when only about 250 people gathered to hear the instructive address and see the, almost speaking, exhibits regarding the "Great White Plague." Mr. McKee, janitor of this admirable local educational institution was kept busy showing the audience round the assembly hall and explaining matters.

Messrs. G. W. and E. H. Jones, sent here by the Ontario Board of Health on request of the local medical health officer, Dr. McPherson, certainly know their business and imparted as much of that knowledge as the audience could take in. On the west side of the hall were 3500 dolls typifying the deaths in 1911, in Ontario, of infants, under one year old, that could have been saved by proper and common sense precautions. Of these 3500 dead babies, fully 70 per cent. could have been saved. One interesting feature of the evening was a two story illuminated cabinet. This displayed bedrooms, one on the lower floor with closed windows. On the upper storey was a bedroom with windows open. In both apartments were beds with dolls to represent children therein. These dolls by some mechanical process, were made to show the respirations of a human being.

Taken altogether the meeting was most interesting and instructive.

MANITOBA PROMISES ACCESS TO THE HUDSON BAY PORT

Ottawa, Feb. 27.—The sole topic of interest in political circles this morning is the Manitoba boundaries question which it is expected will be up in the House this afternoon. No question for years has excited as much interest. Late last night Right Hon. R. L. Bordon gave notice of a resolution extending the boundaries of Ontario and Quebec. They follow the old Laurier resolution of 1908. Quebec will get Ungava while Ontario will be extended north to Hudson Bay. Manitoba as has been stated previously will get both Port Nelson and Fort Churchill. However, it is understood that Manitoba and Ontario will make some private arrangement so that Ontario will get a right of way to Port Nelson and suitable terminals and the interests of the Province will be completely safeguarded.

The full text of the resolution is as follows:

"Resolved, that it is expedient to extend the limits of the Province of Ontario so that the boundaries thereof shall include, in addition to the present territory bounded and described as follows: Commencing at the most northerly point of the westerly boundary of the Province of Ontario as determined by the Canada (Ontario) boundary act, 1889, chapter 28 of the statutes of 1889 of the United Kingdom (the said westerly boundary being the easterly boundary of the Province of Manitoba), thence continuing due north along the same meredian to the intersection there of which the centre of the road allowance on the twelfth base line of the system of the Dominion land surveys, thence northerly in a right line to the most eastern point of island lake, as shown in approximate lattitude 53.30 and longtitude 93.40 on the railway map of the Dominion of Canada published on the scale of thirty-five miles to one inch, in the year one thousand nine hundred and eight, by the authority of the Minister of the Interior, thence northeasterly in a right line to the point where the eighty-ninth meridian of the west longtitude intersects the sourthern shore of Hudson Bay, thence easterly and southerly following the shores of the said Bay to the point where the northerly boundary of the Province of Ontario, as established under said Act, intersects the shore of James Bay, thence westward along the said boundary, as established by the said Act to the place of commencement."

OLYMPIC STRUCK ON A WRECK

Belfast Ireland, Feb. 27.—The White Star Liner Olympic, which left New York on Wednesday, and was due in Southampton to-day, struck a submerged wreck in the Atlantic early this morning.

The White Star line announces that the injury to the Olympic consists in the breaking of only one blade of one of her propellors. After landing her passengers the liner will come back to Belfast to have a new blade put in, which will be a matter of a few hours work.

The repairs would have been executed at Southampton, but for the fact that there is no dry dock at that port sufficiently large to accommodate a steamer of the size of the Olympic.

The steamer will be delayed only a few days beyond her scheduled time of departure on her return trip to New York.

BOUNDARY

Manitoba Will Not Tax T. & N. O. Railway

Premier Roblin Promises to Give Right of Way to T. & N.O.R. to Inland Sea.

Winnipeg, Man., Feb. 27.—Premier Roblin, in his speech to the Legislature, covering Ontario's claims on Hudson Bay, said: "In reference to the reports that the Province of Ontario is considering the expediency of extending their Provincial railway to Hudson Bay, and using either the Nelson river or Churchill as their terminus, I am sure that I voice the sentiments not only of the members of this Legislature, but of the people of this Province as a whole, when I say that Manitoba will do everything possible to assist her sister Province in extending the Provincial roads under terms and conditions that are as favorable as it is possible for this Province to make them.

EXEMPT T. & N.O.R. FROM TAXATION.

"The Hudson Bay Railway now being constructed by the Government of Canada, will be exempt from taxation, and I am sure that this Legislature and Province would naturally support exemption from taxation for all the properties and terminals of any Government owned road that Ontario, we may hope, construct to the Hudson Bay, through Manitoba, when we get an extension of boundaries.

"I would not confine any exemption by this Legislature from taxation to the road built by Ontario to Churchill or the Nelson river, but make it equally applicable to our sister Provinces, Saskatchewan, to the West."

CANADIAN MISSIONERS EXTENSIVE HISTORY

The Times is in receipt of an extended report of the life of the late Rev. John Bennett Anderson, the Toronto evangelist who recently did such good work at Apsley and other points. Owing to lack of space and increasing demands thereon, we have got to eliminate much of the report. The late Mr. Anderson, after attending Beaverton Bush Day School, went to Scotland when 6 years old. In his fifteenth year the deceased clergyman, then not, of course, advanced to that dignified position in 1859 experienced a new birth. From the 16th to his 21st year of age, he was known as "The Boy Preacher" in several counties of the north of England. When 22 years old he went to London and was appointed in that metropolis "Home Missionary." After working four years under a Canon of Westminster Abbey, he came to Canada in 1870. On account of the appointment of the late Robert Buxton and other clergy Mr. Anderson returned to England. After a few years, he and his family returned to Toronto. Later on he was known as the Evangelist of Liverpool. Then this talented divine went to Australia. After doing good work in the Mother land he returned to Canada.

THE MEANEST MAN ON EARTH IS DISCOVERED

Cleveland, O., Feb. 27.—Cleveland police are looking for a man they believe to be the meanest one on earth. Yesterday Fred Dandeck, a 10-year-old newsboy, told the police how a well dressed man had offered him a quarter to go to a nearby address for a suit case. "But how am I to know you won't steal the suit case ?" the man asked.

Eager to earn the quarter, the boy handed the stranger his papers and nickels and pennies, amounting to $1.25. Then he left to get the suit case. Arrived at the address there was no suit case, and when the boy returned he found the man gone with money and papers.

A LOCAL OPTION FIGHT

Lindsay Press at Loggerheads Over Question of Haliburton Bank Closing on Account of Dry Legislation.

Now that a local option campaign is impending in this city, the following article from the Lindsay Post, will be of interest:

"The following appeared in Saturday night's Warder: Haliburton correspondent to Bobcaygeon Independent: Owing to lack of business the Sterling Bank has given notice that they intend to close the Haliburton branch on March 15th. The bank in Haliburton was doing a good business before the Local Option by-law passed, and then it has been steadily on the decrease."

Ever since the adoption of Local Option in Haliburton, the Independent correspondent has failed to adapt himself to the changed conditions in the village, but on the contrary has circulated misleading statements regarding the benefits of Local Option. How does he reconcile the above statement with the fact that a year ago the Sterling Bank closed its branch at Minden, where two liquor licenses are granted."

GENERAL ELECTIONS ON IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

Number of members	42
Conservatives	39
Liberal	1
Socialist and Independent	62
Last election	Nov. 25, 1909
New election	March 28

Victoria, B.C., Feb. 27.—A semi-official anouncement of the coming Provincial elections finds the country in readiness for a contest which, like the last, November 25, 1909, will be largely fought on a programme of railway construction. The the 42 members of the present house, 39 are supporters of Premier McBride.

Prior to November three years ago the Opposition numbered thirteen, but the Liberals opposed the Canadian Northern proposal upon which McBride then went to the country, with the result that only one Liberal was elected.

845 MILES OF NEW RAILWAY.

This, the twelfth Government, has held but three sessions, and is therefore entitled to hold a fourth, the term not expiring until next year. But only three sessions of the eleventh Parliament were held, the Government deciding to submit the policy of nearly eight hundred miles of new line for the endorsation of the electors.

The present railway policy is slightly in excess of that mileage, being eight hundred and forty-five miles. There will, of course, be no increase in the representation and the election will be held not on new, but the present voters' lists. To this the Liberals will object, but it is explained there is not time to complete new lists.

The Conservatives are well organized and look for an easy victory. In expectation of the contest the Liberals have been organizing for the past six months and expect to wage a lively fight with a candidate in each riding. In many cases former members are expected to stand.

LIBERAL POLICY NOT KNOWN.

Former Liberal leader Johnson, who was a member of the House for twelve years before his defeat three years ago, has been active in Victoria during the present session and may again lead the party. Just what the Liberal policy will be is not yet known. At least eight Socialists expect to be nominated in this contest.

DESPERATE NEGRO IS HUNTED BY POLICE

New Orleans, La., Feb. 27.—The hunt of the police for the desperate negro who attacked Mrs. L. Seren, 424 Adele, with a knife Wednesday night has not been successful, for the negro is still at large. Mrs. Seren heard a knock on her front door and as she opened the door to learn the business of the caller she was attacked by a tall negro who stabbed the lady in the right arm, inflicting a severe wound. Mrs. Seren tried to get a hold on the black, but the negro, seeing that she was not afraid, backed off and fled before assistance arrived. Mrs. Seren's wound was dressed at the drug store, and a squad of policemen detailed to the scene searched the entire neighborhood without success.

STRONG YOUNG COMPANY

Good Progress Made in its Second Year by The Equity Fire Insurance Company of Canada—Full Report of Meeting in This Issue.

One of the first thoughts of the modern merchant or manufacturer, on establishment of his respective business is the subject of fire insurance. Prominent among the younger fire insurance companies, whose future success is pre-eminently assured is the Equity Fire Insurance Co., of Canada. The second annual report of this Company was presented at the annual meeting held February 21st, in their head offices, 24 King Street W., Toronto.

As a sign of strength and a matter strongly appealing to policyholders, it might be noted that the Company made a substantial increase in the non-hazardous class of business. During the past year $21,200.00 of additional subscriptions to Stock Capital were secured, and 10,000 more shares are to be sold at a premium of 20 per cent. Whilst nearly $20,000 of surplus revenue was realized, the directors did not declare a dividend, thus protecting the policy, and, subsequently the shareholders. Everything points to a great expansion of business during the current year. Mr. W. H. Hill is Peterborough agent for the Equity.

JUAREZ IN THE REBELS HANDS

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 27.—The investment of Jaurez by the rebels appears complete. All doors to business houses are barred and the rebels are marching through the streets, not firing nor being fired at.

Early this morning Homer Scott, a photographer reached Jaurez from the rebel camp, with a letter for the Mayor of the town, demanding its surrender by 12 o'clock.

Meanwhile the rebel troops rested close in on Jaurez.

At 7.45 a.m. the entire force of rebels was reported moving on Jaurez.

The army stopped its progress toward Jaurez at 8.20, after taking a position on a hill overlooking the city.

At 10 o'clock a part of the rebel forces had entered the outskirts of Jaurez and opened fire. The defenders replied to the fire of the invaders. The entrance is being made along an irrigation ditch leading into Jaurez, almost parallel with the Rio Grande.

The rebels started cannonading Jaurez at 10.05 a.m.

After the defenders had fired a few volleys, their officers ordered them to cease firing. The police also were ordered not to fire.

TO PRISON FOR LIFE

London, Ont., Feb. 27.—Daniel Reynolds, who yesterday pleaded guilty to manslaughter in connection with the death of Frederick Colver, was this morning sentenced to life imprisonment by Chief Justice Falconbridge. The killing of Colver occurred, following a drunken debauch in a hotel in the east end outskirts of the city last December. Colver and Reynolds quarrelled and the latter, using an axe struck his opponent a blow from which he later bled to death.

CRUSHED AT CITY DUMP

Toronto, Feb. 27.—Crushed under the horse which he was endeavouring to save from a twenty foot fall over the city dump north of Wilton avenue bridge, William Dwight, 45 years of age, of 177 Munro street, a civic employe, met instant death at six p.m. yesterday.

He was backing a loaded dump cart on the precipice of the dump, when the animal started to slip backward forgetting his own danger, he hung on to the bridle in a fruitless effort to urge the frightened beast forward but in spite of his efforts the whole outfit went over, Dwight being pinned underneath the animal.

Deceased who leaves a wife and several children, had been in particularly hard luck lately, three of his little ones having been admitted to the Isolation Hospital suffering from dyptheria.

No inquest will be held.

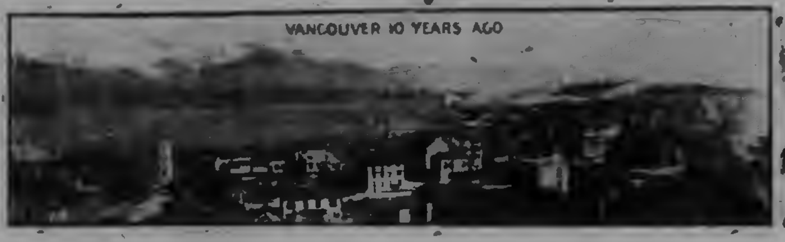
BUIDERS' PROFIT with Bankers' Security



VANCOUVER 10 YEARS AGO

100,000 SHARES AT $1.00

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has been organized recently with an authorized capital of $500,000, to do a general building, real estate, and insurance business, and is actively engaged in Vancouver and Victoria—two most promising fields. The profits from building houses for cash and selling on instalments is well known, and will be one of the principal channels from which profits will be derived. BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its own building department and architect, and does its own construction. In addition to building houses, BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its real estate department, where it carries on a general real estate business, discounting agreements of Sale, subdividing and transacting a general insurance business.

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS LIMITED, is a new concern, having been in business less than two months in Vancouver, but is becoming well known as the Company without any promotion shares and with a strong board of directors, made up of well known Vancouver and Victoria business men.

Shareholders may conservatively look for a 10 per cent dividend the first year, increasing thereafter and a steady advance in the value of their shares caused by the substantial reserve it will always be the policy of the directors to build up.

Companies run on similar lines, notably the Los Angeles Investment Company' and "Home Builders," both of Los Angeles, have proved phenominally successful, the former, which has been in business some sixteen years, having accumulated assets of over $6,000,000, and paying 28 per cent. dividends; and the latter, which started business three years ago, with only $1.250 capital, has assets to-day of over $1,089,000, a surplus of over $308,000, is paying 17 per cent. dividends, and its $1.00 shares are selling at $2.30.

DEFENDS BOXING

A London Vicar Says There is Nothing Like it

Rev. A. Newman Guest, "the fighting vicar" of Stanbury, Buckinghamshire, recently arranged a friendly spar on the village green with an army reservist of local fame, who offered to "take on the vicar." Unfortunately, the contest aroused such enthusiasm in the locality that enterprising villagers made books on the event, and the betting became fast and furious. People for miles around expressed their intention of being present, and the vicar fearing too much notoriety regretfully decided to abandon the fight. The vicar, giving a London paper his views on boxing in relation to the morals and physique of Englishmen, said:—

Now, it is evident that the whole range of the seven deadly sins—called "deadly" by the Church because of their effect on soul and body—are successfully resisted by the employment of nature's own knuckle dusters.

For example, a young man is given to bad temper. By sparing under an instructor he rids himself of the evil. No use boxing if the bile begins to rise—you are knocked out. Keep your head!

Take advice. The desire for mere money grabbing is changed into the desire for glory—"Excelsior!" as the poet said, even if one dies in the effort.

Envy becomes emulation. Instead of longing to drag down some fellow who has risen by his own exertions in life, a boxer learns to rise to the level by copying his principle.

Hatred becomes good-will. No man meeting in the freemasonry of the gymnasium will leave the floor and work ill to any brother. He becomes altruist.

Gluttony in eating, drinking or smoking are all taboo. No beer, please!

Pride. Boxing is a great leveller. It knows no wealth, station, country only distinction. The votary slowly and surely learns real self-help and self-respect by many defeats and falls into the dust.

In fact, there is nothing like boxing. It kills the seven deadly sins. The fighter—not necessarily the prize fighter—becomes a kind father, a good husband, a friend to his boys a good comrade, and a citizen who is a credit to the Union Jack.

He looks the world in the face with a clear eye, and says with Terence: "I am a man and no element that is human is foreign to me."

LONGBOAT'S PURSE

The Indian Cleared About $500 in His Glasgow Race

Tom Longboat got $375 and a [illegible] [illegible], probably $500 in all, [illegible] challenge race at Glasgow. The Indian went away at a red-hot clip [illegible] tried to lose them all the first [illegible] miles. He did go about thirty yards but they brought him back in the [illegible] miles. He led the bunch up to six miles, and at seven and a half led by 60 yards. Kohlemainen loosened up at nine miles, caught the Indian, and led to the thirteenth mile. Then the Indian came to life again and from then on set a stiff pace. The Finn was right with him until the stretchhead where the Redskin cut loose his wonderful sprint and came home a winner by two feet in the world's record time of 1.20.04 2-5. The world's record up to that time was Fred Appleby's 1.20.04 3-5, made at Stamford Bridge, in England, on September 22, 1891, while the latter was an amateur. The world's professional record was held by Jack Price, who, on August 19, in 1910, ran the fifteen miles in Glasgow on the same track in 1.21.40. The Indian's new world record is all the more creditable when it is considered that he made the journey in a snow storm.

TROTTING A POPULAR SPORT

New Zealand Sporting Review:—There is no shadow of doubt that to-day "trots" rank as one of the honored pastimes of a large and ever increasing section of the public; in fact, trotting seems destined to become one of our national and most popular sports. The gratifying change effected has been almost solely due to the sport being brought under capable and zealous management, the better classing of races and the more strict scrutiny of the performances of contesting horses. Certainly it must be admitted that owners are entitled to a fair quota of praise, for they have undoubtedly given more careful attention to the breeding and training of their horses, and that naturally has had a marked benefit on the racing. But the all-important essential to popularizing a sport is to gain the confidence of the public. Once that is achieved the improvement of the sport by a better system of classing, more attention to breeding, and the careful preparation of contestants are natural corollaries.

THE EMIGRANT'S OUTFIT

What to Take With You When Leaving the Old Country

"It is nothing short of a misfortune that so many Englishmen should offend Canadian taste by landing in, and persisting in wearing, a costume which Canadians look upon as the acme of absurdity."

So writes Mr. L. O. Armstrong, a well-known Canadian railway official, says Answers. He continues: "I refer principally to the little tweed cap and red leather leggings. Canadians all over the Dominion immediately imbibe an ineradicable prejudice against a man who parades the street in such an outfit. They shun him [illegible] get work. It is, in fact, a [illegible] handicap, where competition is [illegible] keen."

[illegible]

Don't [illegible] dress [illegible] plenty of [illegible] [illegible] tial.

[illegible] and of good quality. [illegible] to purchase [illegible] the duty on them.

Cotton goods, on the [illegible] boots, are [illegible] cheap [illegible] do not overburden [illegible] these.

Some years ago the [illegible] out to farm in America and before [illegible] started spent twenty pounds [illegible] outfit, which included three suits of white duck, a huge cork solar [illegible] with puggaree complete, a set of [illegible] mending implements, and a number of white flannel shirts.

And all these, and a good many similar things, he was only too glad to give away soon after his arrival.

Working-clothes suitable for the country can be bought ready-made at cheap prices anywhere in America, either in the States or Canada; therefore, you had much better wait till you reach your destination before purchasing them. If I were going out again I should take three good tweed suits of quiet pattern, one blue serge for better wear, a dozen good flannel shirts, two dozen pairs of strong merino socks, and all the boots I happened to have. I should also have four suits of thick underwear and four of thin, four suits of pyjamas, a good overcoat of dark-blue pilot-cloth, two soft felt hats, one bowler, one straw hat, three or four good knitted ties, some flannel collars, and a warm woollen comforter.

I should carry my goods in a very strong wooden trunk, clamped with iron and provided with two locks, and have in addition a kitbag for articles required on the voyage.

The emigrant must always remember that the more he takes the more he will have to pay in duty and in carriage.

A BERESFORD STORY

Of the many stories told of Lord Charles Beresford, few are better than the following. It is said that he made a wager of $500 with some clubmen that he would drive down Rotten Row in broad daylight. (Vehicles were forbidden in Rotten Row). Those interested posted themselves on the railings in the Park and awaited developments. The first thing to come along was a water-cart. The driver came slowly past to the railings and pretty nearly drenched the waiting ones in the Row. The water-cart man at once became the object of forcible and searching remarks. To the amazement of the bystanders he pushed his oilskin hat back and revealed the beaming face of Charlie Beresford, who said, "Hand over that hundred, old man." Lord Charles had squared the water-cart man to let him play the part, which he did to perfection. His friends had been watching for a smart turn-out of some description.

A SWIFT BIRD

The Mexican road runner has only two short legs, but he can beat a horse, a hound, and an electric carriage, and give them a handicap start. Speed is not his only recommendation. He eats as he runs, or, rather, as the things run away with him. Snakes are the principal part of his diet, big and little. His crop is as elastic as his legs are swift, and when he wants to prepare for a long journey he coils up a rattler or two inside of his neck and sets out across the Mexican desert with a swiftness that makes it look like a bunch of dust on a record-breaking tour around the world.

Accident Near Haliburton.

Do you know where Haliburton is? It's a village somewhere between the northern boundary of Lindsay and where Peary claims to have found the North Pole, and got busy with his thermos bottle. Well, that far-off northern village had a little excitement a few days ago. A double headed train, near the village met with an accident. Fortunately no lives were lost. The engines and the snowploughs were damaged and the mental equilibrium of the village, over a real occurrence, is just returning to normal conditions.

AERONAUTIC INVENTIONS

Many Patents Have Been Granted for Aerial Improvements.

Aerial and marine navigation, while in most respects totally unlike, are yet in certain particulars closely analogous, and this is perhaps most clearly observed in considering the smaller auxiliary devices relating to these arts. Although aerial navigation, so far as heavier than air machines is concerned, has only recently been accomplished, the art in a broad sense has been, nevertheless, the subject of patent applications for many years, and a consideration of these patents indicates that not only has inventive genius been active along broad lines of development, but that it has been busily engaged in the perfection of details of construction which now that so great interest has been aroused in the practical side of the art, may be found of great value.

While the first marine anchors were probably crude affairs, consisting of a rock or crooked branch, the art of aerial navigation did not arise until long after marine anchors had reached a fairly high state of development, and aeronautical inventors were thus able to confine their attention largely to the adaptation of these marine anchors to aerial use. Among the first patents granted in America for an aeronautical device is that to Mr. Bell, dated March 26th, 1850, which among other details shows a water anchor or drag, clearly adapted from marine use, and which consists of an umbrella-like structure supported upon a rod, the rod being provided with ropes at its opposite ends. It is evident from the construction that, if the device be immersed in water and attached to the flying machine by the rope being slack, the umbrella structure will remain closed and offer little resistance to travel through the water, while if one rope be pulled taut and rope be slackened, the pressure of the water will open out the umbrella device, thus presenting a large surface to the water and acting as a very effective drag or water anchor. Similar in type, but adapted for land use, is the device shown in the British patent to Alexander of 1893, in which a supporting rod similar to that of Bell's device is provided, but instead of the umbrella structure of the latter, the rod carries a series of backwardly projecting prongs or claws, which, when the rod is towed by one or the other of its ropes, respectively, slide easily over the surface of the ground, or engage with the same and act as an effective anchoring [illegible]

AN EXCITING PRESENT-DAY ROMANCE

"Now do you see my point? I knew that you were busy here, and you did not want to be interrupted. The widow's intention was to interrupt you, and mine therefore was to delay her, by all and any means justifiable and unjustifiable. That was why she was riding a donkey which I had been privately guaranteed by its owner is certain to go lame at the first or second bit of stiff climbing we came to. I thought that the widow would thereby be compelled to do one of two things: either to abandon the expedition altogether, which was not what I thought she would do, or to waste a considerable part of the morning by walking back to Ribeira Grande and hiring a carriage after all. There was a third possibility that she might suggest continuing the journey on my donkey, and leaving me to lead the lame one back home; but to that I was ready with the unanswerable objection that she did not know the way.

"It was a pretty situation, and I was curious to see how she would meet it. Of course she met it in the one way which I had not anticipated.

"She laughed as though it did not matter, sat down by the roadside, and said that we would rest for an hour and admire the scenery, and perhaps by that time her steed would have recovered enough to proceed. Now I knew quite well that he wouldn't, and I thought she knew it too; but delay was what I had been playing for all along, so I fell in with her suggestion without comment. We conversed lightly, perhaps even at times brilliantly, for about twenty minutes, and then just when I was in the midst of working out a pretty fancy in metaphors for her delectation, and thought that she was honoring me with her most alert attention, with the purpose of capping my effort if she could, she electrified me by putting a question which had nothing at all to do with what I was saying.

"'Is the pie yours so far, Mr. Montague?'

"My Pegasus of poetic fancy was dashed to the ground, and there was not so much as a flutter left in his wings; I did not even finish my phrase but looked at her instead. Her manner had changed, and she was regarding me with a mocking smile.

"'Is the pie yours?' she repeated. 'Does Our Mr. Montague consider that he is working his commission of delay with surprising ease and success? Or did he despise his antagonist so much that he anticipated that success would be easy? Do you really think I am a fool?'

"She had taken the matter into her own hands. I realized that further pretense was useless. Since, apparently, she already knew my cards, I showed my hand.

"'I think,' I said, 'that you will be somewhat late for the picnic at Las Furnas.'

"'Possibly,' she retorted. 'I shall not want to go. If you will look behind you, you will see a man approaching us! By the pace at which he is coming, it would appear that he is riding a better donkey than either of these which you hired for us. Whether I go to the picnic or no, will depend a good deal upon him, I fancy.'

"'You are going to make him an offer for the hire of his donkey for the day?' I said. But I knew well enough that the remark was foolish.

"She glanced at me through half closed lids.

"'His name is Andrew Gillies,' she said. 'Do you know him?'

"Then, as though to complete my humiliation, she told me exactly what she had done and what she meant to do. She did not even pay me the compliment of regarding me as an antagonist from whom it would be advisable to conceal information. I had thought that my fanciful eloquence had impressed her! I see now that she had been laughing at me all the time, and I think she regarded me as a somewhat foolish windbag. You will understand that I found that sufficiently galling.

"It seems that a few minutes after Mr. Scarborough and the two ladies left the Chinelas, Mrs. Carrington, who had been wakened by the crunching of their footsteps on the gravel, got up and looked out from her window. She saw a man in the garden, and he saw her at the window. He took a note from his pocket, held it up for her to see, and then laid it on a garden seat in full view from where she was standing. Then he went away. The man was Andrew Gillies, and she told me that he had in all probability been waiting in the garden in concealment for a long time, hoping for a chance of delivering the letter. You three, by your early start, gave him the opportunity sooner than he had hoped.

"Without waiting to dress, she threw on an ulster and went for the letter.

"'It suggested an interview,' Mr. Montague,' she told me sweetly, 'and the place which was mentioned was this road on which we are now. You timed that good animal's attack of lameness very well. If we had gone a quarter of a mile farther, I should have had to invent some excuse for stopping. As it is you have given me the opportunity unsought. Do you still claim the ownership of the pie?'

"'No,' I said, with a grudging admiration at the way in which she had played with me, 'it's yours. What are you going to put into it?'

"'That depends,' she said. 'Though we agree that the pie is not yours, I can't claim that it is all mine either. Andrew Gillies will have a finger in it, too, and I shall wait to see what his contribution is before I offer mine. You understand the situation, I think. He probably found that fact out very soon, and that is why he waited so patiently outside my window this morning. Now why shouldn't he and I pool our resources—he supplies the plan, and I the additional information which makes the plan of value?'

"'Because you haven't got it to supply,' I said at once, and I really thought she hadn't.

"She smiled. 'Didn't Mr. Scarborough tell you,' she said, 'that I was behind the door for some time last night? I know about the scratched stone.'

"'But you don't know what the words on it mean,' I cried. 'No one does.'

"'No, but Andrew Gillies may be able to guess. He knows more than we do, you remember, about what my husband's movements were on the last day of his life. We will see how the point strikes him. You would like to be present at our interview, no doubt; and I owe you some return for the pleasant morning you have given me.'

"She laughed, and I take it that you will believe me when I say that I was feeling pretty riled.

"'I am of the other party,' I reminded her sulkily.

"She laughed again, and said that she didn't consider the fact of any importance. I think I never felt quite so futile as I did when that woman laughed at me. And yet, you know, I admired her for it.

"The man on the donkey didn't come up to us very fast. He seemed to be hesitating because she wasn't alone; and when she saw that, she called out to him not to be afraid, that I was a friend of hers and harmless. I have been accused of being a vain man more than once in the past by people whose opinion wasn't worth considering. If they could have seen me at that moment they would have smiled, for if I am vain, my vanity was in a fair way to being flayed off me in shreds; she gave it a whip-cut at every sentence.

"I liked the way she tackled Gillies, though, she didn't give him time to think himself a great man. She just took top station from the first, and kept it.

"'Don't come too near me, Andrew Gillies,' she cried. 'Keep your distance till you've answered a question or two. I know that your hands aren't clean, but I don't know quite how deep the stain on them is. You've got to satisfy me on that point before we go further.'

"The fellow had dismounted and was standing beside his beast, with one arm resting on the saddle. She had treated me pretty scornfully, but I could have struck him for the look on his face when he answered her:—

"'I didn't think you would be particular, Rachel Carrington!'

"'I'm so far particular that I draw the line at association with a murderer,' she answered at once. 'You have many vices, Andrew Gillies, and possibly they added to your commercial value in the past. One of the most noxious of them is your canting parade of piety. But you used to have one virtue; a curious virtue it is too, to be part of the complement of a common swindler. You speak the truth.'

"'According to my lights and conscience, I do,' he replied, unctuously.

"'I have a different theory as to that,' she replied quietly. 'Your conscience has nothing to do with it. You have cultivated the habit of truth, because, considerably to your own surprise, you discovered in early life that it pays. Had you anything to do with my husband's death?'

"He shot a curious glance at her, and I thought his eyes quailed before hers.

"'I did not kill him,' he answered.

"'Were you present when he died?'

"There was a long interval before the answer came. We, the woman and I, waited for it almost without drawing a breath. At length the man looked her straight in the eyes, and answered:

"'Yes, Rachel Carrington, I was.'

CHAPTER XXIV.

The Words on the Stone

When Val B. Montague came to the point in his story at which the Scotch clerk had admitted that he was present at the death of Richmond Carrington, he paused, and looked round the circle of his hearers. It was a dramatic moment, and both the natural temperament and professional training had made him something of a poseur. He was tempted, therefore, to play the situation for what it was worth. But the expression which he saw on one face, the look of pleading distress which he saw in Elsa's eyes, made him change his mind hurriedly. He remembered that the dead man was her father, and that he had been told how she loved him. He hurried on with his tale.

"I'll give you the rest as quickly as I can," he said. "The man had been present at Richmond Carrington's death, but had not caused it. Mr. Carrington took his word for that, and having done so, dismissed the subject, and proceeded to strike a bargain with him."

"Did he say how my father died?" asked Elsa in a low voice.

"Yes," admitted Montague reluctantly.

"Then tell me that first, please."

"He said that your father had written to him the day before, proposing a place and time where they could meet and come to terms. He kept this appointment, but Mr. Carrington didn't. He waited for nearly three hours, and then decided to go to the Chinelas and find out why he had been tricked in this way. On the road he caught sight of the man for whom he had been waiting, gave chase, and caught him near the hot spring of the Caldeira de Morte."

"What was the object of the capote and capello?" asked Scarborough.

"Mr. Carrington had himself suggested that Gillies should wear them. It seems that Miss Carrington knew the clerk by sight, and her father was very anxious that she should not by any chance recognize him. Gillies wore the things to humor this whim, which he admits that he did not understand; but afterwards when the meeting at the Caldeira de Morte had resulted in a tragedy, he was glad for his own sake that he had worn them. He declares solemnly that he had nothing to do with causing the tragedy, but he did not know if he would be able to prove that if he were accused. He had the effrontery to say to the dead man's widow, in a canting, shuffling whine, that it was 'providential' that he was disguised on that afternoon. He may be a clever scoundrel; I dare say he is; but, Jehoshaphat; he's a worm, too, sir!"

"What happened at the Caldeira de Morte?" said Elsa. "And why was my father trying to avoid Gillies when Mr. Davis saw him?"

Couldn't Get Strong

SEEMED TO HAVE LOST ALL AMBITION, WAS PALE AND ANAEMIC.

Made Wonderful Recovery When Dr. Hamilton's Pills Were Used.

"I was never actually sick," writes Mrs. La Pierre, wife of a well-known resident of Labemene, "yet I never could get strong like other women. I ate well enough, but somehow blood rich and red I could never make. When I married I took a great pride in my housekeeping, but it kept me tired all the time. Mrs. Lechance, my neighbor, looked well — she told me her health had been made by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I only thought of pills as a physic, but now I know that Dr. Hamilton's Pills are more, for they quickened my stomach, liver and bowels—made me stouter and stronger, gave me such color in my cheeks as I never had before. They do good to parts in ways I need not mention in this letter, but I sincerely believe Dr. Hamilton's Pills should be used at regular intervals by every woman—that's why I write this letter."

No medicine invigorates a woman like Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 25c. per box, all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

ENGLISH P.O. SERVICE.

In spite of the conservation of John Bull, the British Postoffice Department is a very progressive institution. It has established penny postage within the empire; it controls almost the entire telegraph and telephone service of the kingdom, and it operates a parcel post system that is of the greatest convenience to the public because it is quick, cheap and reliable.

It now appears that the British Postoffice Department has been experimenting for some time with a penny-in-the-slot machine for vending stamps, and is trying out another automatic machine which, on the payment of a penny, will impress letters with a "Postage Paid" device in red in place of an affixed stamp.

This latest device will save much time in the postoffice itself, and will also be a great convenience to the public, especially in districts where offices close early. The only addition to the newest machine to render it perfect is a device to stamp the date and hour of mailing on letters. This will soon be added, and then every pillar box will be, in miniature a branch postoffice.

It is calculated that the cost of these automatic machines will be offset by the large saving effected by the reductions made possible through their use in the manufacture and cancellation of stamps, and in the clerical forces now necessary to handle this part of the postal service.

Editorial Notes

This is Military week in Ottawa. We do not speak in any sense in a political way, but why, from a newspaper standpoint, has information been held from the press? To-day the Dominion Rifle Association meets in Ottawa. Here is a matter in which Peterborough marksmen always, a little more than count.

Bread in Hamilton, Ont., went up yesterday from 5c to 6c per loaf. Thank the Lord, we do not aspire to a title of "Ambitious City" if it costs that much.

Reports in the current press report that 650 Mexicans were recently killed during the engagement at Reata. A former local citizen now living near El Paso, Tex., yesterday saw the item and remarked "650 greasers wiped out! That's going some. The yellow-skinned, shifty-eyed devils ought all to be wiped out!" Still our informant is from Texas.

Peterborough is not the only town in Canada where a barrister of high standing has had it "put all over him," by the police magistrate, for contempt of court. Many of our readers will remember when a local lawyer and the P.M. had a disagreement and said lawyer was compelled to breath the alcoholic laden atmosphere for over an hour. Well in the Ambitious City, the P.K. demanded an apology from Mr. O'Reilly, K.C., over a question of bail

Had Bad Sore Four Years

ZAM-BUK HAS HEALED IT!

Mrs. Wilson, 110 Wickson Ave., Toronto, says: "About four years ago a sore spot appeared on the right side of my face. This spot increased in size until it became about half an inch in diameter and very painful. I went to a doctor, but the ointment he gave me did not have any good effect. The sore continued to discharge freely, and was most painful. I had it cauterized, tried poultices and all kinds of salves, but it was no good and I continued to suffer from it for four years!

"A sample of Zam-Buk was one day given to me, and I used it. Although the quantity was so small, it seemed to do me some good, so I purchased a further supply.

"Each box did me more and more good, and, to my delight, before I had been using Zam-Buk three weeks, I saw that it was going to heal the sore. In less than a month it was healed!

"I know a lady in the east of the city, whose husband suffered for years with an open sore on his leg. On my recommendation, Zam-Buk was tried in that case. The other day, when I saw her, she told me that it had healed the sore completely.

"My daughter, who lives in Lethbridge, Alta., has also used Zam-Buk with the same satisfactory result. I think it is, beyond all doubt, the finest healing balm known."

Such is the opinion of all persons who have really tried Zam-Buk. It is a sure cure for eczema, piles, abscesses, ulcers, scalp sores, ringworm, cuts, burns, scalds, bruises, and all skin injuries and diseases. 50c. box, all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. In case of skin disease use also Zam-Buk Soap, 25c tablet.

POINTS FOR GIRLS.

Some rules worth following for young girls are: Be natural. Young girls, from lack of selfconfidence, often try to copy the style and manners of someone they admire, and the result is not a success. It is better to be oneself. Be above jealousies. When another girl is criticised, be the first to say the generous word in defence of the absent one. Be a good listener. It is a safe rule that everyone you meet [illegible] be [illegible] to quite as well as to listen.

CLEAN WINDOWS.

A great many people do not realize that the insides of windows actually catch more dirt than the outsides. Try rubbing them inside every day with a clean cloth and you will find that they will not require washing nearly so often.

Thus soreness in the chest is at once alleviated—phlegm is loosened and ejected from the throat, old standing coughs are removed.

"I suffered from an irritable, weak throat for three years. I had a severe cough, pain over the eyes, constant bad taste in my mouth, and noises in my ears. It was chronic catarrh. Nothing gave permanent relief till I used Catarrhozone. In one hour it relieved, and in a few weeks drove all trace of catarrh from my system.

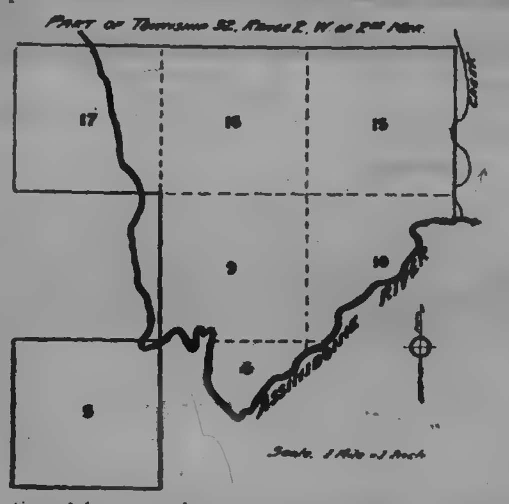
SASKATCHEWAN GRAIN AND RANCH LANDS



The attention of farmers and stock raisers is invited to the lands shown in the above plan.

The lands are situate in the Port Pelly District, Northern Saskatchewan, long known as probably the richest farming district in the Province. The parcel, which contains approximately 3,681 ACRES in one compact block, is watered on the west and south sides by the Assiniboine River, and by a large creek on the east. It is well wooded, thus assuring as well as evidencing ample rainfall, and plentiful supply of cheap fuel. It is undulating and well drained, having an elevation above the river, and rising gradually from it to a heightof about 60 feet, and provides many beautiful residential sites.

In the advantages it offers for mixed farming it is unique, there being some 2,400 acres clear and ready for the plow, while the balance consists of timber and excellent pasture land, admirably suited to stock-raising. The soil is a rich, black loam, from 8 to 10 inches in thickness, resting on a clay subsoil, except along the river, where it is arich sandy loam. Crops produced on similar neighboring lands are phenomenal for their quantity and quality.

The location is within ten miles of Mikado Station, on the main line between Winnipeg and Edmonton, of the Canadian Northern Railway, with good trails leading to it, and within a short distance of a school. While the settlement going on in the neighborhood is rapidly adding all the adjuncts of an up-to-date farming community.

This is an opportunity for a man with capital, business ability and practical experience. Such a man should clear his whole investment, including all improvements and equipment, in four or five years at the outside. And now is the time to purchase, as the price will shortly be advanced $5.00 per acre. Experienced men predict this land will be worth $50.00 per acre within ten years. Lands immediately adjoining, which last spring could have been bought for $14.00, are held to-day at $20.00 and $25.00 per acre.

We are also offering some 1,100 acres additional, in separate parcels of three half sections, and one quarter sections, situate in the same locality as above.

These lands were selected for the excellence of their location and the magnificent quality of their soil, which latter the official records of the Indian Agency demonstrate.

Prices, Terms and all Particulars may be had on application

Equity Fire Insurance Co Of Canada

The Annual Meeting was held at the Head Office, 24 King Street West, Toronto, on Wednesday, February 21st.

Among those present were:—Hon. Thos. Crawford, His Honor Judge Morgan, H. E. Irwin, K.C., Chas. C. VanNorman, D. Hibner, A. Taylor, Whitford Vandusen, Rev. Jno. L. Murray, W. H. Manning, David Carlyle, Mr. Wright, Thos. G. Rogers, J. J. Noll, S. D. Perry, H. R. VanNorman Dr. J. R. Rutherford, W. C. King, John Richards, Wm. Greenwood Brown

Directors' Report

To the Shareholders of the Equity Fire Insurance Co. of Canada:

Your Directors, in presenting the Second Annual Report of The Equity Fire Insurance Company of Canada, desire to point out a decrease in general expenses, including commissions, amounting to $25,887.88. A decrease in fire losses of $55,100.34, as compared with the previous year.

It is important to note that while a decrease has taken place in mercantile and hazardous risks, a substantial increase has been made in the non-hazardous class of business.

During the year just closed, additional subscriptions to Stock Capital have been secured, amounting to $21,200.00, and your Directors have further authorized the sale of 10,000 shares ($500,000) at a premium of 20 per cent.

In view of the expanding business of the country generally, and appreciating the value of large capital for investment, as well as additional security to policyholders it is proposed to increase the Cash Capital of the Company to $1,000,000.

While the operations of the Company have realized a surplus revenue during the year of $19,905.28, your Directors did not deem it expedient to declare a dividend.

The security to policyholders is represented by $408,262.63, an increase of more than $30,000 over last year's.

SHADES AND STYLES

Satin Gowns Will be Fashionable for Some Time—Models Suggesting the Apron Tunic

Satin finish crepe de Chine is included in the list of satin gowns, and will be fashionable for some time; in fact, is growing in favor again, although it has never been relegated entirely to the background. It is used for the draped gowns without trimming that are smart from their very simplicity and their artistic handling.

Heliotrope and Mauve

There are many shades in heliotrope and mauve in crepe de Chine that are wonderfully becoming, and these in draped gowns are fascinating. They have always a double skirt, but so draped that it is difficult to tell which is the lower and which is the upper. The design is high waisted in effect, with the straight lines looking straighter than ever and the figure appears more slender; the folds are caught together with a soft knot or rosette at one side, low down on the skirt. This is one of the models that is to all appearance most carelessly put together and without lining or bones. In reality it can never be well carried out unless there is a perfect fitted skirt lining; the skirt lining is short and finished with a deep flounce of chiffon to make the gown hang better, without being as stiff as if made of silk.

Tartan Plaid Frock

Handsome satins showing one-half or two-thirds of the width in black and the rest in bold plaid of skilfully blended coloring afford opportunity for border like use of the plaid, while the border is also wide enough to be handled as bodice, sleeve or underskirt material. In one charming Tartan plaid frock, the big black satin collar, cuffs and girdle left but little of the plaid bodice in view, and that little in the blues and greens with lines of white and yellow, and in silk of exquisite lustre and texture, was gay and chic without being garrish. The skirt bottom showed clever detail in the slight shirring of the black satin where the over lapping right side of the front rounds away at the bottom from the left side, and in the narrow puff band of green silk which borders this curve, narrowing to the point of disappearance as the curve ends. Small jet buttons were used along the whole line of the skirt opening and on the collar and cuffs.

Tailored Skirts

Side Opening Skirts

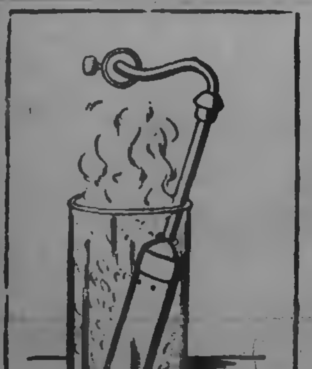
There are numerous side opening skirts with panel or underskirt arrangements and a sort of apron tunic which has been developed on some of the smart summer frocks, appears with variations in new models. A simple clinging robe of satin has an apron with square cornered [illegible] of fine cloth, front and back, the under robe showing for its full length at the sides. The cloth in one model of this type was cleverly braided, and a girdle passing under the apron which fell comparatively straight, was drawn snugly on the sides to define the natural waist curves.

A New Tunic

Another model suggesting the apron tunic had what might be called a triple apron, one section dropping over the other and each edged with a narrow fringe. The tunic was in black cloth and fell over an underskirt of black satin which buttoned for its full length on each side with white pearl buttons. Over a bodice of black satin fell flat separate panels of the cloth, fringed at the bottom, where they met a girdle of the satin. White pearl buttons were upon the cuffs and upon the little satin yoke showing above the cloth overblouse.

POCKET WATER HEATER

Heretofore it has always been supposed that some kind of a stove was required to heat water, even if only a stove the size of your hand. An Ohio genius, however, has demonstrated that this is not so by devising an electric water heater that can be carried in the pocket. A little metal cylinder has a cord attached which can be fastened to an ordinary electric-light socket. The current is then turned on and the cylinder is placed in the water. The receptacle containing the liquid must be brought to the heater, as the latter cannot be moved farther than the length of the cord. The heater will produce hot water in two minutes and boiling water in four minutes. It is useful to heat water for shaving, and as a sterilizer is just what is required. At the sam etime it does not charge the water and may be handled without fear of contact with the current.



Does Not Charge the Water

Although, no doubt, every railway company would gladly convey His Majesty and the Queen free of charge, our rulers pay exactly the same price as anybody else for a special train, in addition to the first-class fare of every passenger by whom they may be accompanied in their respective suites.

The Queen's Jewels

Among the jewels the Queen most values is a chain of pearls presented to her as a wedding present by the women of twenty-three English counties. Thirty thousand dollars was subscribed, but only $25,000 was spent on the necklace, and the other $5,000 was divided amongst various charities chosen by Her Majesty.

NEW WEDDING GLOVE

No More Anxious Waiting for the Bride to Remove Her Glove

A happy era has dawned for the bride at the fateful moment when the ring is about to be placed on her finger. Instead of the usual struggle to remove her left-hand glove, she will nuow be able to uncover the third finger without effort and without losing her composure. This delightful result is to be obtained by an ingenious "wedding glove" device. The inside seam on the third finger of the left glove is unstitched, so that all that the bride need do is to slip her finger through the slit to receive the ring. The finger can just as easily be slipped back into the glove after the ceremony. The device will be greatly appreciated, not only by the bride, but also by the nervous bridegroom.

The story of the origin of the wedding glove has come to light. Some time ago a girl who had lost her right arm in the hunting field asked for a single wedding glove. She remarked on the awkwardness of having to remove her glove with the help of her teeth, and it was then seen that matters would be greatly facilitated for the bride if she only had to uncover the ring finger. The experiment was so successful that it aroused the interest of other prospective brides, who saw in it a boon which would save them from the usual difficulties of removing a whole glove at the moment when the ring was about to be put on.

BLAMES THE HOBBLE SKIRT

The hobble skirt is stated to have caused a considerable reduction in the returns of the dress manufacturing trade throughout England. The construction of ladies' dresses has done so much to hinder profit-making as it had to impede ladies' movements, according to cloth manufacturers. Forty-two per cent. less material was used in making ladies' dresses than formerly.

BEATING WHITES OF EGGS

Difficulty is often met with in beating whites of eggs, when they absolutely refuse to froth. Do not be discouraged, but for every white add two drops of pure glycerine, then they will whip quickly to a froth, light and stiff. The glycerine is harmless and merely has a drying effect, causing the evaporation of moisture from the egg. It is an excess of moisture which excludes the air from the cellsof albumen. Also add the glycerine to fresh eggs and they will froth in half of the usual time required. The above has been proved by repeated experiments.

SASH CURTAIN HINT

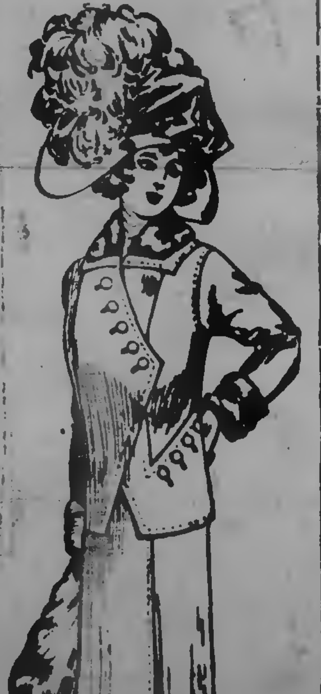
When laundering sash curtains, starch them only part way up, as the rod can be more quickly inserted with less danger of tearing the curtains. This is a great improvement on the fully starched curtains.

PATTY SHELLS

When baking patty shells for creamed fish, vegetables, or tarts, line baking tins with puff paste, and before placing in the oven fill with corn meal, packing it down. When baked, shake out the meal, which can be used over again, and the shells will be found in perfect shape.

Apple Butter Hint

To avoid the long, tiresome stirring of apple butter, set the pan in the oven of the range with a slow fire. It will cook evenly without burning or splashing walls and floors.



LATE FRENCH MODEL

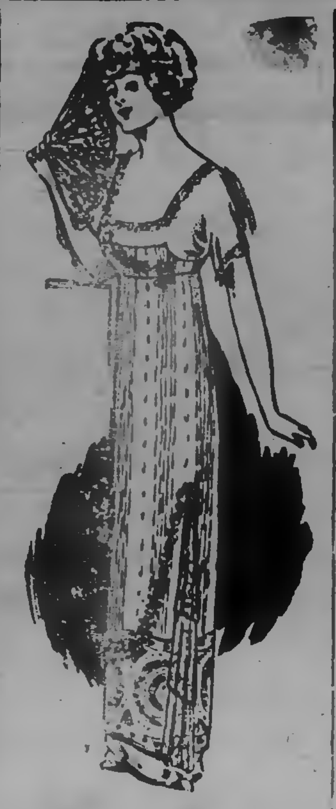
This suit bears all the earmarks of French design with its short skirt, striped cloth and fur trimming. Note the cut of coat with its inset sleeves and side pieces. The back is in three pieces with seam down centre and the top part is trimmed with three buttons on each side. The material in model suit was a dark green cloth with black shadow stripe, and the collar, cuffs and muff were of sable.

MELANCHOLY IN FLOWERS

Curious, indeed, the doom assigned to two of the fairest of the spring flowers, for if primroses are forsaken the violet is a nun. Perhaps this atmosphere of gentle melancholy increases the affection inspired by these favorite flowers which seem dearer far to human kind than such rivals as the brilliant marsh marigold and the dangerous aconite.—Black and White.

On the Wrong Side

Of the goals obtained in the three chief English leagues this season, over thirty have been registered by players scoring against their own sides.



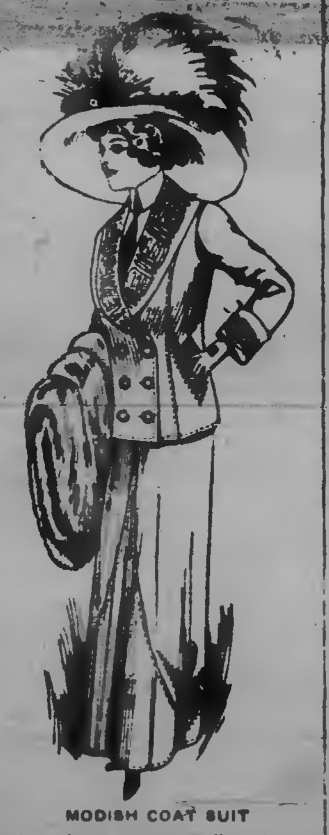
CHARMING EVENING GOWN

A truly beautiful evening gown of gray gauze dotted with silver beads over pale blue satin. The tulle tunic is bordered by a band of deep silver lace and a garland of forget-me-nots fasten at knee depth on left side under a rosette of narrow white lace, from which falls three flounces of wide lace arranged as indicated. Top part of decollete bodice is plain blue satin embroidered around neck and sleeves with silver beads and a wreath of forget-me-nots fastens on shoulder and at waist line under rosettes of lace.

FREAK FASHIONS GO

New Skirt Which Approaches the Dreaded Crinoline

Mercifully, freak fashions have had their day, for a while at any rate. Coming modes are both saner and more beautiful than they have been for some time past. The only approach to the much dreaded crinoline is a new and very fascinating skirt that is finished with a deep ruche around the hem, which has the effect of making the feet appear much smaller than they look under the usual severely cut short skirt. Ruches are quite a feature of smart dressing to-day, and one big Parisian house is making a speciality of ruched trimming for both day and evening frocks alike. Fringes, likewise, are a craze of the coming fashion, particularly those made of heavy silk or very light chenille.



MODISH COAT SUIT

One of the prettiest fall coat suits is made on lines suggested in above sketch. Cut of skirt is especially good and the braiding in black soutache gives the needed touch of dressy finish. The material is purple broadcloth and the coat has a deep shawl collar and cuffs of greenish gray corded silk braided in black soutache. The same design of braiding on skirt is carried out on jacket under arms and waist line.

ORANGE MARMALADE

Select one orange and one lemon with a thin skin. Cut in slices and then in cubes. To this add six cupfuls of water. Let stand over night. Next morning boil twenty minutes, measure liquid, and to one cupful of mixture add one cupful of sugar. Boil evenly for one-half hour, or until it jells. This will make eight medium sized glasses.

Grape Sherbet

Two pounds Concord grapes, two lemons, one quart water, one pound sugar; lay a square of cheesecloth over a large bowl; put in the washed grapes and mash thoroughly; squeeze out all the juice and add an equal amount of sugar, the lemon juice. Use sugar enough to make it quite sweet, then freeze.

TELL THEM SO!

Don't be afraid to give praise.

It is a great mistake to withhold those easily-said words of approval and satisfaction. Even the humble crossing-sweeper likes to hear his work commended.

Flattery is deadly insult, but true praise spells encouragement and makes the world seem brighter.

Wake up! Look out for the chance of praising someone, honestly and sincerely. And don't forget the home folks! Your praise means more to them than to anyone.

WHALING OFF NEW ZEALAND

Graphic Description of the Work of the [illegible] with Their Deadly Harpoons

At the cry of "There she blows!" out go the steam launches to replace the nets, three in number, that suffice to close the narrow channel. These, unanchored, are allowed to float loose, the ends of each slightly overlapping. Kept taut by their own weight, they have stretched on the float line an invisible curtain of wire mesh barring the water run.

No human fastening, says the Wide World, has yet been invented that would stop the rush of a charging whale. The principal of the detached floating net is not to stop, but so to hamper the monster with a gossamer of wire rope that he falls an easy prey to the hunters. For this reason also the nets are so placed that on striking an entangled whale may race seaward or sound downward, carrying the enveloping net, without fear of disturbing the remaining two.

When the nets are in position the launches and attendant whaleboats, with their crews, take up their stations at [illegible] distance to watch for an unheaval and dancing floating line that marks the striking of a whale.

Often a whale's presence is first indicated by great masses of broken barnacles and torn sea-grass that come floating upward to the surface as the whale, floundering among the rocks of the sea-floor, eases himself with delfgated scratchings in the depths.

In the boats all is tense expectancy and ordered preparation. Harpoon guns are loaded and made ready, lines are carefully flaked down in the tubs, lances are looked to, and everyone is on the qui vive. Suddenly a sort of shudder runs through the sea. There are tossing billows and wild commotion made by the bobbing float lines. "Hurrah! she's struck!" is the cry.

Away go the boats, each racing to be the first fast to the struggling fish and so earn the bonus that rewards the winning crew. A mighty, grey black head, entangled in a clinging web of wire, rears from out the water. Up, up, it goes, till a huge bulk of body towers a good fifty feet in the air, its side fins thrashing wildly in a smother of foam. It curves in an arch, and then, like an arrow, down go whale and net together for the sound.

Not for long though. The upward drag of bunched net floats, and its necessity for breath brings the animal quickly to the surface—a spouting, snorting, wallowing mass; mad with rage, wild with terror of the unknown clinging horror that envelops it.

Bang! bang! go the guns from each boat in quick succession. Both irons are home and well placed. A wild quiver of flukes and fins, and the whale either sounds again or races along the surface, towing the boats after it at express speed. But the net holds fast, and at each new effort for freedom the victim becomes more hopelessly wound up than before.

Soon exhausted with futile struggling, the whale comes to rest, and there is a momentary cessation of the mad fight, as the leviathan pauses for breath. Huge panting air gasps are plainly audible at a distance of half a mile.

The crews are quick to seize the opportunity. With the lancemen ready in the bow the boats sweep in, one on either side. "Steady with the lance." "Now!" Eight-foot steel blades drive deep for the heart behind the pectoral fins.

A shiver, a hissing spout of [illegible] and blood, a wallow and roll [illegible] huge wire-tangled carcass, flashes red and white foam in the sunlight, and the black heave of a twentyfoot fin that for one dread instant, scimitar-shaped, a falling wall of bone and sinew, hangs over the boat and its occupants. The boat's crew back out like lightning, just in time. Down crashes the mighty flail, missing its blow by a bare foot. There is a roar and clap of many thunders, and jetting spurts of spray leap high into the blue.

The boats, backed clear, still hang to the lines, the crews watching events and waiting the end. It may be that the dying whale will sound again or race in a final effort. But the lances have got home. A few more wallows of despair, the great tail flukes thrash the water with lessening force, and presently the huge body, inert, lifeless, lies quietly on the surface. Hawsers are made fast to the dead whale, and while the boats return to their stations to watch the remaining nets, it is towed by the launch to the jetty ashore.

A GROTESQUE OFFERTORY

Mengo Cathedral, in Uganda, which was recently destroyed by lightning, was probably the largest edifice in Central Africa, being capable of containing nearly 5,000 people. It was consecrated about six years ago, and an offertory of grotesquely varied gifts was collected on the occasion. This consisted of 13 cows, four goats, 125 eggs, 130 fowls, 75,000 cowrie shells, and a number of coins. The cows, for lack of room, were not taken inside the Cathedral, but the goats were led up to the altar and presented to the bishop, while the fowls were brought in big bamboo crates.

THE STEAMER STEWARD

One of the Busiest Men on Board, But Poorly Paid

There is no single individual in the service of the public, from the stoker down, who is perforce so versatile in his attainments and so enduring in his service as the steamer steward. His hours are from five in the morning until ten at night, his pay on the foreign-owned lines averages about $15 a month, and the steward in second-class does not double his wages from his tips and the fund that is raised among the passengers to pay the band.

Stewards have been known to sleep, eighteen in a triangular room sixteen feet long, and eleven wide, with two small port-holes for ventilation. They must wait at the table at breakfast, previously having set it, then they wash the dishes. Next they make up the beds, then serve the little luncheon on deck which comes about ten o'clock. Next they arrange the table for lunch, wait upon the table, wash the dishes on some lines, and eat their own lunch. In the middle of the afternoon there is another light luncheon which they must serve, then they set the tables for dinner, which they subsequently serve. After getting the remnants out of sight and eating their own meal, they give a concert from eight to ten, after which they are free to spend the night as they please.

In spite of all this hard work and the degrading treatment which they receive from many passengers, one finds scores of intelligent, well educated youths, on the German lines especially, and one wonders how the lines manage to inveigle them into their service. For the most part they are enterprising boys who are eager to see the world after they have left their gymnasium or universities, and have not the means to travel, so they put to sea as stewards, content to endure the abuses and hardships of the life for the glimpses they get of the various ports.

One boy from Berlin whom a passenger interviewed some time ago had run away from home and gone into the service of the Hamburg-American line so that his parents might not know that he was doing menial labor. His family was one of aristocratic tendencies, but too poor to send him on his travels in the proper style. Had they known that he had adapted a life so degrading in their eyes, it would have broken their hearts, he said, but he was accomplishing his purpose. In two years he had served on six different branches of the Hamburg lines and had seen almost every port from the Far East to the Atlantic coast of America.

NORTHERN ONTARIO

Area, 140,000 square miles.

Northern boundary, the Arctic regions.

Eastern boundary, the Province of Quebec.

Western boundary, the Province of Manitoba and the Territory of Keewatin.

Southern boundary is practically the Canadian Pacific Railway direct line from Montreal to Winnipeg, which runs across Ontario for a distance of 1,285 miles.

Telegraph and telephone connections are spreading with amazing rapidity all over the land.

Minerals are found extensively, and in splendid paying quantities, especially gold, silver, nickel, copper and iron.

Game is plentiful, including moose, caribou, red deer, bear, beaver, otter, wild duck, partridge and ruffed grouse.

The country is divided into six great divisions, known as Nipissing, Sudbury, Algoma, Thunder Bay, Rainy River and Kenora.

There are now a number of villages and towns scattered over the country whose population runs from fifty up to several thousands.

The parks and forest reserves are large. Algonquin Park covers an area of 1,216,000 acres; Temagami Forest Reserve covers 3,563,600 acres, and contains an estimate of from three to four billion feet of timber; the Nepigon Reserve covers 4,676,080 acres; the Mississagua Reserve covers 1,950,000 acres, with several smaller reserves.

THE SHAPES OF EGGS

A mathematical discussion has taken place, before the Zoological Society, as to the differences in the shapes of eggs. A few eggs, like those of the owl and the tortoise, are spherical, or nearly so; a few, like the grebe's or the cormorant's, are elliptical, with symmetrical ends; the great majority, like the hen's, are ovoid, or blunter at one end than the other. The hen's egg is always laid blunt end foremost. Eggs that are the most unsymmetrical are also eggs of large size relatively to the parent bird. The yolks of eggs are spherical, whatever the form of the entire egg may be. This has been shown to be due to their being enclosed in a fluid, the "white," which makes the pressure everywhere on the surface of the yolk practically constant.—Science Siftings.

WHAT THE PUBLIC WANT

Hiss succeeded hiss. Boo succeeded boo. The audience showered their hostile verdict at the stage in the form of such useful commodities as carrots, eggs, and onions.

They called for the author. But he did not appear. He stood shaking in the wings, watching the whizzing vegetables with tearful eyes.

"Listen to them now!" he said, as a loud roar arose, intermingled with shrill whistling and cat-calls. He turned to the manager, threw up his hands despairingly, and exclaimed: "You give them tragedy, and they want comedy. You give them comedy, and they want tragedy. It's hard to find out what they do want."

"On the contrary, it's painfully easy," replied the manager. "They want their money back!"

AFRAID TO MARRY

Mrs. Peckem:—"I expect my brother will live and die a bachelor. He says he's afraid to marry."

Peckem:—"That's funny. I never knew what fear was—when I was single."

A GREAT SUCCESS

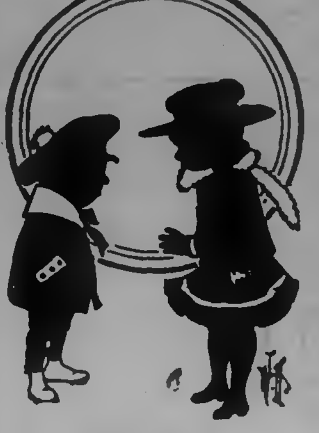
Friend:—"You took your son into your establishment some months ago to teach him the business, I understand. How did it turn out?"

Business Man (wearily):—"Great success. He's teaching me now."

ENGAGEMENT DEFINED

Constance:—"Is it an engagement?"

Clare (with a new ring):—"No. Just a skirmish."



OFTEN HAPPENS

Little Harry:—"I'm hungry. I didn't get half enough dinner."

Elsie:—"What did you have?"

Harry:—"Company."

REBUKED THE LAWYER

"You, there, in the overalls," shouted the cross-examining lawyer, "how much are you paid for telling untruths?"

"Less than you are," retorted the witness, "or you'd be in overalls, too."

DIDN'T NEED IT

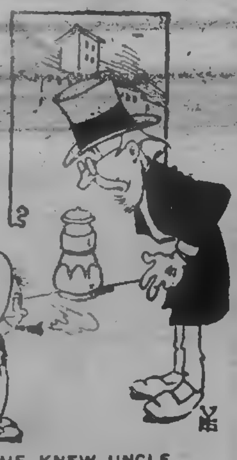
It was the anniversary of his young son's birthday, and the proud father, who felt that he ought to give the lad something, stepped into a bookseller's shop.

"What kind of book would you like, sir? asked the assistant, to whom the other had confided his purpose.

"Something that would be useful and educative," answered the father, forgetting that he always detested such books in his own boyhood.

"Well, here is a very excellent one on 'Self-Help.'"

"Self-Help!" exclaimed the father. "Ben don't need anything of that kind. You ought to see him at the dinner-table."



HE KNEW UNCLE

Uncle Baggs:—"Here, my boy, throw away that cigar at once."

Boy:—"Yes, an' you'll pick it up an' smoke. No fear, if you just follow me up I'll give you the butt."

WHY HAMLET CAME BACK

After much persuasion, his friends had financed the young actor, and, with the brilliant company he had gathered around him, he set out to conquer the provinces with "Hamlet."

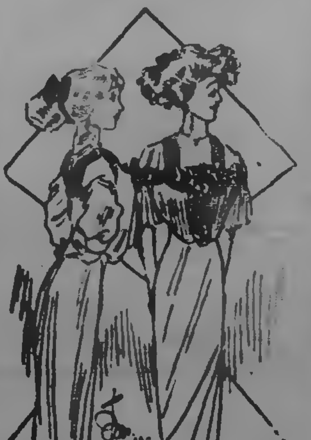
A week later he was back on his native heather, and his face was mournful.

"Didn't they appreciate you?" asked a friend who met him.

"They didn't seem to do," returned the doleful one.

"Didn't they ask you to come before the curtain?" questioned the persistent friend.

"Ask me," repeated the would-be Hamlet, and there were tears in his voice—"ask me? Man, they even dared me!"



AT THE DRUGGIST'S

"I wonder if Mabel takes anything for her lovely complexion?"

"No. I believe she gives something for it."

NO ESKIMO WIDOWERS

At Least None of Long Standing, For They Remarry at Once

In civilization it is said that a wife does not always add to her husband's ease or render his life more supportable, but up on the barren grounds the worst of wives would be better than none.

There, among the heathen tribes, if a man's wife dies, provided he is not a polygamist, in which case, says the Wide World, there is less need for hurry—he often marries again within the week.

Even the Christian Eskimo widowers are with difficulty persuaded by the Moravian missionaries to allow six weeks to elapse between the death and remarriage. On the very day after the six weeks have elapsed the hunter presents himself with a new bride and asks that the marriage service may be speedily read.

The reason is not far to seek. It is said in civilization that "a woman's work is never done," and far more is that true of the helpmate of the savage and the semi-savage, the woman of the barren grounds or of the ice edge. She makes and breaks camp, cooks, cuts up and carries to camp her husband's kill; she dresses the skins of deer and seal.

She is responsible for the fashioning of footgear and clothes; on a journey she often paddles the canoe, and on portage she carries a heavy load. In fact, it is easier to write down the duties not expected of a squaw than those which by immemorial custom she must perform.

LETTING OFF STEAM

Peculiar Methods of Disposing of One's Angry Feelings

Many brain workers find at times a distinct need for some violent frolic or escapade to relieve their pent-up feelings and overstrained nerves.

One such man has a preference for banging doors; another for playing the "Dead March" in "Saul" with one finger; a third, after a heavy day's work, will go round the neighborhood ringing door bells; whilst a fourth, to steady his nerves, will dash a teacup against a wall.

It seems an idiotic thing to slap a cabman's face to relieve one's feelings, yet this is what a well-known actor does; and he does it in such a gentlemanly fashion, and pays so liberally, that the driver seldom takes offence.

Other brain workers have a penchant for [illegible] ornaments, such as [illegible] dropping them on the floor, [illegible] rattling for the [illegible] manner imaginable [illegible] only recently a [illegible] merchant was fined [illegible] for [illegible] each side of a [illegible] in the habit of [illegible] regularly.

AS USUAL

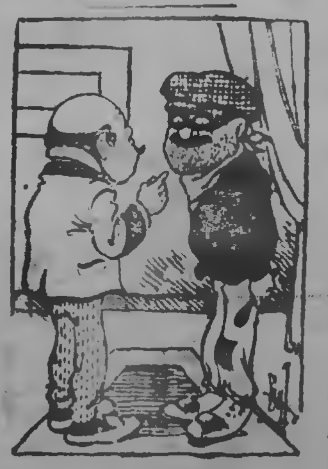
A certain [illegible] had cause to admonish his son on account of his reluctance to attend school.

"You must go regularly and learn to be a great scholar," said the fond father, encouragingly, "otherwise you can never be an editor, you know. What would you do, for instance, if your paper came out full of mistakes?"

The boy looked up into his parent's face with childish innocence.

"Father," he said, solemnly, "I'd blame 'em on the printer!"

And then the editor fell upon his son's neck and wept tears of joy. He knew he had a successor for the editorial chair.



A NEW ONE

Householder:—"You are a burglar?"

Burglar:—"Oh, no, sir. I am a member of the Society for Reducing People's Fortunes."

TOO SMART

Customer:—"Do you keep fountain pens?"

Smart Shopman:—"No, sir; we sell them."

Customer:—"Not always. You will keep the one you might have sold me but for being too smart. Good day, sir."

THE SUPREME JOY

There's joy in the smile of an artless child. There's joy in a maiden's eye. There's joy in the spring when the song birds sing. There's joy in a lover's sigh. But such joys all pale and easily fall to compare with the joyous thrill of the woman who knows that her newest clothes give her rivals a nervous chill.

LORD HALDANE

Doesn't Believe in Eight Hours of Sleep, and Thinks Nothing of a Forty-Mile Walk

Lord Haldane is a tremendous worker. He is said to consider more than three hours' sleep at night to be mere waste of time!

To look at him you would never imagine Lord Haldane to be possessed of the energy, both mental and physical, that he has.

He is decidedly substantial in build, but this is not due to lack of exercise.

Behind him are a long line of sturdy Scotch ancestors, and from them he has inherited a love of walking.

His grandfather at eighty-three could do his eight miles and be as "fresh as paint" afterwards; while a great-uncle could reduce many a younger man to a state of exhaustion by taking them for long tramps, which he himself did with the greatest ease.

Many a time Lord Haldane has covered between thirty and forty miles a day; but his brother can beat this record, and has to his credit no less than 103½ miles, which he covered in thirty-one hours.

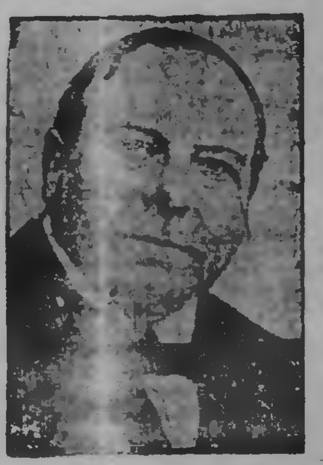
Lord Haldane is a great smoker, and large black cheroots are his favorite "smokes." Not long ago the doctor told him he was smoking too much, and advised him to go easy in that direction.

A short time later an old friend met him, soon after lunch, and inquired sympathetically how he was getting on without his smokes.

"Oh, fairly well—fairly well," was the reply. "I've only had six so far to-day!"

The Haldanes belong to an ancient family, and many of their ancestors have served their country in Parliament or on the field.

Two of the most famous of the Haldanes were, perhaps, the brothers James and Robert, who a century ago gave up all to become itinerant preachers.



R. HALDANE

They threw themselves heart and soul into the cause that appealed to them, and were probably the greatest lay evangelists Scotland has ever produced.

Lord Haldane was born in Edinburgh in 1856.

He was first of all educated at Edinburgh University, going afterwards to Gottingen.

He decided to become a lawyer, was called to the Bar in 1879, and became a K.C. in 1890.

He has a Scotch seat—Cloan, near Auchterarder, Perthshire, until quite lately called Cloanden.

But this he has shortened by a syllable, and is now known as Viscount Haldane of Cloan.

In addition to his many other activities, Lord Haldane has found time to write a number of books, and, with the help of Mr. Kemp, he made a translation of Schopenhauer's "World as Will and Ideas," a work which ran into three volumes, and took some time to complete.

DIVERTING THE TRAFFIC

Amusing Rivalry Among Three Adjoining Merchants

It is the smart man who is able to seize opportunity who generally succeeds. If you have any advantage to offer to the public, the only way to bring trade is to advertise, and exercise ingenuity.

In a busy thoroughfare there were three clothing stores in a row. The proprietors of these stores were bitter enemies as well as business rivals, and each taxed his ingenuity to the utmost to outwit the others in attracting customers.

The proprietor of the store in the middle one day, found himself momentarily beaten when he discovered that the shop on his right was placarded with sensational announcements of a "great fire sale," while the rival on his left hand covered his building with huge posters proclaiming a "receiver's sale."

After a little thought, however, his features relaxed in a gradually expanding smile.

An hour later the crowds that had been attracted to the scene by the "fire sale" and the "receiver's sale" announcements flocked into the middle store.

The proprietor had caused to be stretched across the top of his doorway a sheet on which were painted in letters two feet high the words, "Main Entrance."

THE WORLD'S LARGEST ROOM

The largest room in existence under a single arched roof, and entirely unsupported by pillars or buttresses away from the walls, is said to be a huge building in St. Petersburg, measuring 620 feet long and 150 feet wide, used mainly for military purposes. This giant apartment is of such a size that a whole battalion—1,000 men—can drill in it with the greatest ease. It requires no fewer than 20,000 wax tapers to light it satisfactorily by night.

In the claim by clergy and laity of the Roman Catholic faith that the Ne Temere decree is a matter binding on the Roman Catholic conscience only, there is ambiguity, says The News. Mr. Justice Charbonneau's view is expressed in the same words. But although the decree was binding on Mr. and Mrs. Hebert's consciences and although they violated it knowingly, the judge does not say that they were not legally married. He makes a clear distinction between a matter of conscience and a matter of law. Mgr. Bruchesi, the Archbishop, declared that the marriage was null and void. Because the Heberts had failed to observe the form prescribed by the Church, he said that there had been no marriage. That means that the child was illegitimate. The civil law, as interpreted by the judge holds that a marriage has taken place and that the child is legitimate. Is it possible for a couple to be married outside the church door and unmarried within?

If the King recognizes their marriage as affected through the license of his advisers, what right has any Church to demur? The Archbishop of Montreal would be justified in disciplining Catholics for marrying in defiance of the Church rebulations, but he goes too far in this country when he presumes to doubt the competency of the King's representatives and declares the marriage null. In that case disciplining includes an arrogation to himself of the Crown.

The assertion that the judgment has to do with civil law while the action of the Archbishop was taken under ecclesiastical law is begging the question. Ecclesiastical law has no force in this country save as it squares with civil law. If civil law says that the Heberts are married there can be no nullity by ecclesiastical law. Indeed, it might be possible, if the Church authorities insisted on the force of their own decree of annulment, to bring the clergy to court to show cause for contempt. It is impossible to allow "a mere matter of conscience" to become a matter of law or to encroach in the least degree upon the field where civil law is supreme.

The Church is competent to express its preference for a certain form of betrothal and marriage. If it imposes no radical penalties for disobedience, the thing remains a matter of conscience, and up to that point it is not a question of general interest to the community. But the penalty of a decree of nullity is beyond the competency of the Church and wholly in the powers of the Crown. Once the Church issues such a decree the question becomes one of civil law and of vital interest to

Mr. G. R. T. Sawle, of Prince Rupert, brother of Mr. Chas. H. Sawle, formerly of the Times and Review editorial staffs but now of Hazleton, B.C. was in the City yesterday on business. Mr. Sawle has a high opinion of Prince Rupert and British Columbia generally.

Lecture on Tuberculosis.

Last night Mr. Jones, of Toronto, repeated his interesting series of addresses on Tuberculosis at the Collegiate Institute. He gave some graphically illustrated scenes showing how consumption, the great white plague, may be caught and how prevented.

Ennismore Resident's Funeral.

This morning the last mortal remains of Mr. L. Gifford, a life-long resident of Ennismore will be laid to rest in St. Martin's cemetery. The late Mr. Gifford died at the residence of his brother, James. He is survived by two brothers, James, above mentioned, and William of Peterborough.

Top and Bottom Fire at Belleville.

Early last Saturday morning Belleville had two fires within an hour. One was in the hayloft of a hotel barn. Some hay was destroyed but nothing below that storey. Shortly after another fire broke out under the bottom of a delivery rig stored in the shed of a confectionery store. The bottom of the rig was burned but nothing above injured.

Y.W.C.A. Basketball Dinner.

Last night in the basement of the fine Y.W.C.A. building, the basketball team held a banquet. Plates were laid for twenty-eight. The decorations of both tables and surroundings were symbolic of that health-giving and mind-improving pastime. The dinner was strictly "sans ceremonie." A most enjoyable menu was provided and all present spent a pleasant hour or two.

Local Steamboat Man Spoken of.

Lindsay Post: Capt. Carson, of the Government fishery patrol, Naiad was in town this morning and gave the Post a friendly call. He left at noon on the Haliburton train for Irondale and Bancroft district. He will commence work on the Naiad in a month's time in order to make some improvements. He spoke of his recent seizure of 250 pounds of fish at Chemong Lake.

Board of Trade To-morrow.

Peterborough Board of Trade meets to-morrow night, in the city council chamber, when several matters of immediate importance will be brought up. A large attendance of the members is urgently requested at this meeting, the business to commence sharp at eight o'clock. Municipal by-laws relating to permanent roadways, pavements and the collecting and disposing of garbage will receive careful and thorough deliberation. The question of more hotel accommodation for the city, is slated for discussion also.

Carrier Boys Not to Sell.

We once again warn the public of the city, that The Times' carrier boys are not allowed to sell copies of the paper when making their daily rounds. Those who do so in the face of this warning will be committing a wrongful act. Recently it has come to our knowledge that in a few instances one or two of the boys have been supplying papers to customers of their own, for which the office has had no accounting. This matter will probably come before the Police Magistrate later on.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive Cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Responsibilities of Motor Men.

Some of the farmers of this county do not seem to have more than 30 cents worth of love for the drivers or owners of motor cars, and some of our townspeople, who now and then are threatened with heart failure, whilst jumping out of the way of such vehicles, love them just as much. For the benefit of all such denouncers of the "auto," it might be mentioned that the Ontario Legislature is considering the following bill entitled, "The Motor Vehicle Act," which, in part, says:

"When any loss or damage is incurred or sustained by any person by reason of a motor vehicle on a highway the owner and driver of such motor vehicle shall be jointly and severally liable for such loss or damage, unless in the opinion of the Court or jury trying the action, such loss or damage was occasioned by the negligence of the person or persons sustaining such damage, or either or any of them."

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

Some of the Peterborough trains for Toronto yesterday had their own troubles and arrived about as promptly as the average man would walk to his own execution.

The Belleville Ont., Gun Club, held a shooting match last week. Our local marksmen, to hold such a match, would have to use icycles or cusswords.

The meeting of the Farmers' Institute billed for Bobcaygeon on the 22nd, was cancelled on account of the inclement weather and heavy roads.

Talking of modern improvements! Lindsay had a fire on Monday and the fire brigade of that burg "extinguished the blaze with a few pails of water."

A Calgary dispatch says that a Chinese restaurant in that city was robbed. Some of those who take their meals down town in this city will give a merry ha! ha!

The Ontario Government is considering an Act entitled, "The Underground Employment Act." While this bill refers to the work of miners, Peterborough citizens might easily think it referred to local politics.

A Port Perry paper in a long article asks that the Scugog river be kept "at proper height." Quite right! Keep that river at a height that will conceal both sides of its banks.

The average boy of Peterborough certainly has more stamina than some of those in the U.S. A few days ago, a boy of Taunton, Mass., broke through the ice, fished out before going down twice, and then died from shock.

The press of several towns and cities of Ontario gives weekly reports of their respective Collegiate Institutes. Good work! If the Peterborough Collegiate Institute will give us news of local interest we will be glad to publish the same.

A well known local manufacturer, hearing the peals of St. John's church chimes yesterday, was heard by a Times representative, to say: "Those bells must be ringing for Shrove Tuesday." This is an absolute fact, not a joke.

Judging by the physiognomy and features of Lord Erne, head of the Irish Orangemen opposing Home Rule the Register is away out when it charges that opposition to "the bar" or any other similar ridiculous charge.

Talking of the price of butter in Peterborough, why should not the Government allow the make or importation of oleomargerine. Surely good clean oleo at 15c would replace some of the strong butter sold here at 35c to 38c.

Mr. Wm. Flavelle, of Lindsay, is well known here. That gentleman has just returned from a trip to Bermuda. On Saturday evening the employees of Dundas & Flavelle, Ltd. Mill, made him a handsome present, accompanied by a suitable address.

The Governor-General is to spend a night in a lumber shanty belonging to J. R. Booth. The press makes a lot of the fact. Why! A "lumberjack" just in from the limits back of Peterborough, after two hours in the city said he was "Emperor of Canada and could lick any man that ever "wore spikes" on a boom.

Toronto has been discussing the question of whether the ordinary ratepayer or the freeholder has a right to vote on money by-laws. The average property owner in this city would sell out and go west, if transient monthly tenants could control the financial destiny of Peterborough.

Local Citizen on Glare Ice.

A dispatch from Southampton says that the gigantic White Star Liner "Olympic" struck a derelict, day before yesterday, on her voyage to New York. One of her propellor blades was broken off. A much minor, but somewhat similar accident occurred here, on Hunter street, yesterday. A man who would not vote for local option, was traversing that thoroughfare towards the bridge. Just in front of Kylie's show store, one of his feet struck a derelict or remainder of a by-gone shower. He stepped on a sheet of glassy ice covered by about half an inch of drifted snow. His bow went heavenward whilst his port-quarter struck the pavement. Whilst not submerged, he was a wreck. His language would require all the exclamation type and such pieces of lead this office possesses to tell! However, he managed to arise and wander on, in a course something like the letter "S" if the latter had had 171 Manhattan cocktails.

OPPOSITION MORTIFIED AT BOUNDARY SETTLEMENT || WILL BE NO SEPARATE SCHOOLS FOR MANITOBA

NO SEPARATE SCHOOLS FOR THE MANITOBA PROVINCE

Ottawa, Feb. 28.—The Manitoba boundaries situation began to move to day. And what a clatter of Liberal stories falling in ruins.

1. The bill contains not one sylable about separate schools. The matter is left to the jurisdiction of Manitoba, where it belongs. Undoubtedly the Borden Government has been importuned to play on Manitoba the trick the Laurier Government played on Saskatchewan and Alberta in 1905, and include a clause imposing separate schools upon the added territory. Undoubtedly every possible influence was brought to bear upon the Borden Government to force it to give in. AND IT DID NOT GIVE IN.

ONTARIO'S ACCESS TO A PORT.

2. Ontario gets access to a terminal port on Hudson Bay. True, the boundary is about 150 miles east of Port Nelson. But Ontario gets a 5-mile strip to Port Nelson and ample terminal facilities there; while should she decide to prolong her railway to Fort Churchill she is to get a right-of-way to the Hudson Bay Railway and running rights over it to the port. So it does not appear that Ontario is precisely being denied access to Hudson Bay. And, oh, what a surprised and mortified crowd of Liberals there was when the announcement was made.

3. And the Government remains in tact. It has not been wrecked. No runner from the front dashes panting in to announce its dissolution. Alas for a beautiful collection of Liberal stories!

SEPARATE SCHOOLS DEBATE POSTPONED.

The separate schools debate is postponed, presumably until Thursday. The House, perhaps by agreement, confined itself to-day to the financial aspects of the bargain. That, indeed was all that strictly was before it, for to-day's business was the passing of the resolution dealing with the [illegible] That and the introduction of the bill, was our achievement to-day.

HOW LIBERALS HATE MANITOBA.

One thing more forced itself upon the attention. How the Liberals do hate Manitoba! They set up their throats against the proposal to give that Province equality of treatment with the other prairie provinces. Let us note what the Borden Government proposes to do:

MANITOBA EQUAL TO OTHER TWO.

1. It give Manitoba an area approximately equal to that of Alberta and Saskatchewan. Those areas so far have been: Alberta, 253,000 square miles; Saskatchewan, 250,000 square miles; Manitoba, 73,000 square miles. Now Manitoba becomes nearly 252,000 square miles.

2. It carefully equalizes the financial terms. Allowance for Government and local purposes will be virtually the same. The subsidy on population account will be calculated on the same basis. The indemnity for want of public lands will be calculated on the same basis. The interest on debt allowance will be identical. If Manitoba gets almost $1,350,000 a year, while Alberta gets $1,360,000 and Saskatchewan nearly $1,550,000, the differences are financially due to differences of population.

LAURIER REFUSED TO SETTLE.

3. It gives Manitoba certain allowance for arrears, which amount to $2,178,000. The situation is that in 1905 Alberta and Saskatchewan were launched as Provinces and given large areas and allowances on a certain scale, while Manitoba was left a postage stamp Province in area, and without proper support in monetary matters. Really the Dominion should have settled with Manitoba then and there; but under the Laurier auspices it would not. In 1908 the Laurier Government got to the point of laying down the boundaries which now are sanctioned, but it refused to treat Manitoba either as the older Provinces are treated or as Saskatchewan and Alberta are treated. THE BORDEN GOVERNMENT MANAGED IN FOUR MONTHS TO DO WHAT THE LAURIER GOV- [illegible] IN THREE YEARS. Manitoba claims that the increased sums—about half a million a year—which she gets should date from the settlement of 1905. The Borden Government makes the increase date from the settlement of 1908.

A SLIPPERY NEGRO JAIL WON'T HOLD

Hammond, La., Feb. 28.—The authorities have been again appealed to for the apprehension of Roscoe Coon, who was recently arrested in Natalbany and held for the Mississippi authorities on various charges. Coon was taken to Brookhaven and lodged in the county jail, but escaped, liberating at the same time five other prisoners. Jails and asylums have no terrors for Coon, for he has signally beaten the best institutions of this kind in the country. Once he took French leave of the insane asylum at Meridian, Miss. Subsequently arrested and lodged in jail at Brookhaven he escaped only recently, and now he has again proved his skill as a jail-breaker by beating the same authorities. He was given a sentence on the county farm at Brookhaven and had only spent a few days of service when he decided to escape. He used a large wrench in effecting his escape through an inner door of the jail, then a four inch post was whittled in two, a few planks removed and the prisoners were practically free.

U. S. MAY PURCHASE EXPRESS COMPANIES

Washington, D.C., Feb. 28.—Senator Gardner, of Maine, stated Saturday he would introduce next Monday a bill to provide for the government ownership of the express companies for operation by the Post Office Department.

Mr. Gardner has figured $40,000,000 as the valuation of the express companies, and proposes that the transfer shall be made through the Interstate Commerce Commission, which could make the exact valuation.

DUELS FREQUENT AMONG PARISIANS

Paris, Feb. 28.—An epidemic of duelling has broken out in Paris and several encounters occur almost every day. A particularly violent conflict took place on Monday, between Leon Daudet, editor of the Royalist Action Francaise, and Pierre Mortier, another writer, as a result of royalist polemics. M. Mortier was severely wounded in the thigh. The duel lasted only forty seconds.

Another journalist duel, this time with pistols, was fought Saturday, Mariel Boulenger and M. Marmottan being the combatants. The result was inconclusive.

MR. EDGAR WILL BE INSTALLED TO-DAY

Mr. James Edgar received notice yesterday to the effect that his installation as Postmaster of Peterborough would take place this evening. Mr. H. Merrick, inspector for the Kingston postal division will arrive during the afternoon and will at once officially hand over control of the local postoffice to Mr. Edgar.

Whatever may be the difference of opinion towards Mr. Edgar's appointment, all are practically unanimous in believing he will make a capable and efficient official. He is a practical business man of long experience and acquainted with the requirements of both the commercial and social communities. He will no doubt do his utmost to improve the local service.

THE WEATHER.

Mostly fair and a little higher temperature.

TELEPOHNE PHILANTHROPHY

The press of Hamilton notes that an effort is being made in the Ambitious City to introduce an automatic telephone service, as the Bell Telephone Company's franchise there soon expires. If the parties interested in that automatic company, or their prospective shareholders are philanthopists and, for the good and glory of Hamilton, put up money without any guarantee of interest to be paid on the same, why that is their business. In this city a similar company has been in operation for some years. The subscribers get a certain kind of telephone service and pays nothing. Hurrah for philanthropy!

100,000 MINERS QUIT WORK SITUATION EXCEEDINGLY GRAVE

London, Feb. 28.—The British Miners' Federation after a long and stormy meeting this morning passed a resolution deciding to continue the negotiations with the owners which are proceeding under the auspices of the Government with a view to bringing about a settlement of the dispute.

Some of the miners' delegates are bent on war especially the representatives of the Colliers employed in South Wales but the executive finally succeeded in inducing the meeting to make a further effort for peace.

CONFERENCE SATISFACTORY.

In an official statement issued this afternoon confirming the decision of the miners federation to resume its conferences with the Premier, the executive committee say:

"A large number of letters has been received wishing the conference success in its negotiations for a peaceful settlement and these have been received by the delegates with satisfaction. The report of the executive committee regarding the negotiations between themselves and the Prime Minister has been accepted as satisfactory and the conference has unanimously decided that negotiations should be continued."

100,000 OUT.

The conference of the Miners' Federation also passed a resolution today to permit all the men whose services are necessary to keep the coal pits in good working order to continue at work. This action on the part of the miners has revived the hope that it will not be long before the disputants are able to meet in a joint peace conference.

NEGOTIATIONS FUTILE.

London, Feb. 28.—One of the representatives of the coal owners after another conference at the Foreign Office this evening stated that there was no likelihood of any settlement of the dispute in the coal trade being reached to-night.

JIM JEFFRIES STILL INTERESTED IN RING

San Francisco, [illegible]bility of Abe Attell to "come back" has aroused the sympathy of James J. Jeffries, who sent the following dispatch to Promoter Coffroth relative to the Attell-"Harlem Tommy" Murphy bout here on March 9:

"Jim: Don't call off Attell fight. Give him a chance to redeem himself. Worst should have got was a draw as he chased Kilbane all over the ring. Do this for me. Abe is still champion here, old pal."

Attell sent a similar plea adding he would arrive here Monday.

Coffroth says he has no intention of calling off the match.

DECISIVE BATTLE EAST OF TRIPOLI

Rome, Feb. 28.—A severe battle resulting in the utter defeat by the Italian troops of the Turkish forces and their Arab allies with great loss is reported in official despatches received here to-day from Rome (which is also known as Lebda) about 70 miles to the east of the city of Tripoli on the Mediterranean Coast.

The engagement occurred at Mount Mergheb, which lies at some distance behind the town. The Turks and Arabs had taken up a very strong position on the slopes where they were attacked by the Italians with infantry and artillery. After a fight which lasted all day the Italians put the enemy to flight by storming the heights.

The loss of the Turks and Arabs is described in the report as very heavy. The Italians lost only eleven killed and eighty-two wounded.

Murdered and Robbed

New York, Feb. 28.—The body of Mrs. Johanna Heuveron, who lived alone in an apartment in Harlem, was found this morning crammed into a bath tub. She had been murdered sometime during the night and her flat looted. A bellboy in the apartment house was arrested.

JURY DISAGREES IN CROKER SUIT

New York, Feb. 28.—The jury in the divorce suit brought by Ethel Croker Breen against her husband, John J. Breen, erstwhile riding master, returned a sealed verdict in the Supreme Court to-day holding that they could not agree. Eight favored granting the divorce, and four held out for the defendant. The plaintiff is a daughter of Richard Croker.

John J. Breen took the witness stand in his own behalf yesterday. Mrs. Croker and a number of Tammany politicians were interested auditors.

Breen was questioned principally concerning his experience with Miss Maude Diehl, a telephone girl at the Grand Union Hotel, Toronto. He admitted that she had been in his room and that they had a few drinks and that he had kissed her, but maintained that there had been nothing improper in his actions.

Breen was coachman for Hon. J. R. Stratton, of Peterborough.

FELL 200 FEET

San Bernardino, Cal., Feb. 28.—Aviator Harvey Crawford, of Los Angeles, fell 200 feet yesterday, but escaped with a few scratches, when his aeroplane became unmanageable. His engine went dead while he was 1,200 feet in the air and the aviator began to volplane to earth. About 200 feet from the ground "air pockets" were encountered and the airship was dashed to the ground.

HOCKEY

In a very fast and clean game at the Brock street rink last night, the Lakefield team defeated Hastings by a score of 10—5. The half-time score stood at 4—2 in Lakefield's favor.

THE POSTMASTERSHIP.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I see an editorial in the Examiner complaining that Mr. A. H. Stratton was dismissed meanly and not for offensive partizanship. Let Mr. Stratton ask to have the matter ventilated in the House of Commons, an easy task, like other dismissals and he will find out if he doesn't know now. Ask the Liberals now in office in Peterborough who were not offensive partizans and you will find out that they are treated with every consideration. Lt. Col. Rogers was not a partizan. But A. H. Stratton was, and if he had succeeded in his efforts, his dear brother would now be M.P. for West Peterborough. Ventilate it! Get into it! Mr. Burnham is never unfair—make no mistake about that.

LOCAL TOBACCO GROWING.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—To settle a bet will you please state whether it is possible to grow tobacco in Peterborough? I mean, can tobacco fit for actual use be grown this far north?

J. H. Squire.

Reply—Yes. Many pounds of tobacco that is smoked and chewed, after proper ripening and treatment are grown within the city limits. The home grown tobacco is very strong, but many of the French population prefer it to imported Virginia or Carolina. At Picton, Ont., tobacco growing has passed the experimental stage in Prince Edward County by long strides and Saturday's shipment of the leaf went out, totally fifty-two tons. The seven acres grown this year have realized $12,000.

WEIGHT OF COAL.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I would suggest to Chief Thompson that he make it his business say once or twice a week, to stop coal drivers on their way to deliver coal, examine their ticket to ascertain the weight of their load, and then have the coal weighed in the presence of the [illegible] and as soon as the load is emptied have the wagon or sleigh weighed. This is the only way that people will know that they are not getting proper weight. If short weight is found his duty will be to prosecute, so that the newspapers may make the matter public.

This should be done a couple of times each week with every coal dealer. It will take but little time, and will be a great satisfaction to the people generally.

I am sure our capable Chief of Police will see the point, and will act on the above suggestion.

Once Bitten, Twice Afraid.

TUBERCULOSIS MEETING

Dr. McCullough Addresses Meeting at Collegiate Institute Hall on Matters of Health.

The excellent display given by the Provincial Board of Health was again attended last night by a fair sized audience. The display of 3,500 dolls, showing how seventy per cent. of the infant mortality, to that extent, might be saved, and the other graphically shown guides to health attracted much attention. The feature of the evening was the address of Dr. J. W. S. McCullough, Chief Medical Health Officer of Ontario Government. This talented physician, whilst speaking at a meeting held to prevent tuberculosis, gave a general address on matters of health. He defined the causes and means of prevention of the Great White Plague, the care of infants and other matters directly concerning the mortality of the Province. During the evening moving pictures showing the ill results of unsanitary conditions with milk produced disease, and how flies carry disease. In his remarks, the doctor said, that when he was a boy, it was thought a crime to kill a fly or pull its wings off. He did not believe in torturing a fly, but kill it every time. The same exhibit will be open to-night. No charge for admission.

WHAT ONTARIO GAINS IN THE BOUNDARY DECISION

The Order-in-Council as read at Ottawa and in the Legislature yesterday recites that Ontario desires to extend the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway to a suitable port on Hudson Bay, and so wishes to make arrangements for the construction of a railway within the boundaries of Manitoba. It proceeds to recommend the following arrangement:

1. A five-mile strip, to be within fifty miles of the coast from the Provincial boundary to Port Nelson, is to be transferred to Ontario. Manitoba will excise legislative jurisdiction; Ontario will own the land.

2. At Port Nelson, Ontario is to get, on the east side of the river and along the shore of the Bay, a water front ten miles long and half a mile wide; that is, terminal facilities.

3. If the Hudson Bay Railway makes Fort Churchill its terminus, and if the Ontario Government desires to make that port the terminus of its line, it shall be given a right of way 200 feet wide from Nelson to the Hudson Bay Railway and running rights over the Hudson Bay Railway.

The building of the railway shall be expedited by Dominion legislation and a five year period shall be allowed during which Ontario may locate the five mile strip.

INGERSOLL GIRL CAPTURED THIEF

Ingersoll, Feb. 28.—Armed with her father's heavy revolver, Miss Annie Bearss, the eighteen year old daughter of Constable Henry Bearss, was responsible for the capture of a man giving the name of Henry Watson, and who to-day will appear in the Police Court to answer to a charge of breaking and entering the dwelling of Mrs. Lillywhite, Charles street east.

With unflinching nerve Miss Bearss covered the supposed burglar with the revolver, while her sister who had accompanied her b the Lillywhite residence, hurried to inform her father, who had been sleeping.

When the Bearss sisters approached the Lillywhite residence, Watson, it is said, went out by way of a back door. He was commanded to stop by the girl with therevolver. Watson at first ignored the command, but when a couple of bullets whizzed over his head he was very submissive. The girl kept him covered with the gun until her father was in sight. Watson then made a dash, and the girl [illegible] the revolver in an endeavor to frighten him into surrendering. He was captured by Constable Bearss after a short chase.

Miss Bearss, it is said, saw Watson enter the house, and after notifying her father, who was in bed, as he is a night constable, hurried to take part in the exciting capture.

THE DOCTOR HABIT

And How She Overcame It.

When well selected food has helped the honest physician place his patient in sturdy health and free from the "doctor habit" it is a source of satisfaction to all parties. A Chicago woman says:

"We have not had a doctor in the house during all the 5 years that we have been using Grape-Nuts food. Before we began, however, we had "the doctor habit" and scarcely a week went by without a call on our physician.

"When our youngest boy arrived, 5 years ago, I was very much run down and nervous, suffering from indigestion and almost continuous headaches. I was not able to attend to my ordinary domestic duties and was so nervous that I could scarcely control myself. Under advice I took to Grape-Nuts.

"I am now, and have been ever since we began to use Grape-Nuts food, able to do all my own work. The dyspepsia, headaches, nervousness and rheumatism which used to drive me fairly wild, have entirely disappeared.

"My husband finds that in the night work in which he is engaged, Grape-Nuts food supplies him the most wholesome, strengthening and satisfying lunch he ever took with him." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville" in pkgs. "There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

USED PITCHFORK ON CONSTABLE

Belleville, Feb. 28.—John Mack was yesterday afternoon found guilty of interfering and assaulting a bailiff in the discharge of his duties. The accused used a pitchfork on the constable who accompanied the bailiff, and also tried to use an axe.

Mrs. Mack, who assisted her husband, was also convicted. The man was sent to the Central prison for six months and Mrs. Mack to jail for four months.

ONCE PIRATE SHIP A WRECK

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 28.—The steamer Goldboro, which grounded on Brandywine Shoal in Delaware Bay yesterday, has been abandoned to its fate and it will probably go to pieces in short order if it is not meanwhile swallowed up in the quicksands of the shoal. When the boat's crew of 18 fled for their lives yesterday and landed at Cape May, they were aware of the treacherous nature of the sands of the shoal, as marine tradition has it that within the past half century more than a score of vessels have been swallowed up in the stretch of quicksand.

The Goldsboro is owned by the Philadelphia and Atlantic City Transportation Company. Her career has been interesting. Years ago two brothers in New York got possession of the ship, stored her with $200,000 worth of merchandise obtained on credit, and sailed to Honduras on what is described as a piratical cruise. Previous to that the ship had been one of the Clyde Liners.

COLLAPSED IN HANDS OF BEAUTY DOCTOR

New York, Feb. 28.—The coroner's office ordered an investigation to-day into the death of Mrs. Lena Williams a Texas woman who died late yesterday after undergoing a facial treatment by a masseur and beauty doctor. She was forty years old, and, according to her sister, Miss Lillian Rond, was in robust health. It is alleged that immediately after applying an astringent lotion to her face she lapsed into unconsciousness, dying an hour later. Samples of the lotion will be submitted to chemists for analysis.

100,000 SHARES AT $1.00

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has been organized recently with an authorized capital of $500,000, to do a general building, real estate, and insurance business, and is actively engaged in Vancouver and Victoria—two most promising fields. The profits from building houses for cash and selling on instalments is well known, and will be one of the principal channels from which profits will be derived. BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its own building department and architect, and does its own construction. In addition to building houses, BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its real estate department, where it carries on a general real estate business, discounting agreements of Sale, subdividing and transacting a general insurance business.

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS LIMITED, is a new concern, having been in business less than two months in Vancouver, but is becoming well known as the Company without any promotion shares and with a strong board of directors, made up of well known Vancouver and Victoria business men.

Shareholders may conservatively look for a 10 per cent dividend the first year, increasing thereafter and a steady advance in the value of their shares caused by the substantial reserve it will always be the policy of the directors to build up.

Companies run on similar lines, notably the Los Angeles Investment Company' and "Home Builders," both of Los Angeles, have proved phenominally successful, the former, which has been in business some sixteen years, having accumulated assets of over $6,000,000, and paying 28 per cent. dividends; and the latter, which started business three years ago, with only $1,250 capital, has assets to-day of over $1,089,000, a surplus of over $308,000, is paying 17 per cent. dividends, and its $1.00 shares are selling at $2.30.

THE WORKING HEN

Select the Best Layers as the Foundation of a Flock

There is just as much difference in hens as in horses. It is the individual capacity to put feed to good use that makes a hen or a horse valuable, and pure-bred horses and hens have been bred for this sort of a capacity to make them good, because that is what careful breeding is for.

Otherwise, we might just as well go back to "pennyroyal" cows, scrub horses and mongrel fowls without considering their blood lines, writes W. M. Phillips, in the Twentieth Century Farmer.

If eggs are more profitable than poultry for market, then we should seek to select our best layers as the dams of our flocks. This is not such a hard task as one might think. If we select the long-bodied, bright-combed, healthy-eating hen we will find her among the best layers.

The hen that is out as soon as the poultry house is opened in the morning and lingers out of doors until all the others have gone to roost is almost sure to be the best layer in the flock.

A good layer is indicated by a big crop, legs set well apart and a body that is deep in the rear.

No delicate, dainty hen was ever a good layer; she lacks the vitality that leads to great powers of reproduction. The good layer is always alert; and any hen can be kept tame and quiet if she is properly treated. What a test of patience it is to have the hens dig up things that we have planted and get in the way in the places where they have no particular business!

It is often a temptation to throw clubs at them or set the dog on them when they get into mischief.

Hens lay better when yarded than they do when allowed to have a run. By this means they are kept from learning how to get into mischief.

NATIONAL FLOWERS

Plants Which Are Regarded as Symbolical In Many Nations

Every nation seems to have a desire to equip itself with a symbolical plant. Most people are acquainted with the legend of St. Patrick and the shamrock, which has given Irishmen their special decoration.

Scotchmen are said to owe theirs to the fact that, when a party of invading Danes were approaching the slumbering camp in the darkness, [illegible] them trod on the prickly thistle, and announced his contact with it in rather loud tones. The Scots were awakened and drove off the enemy.

Patriotic Welshmen decorate their caps with a leek on the first of March, from an ancient custom of contributing a leek to the common repast at the annual gathering. England has always been famed for her roses; but the adoption of the rose as the national symbol does not seem to have taken place till Edward IV. introduced it on his seal. The lily of France has been traced to very early times, but probably owes its adoption to the Franks at the battle of Tolbiac, who crowned themselves with lilies after the battle.

Violets were especially associated with the fortunes of the Bonapartes.

In heathen countries certain trees are held sacred owing to their supposed connection with the heathen gods. The banyan of India is sacred to the Hindu because the Hindu god Vishnu was said to be born under it. The peepul was supposed to be the favorite tree of Buddha.

The national plant of Upper Egypt is the lotus, on which the sun was supposed to rise; that of Lower Egypt, a tuft of papyrus reed; while the palm is typical of Judaee. The leaf and flower of the chrysanthemum were long ago adopted and are still used as the special emblem of the Mikado of Japan, and a festival in honor of the golden chrysanthemum is held yearly.

THE KING AS A "LADY"

It was in Malta, years ago, when his Majesty (then Duke of York) was stationed there, and a dance was organized, literally on the spur of the moment, on one of the ships.

His Royal Highness was—and is, for the matter of that—always willing to join in anything that promises a bit of fun, so a "ballroom" was rigged up on the quarter-deck in about record time.

It was agreed that, since it was a men's party, those who were to take the ladies' parts were to wear a white handkerchief on their left sleeve.

Presently a "lady" approached the present King and, with what was meant to be a demure simper, asked for the pleasure of a dance.

"Go away, you juggins," was the Royal retort. "I am a 'lady' myself, but I have lost my blessed handkerchief. Come and have a cigar!"

FIDDLESTICKS!

It is said the beams and heavy timbers taken from old Swiss "chalets" and other old styles of houses make the source of supply from which some of the best violins are made.

But if age of material counts for anything, the violin made by an Indiana man should eclipse the finest "Strad."

The body of it, according to a violin paper, is made of a variety of cedar taken from an old log dug out of a New Jersey swamp, and is said by experts to be at least three thousand years old. The back of this instrument is from an old Scotch table that has reached the age of four centuries.

If age gives fineness of tone, how would a plank from Noah's Ark sound when worked into a fiddle?

Remarkable Bird that Speaks 200 Words in German

The Dutch New Guinea parrot, only three inches in length, whose skin has just been presented to the Natural History Museum at South Kensington, has, of course, been outdone for shortness of stature by the smallest species of humming bird, which is only an inch and a quarter in length, and weighs about twenty grains.

It has been outdone in value by the parrot for which Baron Alfred de Rothschild paid a record sum in [illegible]

He started with oxen, and has them yet; but he also has some fine Clydes[illegible] and hopes soon to show what he can do with them at exhibitions. A recent purchase of three quarter-sections places him in position to farm on a large scale.

HIS MEDITATIONS

Soon after Singleton's first baby was born, Mrs. Singleton went upstairs one evening and found her husband standing by the side of the crib and gazing earnestly at the child.

As she stood still for the moment, touched by the sight, the tears filled her eyes as she thought—

"Oh, how dearly Charlie loves that boy!"

Her arms stole softly round his neck, as she rubbed her cheek caressingly against his shoulder. Singleton started slightly at the touch.

"Darling," he murmured dreamily, "It is incomprehensible to me how they can get up such a crib as that for four dollars and a half."

Potato Dumplings

Take one egg well beaten, one pint of sweet milk, a cupful of mashed potatoes, hot and seasoned, a small lump of butter, and enough flour to make a stiff batter. When nearly all the flour is used, add two scant teaspoonfuls of baking-powder, and work in as lightly as possible. Drop in small lumps into boiling gravy, and cook for twenty minutes. These will help out nicely a dinner that threatens to be rather scanty.

Dustless Dusters

A great deal can be saved by making your own dustless dust cloths by the following recipe: One-third ounce oil of paraffin mixed with one pint of coal oil. Wash a piece of black cheesecloth in this and you will have a dustless dust cloth harmless to any furniture. The above quantity makes three yards.

WASTE NOT WANT NOT SOUP.

Get from your butcher 1 lb. of ends and trimmings of meat and some bones; place in a saucepan, cover well with water. Put in any raw and cooked vegetables you have, celery stalks, rinds and bones of bacon, scraps of bread and toast, seasoning of herbs, salt, and pepper, scraps of poultry or veal, some rice and minced parsley. Simmer gently for three hours, removing the fat occasionally. Strain through a colander, and serve very hot. Poach two or three eggs, and add them after the soup is in the tureen.

Satchets With Violet Perfume.

Mix equal quantities of powdered orrisroot and ground cloves with a little musk and attar of roses, the whole moistened with a little alcohol and then rolled and kneaded into a paste. It will in time get quite stiff. Break the paste up finely and [illegible] into satch[illegible]

Talking of the price of butter in Peterborough, why should not the Government allow the make or importation of oleomargarine. Surely good clean oleo at 15c would replace some of the strong butter sold here at 35c to 38c.

A Calgary dispatch says that a Chinese restaurant in that city was robbed. Some of those who take their meals down town in this city, will give a merry ha! ha!

The Ontario Government is considering an Act entitled, "The Underground Employment Act." While this bill refers to the work of miners, Peterborough citizens might easily think it referred to local politics.

The average boy of Peterborough certainly has more stamina than some of those in the U.S. A few days ago, a boy of Taunton, Mass., broke through the ice, fished out before going down twice, and then died from shock.

A Port Perry paper in a long article asks that the Scugog river be kept "at proper height." Quite right! Keep that river at a height that will conceal both sides of its banks.

Alderman Wants Local Control.

Following upon our report a few days ago, giving the particulars of a charter some Lakefield and Peterborough men are after for a street railway through the nearby townships, it is of interest to learn that Ald. Gordon has been working along the line of street railway ownership by the municipality in which it is located. This recent and energetic addition to the City Fathers of Peterborough, has given to the press of the city some interesting facts concerning the Port Arthur and Fort William electric road. Mr. Gordon claims that these nearby Ontario towns are proud of this enterprise and anyone going to Port Arthur or Fort William is first made acquainted with this railway, by the citizens, as one of the most successful plants in America and the result is that they and Calgary have indicated sound business sense. Mr. Gordon is of the opinion that Peterborough should consider the question of taking over the local street railroad.

Toronto has been discussing the question of whether the ordinary ratepayer or the freeholder has a right to vote on money by-laws. The average property owner in this city would sell out and go west, if transient monthly tenants could control the financial destiny of Peterborough.

The Canadian Journal of Commerce one of Canada's leading financial papers, quotes the prices for the Dominion on chickens as 12½ to 15c. We would like to see the editor or reporter of the J. of C. buy chickens here at the price quoted.

AN EXCITING PRESENT-DAY ROMANCE

—BY—

WEATHERBY CHESNEY

Supplied Exclusively in Canada by The British & Colonial Press Service, Limited.

"Because he had tricked him," said Montague; "has served the canting, blackmailing blackguard right! During those three hours whilst the blackmailer was cooling his heels at the rendezvous which your father had given the latter was busy hiding the diamonds. When he met the man at the Caldeira de Morte, he snapped his fingers in his face, laughed at him, and told him to do his worst. The stones were safe now. At that Gillies admits that he lost his temper, but your father did nothing but laugh. There was no actual quarrel, because your father refused to show anything but amusement at the other man's anger. Then Gillies, seeing that the game was up for the present, went away; but before he had gone a hundred yards he heard his name shouted in a tone of terror. He went back. Mr. Carrington was lying on the ground in what appeared to be a fit, and a minute later the end came. The man waited a minute until he was sure that he was dead, and then fled without looking behind him."

Montague paused again, and for a short time no one spoke. Elsa was sobbing quietly, with her head on Mona's shoulder, and Mona's arm encircling her protectingly.

Then Scarborough said:—

"And the scratched stone?"

"Gillies knew nothing of it. Mrs. Carrington, in my hearing, sir, chaffed him for having overlooked it. That woman is clever, sir, but I do not think she has a heart."

"She told him about the stone!" Scarborough exclaimed. "Was that before she made her bargain with him?"

"It was after, sir," said Montague, smiling.

"What was the bargain?" Varney asked.

"The same which he had proposed to the dead man—thirty per cent., which he pointed out was not blackmail, but a fair commission earned by eminent, and as yet unrewarded services in the past. The sanctimonious hound said that his conscience allowed that percentage, but forbade him to ask for more. Jumping Jehoshaphat, sir! if I owned a conscience like that, I wouldn't let it work for less than cent. per cent. on each transaction!"

"Did Mrs. Carrington agree to those terms?"

"With the meekness of an unshorn ewe lamb! I have hopes from that! I anticipate that when the day of division comes, her conscience will have to be consulted, and it will tell her that it cannot sanction the payment of blackmail at all! It would please me if that crawling thing got very badly left in the end."

"Well," said Scarborough laughing, "that's what we are going to try to do. How did they get rid of you?"

"With a revolver."

"What? Whose?" came from Scarborough and Varney simultaneously.

"The widow's. She held it over me while Gillies changed the saddle from his donkey on to mine, and I didn't dare to move. She promised to put a bullet through my leg if I did, and I thought she probably would. Afterwards she gave the revolver to Gillies to hold, while she rode on ahead. I thought of making a dash then, in spite of the fact that Gillies had been instructed to wing me if I tried; and if I had been as young as either of you I should probably have done it, because I din't really think the worm would have the courage to pull the trigger. But, sir, I am forty-two, and I have lived in countries where revolvers do occasionally go off, and I know that sometimes a man pulls the trigger, as you might say, thoughtlessly, without meaning it, and is surprised afterwards to find that there has been an accident. I sat where I was. After the widow had got a quarter of a mile away, Gillies followed her, and his donkey soon caught hers up. I watched them till they were out of sight, and then I walked on here. And as I am dead beat, here for the present I mean to stay. What are you going to do?"

"Which way did these two go?" asked Varney.

"They took the road which leads to Sete Cidades, but I don't know whether they stuck to it."

"Then we shall probably follow them there," said Scarborough. "But first we are going back to the Casa Davis."

"What for? Shouldn't waste time, if I were you. Follow them now, sir!"

Scarborough explained how Mr. Davis expected to get a better reading of the message on the scratched stone by photography, and Montague said:—

"Good! If he succeeds you'll have a pull there. The widow knows only the words she heard when she was at the keyhole, and I don't think Gillies knows more. Like to hear a bit of advice from me? I've bungled my job, you will say, so I ought to be humble about advising. But as I think the advice is good I'll risk your snub, and give it you. Watch the coast."

"What do you mean?"

"This. If the widow and Gillies find the stones, they will be in a hurry to get away from the island of San Miguel, won't they?"

"I thought of that, and I've made inquiries," said Scarborough. "There's no steamer out for the next five days."

"I dare say not," said Montague, "but they won't wait for a steamer. My ring-master didn't, and they'll go by his road. See here, I'll improve your mind by imparting some of the knowledge of local politics which I've learned lately myself. They've got conscription in these islands. Don't fidget, man; you'll see in a minute that I'm talking strictly to the point—they've got conscription, and one consequence of that is that no young Azorean is allowed to emigrate till he has served his time in the army, or till he has paid a tax of some forty pounds to go to the cost of providing a substitute. Well, there are lots of young fellows who haven't got forty pounds in the world, and have no prospects of ever raising it, and yet they emigrate. How do you suppose they manage it? The Yankee orange ships help 'em, sir. My great country is always at hand to help the cause of freedom, corporate or individual—at a profit! The would-be emigrant goes out in a small boat in a fog, or on a dark night, if there isn't a fog: the orange ship, which has been hanging about for the express purpose, takes him aboard, and carries him to the land of freedom, for money down if he has any, and if not, for the value of his boat, which, ten to one, he has stolen. Since I began to make inquiries in the matter I have heard of a skipper picking up as many as twenty passengers of that sort in a single foggy night. My ring-master seems to have known of that earlier than I did. I used to wonder what his idea was in running away with my ship as he did; it seemed to me a pointless bit of piracy, if prison waited for him when he came back, as of course he must have known that it did, barring the lucky fog and the luckier orange boat. But I don't wonder now; I know. There was no luck about it. He calculated on both the fog and the orange boat; and mark my words, if you don't look out to prevent it, that's what Gillies will do, too. See sense in what I say?"

"Yes," said Scarborough. "But we can't watch the whole coast."

"No need to. Watch the place where Gillies keeps his boat—the one he went to the Ring Rock in. Miss Carrington has a boat, too, hasn't she? Have it handy, night and day, with a couple of men in it who know how to row. Now off with you! I'm here for the night, but if I have recovered sufficiently in the morning, I'll contrive to report to you somewhere, and you can make use of me in any way you like. Sorry I've been such a fool over the job you did give me to do."

Five minutes later the party had started. Scarborough rode with Elsa, Varney with Muriel Davis, as had been arranged. The problem of how to dispose of Mona de la Mar had been settled by that lady herself. She said that she would wait to see that Montague was made comfortable by the Scotch landlady, and then, would follow alone. Elsa gave Scarborough a hint of the possible reason for this.

"I have found out why she said last night that she did not need the diamonds now. Do you remember that she blushed when she told us that she had a reason for not saying at present how it came about that she did not want them?"

"Yes," said Scarborough. "I wondered why."

"So did I. To-day she told me. Phil Varney told you that her father made his money in cattle ranching; did he know that there was an uncle in partnership?"

"Perhaps he did. He didn't say so to me, though."

"The uncle took over the whole interest when Mona's father retired. He died three months ago; he was a bachelor, and Mona is his heiress. She is a rich woman, richer than ever she was before my father took her inheritance."

Scarborough whistled.

"Good old Mona!" he said, laughing. "I'm glad. But I don't see why she blushed."

"She loves Montague, and she wants him to ask her to marry him. He half did so once before, and took his words back because he found out that she had some money. She thinks that if he were to learn about this he would never ask her at all."

"So we are to keep quiet about it?" said Scarborough. "All right, I won't give her away. I think she is a splendid girl, and Val B., in spite of his eccentricities, is almost as good a fellow as she thinks him. But do you approve of the match?"

"Of course I do," said Elsa. "She loves him. What else matters?"

Scarborough did not answer; but he stole a glance at the girl who had given that as her philosophy of love and marriage; and he remembered the words, in case he should have to quote them presently against the speaker herself.

They rode the rest of the way in silence, giving all their attention to keeping up a good pace. At the gate of the Casa Davis they were met by Muriel's father and Scott, who had ridden over from Ribeira Grande. Scott put a letter into Scarborough's hand without speaking, and Mr. Davis was waving a slip of shining paper in the air.

"Is that the photograph?" asked Scarborough eagerly.

"Yes. Read it!"

The words which they already knew stood out white from the brown background of the paper, but between them there were now other words, faint, but still legible.

"Diamond cache. Blue lake . . feet N. of dripping well."

"Where is the Blue Lake?" asked Varney.

"At Sete Cidades," said Davis.

"And that is the road that Montague said those two had taken! By Jove!" said Varney excitedly. "Or as Val B. himself would say, Jumping Jehoshaphat, sir! We shall have to hurry!"

CHAPTER XXV.

The Philosophy of Croesus.

"Now, Horace," said Varney, "dispose your forces. We all put ourselves under your orders. What are we to do?"

Scarborough turned to Scott.

"Are you free to join in?" he asked.

"Yes," said Scott. "I've arranged for both your duty and mine in the instrument room to be taken for us. You promised that I should be in at the death, you know, so I made Mason and the Pathriot volunteer to see our work through."

"Good. Then Phil, will you go to the coast. I think Montague was right, and that if they find the diamonds they'll try to get away at once. Find out where Gillies' boat is lying, and keep an eye on her. If you see them trying to escape, stop them if you can; we shan't be far behind, I hope, and will come to your help. If you can't stop them, follow them in Miss Carrington's boat, find out the name of the ship that picks them up, and we'll cable to the American ports, and have them stopped when they try to land. Scott and I will go to Sete Cidades."

"What about us?" asked Elsa. "Muriel and I claim to be included in your arrangements."

"Then I arrange that you shall both stay here," said Scarborough at once. "Our work may not be of a kind that you ought to share."

WOMEN'S AILMENTS CAUSED BY NEGLECT

ARE QUICKLY CURED AND ROBUST, SOUND HEALTH RESTORED BY DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS.

Women are on the whole more sickly than men. One reason is that their system is more complicated; another and more important reason is they put off measures of relief too long. At the beginning, constipation is the cause of nine-tenths of women's ailments. The blood becomes weakened and polluted—the nerves suffer, and a run-down condition takes root.

Because of their mildness of action as a system regulator, because of their undoubted power to remove constipation, irregularities, no medicine for women can compare with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. The kidneys quickly respond to the remedial action of Dr. Hamilton's Pills and the result is as you would expect, pain in the back and side, shortness of breath, and bad color disappear—the functions of the body then operate naturally, congestion and pain are prevented and perfect health returns.

Thousands of happy women say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the greatest and best blood-purifier, the finest complexion renewer, the most certain regulating medicine known. All dealers in 25c. boxes, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

FARMERS WANT HIGHER PRICES

Bloomfield, Ont., farmers have signed an agreement not to raise certain lines of produce until prices raise. Great Ceasar! It's lucky that the farmers of this part of the Province are content with present prices, or the people of this city would "go broke" in about one month after paying their taxes.

TEDDY DECLARES HIMSELF.

Ex-President Roosevelt can no longer be charged with maintaining an equivocal attitude toward the presidential nomination. It is not now possible for his enemies to insist—as the New York newspapers have long been doing—that he was secretly scheming to capture the Presidency while his friends were asserting that all thought of another term in the White House was repugnant to him. These were the contrasting types of opinion six months ago. It has for some weeks been evident to neutral-minded observers that he was getting into readiness to take the step just announced. His "hat-in-the-ring" utterance, in Cleveland, only deepened the impression that the latest Outlook deliverance on the third term had made. And these but accentuated the reports that have been coming regularly from visitors to Oyster Bay, who have found him steadily seeing more and more arguments for consenting to accept the nomination. His Cleveland speech was virtually the platform of a presidential aspirant. And he is not merely receptive; he wants the nomination, and is frank enough to express the hope that the people be given a chance through direct primaries to express their preference.

AUSTRIA'S INFLUENCE.

The bombardment of Beirut has followed closely on the funeral of Count von Aehrenthal. It is now plain that the restriction of the area of warfare hitherto was mainly due to the influence of the Austrian foreign minister. His efforts were devoted to averting an outbreak in the Balkans. The calamity now seems nearer.

Italy, of course, could not be expected to confine herself indefinitely to Africa. Whatever opinion one holds as to the quarrel, a belligerent is entitled to attack the adversary wherever it can. The conquest of Tripoli is a slow business, and the cost is tremendous—$400,000 a day, it is said. The people of Italy want something spectacular, and their deputies, just assembled, have no doubt told the ministers so.

Turkey has a long coastline exposed to attack. At some places the defences are strong—notably at Salonica. Constantinople is practically impregnable. But Italian guns can do terrible execution at many points, and operations about Prevesa may end in dragging Greece in.

A more hopeful view of the situation is that vigorous action by Italy may cause the Turkish government to decide to accept the inevitable and end the war.

PETERBOROUGH'S HIGH STANDING.

In the new Ontario appropriation of $1,000,000 for road improvements, it is stipulated that no member of the county council shall have the handling of any of the expenditure. This, of course, has no insinuation that such officials have "sticky fingers," or might require a trip to Chicago or Boston to find out how the cities level hills or pick pebbles off the streets. Let us get our just share of that million and Peterborough will stand by the donors! Peterborough city is one of Canada's most quickly growing manufacturing centres, and this county with improved highways, will stand even higher than it always has done, as one of the banner agricultural districts of Ontario.

WILL NOT ASSIMILATE.

Mr. H. H. Stevens of Vancouver, B.C., speaking before the Canadian Club of Toronto, said: "One in every ten persons in British Columbia is an Oriental." The speaker refering later on to this ominous fact, said that this assimilation implies intermarriage of the Anglo-Saxon and the Orientals. If there should be no intermarriage, then there must result segregation of the Oriental races who possess political, social, moral and intellectual ideals which are totally different from those of Anglo-Saxon origin.

Judging by the complexion and facial characteristics of the Chinese we have in this city, there is mighty little chance of any intermarriage between them and any of Peterborough's fair-sex. The Peterborough girl who would wed one of our local Eastern representatives, is either at Mimico or a future applicant for a railroad ticket to there.

Editorial Notes

Mr. Bourassa is evidently boarding in "The House of Trouble" when he tried to whip Borden into line to suit himself and his followers.

The Ontario Government is going to spend one million dollars in the improvement of public highways. This will be good news for the Province, and it will now be up to Mr. Peck, our local representative to see that this County gets its full share of the appropriation. For instance, a few of those ten times one hundred thousand dollars would do a whole lot of good in the township of Smith, Ennismore, Otonabee, the Monaghans, Douro, Harvey, Galway, etc.

Brampton, Ont., is going to eliminate the "Blind Pigs" it is said are located there. Thanks to the Ontario Government and a wide-awake local inspector, Peterborough has none of these animals at large. What liquor is sold in this city, at present is dispensed under strict supervision.

Port perry has had a re-union of the Williams family of that town to celebrate the 80th anniversary of one of that name. We offer a leather medal to whomsoever will give us the name of any particular family in this city that has the largest list, all of the same name. Smiths are debarred.

Health and Beauty Helps

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN

A. A.: I know just how you feel, but unless you discard powder and use a plain spurmax lotion, you cannot expect to overcome the oily, "muddy" condition of the skin. Get four ounces spurmax and dissolve in one-half pint hot water, then add two teaspoonfuls glycerine. This makes an ideal lotion and will clear the skin of pimples, blackheads and other impurities. The spurmax lotion is invisible when on and does not rub or blow off. Using it gives the complexion a velvety smoothness and exquisite tint.

Nellie: You can avoid the pain and expense attending the use of the electric needle, if you get an original ounce-package of delatone, and with a little of the powder mix enough water to form a paste. Apply to hairy surface and in two or three minutes scrape off and the hairs come with it. Then wash the skin and you will find it smooth and white. You will have to pay a dollar an ounce for delatone, but this is trifling as it never fails.

A. B.: The shampoo you mention contains "free" alkali, and it is this no doubt that causes your hair to grow coarse and brittle and fall out. A cleansing and very beneficial shampoo can be made by dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox in a cup of hot water. This lathers freely and loosens every particle of dust and dandruff. Rinsing leaves the scalp immaculately clean and the hair dries quickly and evenly, while it takes on a lustre and softness truly charming.

Freda: From what you say, your condition is serious, and I would suggest taking a blood-cleanser. You will find that plain kardene, found in any drug store, is splendid for ridding the system of impurities and rebuilding waste tissue. This acts gently and greatly stimulates every organ in the body. You can make your own tonic by dissolving one-half cupful sugar in a half-pint alcohol, then adding one ounce kardene and hot water to make a quart. Take a tablespoonful three times a day, and you will soon be well and strong and be able to enjoy a good night's rest.

Jessie: I cannot recommend an eye-salve because this does not reach the seat of trouble. What you require for sore eyes and granulated lids is an eye-tonic, and at little cost you can prepare your own. Get from the druggist one ounce crystos and dissolve in a pint cold water, then put two or three drops in the eyes every day. This tonic is very strengthening to weak, tired muscles and its continued use overcomes burning and itching and gives to dull, expressionless eyes a remarkable sparkle and brilliancy.

Clara: You certainly have cause to worry about your hair, and unless the brittleness is overcome and the dandruff removed from the scalp, you will have very little hair in a short while. I am sure you will obtain excellent results from quinzoin hair-tonic, the formula of which is here given: Mix together one-half pint each of alcohol and water and into this pour one ounce quinzoin. Use frequently and massage well into the scalp. Do this for a time and you will not be bothered with an unhealthy scalp or dull, lifeless hair. The persistent use of this quinzoin hair-tonic will give you a magnificent head of glossy hair.

Mrs. G. M.: It is an easy matter to reduce your weight to where you want it and regain your former figure, if you will use this simple treatment: Into a pint-and-a-half hot water dissolve four ounces parnotis, and when it cools take one tablespoonful before each meal. This gradually takes off weight without injury or inconvenience and does not leave the skin wrinkled or flabby.

Mrs. E.: The cold winds are very trying on any complexion. However, if you make up and use this greaseless cream jelly your skin will soon become soft, clear and velvety and wrinkles and other complexion troubles will be a thing of the past: Into a half pint cold water stir two teaspoonfuls glycerine and one ounce almozoin. Let remain several hours before using. Apply freely after cleansing and drying the skin, massaging gently until it disappears. A few such treatments will banish pimples, blackheads and other impurities and give a pink and white embellishment to an old or faded complexion.

NOT OUT?

A match was in progress between a well-known Surrey village team and a team from London. The village parson was batting, and the village barber was umpire at one end.

The parson hit a ball towards mid-on and went for a run. The ball was fielded smartly, and the parson seemingly run out.

But, to the astonishment of the London team, the umpire said "not out."

When the parson got a chance he said to the barber, "That was a close shave!"

"Yes," said the barber; "and if you wasn't in the habit of having a shampoo, I would have said, "Next gentleman, please."

WHAT'S THE USE?

In one of the council schools there was a little girl who was well up in most of her studies, but she disliked geography, and it seemed impossible to teach the study to her.

One day her teacher sent to Rosie's mother a note requesting her to see that the girl studied her lessons. The next day showed no improvement, however.

"Did your mother read the note, Rosie?" asked the teacher.

"Yes, ma'am," was the reply.

"What did she say?"

"My mother said that she didn't know geography and she got married, and my aunt didn't know any and she got married, and you know geography and you didn't get married!"

CURIOUS MASCOTS

Singers Who Have Real Faith in Such Company

Madame Patti, who has enraptured all music-lovers, places great belief in an old doll, called "Henriette," which she has treasured as her special talisman since she was seven years of age.

Another great singer with a real faith in mascots is Madame Alice Esty and she never sings in public without wearing a small green heart attached to a delicate necklace of gold.

The Shah of Persia and a small table, upon which are five splendid portraits, are quite inseparable. This mascot accompanies him everywhere and is placed close to his pillow while he sleeps. The portrait consists of himself, the late King Edward and his Consort, and the Tsar and Tsaritsa of Russia. The late Baroness Burdett-Coutts was almost convinced that good luck would desert her if she parted with a lucky guinea. This coin was given to her grandfather, who dressed rather carelessly, by a benevolent old gentleman who had mistaken the former for one seeking charity!

Among ladies in French society there is a great desire to possess for "luck" bits of the hangman's rope, and applications are frequently made—but without success—to influential Britons connected with the Home Office to obtain such unpleasant relics from the hangman!

SASKATCHEWAN GRAIN AND RANCH LANDS

The attention of farmers and stock raisers is invited to the lands shown in the above plan.

The lands are situate in the Port Pelly District, Northern Saskatchewan, long known as probably the richest farming district in the Province. The parcel, which contains approximately 3,681 ACRES in one compact block, is watered on the west and south sides by the Assiniboine River, and by a large creek on the east. It is well wooded, thus assuring as well as evidencing ample rainfall, and plentiful supply of cheap fuel. It is undulating and well drained, having an elevation above the river, and rising gradually from it to a height of about 60 feet, and provides many beautiful residential sites.

In the advantages it offers for mixed farming it is unique, there being some 2,400 acres clear and ready for the plow, while the balance consists of timber and excellent pasture land, admirably suited to stock-raising. The soil is a rich, black loam, from 8 to 10 inches in thickness, resting on a clay subsoil, except along the river, where it is a rich sandy loam. Crops produced on similar neighboring lands are phenomenal for their quantity and quality.

The location is within ten miles of Mikado Station, on the main line between Winnipeg and Edmonton, of the Canadian Northern Railway, with good trails leading to it, and within a short distance of a school, While the settlement going on in the neighborhood is rapidly adding all the adjuncts of an up-to-date farming community.

This is an opportunity for a man with capital, business ability and practical experience. Such a man should clear his whole investment, including all improvements and equipment, in four or five years at the outside. And now is the time to purchase, as the price will shortly be advanced $5.00 per acre. Experienced men predict this land will be worth $50.00 per acre within ten years. Lands immediately adjoining, which last spring could have been bought for $14.00, are held to-day at $20.00 and $25.00 per acre.

We are also offering some 1,100 acres additional, in separate parcels of three half sections, and one quarter sections, situate in the same locality as above.

These lands were selected for the excellence of their location and the magnificent quality of their soil, which latter the official records of the Indian Agency demonstrate.

ALONE HE DID IT

A Captain Who for Three Days Ran the Ship Himself

For one man to do the work of twenty with his own hands for three days and nights, and with forty lives under his charge, is a feat that takes some beating. It was done by Captain Morell, who brought the steamship Scindhia home by himself, although the crew considered necessary to work her was twenty-five, including engineers.

With $35,000 worth of cargo and fifteen passengers on board, she broke down in the Atlantic, and was driven hundreds of miles north out of her course. An accident spoiled the fresh water, and distilled water gave the crew dysentery, which, together with mishaps, left the captain without an officer or a man capable of work. The first officer and five of the crew were washed overboard, the two chief engineers were killed in the mishap, and the third only managed to make the damage good before he was laid up.

The captain, when the storm subsided, actually started one of the fires himself, got one of the engines to work at slow speed, and, by superhuman efforts, he managed to navigate the ship and keep her going, backed by great good luck.

He brought the Scindhia homeward round the North of Ireland, getting no wink of sleep for three days and nights; as he was out of the line of traffic, nobody saw his distress signals. He brought his ship to within twenty miles of the Mersey, and there a pilot-boat met him. Once boarded, he collapsed, and slept soundly for twenty-four hours; but he had, says The Mariner, the biggest ovation any merchant captain ever received when he got ashore.

POINTS FOR GIRLS.

Some rules worth following for young girls are: Be natural. Young girls, from lack of selfconfidence, often try to copy the style and manners of someone they admire, and the result is not a success. It is better to be oneself. Be above jealousies. When another girl is criticised, be the first to say the generous word in defence of the absent one. Be a good listener. It is a safe rule that everyone you meet likes to be listened to quite as well as to listen.

COMFORT FOR AIRMEN

H. B. Wild Tells of Wonders He saw At Paris Exhibition.

Absolute comfort for both pilots and passengers is being provided for by the leading aeroplane designers abroad. Horace B. Wild, of the Aero Club of Illinois, recently returned from a visit to Europe, has a lot of interesting things to tell of what he saw at the Aero Show in Paris. One three-passenger monoplane at the show had elaborately upholstered seats with arm rests, foot-warmers, whose heat was received from the exhaust, and speaking-tubes for communication between passengers and driver. In another monoplane the driver was covered all but his head with a thin waterproof hood, fastened to the edges of the cockpit with easily released glove clasps. Mr. Wild says Italy sent a great many more aeroplanes out to the seat of war in Tripoli than was publically admitted. With his own eyes the Chicago aeronaut saw three carloads of flying machines being shipped to the front. He knows eighteen Nieupots were purchased for the Italian army, and from what he afterward heard at the Bleriot works, is convinced that at least sixty monoplanes and biplanes are now available for the Italian forces in Africa.

SPORT FOR SPORT SAKE

Object of Amateur Athletic Federation Recently Formed in United States

It will be interesting to watch the progress of the new Amateur Athletic Federation, but in the present condition of things it will have a hard row to hoe, if it sticks closely to the lines laid down for it—sport for sport's sake, with prizes of little or no intrinsic value. This sort of thing will not appeal strongly to the average amateur athlete of to-day, who trains constantly with little regard for his studies, who is accustomed to gold watches, gold medals, and other valuables or prizes, was so sought after by the rich athletic clubs, and generally lives in clover.

The members of the Federation will have to come from the younger class or the genuine amateur, the athlete who has no desire to make money out of sport. The competitions will consist of school boys and young men who have a moderate amount of time to give to athletics, and want to meet rivals of their kind. It is difficult for anyone to take up any sport and have to do his work alone because he has no chance whatever against those who are seen constantly in the meets of the clubs under the control of the Amateur Athletic Union. No athlete, who is really fond of sport, cares to take a big handicap all the time, and never see even a bronze medal. To excel in any sport one must compete against better men, but one does not maintain interest in any sport on earth when he is constantly in the "also ran" class. The new athletic federation may do good in this respect. It may encourage the youngsters and bring out some good ones from their ranks. Athletics are too expensive nowadays, and the federation may succeed in changing this. Dr. H. L. Chadwick, athletic director at the Friends' Central School of Philadelphia, for years active in the Y.M.C.A. and A.A.U., and still an official in the latter body, thinks there is room for both the Union and the Federation. He says: "There is plenty of work for the federation without in any way interfering with the Amateur Athletic Union. In the Amateur Athletic Union we have been feeding the amateurs on gold watches so long that the federation way of running athletics will not tempt them to compete. Our new field deals with a class of athletics which the Amateur Athletic Union never has and never can touch, and includes that very desirable younger element, the schoolboy."

Against High Speeding.

Believing that high-speed motor car racing no longer serves a useful purpose, besides bringing discredit upon motoring and the motor-car trade, Benjamin Briscoe, president of the United States Motor Company, has prepared a letter to the American Automobile Association advising that it abandon the control of speed contests and devote its time to the promotion and encouragement of touring and reliability contests and particularly furthering its work for good roads, a work which the national organization has done with excellent results during the past five years.

The Cost of Golf.

The Royal Montreal Golf Club's expenditure last year was $11,234. Green sages and upkeep of links cost $4,429. President J. T. McCall, who is also President of the Royal Canadian Golf Association, was re-elected at the annual meeting. The Canadian championships will be held on the club's links this year.

EMPLOYMENT OF WOMEN

An American Consular report says that in Germany 9,400,000, France 6,800,000, Austria 5,600,000, and England 5,300,000 women are employed in manufactures and trades. To every 100 workmen in Austria there are 43 women, France 34, Italy 32, Germany 30, Switzerland 29, England 24, and Sweden 21. The amount of work done by women is steadily increasing, especially in small ventures. The percentage of women who have independent businesses has risen rapidly, and to every 22 small businesses carried on by men there are 10 carried on by women.

Natural Cure for Catarrh Obviates Taking Drugs

IT HAS SUPERSEDED THE OLD-FASHIONED STOMACH-DOSING REMEDIES, AND INVARIABLY CURES QUICKLY.

It was their inability to reach the real source of catarrh and bronchitis that caused the medical profession to drop liquid cough medicines and adopt "Catarrhozone" instead. Catarrhozone provides a method of breathing right into the lungs certain rare medicinal vapors which are so healing and comforting as to entirely banish coughs, catarrh and throat trouble in a very short time.

The most wonderful thing about Catarrhozone is, that no matter where the germs of bronchitis or catarrh are hidden, Catarrhozone will reach and destroy them.

"About five years ago I took a cold in the head and Catarrh set in. It kept increasing by leaps and bounds. I kept putting off getting anything until at last I found I would have to. After trying several things I heard of your remedy, Catarrhozone, and procured a bottle and began using it. I was not long in finding out I had struck the right thing. I am recommending Catarrhozone to all who have catarrh, etc.

"(Signed) Everton L. Wasson,
"Blair P.O., Queen's Co., N.B."

Catarrhozone has made an astonishing record of cures. Its method is right; no drugs; just healing balsamic vapors, that bring instant relief to Catarrh and all throat, bronchial and chest colds. Get the large size, lasts months, is sure to cure you, price $1.00; smaller size 50c; sample or trial size, 25c. All dealers or The Catarrhozone Company, Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Ont.

VALUABLE ASSET

Nothing is sacred nowadays. A bankrupt was telling the court how poor he was, and how much money he had lost by commercial depression, when the official receiver remarked:

"You have very good teeth, Mr. Stylish."

"Yes," innocently replied the bankrupt, "they are very sound."

"How much did you give for them?" was the next question—and it was a poser.

"Must I answer such a rude question?" asked the bankrupt, appealing to the judge.

"Certainly," answered the man of law.

"Well, I gave fifty dollars for them."

"Ah, very good," said the official receiver; "then hand them over for the benefit of your creditors."

THE FASCINATING STAGE

A Middle-Aged Lady Who Paid to be Allowed to Dance.

It was during the course of an interview that Mr. H. Brandeth, theatrical manager related to the writer an incident which provides a striking illustration of the fascination which the stage has for some people.

Some time ago Mr. Brandeth happened to visit a large and popular music-hall in the province. One of the turns was a dance by a lady nearing middle age. "Her dancing was technically perfect," he said; "but, oh, dear, how ungainly! She was more like a loose windmill moving around than a woman. Afterwards I learnt that she had paid the management $5,000 to be permitted to dance a solo in public, and she paid another $5,000 to give a second performance. What her reason was for appearing behind the footlights I don't know, for she was unmistakably well-off, and after the second performance she informed the management that she would not appear again. So far as I know she never has."

Mr. Brandreth also related another instance of a young lady of considerable means who, wishing to gain some stage experience, paid a premium to a certain manager, not only for herself, but also for her maid. The latter was a very bright and attractive girl, and had not been long in the chorus before she showed excellent promise. Her mistress, on the other hand, seemed quite unsuitable for stage work. The manager ultimately gave the maid a good part and made her a generous offer, with the result that she gave notice to her mistress. To-day the maid is one of the brightest "stars" in the musical-comedy firmament. Curiously enough, the mistress stuck to the stage, and actually upon occasions played a minor part in a play in which her late maid was the principal performer.

"There is no denying the fact," continued Mr. Brandreth, "that advancement on the stage can, to the right person, be very rapid. Take, for instance, the following example. A young girl employed in a suburban theatre in South London, which many musical-comedy companies visit, picked up a special style of her own by watching. Eventually she procured an engagement in one of Mr. George Edwardes's companies. In two years she became a London 'star,' and married a husband worth some $50,000 a year, retiring from the stage at the same time."

BIG PRIZE MONEY

Mulford's Automobile Earnings Far Exceed Ty. Cobb's Receipts.

Somewhere between the round numbers $17,000 and $18,000 lies the exact amount of "Smiling" Ralph Mulford's share of automobile prize money for the fifteen months following his victory in the Elgin race of August, 1910. Pretty fair returns for less than a year and a half's work, the average man will agree. It is more by some thousands of dollars than Tyrus Cobb, the greatest ball player in the major leagues, receives for his services in the same period of time.

Calculating the running time of the races where Mulford drew down cash prizes as actual working hours, the modest sum of $500 per hour is found to be the reward for a winning driver. The 500 mile race at Indianapolis last May in which Mulford finished second proved one of the Lozier driver's big bread-winners. This race occupied seven hours in the running. Mulford's share amounted to about $700 or payment at the rate of $1,000 an hour. [illegible] branches of sport where [illegible] are at stake, having once [illegible] money, the more serious [illegible] of how to hang on to it, [illegible] itself to the driver whom [illegible] has favored.

Mulford has never had to solve the [illegible] problem. His bad habits do not include alcohol or tobacco and consequently the wine supper and its accompaniments is an unknown feature of his celebrations of racing victories. In fact all a Mulford celebration consists of is the donating of a share of the prize money to Mechanician "Bill" Chandeler, and a return trip to the simple life with Mrs. Mulford. By applying themselves to the task of living within salary limits, the Mulford family has been enabled to bank or invest the major portion of every cash prize won by the head of the household. Ralph Mulford has been in the racing game long enough to realize that it is not without its attendant dangers, and he intends to quit just as soon as the bank account can get along without his assistance.

Although, no doubt, every railway company would gladly convey His Majesty and the Queen free of charge, our rulers pay exactly the same price as anybody else for a special train, in addition to the first-class fare of every passenger by whom they may be accompanied in their respective suites.

The Queen's Jewels

Among the jewels the Queen most values is a chain of pearls presented to her as a wedding present by the women of twenty-three English counties. Thirty thousand dollars was subscribed, but only $25,000 was spent on the necklace, and the other $5,000 was divided amongst various charities chosen by Her Majesty.

NEW LIGHT ON COST OF LIVING

Food Products, Not Manufactures, Are the Articles High in Price

Mr. F. W. Field, Editor of "The Monetary Times," Toronto, in a recent article says:

"A significant fact in connection with the volume of talk and discussion that has originated from that hackneyed topic, the cost of living, is that in Canada the chief complaint is made against the high prices of food products, and not so much against manufactured articles. This circumstance is made plain when one begins to seek data regarding the comparative cost to the consumer in the United States and Canada of household furniture, crockery, stoves and other articles of domestic use. While every Government report gives plenty of information about grains and fodder, animals and meats, dairy produce, fish and other foods, there is a remarkable paucity of material showing the cost of certain staple manufacturered products. Those reports, which happen to be more elaborate in their record of the output and consumption of manufacturer, give but few examples in each class of goods. For instance, the report on wholesale prices for 1910, published by the United States Government gives figures relating to furniture under the following heads only—bed room suite., bedroom chairs, kitchen chairs and kitchen tables. The natural deduction from all this is simply that there has been little or no demand for such information, due largely to the fact that no one seems to be greatly dissatisfied with the prices of the common ordinary household article made in the factory. The increasing cost of eating to live, appears to be the backbone of the great economic problem, which is agitating the consumer of the American Continent.

It is sometimes contended that the housewife in Canada, because of our tariff, cannot obtain furniture and other domestic necessities as cheaply as can be purchased in the United States. Those official facts and figures, available, show that in this direction there is little, if any, cause for complaint. Canada has been more fortunate than some countries, for the tendency in the past decade has been one of decline in the prices of bedsteads, crockery, glassware, table cutlery and silver plated ware. It is interesting to analyze this situation more closely. Mr. R. H. Coats, in his special report on wholesale prices in Canada, obtained quotations for six representative lines of furniture, viz: kitchen tables and chairs, dining room tables and sideboards, bedroom suites and iron bedsteads. In all lines of wooden furniture, a steady and pronounced rise occurred in prices during the past twenty years.

In iron and brass bedsteads, on the other hand, there was a pronounced decline in the past ten years. The line quoted was a continuous pillar bed of shipping weight, about seventy-five pounds. It showed a decline from $6.51 in 1890 to $3.50 in 1909. The explanation offered by a leading manufacturer is that the manufacture of this article in Canada has reduced the cost both of brass and iron bedsteads.

The general tendency in crockery and glassware, table cutlery and silver plated ware was downward.

There was an advance of from 12 to 15 per cent. in pails and tubs compared with 1890, and of approximately 30 per cent. compared with the low years, 1896-1897. The most extraordinary advance, however is shown under the heading of brooms, which, in the closing days of 1909, had considerably more than doubled, as compared with the prices ruling in 1890. This, however, was largely accounted for by the scarcity of broom corn last year following a failure of the yield in the United States, the cost of broom corn to the manufacturer having advanced from $6-$10 to $20-$34 per ton. Apart from this advance, the price of brooms was fairly stationary during the decade from 1900 to 1910.

The question of raw materials to manufacturers has been a prominent one in many countries, but Canada probably has felt this phase of the question less than a good man nations. Commenting on this, the London Times said, two years ago: "The steady advance in the cost of raw materials, which is becoming a very serious matter, is due to a number of causes, chief among which may be mentioned the comparative smallness of the production, the great increase in the consumption, the high cost of labor in the producing districts, and the effect upon production and wholesale distribution of artificial restrictions." This fact has affected the cost to the consumer of a large number of articles. Too often the comparatively high price of a manufactured article is due to the desire of the manufacturer to create or maintain large profits. Aside from the question of wages, freight rates, the increased cost of factory sites, and many other important considerations, the factor of raw material is vital and has a tendency to fluctuate more widely than manufactured articles. On summing up the averages of wholesale prices noted by the Dominion Department of Labor, it is seen that in 1890, raw materials were 13.6 points above the average for the base period, 1890-99, while manufactured articles were only 9.6 points above that average. In the recession which followed until 1897 raw materials fell 23.2, while manufactured articles advanced only 26.4 points. Between 1909 and 1910, there was a gain of 4.6 points in raw materials and 2.2 points in manufactured articles. The statistics for 1910 show prices of raw materials at 42.6 per cent. above those of the base decade, and the prices of manufactured articles 17.1 per cent. above those of the base decade."

MELANCHOLY IN FLOWERS

Curious, indeed, the doom assigned to two of the fairest of the spring flowers, for if primroses are forsaken the violet is a nun. Perhaps this atmosphere of gentle melancholy increases the affection inspired by these favorite flowers which seem dearer far to human kind than such rivals as the brilliant marsh marigold and the dangerous aconite.—Black and White.

WHEN PRINCES GO A-WOOING

By the Author of "In Cupid's Toils."

In the annals of Royal love-making there are few prettier stories than that which tells how the German Emperor won (to quote his own words) "the jewel that sparkles by his side." When, more than thirty years ago, the youthful Prince Wilhelm left Berlin for a few days' shooting as the guest of Duke Friedrich of Schleswig-Holstein, he little dreamt, we may be sure, that he was making the most important journey of his life. The moment the castle came in sight, with boylike impatience, he left the carriage to take a "short cut" across the park; but he had not proceeded far before his steps were stayed at sight of a young lady swinging dreamily in a hammock, the book she had evidently been reading lying open in her lap.

It was an idyllic picture, which might well have arrested the steps of a much less romantic young man. Under the somewhat flimsy pretext of inquiring his way, the Prince advanced to the young lady and exchanged a few pleasant words with her before continuing his journey. An hour later he was laughingly making his formal bow on introduction to the blushing Princess Augusta Victoria whose siesta he had disturbed. Idyllic weeks followed, when, with the beautiful Princess by his side, he forgot, in many a blissful ramble, that there was such a weapon as a gun; and when at [illegible] returned to Berlin it was to announce to his parents that he had left his heart behind in the Castle of Primkenau.

The wooing of the present Emperor of Austria was no less romantic and "quick in the doing." When, nearly sixty years ago, Francis Joseph was spending his twenty-third birthday with his mother, the Archduchess Sophia, she decided to give a ball in honour of the anniversary; and among the invited guests were the Duchess of Bavaria and her two beautiful daughters, Hélène and Elizabeth. The Duchess accepted the invitation for herself and elder daughter, Hélène, but regretted that Elizabeth would be unable to come as she had not yet made her début, and moreover had no dress suitable to such an occasion. "But she must come," exclaimed the young Emperor impetuously; "let her wear the simplest dress and a rose in her hair, and we will make her 'Queen of the Ball.'"

To such a command there could be no refusal. Attired in a simple muslin dress, with a red rose nestling in her glorious hair, the Princess Elizabeth dazzled all eyes by the radiance of her girlish beauty, and so effectually captured the Emperor's heart that he would dance with no other lady, however fair. Long before the last strains of music died away, he took his lovely partner to an adjacent room, and, opening an album full of pictures of Austrian costumes, said, "All these are my subjects. Will you not help me to reign over them?" The Princess with downcast head and quivering lips, placed her hand timidly in the strong ardent grasp of her lover, and the sweet compact was sealed.

The love-romance of the Czar of Russia had for its first setting the nursery of the Palace of Darmstadt, when the youthful heir to one of the most splendid thrones in the world shared the romps and games of Princess Alix, the loveliest daughter of the Grand Duke of Hesse, and, child as he was, fell under the witchery of his "sunny" little playmate. But it was not until many years later that the romance thus begun in the Royal nursery reached its zenith, on the banks of the Thames, when the child-lovers were the guests of a royal relative at Walton-on-Thames.

Those were indeed halcyon weeks that the two young people spent together, in long, delightful rambles through the country lanes, "paddling in little wherries, or exploring backwaters"—the world forgetting in their blissful solitude à deux; and sealing the compact made when they had "played at sweethearts" among the toys of the Hesse nursery.

When Princess Elizabeth, the beautiful and gifted daughter of Prince Hermann of Wied, paid a visit some fifty years ago to the Court of Berlin, no maid, Royal or plebian, was more heart-free. From early childhood, indeed, she had declared that she would never marry; but Cupid only smiled in his sleeve, and bided his time. On the very first day of her stay in Berlin she was running hurriedly down a palace staircase when she tripped, and was only saved from disaster by falling into the outstretched arms of Prince Charles of Hohenzollern. Though she little suspected it in her confusion, she had fallen into the arms of her future husband, who was to offer a crown as Queen of Roumania.

It was also by accident (if accident it can be called) that the present King of Italy met the charming lady who to-day shares his throne. When, some years ago, he was present at a gala performance at a Venice theatre his eyes fell on a radiant vision of girlish loveliness in an opposite box. So fascinated was he by a sight so fair that during the rest of the performance he had no eyes but for the unknown beauty with the glorious dark eyes, and he knew no peace until he had not only made the acquaintance of, but secured as his own, the Princess Hélène, the fairest of the daughters of Montenegro.

It was during a chance stroll in the Thuringian Forest that the young Queen and idol of Holland met her fate in the form of the stalwart and handsome Duke Henry of Mecklenburg-Schwerin—the first of many equally idyllic meetings which rendered their happy climax in the Odenwald when she gave her hand and a share of her throne to the young soldier. "Never," wrote one of the Queen's ladies, "has a wooing been more unalloyedly happy. They are just like two children, so frankly and blissfully happy in each other's company, and sharing all their pleasures and games."

And similarly romantic and charming are the love-stories of our own Royal Family, since the girl-Queen Victoria, "blushing deeply and trembling with emotion," took her courage in her hands and invited her cousin Albert (of whose love she was assured) to share her life. Nothing would have been more idyllic than the [illegible] of [illegible] Victoria's eldest [illegible] heir to the Russian [illegible] rambles, hand in hand, over [illegible] Scottish moors, and [illegible] in [illegible] moment when the Prince stooped to pick a sprig of white heather, and offered it with his heart to the blushing girl who was to [illegible] with him an Imperial Crown.

The curtain rose on the life romance of King Edward in the Cathedral of [illegible] when his eyes first fell on the [illegible] and exquisite grace of the [illegible] Princess Alexandra, who [illegible] to be visiting the cathedral at the same time. An introduction to the lovely stranger quickly followed, and the climax was reached when the Princess, flushed and radiant, one day produced a photograph from her pocket and announced her betrothal to her excited relatives at Rumpenheim.

There is a charming story of the late King Oscar of Sweden, who, when the "yes" had faltered from the pretty lips of the Princess Sophie, of Nassau, produced from his pocket a knife and carved on the nearest oak tree a heart between the letters of O. and S.

But it would be an easy matter to fill many columns with Royal love stories, all equally romantic and pretty.—Weekly Telegraph.

TELL THEM SO!

Don't be afraid to give praise.

It is a great mistake to withhold those easily-said words of approval and satisfaction. Even the humble crossing-sweeper likes to hear his work commended.

Flattery is deadly insult, but true praise spells encouragement and makes the world seem brighter.

Wake up! Look out for the chance of praising someone, honestly and sincerely. And don't forget the home folks! Your praise means more to them than to anyone.

WESTMINSTER ABBEY TELLS ITS OWN STORY

The Famous Old Cathedral is Represented by Answers as Giving Its Own History.

I was built in fulfilment of a vow. Edward the Confessor had promised to make a pilgrimage to Rome, but hung back on account of the length and the difficulty of the journey. The Pope released him from his promise on condition he vowed a splendid church to St. Peter.

And so the tangled Isle of Thorns was cleared, and the deer and wild oxen that straggled in from the forests around London banished for ever, and I arose. I was then low and squat, but the finest Saxon building ever erected, and covered almost as much ground as now. It was solemnly dedicated to St. Peter in 1065, only a few days before my founder's death.

I did not last very long in this form, however, for within two centuries I was ruthlessly torn down. That most religious of monarchs, Henry III., had determined, even in his boyhood, to build for himself the most glorious abbey in Christendom. He was barely fifteen when, in 1220, he laid my new foundation-stone. He lived fifty-one years longer, and in those years he spent the equivalent of half a million sterling on me, all out of his own privy purse. He kept down his expenses, indeed, by living in turn on other English abbeys, so that he might devote his income to me.

Years after his death his plans were still being carried out, till at last they were complete. During three of those centuries I housed the House of Commons.

In Reformation times I was in great danger, as then abbeys and churches were being sacked and destroyed all over England. I sacrificed my lands to save myself. The Protector Somerset demanded twenty tons of my good Caen stone to help build his new palace in the Strand. I yielded, meekly hoping "that he would be good and gracious." All London rose to help me. There were riots in the Strand, and the crowd brought the stones back.

The only outer change in me since then is that Sir Christopher Wren added a couple of towers at the west front. I had hitherto been towerless, and the matter had been discussed for generations. Though no fresh building has been done since then, the smoky air of London keeps eating my outer surface away, and I am always undergoing recasing.

Though not quite the biggest church in England, I am one of the tallest, inside. My transepts, nave, and choir are the highest in England, and average over a hundred feet from floor to vaulting.

The most beautiful thing about me is undoubtedly the Henry VII. chapel, an architectural jewel which holds the dust of some of our greatest monarchs. The ceiling, probably the most wonderful in Europe, is so intricately and delicately carved that it has been compared to old lace.

Nearly all the Kings and Queens from the time of Henry III. to that of George II. are buried beneath my floor. Nowdays I am not so much a royal as a national burying-place; but for centuries every King as he was crowned had the solemn knowledge that has stood face to face with the spot where his grave would some day be dug.

THE TALL-HATTED HIGHLANDER

Field Marshal Sir Evelyn Wood, V.C., who assumed his new position as Constable of the Tower of London, surely holds the record for versatility among the distinguished Army officers, having served and fought in the Navy, Light Dragoons, Lancers, Irregular Horse, and Highlanders, in addition to which he joined the Middle Temple and was called to the Bar in 1874, and is the author of works renowned for their high literary distinction. A good story may be told of his attachment to a regiment of Highlanders, when the latter were stationed at Portsmouth. Sir Evelyn, then a captain, one day returned from London, and with great hurry proceeded to array himself for parade. When he at last emerged, he observed that his men were evidently at great pains to conceal their laughter, and he quietly questioned his subaltern as to the probable reason.

"Well, sir," replied the latter, "you are dressed correctly as to kilt, sporran, and all the rest of it; but you have forgotten to remove your tall hat!"

A GROTESQUE OFFERTORY.

Mengo Cathedral, in Uganda, which was recently destroyed by lightning, was probably the largest edifice in Central Africa, being capable of containing nearly 5,000 people. It was consecrated about six years ago, and an offertory of grotesquely varied gifts was collected on the occasion. This consisted of 13 cows, four goats, 123 eggs, 120 fowls, 75,000 cowrie shells, and a number of coins. The cows, for lack of room, were not taken inside the Cathedral, but the goats were led up to the altar and presented to the bishop, while the fowls were brought in big bamboo crates.

THE STEAMER STEWARD

One of the Busiest Men on Board, But Poorly Paid

There is no single individual in the service of the public, from the stoker down, who is perforce so versatile in his attainments and so enduring in his service as the steamer steward. His hours are from five in the morning until ten at night, his pay on the foreign-owned lines averages about $15 a month, and the steward in second-class does not double his wages from his tips and the fund that is raised among the passengers to pay the band.

Stewards have been known to sleep, eighteen in a triangular room sixteen feet long, and eleven wide, with two small port-holes for ventilation. They must wait at the table at breakfast, previously having set it, then they wash the dishes. Next they make up the beds, then serve the little luncheon on deck which comes about ten o'clock. Next they arrange the table for lunch, wait upon the table, wash the dishes on some lines, and eat their own lunch. In the middle of the afternoon there is another light luncheon which they must serve, then they set the tables for dinner, which they subsequently serve. After getting the remnants out of sight and eating their own meal, they give a concert from eight to ten, after which they are free to spend the night as they please.

In spite of all this hard work and the degrading treatment which they receive from many passengers, one finds scores of intelligent, well educated youths, on the German lines especially, and one wonders how the lines manage to inveigle them into their service. For the most part they are enterprising boys who are eager to see the world after they have left their gymnasium or universities, and have not the means to travel, so they put to sea as stewards, content to endure the abuses and hardships of the life for the glimpses they get of the various ports.

One boy from Berlin whom a passenger interviewed some time ago had run away from home and gone into the service of the Hamburg-American line so that his parents might not know that he was doing menial labor. His family was one of aristocratic tendencies, but too poor to send him on his travels in the proper style. Had they known that he had adapted a life so degrading in their eyes, it would have broken their hearts, he said, but he was accomplishing his purpose. In two years he had served on six different branches of the Hamburg lines and had seen almost every port from the Far East to the Atlantic coast of America.

NORTHERN ONTARIO

Area, 140,000 square miles.

Northern boundary, the Arctic regions.

Eastern boundary, the Province of Quebec.

Western boundary, the Province of Manitoba and the Territory of Keewatin.

Southern boundary is practically the Canadian Pacific Railway direct line from Montreal to Winnipeg, which runs across Ontario for a distance of 1,285 miles.

Telegraph and telephone connections are spreading with amazing rapidity all over the land.

Minerals are found extensively, and in splendid paying quantities, especially gold, silver, nickel, copper and iron.

Game is plentiful, including moose, caribou, red deer, bear, beaver, otter, wild duck, partridge and ruffed grouse.

The country is divided into six great divisions, known as Nipissing, Sudbury, Algoma, Thunder Bay, Rainy River and Kenora.

There are now a number of villages and towns scattered over the country whose population runs from fifty up to several thousands.

The parks and forest reserves are large. Algonquin Park covers an area of 1,218,000 acres, Temagami Forest Reserve covers 3,563,600 acres, and contains an estimate of from three to four billion feet of timber; the Nepigon Reserve covers 4,000,000 acres; the Mississaga Reserve covers 1,950,000 acres, with several smaller reserves.

THE SHAPES OF EGGS

A mathematical discussion has taken place before the Zoological Society, as to the differences in the shapes of eggs. A few eggs, like those of the owl and the tortoise, are spherical, or nearly so; a few, like the grebe's or the cormorant's, are elliptical, with symmetrical ends; the great majority, like the hen's, are ovoid, or blunter at one end than the other. The hen's egg is always laid blunt end foremost. Eggs that are the most unsymmetrical are also eggs of large size relatively to the parent bird. The yolks of eggs are spherical, whatever the form of the entire egg may be. This has been shown to be due to their being enclosed in a fluid, the "white," which makes the pressure everywhere on the surface of the yolk practically constant.—Science Siftings.

WHAT THE PUBLIC WANT

Hiss succeeded hiss. Boo succeeded boo. The audience showered their hostile verdict at the stage in the form of such useful commodities as carrots, eggs, and onions.

They called for the author. But he did not appear. He stood shaking in the wings, watching the whizzing vegetables with tearful eyes.

"Listen to them now!" he said, as a loud roar arose, intermingled with shrill whistling and cat-calls. He turned to the manager, threw up his hands despairingly, and exclaimed: "You give them tragedy, and they want comedy. You give them comedy, and they want tragedy. It's hard to find out what they do want."

"On the contrary, it's painfully easy," replied the manager. "They want their money back!"

LORD HALDANE

Doesn't Believe in Eight Hours of Sleep, and Thinks Nothing of a Forty-Mile Walk

Lord Haldane is a tremendous worker. He is said to consider more than three hours' sleep at night to be mere waste of time!

To look at him you would never imagine Lord Haldane to be possessed of the energy, both mental and physical, that he has.

He is decidedly substantial in build, but this is not due to lack of exercise.

Behind him are a long line of sturdy Scotch ancestors, and from them he has inherited a love of walking.

His grandfather at eighty-three could do his eight miles and be as "fresh as paint" afterwards; while a great-uncle could reduce many a younger man to a state of exhaustion by taking them for long tramps, which he himself did with the greatest ease.

Many a time Lord Haldane has covered between thirty and forty miles a day; but his brother can beat this record, and has to his credit no less than 103½ miles, which he covered in thirty-one hours.

Lord Haldane is a great smoker, and large black cheroots are his favorite "smokes." Not long ago the doctor told him he was smoking too much, and advised him to go easy in that direction.

A short time later an old friend met him, soon after lunch, and inquired sympathetically how he was getting on without his smokes.

"Oh, fairly well—fairly well," was the reply. "I've only had six so far to-day!"

The Haldanes belong to an ancient family, and many of their ancestors have served their country in Parliament or on the field.

Two of the most famous of the Haldanes were, perhaps, the brothers

MR. HALDANE

James [illegible]ert, who a century ago gave up [illegible] to become itinerant preachers.

They threw themselves heart and soul into the cause that appealed to them, and were probably the greatest lay evangelists Scotland has ever produced.

Lord Haldane was born in Edinburgh in [illegible].

He was first of all educated at Edinburgh University, going afterwards to Gottingen.

He decided to become a lawyer, was called to the Bar in 1879, and became a K.C. in [illegible].

He has a Scotch seat—Cloan, near Auchterarder, Perthshire, until quite lately called Cloanden.

But this was shortened by a syllable, and is now known as Viscount Haldane of Cloan.

In addition to his many other activities, Lord Haldane has found time to write a number of books, and, with the help of Mr. Kemp, he made a translation of Schopenhauer's "World as Will and Idea," a work which ran into three volumes, and took some time to complete.

DIVERTING THE TRAFFIC

Amusing Rivalry Among Three Adjoining Merchants

It is the [illegible] man who is able to seize opportunity who generally succeeds. If you have any advantage to offer to the public, the only way to bring trade is to advertise, and exercise ingenuity.

In a busy thoroughfare there were three clothing stores in a row. The proprietors of these stores were bitter enemies as well as business rivals, and each taxed his ingenuity to the utmost to outwit the others in attracting customers.

The proprietor of the store in the middle one day, found himself momentarily beaten when he discovered that the shop on his right was placarded with sensational announcements of a "great fire sale," while the rival on his left hand covered his building with huge posters proclaiming a "receiver's sale."

After a little thought, however, his features relaxed in a gradually expanding smile.

An hour later the crowds that had been attracted to the scene by the "fire sale" and the "receiver's sale" announcements flocked into the middle store.

The proprietor had caused to be stretched across the top of his doorway a sheet on which were painted in letters two feet high the words, "Main Entrance."

THE WORLD'S LARGEST ROOM

The largest room in existence under a single arched roof, and entirely unsupported by pillars or buttresses away from the walls, is said to be a huge building in St. Petersburg, measuring 620 feet long and 150 feet wide, used mainly for military purposes. This giant apartment is of such a size that a whole battalion—1,000 men—can drill in it with the greatest ease. It requires no fewer than 20,000 wax tapers to light it satisfactorily by night.

EXCITING STRUGGLE WITH A WILD BOAR

A Soldier in India Tells of His Experience While Jungling in that Country

Private Cuffiin, India, gives the following description of a struggle he had with a wild boar:

"While out 'jungling' some few months ago, in company with a chum, I had rather an exciting experience with a wild boar. We had been out several hours without meeting anything worth the shooting, and were traversing a deep ravine, or nullah, as they are called in India—I on one side, and my chum on the left—when the shikari who accompanied us suddenly called my attention to a large boar that was scrambling up the side of the nullah, about 200 yards on my left front. I instantly fired, and caught the boar in his hind quarters, tumbling him back into the nullah. As soon as he dropped, my chum put down his rifle and ran towards him with a clasp knife, intending to put the finishing touch to him. He had scarcely gone fifty yards when the boar suddenly jumped to its feet, turned, and charged, and caught my chum by his legs, throwing him to the ground, and commenced to worry him with his tusks. My chum, who was an old hand at jungling, had the presence of mind to lay flat upon his stomach, and thus escaped the serious injuries he would have sustained had he attempted to rise to his feet and run away, as the formation of a pig's snout debars it from using its tusks upon an object that is very close to the ground. However, all this happened in the space of a very few seconds, and this old tusker succeeded in inflicting several bruises about my chum's arms and shoulders before I was able to get near enough to be sure of an aim consistent with safety to my chum. As soon as I got the boar in an advantageous position, I fired, this time hitting him clean through the brain, and he dropped like a log. But for my chum's presence of mind in lying prone as soon as he fell this incident might have terminated with serious results; but, as the saying goes, 'All's well that ends well,' and, after all, it is such incidents as these that do so much towards enlivening the monotony of a soldier's life in India—a life which requires enlivenment at times."

SUBDUING A TIGER

It Was Kindness That Made the Animal Tame

Illustrating that it is nothing but kindness [illegible] makes wild animals really [illegible], Carl Hagenbeck, the world-famous animal trainer, tells the following story: "I remember a savage [illegible] which was sent to me [illegible] some years ago. [illegible] was in a state of fury [illegible], and for several days would [illegible] whenever I approached. I paid him a daily visit, purring as I approached, which was like speaking in his own language, and he gave up gradually his furious greeting. After a week I took a piece of meat at each visit, for the way to the heart is through the stomach, and that does not apply to tigers alone! At the end of four weeks I could touch him, and three months later he had quite realized that no one wanted to hurt him and used to come quietly to the bars to be stroked each day."

AS A LAST RESOURCE

The Japanese Final Method of Restoring Life

The Japanese have discovered an extraordinarily simple and effective method of "restoring life" in people who appear to all intents and purposes dead and beyond the aid of medicine. If an accident occurs so that a person is three-fourths drowned, beaten senseless, or severely attacked by sunstroke or heart-disease, the operator takes the body of the seemingly dead victim, and extends the arms to either side, having previously rolled the sufferer over on his face. That done, he delivers a succession of hard, regular blows on the seventh vertebra of the "dead" man's spine, using his wrist as a kind of hammer. Unless life is utterly extinct, this causes the patient to regain consciousness, when he is at once seized, turned over, made to sit up, has his arms swung and waved about, as in our own system of what is called artificial respiration, and is then forced to walk with the aid of supporters.

The exertion is an essential part of this curious treatment, having undergone which the patient is ready to be handed over to the doctors for ordinary medical attention.

NERVE TONIC NOT WANTED

Why the Cost of a Prescription Was Reduced

The big-hearted, eminent physician had consented to see the patient without making any charge. There was a lingering doubt as to whether this was altogether a deserving case; but, as usual, the patient was given the benefit of the doubt. "There," he said, when the examination was finished, "take this prescription to a chemist; he'll make it up for you for fifty cents."

"Thanks, doctor," was the reply. "Oh, by the way, would you mind lending me the half dollar?"

The medico bent a stern gaze upon his unprofitable customer. "Give me that prescription back," he said. It was handed back, and a swift deletion made. "There," he said, returning it, "you can get that made up for ten cents. The drug I crossed out was for nerves! but it seems to me that your nerves are pretty healthy."

The most important mining centres are Sudbury, Michipicoten, Temiscaming, Cobalt, Porcupine and Gowganda. The mineral output now exceeds $37,000,000 annually, and is increasing.

SECURING SEATS FOR THE OLYMPIC

Remarkable Activity in Anticipation Of the Great Gathering This Year at Stockholm.

Advance booking for seats to view the Olympic games testifies to the immense and world-wide interest in the events. Big blocks of tickets have been bespoken by American, Asiatic, and European syndicates for the whole of the games. Some little irritation has been experienced at the start, through varying causes. There is a squabble in England between two rival football organizations as to which should select the teams. Ireland set up a claim for separate national recognition, apart from Britain, but it has not been allowed; nor has a similar claim from Bohemia, to be considered independent of Austria, met with greater sympathy. It is hoped that the Bohemian football team will put in an appearance, notwithstanding the decision to bar them, as a protest against the ruling. Finland has definitely entered a team—making at least nine international football competitors.

In Germany the Crown Prince is honorary president of the committee and is taking a keen interest. Next to his second cousin, the Crown Prince of Sweden, he is the best all-round princely sportsman in Europe. In all probability he will be Protector of the games when the Stadium is located in Berlin in 1916. It is understood to be due to his influence that the Kaiser gave permission for German officers to participate in the Olympic Games in the Swedish capital. Several German princes are expected to head the list of the German visitors at the forthcoming gathering.

Dr. Martin, of the German committee, with representatives of the various sections, has been discussing with the local Council the rule as to amateurs. Germany and England think differently at to the status of the amateur. England forbids amateurs to receive pecuniary aid of any kind; Germany contends that sportsmen not well provided with wealth should be supported by the athletic organizations, otherwise the supposed advocates of pure amateur sports play directly in the direction of professionalism. Altogether something like 200 Germans will take part in the games.

Austria and France still seek minor alterations in the program, and have asked other nations to support their demands, but Germany, though approving some of the proposed alterations, will not bring any pressure to bear on the Swedish organizers. The Germans are not very favorable to heavy sports, such as wrestling and weight-lifting, considering them too much akin to acrobatism. They will not be represented in those sections in all probability. There is also disappointment among the 60,000 members of the 1,500 German cycling clubs that no place has been given to cycle polo and figure-cycling. An effort is being made to repair this omission.

At the expense of the State, twenty German cavalry officers will take part in the equestrian contests. Most careful arrangements are being made by the Germans to secure while here a supply of the special foods to which they attach importance in training.

COBB'S RECIPES FOR SUCCESS

You can't become a great batter by copying. You can't become a great base runner by copying alone, but copying the style of some great fielder, combined with hard practice, will assist materially in making it much easier for the fielding aspirant.

Never hold the ball, but get it back into play as quickly as possible. Fractions of seconds are too valuable to be lost when you are taking part in a play which may prevent a score.

Always try to block a ground ball. Don't try to make a grand stand play out of a stop merely to draw the applause of the spectators when you have plenty of time to play the ball safe.

A fielder should try for anything and everything, no matter how seemingly impossible it is to get. If you don't make the attempt the breaks which might afterward come in your favor will be of no avail.

Play the game to the limit from the time you start it until the last man is called out in the last inning. Baseball is a funny thing and no game is hopelessly lost simply because the other side is a run or two to the good.

Never give up. Don't be a quitter, and if you have any business in baseball at all you'll enjoy the same measure of success as a baseball player as you would in any other vocation in life.

Peterborough is not the only town in Canada where a barrister of high standing has had it "put all over him," by the police magistrate, for contempt of court. Many of our readers will remember when a local lawyer and the P.M. had a disagreement and said lawyer was compelled to breath the alcoholic laden atmosphere for over an hour. Well in the

This is Military week in Ottawa. We do not speak in any sense in a political way, but why, from a newspaper standpoint, has information been held from the press? To-day the Dominion Rifle Association meets in Ottawa. Here is a matter in which Peterborough marksmen always, a little more than count.

Local Man Weds in Hamilton.

We are informed that the wedding took place yesterday, in Hamilton of Mr. F. H. Howson, secretary-treasurer of the Peterborough Lock Works, to Miss Laura A. Lockhead, of Centreville, Ont., quietly at the home of Mr. J. A. Lockhead.

The Wrong Date.

By a typographical error the front page of The Times yesterday had the date March 6th instead of February 28th. This mistake was due to the fact that we had set up dates for the paper for a month ahead. Our compositor by mistake took the wrong slugs in the press of night-work.

Death of Mrs. F. Brabant.

Yesterday morning early, Mrs. Frank Brabant, of River Road, north passed away from bronchitis. The deceased was 75 years of age. She is survived by two daughters, the Misses Mary and Eliza both residing at home. The funeral will take place to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock from River Road, north, to St. Peter's Cathedral and from thence to St. Peter's cemetery for interment.

The marriage of Miss Ethel Francis Porter to Mr. Bertram Arnott, both of Peterborough, Ont., took place on Wednesday afternoon in Toronto. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Armitage. Mr. and Mrs. Arnott upon their return to Peterborough will reside at Maple Villa, Monaghan Road. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents.

Local Hospitals are Crowded.

Both the local hospitals are crowded to their utmost capacity. This is fortunately not [illegible]mic of infectious or contagious disease, but simply as a result of Peterborough's rapid [illegible]tion and severe weather conditions. As an instance of the conjested state of the hospitals, The Times was yesterday informed that the lady in charge of St. Joseph's hospital, a few days ago very kindly gave up her private apartments to provide accommodation for patients.

Good News for Normal School.

The staff of Peterborough's Normal School will hail with delight the fact that the Provincial Legislature has provided, in the supplementary estimates for increases of pay in the local institutions. Departing Banker Feted.

About a quarter of a century of his friends tendered a banquet to Mr. Geo. Clark of the local branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce in the coleman parlours. A beautiful set of India paper Dickens was presented to the departing guest by his associates. Mr. Clark thanked his friends for their kind expressions of good will towards him. The proceedings of the evening were further enlivened with songs by Mr. McIroy, Mr. Walter Davidson, Mr. Reg. Turner, Mr. Louis Mendel, and speeches by Mr. R. M. Glover, Dr. McPherson, Dr. Frederick, Mr. W. Davidson, Mr. W. McKnight and Mr. Paul Trebilcock.

Loafers in Local Hotels.

A local hotelkeeper yesterday handed the Times a clipping from a Toronto paper. This item told how Robert Leighton was fined in the Toronto police court for loafing in the King Edward Hotel. The local boniface remarked, "I wish you would put that piece in the paper. It would surprise you the number of people that think we run licensed hotels just as loafing places for people, many of whom never spend a cent. We don't ask them to patronize the bar. If they do, we would sooner see them, when they get a drink, go about their business, not stop until the bar keeper has to refuse them more. Anyway, we do not want people sitting about the place hour after hour.

Two Prices

Thats What Tea and Coffee Drinkers Pay.

The FIRST is the money paid—comes out of the pocket.

The SECOND (by far the greater) is the "draft" on the nervous system by caffeine, the tea and coffee drug.

It is not merely the "price," but the drug, caffeine, that makes tea and coffee drinking EXPENSIVE—a nerve-racking burden!

There's genuine economy of money, and better health in the REGULAR use of

POSTUM

In place of tea or coffee

Postum is made of clean, hard wheat—skilfully roasted and blended just like coffee, but without the drug, caffeine, which makes tea and coffee harmful to so many persons.

Boil your Postum until it is dark and rich, serve with cream and sugar, and understand why

"There's a Reason"

MINISTER'S TRIAL

Tea and Coffee Hit Him Hard Indeed

A minister of the gospel writes about Postum "I was for years a sufferer from headaches sometimes so violent that, groaning in agony, I would pace the floor or garden holding my throbbing head for relief.

"I tried all sorts of remedies known to the allopathic and homoeopathic schools. Sometimes I thought it was caused by the stomach or biliousness, and again I would suspect it was purely nervousness and treated myself accordingly, but nothing ever gave me permanent relief.

Having to appear before the public nearly every night, it was sometimes almost impossible for me to fulfill my engagements. Finally I came to suspect that the use of tea and coffee had something to do with my disorder and abruptly discontinued the use of both and took on Postum for a trial.

"From that happy hour I commenced to mend. Gradually I got better and better and now I do not have a headache once in six months and all my other troubles are gone too. I am now using Postum exclusively and want no better beverage.

"I know of others who have been benefited by the use of Postum in place of coffee. A friend of mine here in Key West, a hardware merchant, suffered for years with stomach and other troubles while he was using coffee. Finally he quit and began using Postum and got well. He is devoted to Postum and when worn and weary with business cares takes a cup of it piping hot and in a short time feels rested and nourished.

"Some I know have become prejudiced against Postum because careless or ignorant cooks try to make it as they would coffee and will not allow it to boil full 15 minutes, but when they try it again, well boiled, it stays, for it is as delicious and snappy as the mild, smooth, high-grade Java." The graduates and undergraduates and benefactors of Queen's University in this vicinity will hold their third annual dinner at Coleman's Grill room to-morrow evening.

The Dominion Government has just issued a new set of maps which include all the Provinces, the Welland and the Trent Canals, which reached the Times yesterday.

The trains from Madoc have had trouble with snow drifts. Madoc thus produces not only gold, but the usual accompaniment of that mineral viz., trouble.

Two men of Peterborough yesterday felt in their trouser pockets to search for five cent pieces, where they usually have bank bills. They both bet on Orillia for the Junior championship.

The Labor Gazette, issued by the Dominion describes Peterborough as "active" regarding tailors, garment workers, bakers, leather workers railway, cabmen, barbers and retail clerks. Not a trade in this city but what is said to be active.

The Peterborough merchant who loves the look of those goods on his shelves and hates to let them go, should not advertise in The Times. An adv. in the g.f.j. not only shows that you are up-to-date, but greatly helps to change merchandise into ready cash.

The Dominion Government's "Labor Gazette" received yesterday says that all classes of business in Peterborough are flourishing except agriculture. This it describes as "fair." If the editor of the book had to buy his butter and eggs in Peterorough, he would say that agriculture was not only "active," but a gold mine.

TRAIN JAPAN'S ATHLETES

A. J. Flanagan Will Have Charge of the Oriental Athletes

John J. Flanagan, the famous athlete and hammer thrower of the Irish-American Club, New York, who has now made his home in Ireland, has accepted an offer from the Japanese Government to go out to the East for the purpose of training a contingent of Japanese athletes who have been mustered to go to Stockholm this year to compete in the great Olympiad.

The big Irishman has refused remunerative offers to train the English contingent, who feel they could learn much from a man with such American experience, and though he has not divulged the reason, it is understood he is not sufficiently enamored of the British to desire to aid them. It is presumed that the friction which was such an unpleasant feature of the English Olympiad in 1908— when the English and Americans came into conflict—has had much to do with Flanagan's attitude.

To the square mile in the United Kingdom there were 373 persons; in Canada and Newfoundland, 1.99.

Motor vehicles to the total of 120,000 were in use in the United Kingdom, the number of licensed drivers being 300,000.

The Engineer's estimate of $26,500 for streets and bridges has been paired down by Chairman Ald. Buller to $19,000, which amount includes $1,000 for maintenance of Ald. Buller's "White Elephant," the south city pumping station.

At the suggestion of Mayor Bradburn no discount will be allowed on taxes this year, no matter when paid. This will effect an estimate saving of $3,400 in loss of taxes to the city's treasury by reason of the discount heretofore given to encourage an early settlement of same. It is argued that citizens will not actually suffer any loss by this change in policy as the discount given in past years had to be provided for by the ratepayers, indirectly. For instance, the abandonment of the discount principle this year has gone a long way toward enabling the committee strike the rate for 1912 at 22 mills instead of increasing it by half a mill or more, as was expected.

Taxes are to be paid in two equal instalments—one on August 1st, the second on November 15th, as last year. But five per cent will be added to all taxes unpaid when due, with no option of a discount.

The Peterborough Industrial Exhibition people will get an increase to their annual grant of $100.

All the foregoing will be recommended to Council, Monday night, and will most likely be endorsed without amendment.

GRANTS

Moved by Ald. Buller, seconded by Ald. Johnston,—That the usual grant of $50 be made to the Children's Hospital, Toronto.—Carried.

Moved by Ald. Johnson, seconded by Ald Buller,—That the Salvation Army Band be given an increase of $50 in their annual grant—making a total of $200 on the usual conditions—Carried.

A RIGHT MOVE.

No action was taken on Mrs. C. Rose's application for remittance of license fee. The Mayor and Ald. Buller said they would rather contribute privately than establish a precedent of remitting licenses.

DISPUTED ACCOUNT.

The committee disputes the Registrars' right to tax the city $10 a day for deputies appointed by them. The registrars for the last election were Judge Huycke, B. Morrow, Police Magistrate Dumble and Mr. Sherry, and it appears that the account rendered the city for this work prior to the Provincial elections includes the services of deputies appointed by each of the three first-named gentlemen on four days of which they were severally absent, at a fee of $10 a day—a total overcharge, according to the committee's views, of $120 in all. That is to say during the sittings of the Registra-

AMERICANS HURT IN KINGSTON RIOT

Kingston, Jam., Feb. 29.—Americans were not spared in the rioting which had been going on here in connection with the street railway trouble. A party of Americans driving in an automobile were attacked by a mob to-day and one of them was seriously injured.

The party included Capt. and Mrs. Fritz Duquesne of New York and Mr. and Mrs. Wortley, of Brooklyn. Mrs. Duquesne was struck by a brick and is said to be in a serious condition. The Americans were in imminent peril of their lives but their assailants were finally beaten off by Capt. Duquesne with a hammer and Mr. Wortley, armed with a jacknife. Two of the rioters were knocked unconscious and later were sent to a hospital. Kingston was given over to mob rule.

MILLION MEN WILL BE OUT TO-NIGHT ALL INDUSTRY WILL BE PARALYZED

South Wales, Northumberland and Scottish Owners Refused to Accept Principle Demanded by the Men

London, Feb. 29.—Upwards of three-quarters of a million coal miners had laid down their tools and gone on strike by two o'clock this afternoon, when the day shift in the mines ended. The army of striking colliers swelled hourly throughout the morning when it became known that no settlement had been reached.

A further conference will be held to-day, but by to-night probably 1,000,000 miners will be on strike.

PREMIER ASQUITH SUBMITS A NEW PROPOSAL.

London, Feb. 29.—It is stated this evening, with some show of authority that there is some prospect of a break in the deadlock between the coal owners and the miners. Premier Asquith has submitted a new proposal to the miners, who, it is asserted, have now signified their willingness to negotiate on the question of safeguards which the owners demand as a corollary to the establishment of a minimum wage.

Mr. Asquith is said to have given an assurance to the miners' delegates that a means would be found to compel the minority of the coal owners to fall into line with the majority on the question of the concession of a minimum wage.

WILL NOT BUDGE.

Meetings were held by the Coal Miners' Federation and the Coal Owners' Association late in the morning, but they apparently only resulted in a reiteration of the refusal to budge from their respective positions which they had taken up last night. Further meetings are announced for this afternoon, but little is expected to result from them, and as a consequence the Cabinet, which met this morning, completed arrangements to hurry legislation which may prove necessary in order to compel a resumption of work.

A number of meetings of railroad employees passed resolutions pledging themselves to abstain from handling trains and coal produced by non unionists.

ELEVEN CONFERENCES.

That all hope is not yet lost is the best that can be said of the coal situation. The Stock Exchange, which maintained an optimistic attitude when the clouds seemed gathering most thickly, lost heart yesterday and home rails fell sharply as the conferences in Downing street continued to follow one another without apparent result. There were 11 of them yesterday, and the result was a deadlock.

"PROTESTANTS WILL NOT BROOK DELAY IN THIS"

The Orange Grand Lodge of British Columbia has passed the following resolution regarding the Ne Temere decree:

"The Protestants of Canada [illegible] matter and will not be satisfied until legislation is placed upon our Statute books nullifying any civil effect that has been given to the Ne Temere decree and providing punishment for any persons who attempt to separate a legally married couple."

POLICE COMMISSIONERS IN BRIEF BUSINESS SESSION

THE POLICE DEPARTMENT WILL COST THE CITY $8,175 THIS YEAR.

The Police Commissioners met yesterday evening at 5.15. All the members were present.

A letter was read from City Clerk S. R. Armstrong, giving an extract from a report adopted by the City Council, asking that all fees received by the members of the police force be paid into the City Treasury.

Police Magistrate Dumble moved, seconded by Mayor Bradburn,—That all fees usually charged to the Government and payable to the Constables in the employment of the city, after the first of January next, shall be turned over by the Police to the city. This resolution not to embrace fees earned at coroners' inquests.—Carried.

Mayor Bradburn moved, seconded by Magistrate Dumble,—That the following estimates of the expenditure for this year be adopted:—

Salaries	$7,000
Clothing and equipment	700
Rent of telephones	100
Printing and stationery	76
Telephoning and telegraphing	30
Postage	20
Incidentals	250
Total	$8,175

—The foregoing was carried.

Mayor Bradburn moved, seconded by Magistrate Dumble,—That the Chief Constable be authorized to procure the usual spring uniforms for the police force from Merrill & Meredith, at the former price.—Carried.

FACE DESTROYED BY A BEAUTY DOCTOR

New York, Feb. 29.—The police are looking for a beauty doctor whose treatment of Mrs. Laura Williams' face proved fatal yesterday. Mrs. Williams was a widow recently from Texas and was promised that her face would be restored to girlish beauty. The first application of the lotion left it raw and bleeding and under the second treatment yesterday she died. The lotion contained a powerful poison the Coroner believes.

SIR WILFRID ON THE GRILL

Mr. Burnham, M. P. Springs Surprise on the House

QUESTIONS OPPOSITION

The Rules of the House of Commons Permit Private Members to Question the Opposition.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M. P., created some considerable surprise in the House of Commons when he questioned the leader of the Opposition in regard to an article which recently appeared in the Toronto Star, and which we publish below. It appears that few were aware that the rules of the House permitted questions to be asked of others than Ministers, and the Opposition were therefore, rather staggered when they found that such is the case. In future Sir Wilfrid and his friends will likely be given large doses of their own medicine. The following is the article referred to:

The Marriage Law.

"Although Judge Charbonneau's judgment clears the air, it does not settle the question. It is not the judgment of a final tribunal, and there are other decisions which conflict with it. Even if a judgment of the Supreme Court of Canada or the Judicial Committee be obtained it may not cover the whole ground.

"The Dominion Parliament ought to enact a law covering the full extent of its power. At present, although it is generally admitted that the Dominion Parliament has full power to declare [illegible] who shall not be competent to marry, the [illegible] merely legalizes a marriage with a deceased wife's sister. The law should set forth exactly what are the prohibitions to marriage. It should declare that no spiritual court has any power to annul a marriage or grant a divorce, and impose a penalty upon any person attempting to exercise that authority.

"Mr. Holmested, in his book on the marriage law, says that all Provincial Courts which now grant divorce should be superseded by a Dominion Court. At present the law is not uniform, and the administration is not uniform. In the Maritime Provinces, and in British Columbia there are divorce courts; and there is a different law on the Atlantic and on the Pacific. In the other Provinces there is no divorce court, and resort must be made to the Senate. It is easy to see how this diversity would facilitate the making of unfounded claims to authority in the Province of Quebec.

"A Dominion statute, covering the grounds thoroughly, would be a strong assertion of the civil power, which would tend to discourage usurpations and unfounded claims to authority. It is true that the Provinces have power to deal with solemnization. But the question of solemnization may be confused with that of competence. Thus, in Quebec, the attempt was made to distinguish between the kind of solemnization necessary for Protestants and the kind necessary for Catholics.

"It may also be found that Provincial legislation is necessary. Mr. Holmested, for instance, says that a minister should be forbidden to exact, as a condition of solemnizing marriage any condition as to the education of children. It may be necessary also to make further provisions for surrounding the solemnization of marriage with safeguards, and protecting innocent parties from deception. The more strongly and definitely the civil power assert itself, the less danger will there be of clerical interference. The State has been neglecting its duty; the remedy lies in its doing its duty."

2. If so, does he approve of the sentiments contained in the same?

3. If not, wherein does he disapprove of them, speaking generally?

ILLEGAL FISHERS FINED

Heavy Penalties for Catching and Trying to Dispose of Bass and Lunge—Three Men Caught.

Messrs. Carson and Watt, Fishery and Game Inspectors, on the evening of February 15th, caught three men by the name of Herron, near Jackson Park with twenty-four maskinonge and a baker's dozen of bass. The inspectors have heard of considerable illicit fishing of late, but the guilty parties have been slippery enough in their operations to elude them. This practice of catching and selling game fish out of season is one for which severe punishment will be meted out. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the defendants and on their behalf pleaded guilty to seven charges which were pressed by the inspectors. For Walter Herron he answered to five of the seven and for the other two one apiece.

The Chief Game Warden wanted an example made of these men. To each charge the Magistrate imposed a fine of $10. Walter Herron therefore thus had to pay $50 and costs, while each of the other men were assessed $10 and costs.

The Herrons live on an island in Chemong Lake.

GREATEST CRISIS SINCE DAYS OF SPANISH ARMADA

London, Feb. 29.—The anxiety in the country is evidenced by the fact that the Archbishops of Canterbury and York have issued instructions that the following special prayer be said in all parish churches:

"Oh, God, who art Father of all, and who alone makes men to be of one mind in an hour, we beseech Thee at this time of strife and unrest to grant to us by the inspiration of Thy Holy Spirit a fuller realization of our brotherhood of man with man in Thee, to allay all anger and bitterness and to deepen in us the sense of truth and equity in our dealings with one another, for the sake of Thy Son, our Lord Jesus Christ."

The Times says that if the strike is not averted "England will be facing the greatest crisis since the days of the Spanish Armada."

KING EDWARD PARK.

A plan for the new King Edward Park drawn by Mr. F. Wise, was accepted, and a vote of thanks tendered Mr. Wise for his work. Tenders will be asked for 225 [illegible], provided for in the plan. This lot is composed of six acres of land, and the plan provides for a winding driveway around the park with entrances at the east and west. The driveway will wander through a beautiful park of Canadian trees, whilst an ample oval for sports is allowed for in the centre of the whole lot. The plan is an attractive one and should commend itself to all interested.

Arthur E. Simms, town, (No salary stated).

Frank Armstrong, town (No salary stated).

Chas. R. Jenkins, city. (No salary stated).

John Hincley, city (No salary stated).

Wm. D. Ketcheson, city. (No salary stated).

Wm. Crowe, city. (No salary stated).

After receipt of the foregoing his worship offered that before selecting a sanitary officer, the system of collecting garbage and where to dump same should be decided upon.

Chairman Ald. Duncan reported that as a result of a recent personal enquiry, he found that in the city of Guelph a man contracts to collect garbage, ashes and refuse at $5.30 per day each for rig employed, the contractor furnishing the rigs, men and teams.

For this service each householder served pays 15c a month, each store and hotel 40c a month. Factories are not collected from. The foregoing fees are charged in the taxes and paid yearly.

The garbage, etc., is collected every week and is deposited on a dumping ground, where a man employed by the city burns all the inflammable material and covers up the garbage and refuse with ashes. This plan has worked satisfactory.

This system appealed to the committee, who, however, considered that in view of the difficulty being experienced in securing a suitable dumping ground, this city had better incinerate its garbage, etc., which is unquestionably the only sanitary method of disposing of such matter. Consequently the Clerk was authorized to write to J. C. Pickard, of Toronto as to the size, cost, etc., of an incinerator to serve a population of 20,000 people.

Moved by Ald. Graham, seconded by the Mayor,—That the appointment of a sanitary inspector be left over until the next meeting of the Property Committee.—Carried.

The garbage by-law was also left in abeyance, until the cost of building an incinerator is arrived at, which system his worship strongly supported as the only proper and acceptable sanitary method of dealing with garbage. Mayor Bradburn further added that he would bitterly oppose any proposition to dump household refuse and ashes either in the "goose pond," or in the river east of the C.P.R. track and north of the railway bridge, or in the [illegible] any citizen's property within the city limits.

The committee seem disposed to combine the offices of sanitary and plumbing inspector, the work of which they think can be done by one man, and thus effect considerable saving.

DIRTY MILK BOTTLES.

Ald. G. N. Gordon wrote that in his own personal knowledge, dirty milk bottles had been collected, refilled and sold to other customers without having first been thoroughly cleansed. Ald. Gordon suggested that a clause be inserted in the milk by-law providing a penalty for such an offence. This suggestion was adopted.

The fruit growers of the Niagara peninsula met in Toronto a few days ago to consider matters for the coming season. In any event, Peterborough will have to pay $1.00 to $1.75 a basket for fruit sold for 50c to 75c in Toronto, Port Hope or Cobourg.

SHADES AND STYLES

Satin Gowns Will be Fashionable for Some Time—Models Suggesting the Apron Tunic

Satin finish crepe de Chine is included in the list of satin gowns, and will be fashionable for some time; in fact, is growing in favor again, although it has never been relegated entirely to the background. It is used for the draped gowns without trimming that are smart from their very simplicity and their artistic handling.

Heliotrope and Mauve

There are many shades in heliotrope and mauve in crepe de Chine that are wonderfully becoming, and these in draped gowns are fascinating. They have always a double skirt, but so draped that it is difficult to tell which is the lower and which is the upper. The design is high waisted in effect, with the straight lines looking straighter than ever and the figure appears more slender; the folds are caught together with a soft knot or rosette at one side, low down on the skirt. This is one of the models that is to all appearance most carelessly put together and without lining or bones. In reality it can never be well carried out unless there is a perfect fitted skirt lining; the skirt lining is short and finished with a deep flounce of chiffon to make the gown hang better, without being as stiff as if made of silk.

Tartan Plaid Frock

Handsome satins showing one-half or two-thirds of the width in black and the rest in bold plaid of skilfully blended coloring afford opportunity for border-like use of the plaid, while the border is also wide enough to be handled as bodice, sleeve or underskirt material. In one charming Tartan plaid frock, the big black satin collar, cuffs and girdle left but little of the plaid bodice in view, and that little in the blues and greens with lines of white and yellow, and in silk of exquisite lustre and texture, was gay and chic without being garrish. The skirt bottom showed clever detail in the slight shirring of the black satin where the over lapping right side of the front rounds away at the bottom from the left side, and in the narrow puff band of green silk which borders this curve, narrowing to the point of disappearance as the curve ends. Small jet buttons were used along the whole line of the skirt opening and on the collar and cuffs.

Tailored Skirts

Side Opening Skirts

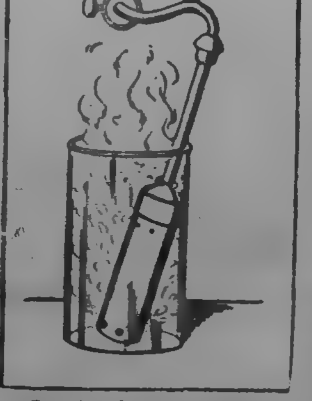
There are numerous side opening skirts with panel or underskirt arrangements, and a sort of apron tunic which has been developed on some of the smart summer frocks, appears with variations in new models. A simple clinging robe of satin has an apron with square cornered bibs in fine cloth, front and back, the under robe showing for its full length at the sides. The cloth in one model of this type was [illegible] braided, and a girdle passing under the apron which fell camparatively straight, was drawn snugly on the sides to define the natural waist curves.

A New Tunic

Another model suggesting the apron tunic had what might be called a triple apron, one section dropping over the other and each edged with a narrow fringe. The tunic was in black cloth and fell over an underskirt of black satin which buttoned for its full length on each side with white pearl buttons. Over a bodice of black satin fell flat separate panels of the cloth, fringed at the bottom, where they met a girdle of the satin. White pearl buttons were upon the cuffs and upon the little satin yoke showing above the cloth overblouse.

POCKET WATER HEATER

Heretofore it has always been supposed that some kind of a stove was required to heat water, even if only a stove the size of your hand. An Ohio genius, however, has demonstrated that this is not so by devising an electric water heater that can be carried in the pocket. A little metal cylinder has a cord attached which can be fastened to an ordinary electric-light socket. The current is then turned on and the cylinder is placed in the water. The receptacle containing the liquid must be brought to the heater, as the latter cannot be moved farther than the length of the cord. The heater will produce hot water in two minutes and boiling water in four minutes. It is useful to heat water for shaving, and as a steriliser is just what is required. At the same time it does not charge the water and may be handled without fear of contact with the current.



Does Not Charge the Water

Judging by the physiognomy and features of Lord Erne, head of the Irish Orangemen opposing Home Rule the Register is away out when it charges that opposition to "the bar" or any other similar ridiculous charge.

PETERBOROUGH'S HIGH STANDING.

In the new Ontario appropriation of $1,000,000 for road improvements, it is stipulated that no member of the county council shall have the handling of any of the expenditure. This, of course, has no insinuation that such officials have "sticky fingers," or might require a trip to Chicago or Boston to find out how the cities level hills or pick pebbles off the streets. Let us get our just share of that million and Peterborough will stand by the donors! Peterborough city is one of Canada's most quickly growing manufacturing centres, and this county with improved highways, will stand even higher than it always has done, as one of the banner agricultural districts of Ontario.

WILL NOT ASSIMILATE

Mr. H. H. Stevens of Vancouver, B.C., speaking before the Canadian Club of Toronto, said: "One in every ten persons in British Columbia is an Oriental." The speaker referring later on to this ominous fact, said that this assimilation implies intermarriage of the Anglo-Saxon and the Orientals. If there should be no intermarriage, then [illegible] result segregation of the Oriental races who possess political, social, moral and intellectual ideals which are totally different from those of Anglo-Saxon origin.

Judging by the complexion and facial characteristics of the Chinese we have in this city, there is mighty little chance of any intermarriage between them and any of Peterborough's fair-sex. The Peterborough girl who would wed one of our local Eastern representatives, is either at Mimico or a future applicant for a railroad ticket to there.

NOT OUT?

A match was in progress between a well-known Surrey village team and a team from London. The village parson was batting, and the village barber was umpire at one end.

The parson hit a ball towards mid-on and went for a run. The ball was fielded smartly, and the parson seemingly run out.

But, to the astonishment of the London team, the umpire said "not out."

When the parson got a chance he said to the barber, "That was a close shave!"

"Yes," said the barber; "and if you wasn't in the habit of having a shampoo, I would have said, "Next gentleman, please."

WHAT'S THE USE?

In one of the council schools there was a little girl who was well up in most of her studies, but she disliked geography, and it seemed impossible to teach the study to her.

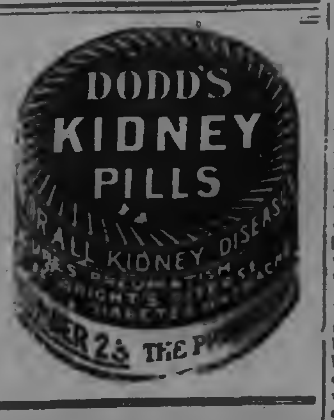
One day her teacher sent to Rosie's mother a note requesting her to see that the girl studied her lessons. The next day showed no improvement, however.

"Did your mother read the note, Rosie?" asked the teacher.

"Yes, ma'am," was the reply.

"What did she say?"

"My mother said that she didn't know geography and she got married, and my aunt didn't know any and she got married, and you know geography and you didn't get married!"



During the year 1910, the County of Peterborough, on 1188 acres, raised, 618,948 bushels of mangel-wurzels, worth $49,516.

Local poultry raisers will be encouraged by an exhibition of prizes won at other points to be displayed in the store of Lang & Maher.

ONCE PIRATE SHIP A WRECK

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 26.—The steamer Goldboro, which grounded on Brandywine Shoal in Delaware Bay yesterday, has been abandoned to its fate and it will probably go to pieces in short order if it is not meanwhile swallowed up in the quicksands of the shoal. When the boat's crew of 16 fled for their lives yesterday and landed at Cape May, they were aware of the treacherous nature of the sands of the shoal, as marine tradition has it that within the past half century more than a score of vessels have been swallowed up in the stretch of quicksand.

The Goldsboro is owned by the Philadelphia and Atlantic City Transportation Company. Her career has been interesting. Years ago two brothers in New York got possession of the ship, stored her with $200,000 worth of merchandise obtained on credit, and sailed to Honduras on what is described as a piratical cruise. Previous to that the ship had been one of the Clyde Liners.

Yesterday a local citizen found a butterfly in his house. Why, a week ago, Shrove Tuesday, made hundreds of pounds of butter fly over the pancake eaten!

Local Man Weds in Hamilton.

We are informed that the wedding took place yesterday, in Hamilton of Mr. E. H. Howson, secretary-treasurer of the Peterborough Lock Works, to Miss Laura A. Lockhead, of Centreville, Ont., quietly at the home of Mr. J. A. Lockhead.

THE FASCINATING STAGE

A Middle-Aged Lady Who Paid to be Allowed to Dance.

It was during the course of an interview that Mr. H. Brandeth, theatrical manager, related to the writer an incident which provides a striking illustration of the fascination which the stage has for some people.

Some time ago Mr. Brandeth happened to visit a large and popular music-hall in the province. One of the turns was a dance by a lady nearing middle age. "Her dancing was technically perfect," he said; "but, oh, dear, how ungainly! She was more like a loose windmill moving around than a woman. Afterwards I learnt that she had paid the management $5,000 to be permitted to dance a solo in public, and she paid another $5,000 to give a second performance. What her reason was for appearing behind the footlights I don't know, for she was unmistakably well-off, and after the second performance she informed the management that she would not appear again. So far as I know she never has."

Mr. Brandreth also related another instance of a young lady of considerable means who, wishing to gain some stage experience, paid a premium to a certain manager, not only for herself, but also for her maid. The latter was a very bright and attractive girl, and had not been long in the chorus before she showed excellent promise. Her mistress, on the other hand, seemed quite unsuitable for stage work. The manager ultimately gave the maid a good part and made her a generous offer, with the result that she gave notice to her mistress. To-day the maid is one of the brightest "stars" in the musical-comedy firmament. Curiously enough, the mistress stuck to the stage, and actually upon occasions played a minor part in a play in which her late maid was the principal performer.

"There is no denying the fact," continued Mr. Brandreth, "that advancement on the stage can, to the right person, be very rapid. Take, for instance, the following example. A young girl employed in a suburban theatre in South London, which many musical-comedy companies visit, picked up a special style of her own by watching. Eventually she procured an engagement in one of Mr. George Edwarde's companies. In two years she became a London 'star,' and married a husband worth some $50,000 a year, retiring from the stage at the same time."

BIG PRIZE MONEY

Mulford's Automobile Earnings Far Exceed Ty. Cobb's Receipts.

Somewhere between the round numbers $17,000 and $18,000 lies the exact amount of "Smiling" Ralph Mulford's share of automobile prize money for the fifteen months following his victory in the Elgin race of August, 1910. Pretty fair returns for less than a year and a half's work, the average man will agree. It is more by some thousands of dollars than Tyrus Cobb, the greatest ball-player in the major leagues, receives for his services in the same period of time.

Calculating the running time of the races where Mulford drew down cash prizes as actual working hours, the modest sum of $500 per hour is found to be the reward for a winning driver. The 500 mile race at Indianapolis last May in which Mulford finished second proved one of the Lozier driver's big bread-winners. This race occupied seven hours in the running. Mulford's share amounted to about $700[illegible], or payment at the rate of $1,[illegible] an hour.

As in other branches of sport where large purses are at stake, having once obtained the money, the more serious question of how to hang on to it presents itself to the driver whom fortune has favored.

Mulford has never had to solve the latter problem. His bad habits do not include alcohol or tobacco and consequently the wine supper and its accompaniments is an unknown feature of his celebrations of racing victories. In fact all a Mulford celebration consists of is the donating of a share of the prize money to Mechanician "Bill" Chandeler, and a return trip to the simple life with Mrs. Mulford. By applying themselves to the task of living within salary limits, the Mulford family has been enabled to bank or invest the major portion of every cash prize won by the head of the household. Ralph Mulford has been in the racing game long enough to realize that it is not without its attendant dangers, and he intends to quit just as soon as the bank account can get along without his assistance.

BROKE BABY'S BONES TO MAKE HIM ATHLETE

Humane Society Witnesses Private Performance, But Will Not Interfere With Career.

Humane society officers at Cincinnati witnessed a private performance given by a three-year-old boy whose ankles and wrists had been broken when he was ten days old in order to make him an acrobat and wrestler. The youngster is the son of R. G. Neof, a Greek, who claims that he was a student of physical culture in Greece. Neof told the officers that he had broken the wrists and ankles of his son when he was ten days old and a month later began training the baby for an athletic career. In his performance the Neof child dislocated his ankles and wrists at will and caused them to assume many unnatural positions. By bending backwards with hands and feet on the floor in a wrestler's bridge, the child easily supported 150 pounds on his chest. The humane officers decided not to interfere with Neof's plan of developing the child, but exacted a promise that no public exhibition would be given by the boy for at least five years.

TIGER SHOOTING

Thrilling Episodes in Connection With This Rare Sport

It is probable that the King's bag in the Nepal hunting grounds constituted a record in big game shooting says an English correspondent. Thirty tigers, and thirteen rhinos, in a little more than a week was certainly a wonderful achievement. But then it is to be remembered that his Majesty is one of the finest shots either with gun or rifle, now living. The late Maharajah of Cooch Behar in his very interesting book on sport in his country, gives seven tigers in a day—three in the morning, and four in the afternoon—as the record bag during 37 years of shooting in his preserves. This happened in 1907 when Lord and Lady Minto were shooting in the Terai. Not all of these tigers, however, were full grown. The biggest of the day, a tigress, was knocked over by Lady Minto, while galloping away, at over 60 yards distance, a very fine performance even for a male rifle shot. During the proceedings in the Nepal Terai, where the King has enjoyed his sport, a very large number of elephants have been employed to drive in the game and beat the enormous jungle thoroughly. Some people seem to imagine that these shoots from elephant backs are quite free from risk. This is by no means the case. The Maharajah of Cooch Behar gives several instances of mishaps. In one case a tiger charging in among the elephants, mauled several badly before he was killed. A mahout, in this scrimmage, lost his seat and fell actually on top of the tiger, who was so astonished that he bolted away to be secured later. In instance, where an enraged tiger was charging his pursuers, one elephant was knocked clean over by another and an English sportsman being spilt was for some time in a very awkward predicament, on foot and unarmed in close proximity to "stripes" in his most ferocious mood. Luckily the sportsman was presently rescued. The Indian rhinoceros also often charges, and occasionally gores the hunting elephants very severely.

The King's Plate.

The King's Plate, run for each year at Toronto, in May has become not alone the most ancient annual fixture run continuously on this continent, but also the most valuable national race. It is a long cry back more than half a century, when Don Juan won the first Queen's Plate and the certificate for $262.50 that went with it was thought a princely fortune. Little then did the late King Edward, at the time Prince of Wales, imagine the service he was rendering alike the turf in Canada, the industry of horse breeding and the pleasure, sport and health of the people of this great country.

WHALING OFF NEW ZEALAND

Graphic Description of the Work of the Whalers with Their Deadly Harpoons

At the cry of "There she blows!" out go the steam launches to replace the nets, three in number, that suffice to close the narrow channel. These, unanchored, are allowed to float loose, the ends of each slightly overlapping. Kept taut by their own weight, they hang stretched on the float line, an invisible curtain of wire mesh barring the water run.

No human fastening, says the Wide World, has yet been invented that could stop the rush of a charging whale. The principal of the detached floating net is not to stop, but so to hamper the monster with a gossamer of wire rope that he falls an easy prey to the hunters. For this reason also the nets are so placed that on striking an entangled whale may race seaward or sound downward, carrying the enveloping net, without fear of disturbing the remaining two.

When the nets are in position the launches and attendant whaleboats with their crews, take up their stations at [illegible] distance to watch for the upheaval and dancing floating line that marks the striking of a whale.

Often a whale's presence is first indicated by great masses of broken barnacles and torn seagrass that come floating upward to the surface as the animal, wandering among the rocks of the sea floor, eases himself with prolonged scratchings in the depths.

In the boats all is tense expectancy and ordered preparation. Harpoon guns are loaded and made ready, lines are carefully flaked down in the tubs, lances are looked to, and everyone is on the qui vive. Suddenly a sort of shudder runs through the sea. There are tossing billows and wild commotion made by the bobbing float lines. "Hurrah! she's struck!" is the cry.

Away go the boats, each racing to be the first fast to the struggling fish and so earn the bonus that rewards the winning crew. A mighty, grey black head, entangled in a clinging web of wire, rears from out the water. Up, up, it goes, till a huge bulk of body towers a good fifty feet in the air, its side fins thrashing wildly in a smother of foam. It curves in an arch, and then, like an arrow, down go whale and net together for the sound.

Not for long though. The upward drag of bunched net floats, and its necessity for breath brings the animal quickly to the surface—a spouting, snorting, wallowing mass, mad with rage, wild with terror of the unknown clinging horror that envelops it.

Bang! bang! go the guns from each boat in quick succession. Both irons are home and well placed. A wild quiver of flukes and fins, and the whale either sounds again or races along the surface, towing the boats after it at express speed. But the net holds fast, and at each new effort for freedom the victim becomes more helplessly wound up than before.

Soon exhausted with futile struggling, the whale comes to rest, and here is a momentary cessation of the mad fight, as the leviathan pauses to breath. Huge panting air gasps are plainly audible at a distance of half a mile.

The crews are quick to seize the opportunity. With the lancemen ready in the bow the boats sweep in, one on either side. "Steady with the lance." "Now!" Eight-foot steel blades drive deep for the heart behind the pectoral fins.

A shiver, a hissing spout of air and blood, a wallow and roll of the huge wire-tangled carcass, flashes of red and white foam in the sunlight, and the black heave of a twentyfoot fin that for one dread instant, scimitar-shaped, a falling wall of bone and sinew, hangs over the boat and its occupants. The boat's crew back out like lightning, just in time. Down crashes the mighty fin, missing its blow by a bare foot. There is a roar and clap of many thunders, and jetting spurts of spray leap high into the blue.

The boats, backed clear, still hang to the lines, the crews watching events and waiting the end. It may be that the dying whale will sound again or race in a final effort. But the lances have got home. A few more wallows of despair, the great tail flukes thrash the water with lessening force, and presently the huge body, inert, lifeless, lies quietly on the surface. Hawsers are made fast to the dead whale, and while the boats return to their stations to watch the remaining nets, it is towed by the launch to the jetty ashore.

Departing Banker Feted.

About a quarter of a century of his friends tendered a banquet to Mr. Geo. Clark of the local branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce in the coleman parlours. A beautiful set of India paper Dickens was presented to the departing guest by his associates. Mr. Clark thanked his friends for their kind expressions of good will towards him. The proceedings of the evening were further enlivened with songs by Mr. Melroy, Mr. Walter Davidson, Mr. Reg. Turner, Mr. Louis Mendel, and speeches by Mr. R. M. Glover, Dr. McPherson, Dr. Frederick, Mr. W. Davidson, Mr. W. McKnight and Mr. Paul Trebilcock.

THE STEAMER STEWARD

One of the Busiest Men on Board, But Poorly Paid

There is no single individual in the service of the public, from the stoker down, who is perforce so versatile in his attainments and so enduring in his service as the steamer steward. His hours are from five in the morning until ten at night, his pay on the foreign-owned lines averages about $15 a month, and the steward in second-class does not double his wages from his tips and the fund that is raised among the passengers to pay the band.

Stewards have been known to sleep, eighteen in a triangular room sixteen feet long, and eleven wide, with two small port-holes for ventilation. They must wait at the table at breakfast, previously having set it, then they wash the dishes. Next they make up the beds, then serve the little luncheon on deck which comes about ten o'clock. Next they arrange the table for lunch, wait upon the table, wash the dishes on some lines, and eat their own lunch. In the middle of the afternoon there is another light luncheon which they must serve, then they set the tables for dinner, which they subsequently serve. After getting the remnants out of sight and eating their own meal, they give a concert from eight to ten, after which they are free to spend the night as they please.

In spite of all this hard work and the degrading treatment which they receive from many passengers, one finds scores of intelligent, well educated youths on the German lines especially, and one wonders how the lines manage to inveigle them into their service. For the most part they are enterprising boys who are eager to see the world after they have left their gymnasium or universities, and have not the means to travel, so they put to sea as stewards, content to endure the abuses and hardships of the life for the glimpses they get of the various ports.

One boy from Berlin whom a passenger interviewed some time ago had run away from home and gone into the service of the Hamburg-American line so that his parents might not know that he was doing menial labor. His family was one of aristocratic tendencies, but too poor to send him on his travels in the proper style. Had they known that he had adapted a life so degrading in their eyes, it would have broken their hearts, he said, but he was accomplishing his purpose. In two years he had served on six different branches of the Hamburg lines and had seen almost every port from the Far East to the Atlantic coast of America.

NORTHERN ONTARIO

Area, 140,000 square miles.

Northern boundary, the Arctic regions.

Eastern boundary, the Province of Quebec.

Western boundary, the Province of Manitoba and the Territory of Keewatin.

Southern boundary is practically the Canadian Pacific Railway direct line from Montreal to Winnipeg, which runs across Ontario for a distance of 1,285 miles.

Telegraph and telephone connections are spreading with amazing rapidity all over the land.

Minerals are found extensively, and in splendid paying quantities, especially gold, silver, nickel, copper and iron.

Game is plentiful, including moose, caribou, red deer, bear, beaver, otter, wild duck, partridge and ruffed grouse.

The country is divided into six great divisions, known as Nipissing, Sudbury, Algoma, Thunder Bay, Rainy River and Kenora.

There are now a number of villages and towns scattered over the country whose population runs from fifty up to several thousands.

The parks and forest reserves are large. Algonquin Park covers an area of 1,218,000 acres; Temagami Forest Reserve covers 3,563,600 acres, and contains an estimate of from three to four billion feet of timber; the Nepigon Reserve covers 4,670,080 acres; the Mississaga Reserve covers 1,980,000 acres with several smaller reserves.

THE SHAPES OF EGGS

A mathematical discussion has taken place before the Zoological Society as to the differences in the shapes of eggs. A few eggs, like those of the owl and the tortoise, are spherical, or nearly so; a few, like the grebe's or the cormorant's, are elliptical, with symmetrical ends; the great majority, like the hen's, are ovoid, or broader at one end than the other. The hen's egg is always laid blunt end foremost. Eggs that are the most unsymmetrical are also eggs of large size relatively to the parent bird. The yolks of eggs are spherical, whatever the form of the entire egg may be. This has been shown to be due to their being enclosed in a fluid, the "white," which makes the pressure everywhere on the surface of the yolk practically constant.—Science Siftings.

WHAT THE PUBLIC WANT

Hiss succeeded hiss. Boo succeeded boo. The audience showered their hostile verdict at the stage in the form of such useful commodities as carrots, eggs, and onions.

They called for the author. But he did not appear. He stood shaking in the wings, watching the whizzing vegetables with tearful eyes.

"Listen to them now!" he said, as a loud roar arose, intermingled with shrill whistling and cat-calls. He turned to the manager, threw up his hands despairingly, and exclaimed: "You give them tragedy, and they want comedy. You give them comedy, and they want tragedy. It's hard to find out what they do want."

"On the contrary, it's painfully easy," replied the manager. "They want their money back!"

Mr. C. S. Cammer, of the Merchant's Bank, Meaford, Ont., who has been visiting with his sister, Miss L. Cammer, 760 Water street, has returned to Meaford.

Miss Shuttleworth has tendered her resignation as assistant secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association, to accept the position in the Y.W.C.A., at Toronto.

SIXTY MILLIONS ON RAILWAYS.

The Winnipeg Free Press tells us that during the coming summer in Canada's four western Provinces there are to be built 3,000 miles of railway at an approximate cost of $60,000,000. The work will require about 60,000 men, and it is feared that there will be no little difficulty in securing enough men to carry out this great railway programme. It is estimated that at least 35,000 will have to be brought for this purpose from Great Britain and Europe. It seems unlikely that the programme can be carried out in its entirety because of this lack of [illegible] but the fact that the plans have been laid and the money provided for such a gigantic programme of railway construction may give strangers some hint of the immenseness of our territory and the extraordinary rapid character of the growth of what is well termed, "the Great West." The proposal to spend $60,000,000 in one year within the limits of four Provinces whose combined population does not exceed 2,000,000 souls is significant of much.

THE ROMAN SPECTACLE.

It is very interesting to read the secular daily and weekly journals of New York City in their report of the reception given to Cardinal Farley on his return from Rome. Apparently the city has never seen anything quite so gorgeous in all its history. The great popular reception accorded Theodore Roosevelt on his return from his world tour was a very ordinary and tame affair in comparison. The illumination of the cathedral surpassed anything ever before attempted anywhere in the republic, and in the elaborate and expensive arrangements the whole affair was unique, says The Christian Guardian. And the press of the metropolis even forgot politics and Presidential candidates for a time in its eagerness to tell all about it.

And apparently it was a great popular event, and the church is to be congratulated that the people of the second greatest city in the world should enter so heartily into a function that directly concerned itself alone. And Protestantism is to be congratulated also that its liberality of spirit enabled its adherents to enter with more or less sympathy into the spirit of such an occasion. A bigotry that would have prevented such a thing would have been something to be sorry for. A due appreciation of the Roman Church and a desire to co-operate with it as far as possible, and in a most friendly spirit, in attaining certain moral and religious ends is an indication of genuine Christian charity and consideration on the part of Protestant communions that we should all be glad to see.

But the thoughtful Protestant who saw this great spectacle, or read the elaborate and picturesque story of it, would probably find himself following along several interesting and divergent lines of thought. And possibly he would first of all be reminded of the fact that such an occasion could not take place anywhere else save upon this continent, and least of all could it take place in any so-called Roman Catholic country. It would be impossible to even think of it in Paris or Madrid or in Rome. In the first place any such ceremony would be absolutely forbidden in any of the cities named, and if attempted the mob would give short shrift indeed to those who undertook it. Street-car and carriage traffic was stopped in Broadway for three hours in the busy part of the day to allow the Cardinal's procession to pass along, five miles of sidewalk being crowded with onlookers. This could happen in New York, but anything within a thousand miles of it could not happen in Rome.

And no doubt many a Protestant, watching the great spectacle of the scarlet-robed Cardinal's procession, would find himself asking the question, "What use is the Roman Church making of the protection and honor and liberty that is given it upon this continent?" And the answer would not be very reassuring, qualify it in every way that was possible. The same assumption of power, the same manipulation of political influence, that have so largely been responsible for the breaking down of the influence of the Roman Church in Catholic countries, that same church is by no means a stranger to in the United States and in Canada to-day. Indeed, so marked [illegible] are these things in its life on this continent that even the broadest charity is finding it more and more difficult to credit Romanism with the actual and very real virtues that it does possess. And if the history of the next ten years in the life of the Roman Catholic Church upon this continent follows in the beaten track of the last ten it is more than likely that a repetition of the spectacle that has just been witnessed in New York will not be possible even upon this liberty-loving continent.

And the Protestant onlooker at this great celebration would no doubt find himself stirred up along another line. The display, the pomp and splendor of it all, would hardly meet the approval of his judgment and taste. Apparently there were numbers of Roman Catholics who were not satisfied with it from this point of view. There was something barbaric and exaggerated about it that sorted but ill with the fact that it was all done in honor of one who claims to be a very special representative of the lowly Nazarene. To speak of the simplicity that there is in Christ in connection with it would be incongruous. Simplicity is surely in good taste anywhere, and, of all places, in religion it is emphatically so. In all charity it is very difficult to see in this great spectacle anything that looks like good taste or genuineness in religion.

Protestantism could nowhere have such a celebration, and for that we should be exceedingly grateful. In the first place, the spirit that would seek it does not exist to any great extent among us. It does not sort with the democracy which Protestantism everywhere develops. The spectacle was arranged down to its minutest detail for effect, and Protestantism can well afford to be careless in the future, as in the past, about mere effect. The conquests that are achieved along these lines are small indeed, and very far from enduring. The Protestant who sighs for them might spend his breath to better purpose.

Editorial Notes

Potatoes are $2 a bag in Peterboro' and $2.75 in Ottawa. Buyers in the Capital are nearer the seat of government and strings to the public purse! They can afford the difference.

Lieut.-Gen. Baden-Powell, organizer of the Boy Scout movement, is in Louisville, Ky. If he comes to Canada we ought to persuade him to come to Peterborough.

Hon. Sam Hughes has something further to look after than Victoria County now. Kingston is sending a deputation to ask him to consider a bridge used by the R.M.C. of the Limestone City.

A leading Mariposa farmer declares that farmers cannot raise hogs and make money. How much money do the farmers want. Judging by Peterboro prices for farm produce of all kinds, whether farmers "Can raise hogs" ? or not this County raises lots of them.

American coal is going in ship loads to England in anticipation of the expected strike there. We will bet all our [illegible] buttons that after a [illegible] sold cheaper in Liverpool than in Peterborough.

Harry K. Thaw's attorneys are about to get out habeous corpus proceedings to release him from Mattewan Asylum. If a Peterborough man, whether millionaire or not, committed murder, he would dangle from the end of a three-quarter inch rope in quick time.

Bombay papers tell a good story of how a ram was too much for a tiger. A Shikari, or hunter, had tied a sturdy ram to a tree in the jungle as bait for a man-killing tiger. The ram bleated, and the tiger sprang at its victim. Before a shot could be fired, the ram sprang at the great cat and used its horns. The tiger, astonished, turned tail and fled. Some of the local political officeholders, confident in strength sprang on the Tory candidates last election and got what the ram gave the tiger.

POINTS FOR GIRLS.

Some rules worth following for young girls are: Be natural. Young girls, from lack of selfconfidence, often try to copy the style and manners of someone they admire, and the result is not a success. It is better to be oneself. Be above jealousies. When another girl is criticised, be the first to say the generous word in defence of the absent one. Be a good listener. It is a safe rule that [illegible]

RIDE SOME DAY IN GOLDEN TAXIS

A Few of the Amazing Things We May Do in the Magical Future, According to Edison

What will the world be like a hundred years hence?

None but a "wizard" dare raise the curtain and disclose the secrets of the future; and what wizard can do it with so sure a hand as Thomas Alva Edison, who has wrested so many secrets from jealous Nature? He alone of all men who live has the necessary courage and gift of foresight; and he has not shrunk from the venture.

Already, Edison tells us, the steam engine is emitting its last gasps. A century hence it will be as remote an antiquity as the lumbering coach of Tudor days, which took a week to travel from Yorkshire to London. In the year 2011 such railway-trains as survive will be driven at incredible speeds by electricity (which will also be the motive force of all the world's machinery), generated by "hydraulic" wheels.

But the traveller of the future will largely scorn such earth-crawling. He will fly through the air, swifter than any swallow, at a speed of two hundred miles an hour, in colossal machines which will enable him to breakfast in London; transact business in Paris, and eat his luncheon in Cheapside.

Steel Cradles for Babies

The house of the next century will be furnished from basement to attic with steel, at a sixth of the present cost—of steel so light that it will be as easy to move a sideboard as it is to-day to lift a drawing-room chair. The baby of the twenty-first century will be rocked in a steel cradle; his father will sit in a steel chair at a steel dining-table; and his mother's boudoir will be sumptuously equipped with steel furnishings, converted by cunning varnishes to the semblance of rosewood or mahogany, or any other wood her ladyship fancies.

Books of the coming century will all be printed on leaves of nickel, so light to hold that the reader can enjoy a small library in a single volume. A book two inches thick will contain forty thousand pages, the equivalent of a hundred substantial volumes of to-day; three such volumes, six inches in aggregate thickness, would suffice for all the contents of the "Encyclopaedia Britannica." And each volume would weigh less than a pound.

Already Mr. Edison can produce a pound-weight of these nickel leaves, more flexible than paper, and ten times as durable, at a cost of $1.25. [illegible] years' time the cost will probably be reduced to a tenth.

More amazing still, this American wizard sounds the death-knell of gold as a precious metal. "Gold," he says, "has even now but a few years to live; the day is near when bars of it will be as common and as cheap as bars of iron or blocks of steel." We are already on the verge of discovering the secret of transmuting metals, which are all substantially the same in matter, though "combined in different proportions." Before long it will be an easy matter to convert a truck-load of iron bars into as many bars of virgin gold.

We Shall Not be Here

In these magical days to come there is no reason why our great liners should not be of solid gold from stem to stern; why we should not ride in golden taxi-cabs; or substitute gold for steel in our drawing-room suites. Only, steel will be the more durable, and, thus the cheaper in the long run.

And in the world of manufacture the changes of the next hundred years will be just as revolutionary. Where we have now a score of machines, each responsible for a stage of manufacture, one will suffice.

"Before long," says Mr. Edison, without a twinkle in his eye, and certainly without his tongue in his cheek, "we shall have a machine into one end of which you will put cloth, thread, buttons, and so on, and from the other end draw suits complete to the last stitch, and ready folded for delivery."

All our present marvels of phonograph and telephone and aerial telegraphy are but blind gropings in the dark compared with the light that shall flood the next century.

The Briton of 2011 will be able to sit in his armchair and converse with his son at the Cape, or with a friend in Melbourne, as easily as across the hearthrug; and not merely to listen to his friend's or his son's voice, but to see each of them as clearly as if he were in the same room.

"WHERE'S THE MISSIS?"

During the tour round the world of the King and Queen as Duke and Duchess of Cornwall, one of the ceremonies was at the University of Melbourne in Australia.

The Duke was to receive an honorary degree, but the Duchess was unable to be present. There was a vast crowd. At last the solemn procession of the Council and Senate of the University emerged and made its way to the platform, the Chancellor escorting the Duke, gorgeous in his new hood and gown. In the hush of the moment, while the dignitaries were taking their places, a student of the University called out, in a disappointed tone:—

"Hello, George! Where's the missis?"

The shocked expression on the faces of some of the bigwigs only added to the audience's delight at the good-natured smile with which the Duke looked up in the direction of the voice.

Fifty-one Years Clerk

Mr. Elias Taylor, parish clerk of Felsted, has retired on reaching the age of ninety, after fifty-one years of service. During his term of office he daily ascended the church tower to wind the clock. He discharged that duty 18,[illegible] times, and climbed 180 miles of stairs.

BOUGHT AN ONTARIO FARM

Dr. John Standish, of the staff of the Nova Scotia Agricultural College, after looking over many farms for a home in the Province of Ontario, purchased a fine 200-acre farm in the township of Esquesing, county of Halton, 2½ miles from Georgetown.

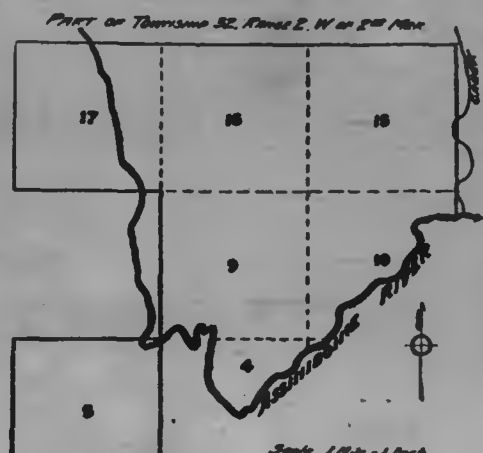
SASKATCHEWAN GRAIN AND RANCH LANDS



The attention of farmers and stock raisers is invited to the lands shown in the above plan.

The lands are situate in the Port Pelly District, Northern Saskatchewan, long known as probably the richest farming district in the Province. The parcel, which contains approximately 3,681 ACRES in one compact block, is watered on the west and south sides by the Assiniboine River, and by a large creek on the east. It is well wooded, thus assuring as well as evidencing ample rainfall, and plentiful supply of cheap fuel. It is undulating and well drained, having an elevation above the river, and rising gradually from it to a height of about 60 feet, and provides many beautiful residential sites.

In the advantages it offers for mixed farming it is unique, there being some 2,400 acres clear and ready for the plow, while the balance consists of timber and excellent pasture land, admirably suited to stock-raising. The soil is a rich, black loam, from 8 to 10 inches in thickness, resting on a clay subsoil, except along the river, where it is a rich sandy loam. Crops produced on similar neighboring lands are phenomenal for their quantity and quality.

The location is within ten miles of Mikado Station, on the main line between Winnipeg and Edmonton, of the Canadian Northern Railway, with good trails leading to it, and within a short distance of a school. While the settlement going on in the neighborhood is rapidly adding all the adjuncts of an up-to-date farming community.

This is an opportunity for a man with capital, business ability and practical experience. Such a man should clear his whole investment, including all improvements and equipment, in four or five years at the outside. And now is the time to purchase, as the price will shortly be advanced $5.00 per acre. Experienced men predict this land will be worth $50.00 per acre within ten years. Lands immediately adjoining, which last spring could have been bought for $14.00, are held to-day at $20.00 and $25.00 per acre.

We are also offering some 1,100 acres additional, in separate parcels of three half sections, and one quarter sections, situate in the same locality as above.

These lands were selected for the excellence of their location and the magnificent quality of their soil, which latter the official records of the Indian Agency demonstrate.

EXCITING STRUGGLE WITH A WILD BOAR

A Soldier in India Tells of His Experience While Jungling in that Country

Private Cufflin, India, gives the following description of a struggle he had with a wild boar:

"While out 'jungling' some few months ago, in company with a chum, I had rather an exciting experience with a wild boar. We had been out several hours without meeting anything worth the shooting, and were traversing a deep ravine, or nullah, as they are called in India—I on one side, and my chum on the left—when the shikari who accompanied us suddenly called my attention to a large boar that was scrambling up the side of the nullah, about 200 yards on my left front. I instantly fired, and caught the boar in his hind quarters, tumbling him back into the nullah. As soon as he dropped, my chum put down his rifle and ran towards him with a clasp knife, intending to put the finishing touch to him. He had scarcely gone fifty yards when the boar suddenly jumped to its feet, turned, and charged, and caught my chu mby his legs, throwing him to the ground, and commenced to worry him with his tusks. My chum, who was an old hand at jungling, had the presence of mind to lay flat upon his stomach, and thus escaped the serious injuries he would have sustained had he attempted to rise to his feet and run away, as the formation of a pig's snout debars it from using its tusk upon an object that is very close to the ground. However, all this happened in the space of a very few seconds, and this old tusker succeeded in inflicting several bruises about my chum's arms and shoulders before I was able to get near enough to be sure of an aim consistent with safety to my chum. As soon as I got the boar in an advantageous position, I fired, this time hitting him clean through the brain, and he dropped like a log. But for my chum's presence of mind in lying prone as soon as he fell this incident might have terminated with serious results; but, as the saying goes, 'All's well that ends well,' and, after all, it is such incidents as these that do so much towards enlivening the monotony of a soldier's life in India—a life which requires enlivenment at times."

SUBDUING A TIGER

It Was Kindness That Made the Animal Tame

Illustrating that it is nothing but kindness that makes wild animals really tame, Herr Hagenbeck, the world-famous animal trainer, tells the following story:—"I remember a savage Bengal tiger which was sent to me from Calcutta some years ago. When it arrived it was in a state of fury and [illegible] and for several days [illegible] I approached the cage. I paid him a daily visit purring as I approached, which was like speaking in his own language, and he gave up gradually his furious greeting. After a week I took a piece of meat at each visit, for the way to the heart is through the stomach, and that does not apply to tigers alone! At the end of four weeks I could touch him, and three months later he had quite realized that no one wanted to hurt him, and used to come quietly to the bars to be stroked each day."

AS A LAST RESOURCE

The Japanese Final Method of Restoring Life

The Japanese have discovered an extraordinarily simple and effective method of "restoring life" in people who appear to all intents and purposes dead and beyond the aid of medicine. If an accident occurs so that a person is three-fourths drowned, beaten senseless, or severely attacked by sunstroke or heart-disease, the operator takes the body of the seemingly dead victim, and extends the arms to either side, having previously rolled the sufferer over on his face. That done, he delivers a succession of hard, regular blows on the seventh vertebra of the "dead" man's spine, using his wrist as a kind of hammer. Unless life is utterly extinct, this causes the patient to regain consciousness, when he is at once seized, turned over, made to sit up, has has arms swung and waved about, as in our own system of what is called artificial respiration, and is then forced to walk with the aid of supporters.

The exertion is an essential part of this curious treatment, having undergone which the patient is ready to be handed over to the doctors for ordinary medical attention.

NO USE

A well-known clergyman was one day in a barber's shop, when four or five men walked in whim he knew by their voices, but who did not recognise the man in the chair, with lather all over his face. They proceeded to spend the time by telling stories and using expressions which, to say the least, were rather strong. When the barber pulled away the towel, the clergyman, cleanly shaved, stood before theh. So nonplussed were they that no one tried to take the vacant chair, and the barber called several times—"Next gentleman! Next gentleman!"

The clergyman smiled somewhat grimly as he said:—

"It isn't a bit of use, John. Theres not a man here who has the effrontery to answer to that name."

NERVE TONIC NOT WANTED

Why the Cost of a Prescription Was Reduced

The big-hearted, eminent physician had consented to see the patient without making any charge. There was a lingering doubt as to whether this was altogether a deserving case; but, as usual, the patient was given the benefit of the doubt. "There," he said, when the examination was finished, "take this prescription to a chemist; he'll make it up for you for fifty cents."

"Thanks, doctor," was the reply. "Oh, by the way, would you mind lending me the half dollar?"

The medico bent a stern gaze upon his unprofitable customer. "Give me that prescription back," he said. It was handed back, and a swift deletion made. "There," he said, returning it, "you can get that made up for ten cents. The drug I crossed out was for nerves; but it seems to me that your nerves are pretty healthy."

The most important mining centres are Sudbury, Michipicoten, Temiscamlag, Cobalt, Porcupine and Gowganda. The mineral output now exceeds $27,000,000 annually, and is increasing.

New Skirt Which Approaches the Dreaded Crinoline

Mercifully freak fashions have had their day, for a while at any rate. Coming fashions are both saner and more b[illegible] they have been for some time past. The only approach to the much dreaded crinoline is a new and very [illegible] skirt that is finished with a deep ruche around the hem, which has the effect of making the feet appear much smaller than they look under the usual severely cut short skirt. Ruches are quite a feature of smart dressing to-day, and one big Parisian house is making a speciality of ruched trimming for both day and evening frocks alike. Fringes, likewise, are a craze of the coming fashion, particularly those made of heavy silk or very light chenille.

CURIOUS MASCOTS

Singers Who Have Real Faith in Such Company

Madame Patti, who has enraptured all music-lovers, places great belief in an old doll, called "Henriette," which she has treasured as her special talisman since she was seven years of age.

Another great singer with a real faith in mascots is Madame Alice Esty, and she never sings in public without wearing a small green heart attached to a delicate necklace of gold.

The Shah of Persia and a small table, upon which are five splendid portraits, are quite inseparable. This mascot accompanies him everywhere, and is placed close to his pillow while he sleeps. The portrait consists of himself, the late King Edward and his Consort, and the Tsar and Tsaritsa of Russia. The late Baroness Burdett-Coutts was almost convinced that good luck would desert her if she parted with a lucky guinea. This coin was given to her grandfather, who dressed rather carelessly, by a benevolent old gentleman who had mistaken the former for one seeking charity!

Among ladies in French society there is a great desire to possess for "luck" bits of the hangman's rope, and applications are frequently made—but without success—to influential Britons connected with the Home Office to obtain such unpleasant relics from the hangman!

He eats as he runs, or, rather, as the things run away with him Snakes are the principal part of his diet, big and little. His crop is as elastic as his legs are swift, and when he wants to prepare for a long journey he coils up a rattler or two inside of his neck and sets out across the Mexican desert with a swiftness that makes it look like a bunch of dust on a record-breaking tour around the world.

NO PLAY, NO PAY

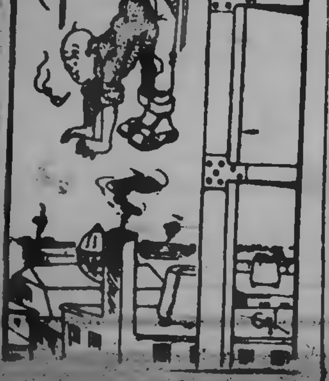
Some little time ago a stranger strolled into a billiard-room of one of our largest hotels, and was immediately accosted by a youth, who challenged him to a game of 100 up.

Nothing loth, the stranger accepted, won the toss for first shot, went to the table, and did not leave till he had amassed 102, and was still in play.

He then noticed that his would-be opponent had put away his cue, and was making for the door.

"Hi, there, young fellow," he called; "who's paying for this game?"

"Not me, you bet. No play, no pay! is my motto, and when I pay to be a spectator, I'll have a reserved seat for my money, and not stand holding a cue, like a blooming marker!"



NO VISIBLE MEANS OF SUPPORT

WHAT THEY WOULD DO

The captain of a certain pleasure-steamer relates an amusing yarn of one of his stokers, who was not given to wasting words:

On a sultry afternoon the stoker had popped up on deck for a breath of fresh air, when he was buttonholed by an inquisitive old lady, and the subsequent conversation was carried on in this fashion:

Old Lady:—"Are you the stoker, my man?"

Stoker nods.

"Aren't you afraid of an accident, leaving your boilers to look after themselves?"

"No."

"But I—I thought there was grave danger. If the boilers get over-heated, what would they do?"

"Bust!"

"Yes; but—but what would you do? What would we all do?"

"Die!"

And for the rest of the voyage the old lady was as silent as the stoker.

Tramp:—"Those auto racers ain't got nothin' on me."

DRILLED HIM

Even an extremely aggressive enemy can be conquered by strategy; it is only a question of employing the stratagem fitted to the case.

An open-air preacher of East London understood this, and his stratagem fitted to a charm. He was addressing a crowd, when a soldier, who had been drinking, came up and ridiculed the service. Finding it was useless to ignore the man, the preacher said:

"Ah, my friend, you're no soldier. No servant of the King would get drunk and interrupt a peaceful service."

The man said he was a soldier, and asked the preacher to test him.

"Very well," was the reply, "I will. Now, then, Attention!"

This the soldier did as well as his condition would allow.

"About—turn!"

This order was also obeyed, though with some trouble.

"Quick march!"

And off went the valiant soldier, marching down the road at a quick pace, while the preacher returned to his address.

The recent storm was felt severely throughout the whole of Ontario. Peterborough believes that statement.

The Mutual Benefit Society materfinitas, the employees of the Canadian General Electric Company will run a monster excursion to Toronto and Niagara Falls on Saturday, June 15.

The graduates and undergraduates and benefactors of Queen's University in this vicinity will hold their third annual dinner at Coleman's Grill to-morrow evening.

THE WORKING HEN

Select the Best Layers as the Foundation of a Flock

There is just as much difference in hens as in horses. It is the individual capacity to put feed to good use that makes a hen or a horse valuable, and pure-bred horses and hens have been bred for this sort of a capacity to make them good, because that is what careful breeding is for.

Otherwise, we might just as well go back to "pennyroyal" cows, scrub horses and mongrel fowls without considering their blood lines, writes W. M. Phillips, in the Twentieth Century Farmer.

If eggs are more profitable than poultry for market, then we should seek to select our best layers as the dams of our flocks. This is not such a hard task as one might think. If we select the long-bodied, bright-combed, healthy-eating hen we will find her among the best layers.

The hen that is out as soon as the poultry house is opened in the morning and lingers out of doors until all the others have gone to roost is almost sure to be the best layer in the flock.

A good layer is indicated by a big crop, legs set well apart and a body that is deep in the rear.

No delicate, dainty hen was ever a good layer; she lacks the vitality that leads to great powers of reproduction. The good layer is always alert; and any hen can be kept tame and quiet if she is properly treated. What a test of patience it is to have the hens dig up things that we have planted and get in the way in the places where they have no particular business!

It is often a temptation to throw clubs at them or set the dog on them when they get into mischief.

Hens lay better when yarded than they do when allowed to have a run. By this means they are kept from learning how to get into mischief.

NATIONAL FLOWERS

Plants Which Are Regarded as Symbolical in Many Nations

Every nation seems to have a desire to equip itself with a symbolical plant. Most people are acquainted with the legend of St. Patrick and the shamrock, which has given Irishmen their special decoration.

Scotchmen are said to owe theirs to the fact that, when a party of invading Danes were approaching the slumbering camp in the darkness, one of them trod on the pricky thistle, and announced his contact with it in rather loud tones. The Scots were awakened and drove off the enemy.

Patriotic Welshmen decorate their caps with a leek on the first of March, from an ancient custom of contributing a leek to the common repast at the annual gathering. England has always been famed for her roses, but the adoption of the rose as the national symbol does not seem to have taken place till Edward IV. introduced it on his seal. The lily of France has been traced to very early times, but probably owes its adoption to the Franks at the battle of Tolbiac, who crowned themselves with lilies after the battle.

Violets were especially associated with the fortunes of the Bonapartes.

In heathen countries certain trees are held sacred owing to their supposed connection with the heathen gods. The banyan of India is sacred to the Hindu because the Hindu god Vishnu was said to be born under it. The peepul was supposed to be the favorite tree of Buddha.

The national plant of Upper Egypt is the lotus, on which the sun was supposed to rise; that of Lower Egypt, a tuft of papyrus reed; while the palm is typical of Judaea. The leaf and flower of the chrysanthemum were long ago adopted and are still used as the special emblem of the Mikado of Japan, and a festival in honor of the golden chrysanthemum is held yearly.

THE KING AS A "LADY"

It was in Malta, years ago, when his Majesty (then Duke of York) was stationed there, and a dance was organized, literally on the spur of the moment, on one of the ships.

His Royal Highness was—and is, for the matter of that—always willing to join in anything that promises a bit of fun, so a "ballroom" was rigged up on the quarter-deck in about record time.

It was agreed that, since it was a men's party, those who were to take the ladies' parts were to wear a white handkerchief on their left sleeve.

Presently a "lady" approached the present King and, with what was meant to be a demure simper, asked for the pleasure of a dance.

"Go away, you juggins," was the Royal retort. "I am a 'lady' myself, but I have lost my blessed handkerchief. Come and have a cigar!"

FIDDLESTICKS!

It is said the beams and heavy timbers taken from old Swiss "chalets" and other old styles of houses make the source of supply from which some of the best violins are made.

But if age of material counts for anything, the violin made by an Indiana man should eclipse the finest "Strad."

The body of it, according to a violin paper, is made of a variety of cedar taken from an old log dug out of a New Jersey swamp, and is said by experts to be at least three thousand years old. The back of this instrument is from an old Scotch table that has reached the age of four centuries.

If age gives fineness of tone, how would a plank from Noah's Ark sound when worked into a fiddle?

A Mary in Every Seven

"Mary" is the name of one in every seven of the girl scholars at North Harringay School, London.

Two men of Peterborough yesterday felt in their trouser pockets to search for five cent pieces, where they usually have bank bills. They both bet on Orillia for the Junior championship.

The Dominion Government's "Labor Gazette" received yesterday says that all classes of business in Peterborough are flourishing except agriculture. This it describes as "fair." If the editor of the book had to buy his butter and eggs in Peterorough, he would say that agriculture was not only "active," but a gold mine.

NEW LIGHT ON COST OF LIVING

Food Products, Not Manufactures, Are the Articles High in Price

Mr. F. W. Field, Editor of "The Monetary Times," Toronto, in a recent article says:

"A significant fact in connection with the volume of talk and discussion that has originated from that hackneyed topic, the cost of living, is that in Canada the chief complaint is made against the high prices of food products, and not so much against manufactured articles. This circumstance is made plain when one begins to seek data regarding the comparative cost to the consumer in the United States and Canada of household furniture, crockery, stoves and other articles of domestic use. While every Government report gives plenty of information about grains and fodder, animals and meats, dairy produce, fish and other foods, there is a remarkable paucity of material showing the cost of certain staple manufacturered products. Those reports, which happen to be more elaborate in their record of the output and consumption of manufacturer, give but few examples in each class of goods. For instance, the report on wholesale prices for 1910, published by the United States Government gives figures relating to furniture under the following heads only—bed room suites, bedroom chairs, kitchen chairs and kitchen tables. The natural deduction from all this is simply that there has been little or no demand for such information, due largely to the fact that no one seems to be greatly dissatisfied with the prices of the common ordinary household article made in the factory. The increasing cost of eating to live, appears to be the backbone of the great economic problem, which is agitating the consumer of the American Continent.

It is sometimes contended that the housewife in Canada, because of our tariff, cannot obtain furniture and other domestic necessities as cheaply as can be purchased in the United States. These official facts and figures, available, show that in this direction there is little, if any, cause for complaint. Canada has been more fortunate than some countries, for the tendency in the past decade has been one of decline in the prices of bedsteads, crockery, glassware, table cutlery and silver plated ware. It is interesting to analyze this situation more closely. Mr. R. H. Coats, in his special report on wholesale prices in Canada, obtained quotations for six representative lines of furniture, viz: kitchen tables and chairs, dining-room tables and sideboards, bedroom suites and iron bedsteads. In all lines of wooden furniture, a steady and pronounced rise occurred in prices during the past twenty years.

In iron and brass bedsteads, on the other hand, there was a pronounced decline in the past ten years. The line quoted was a continuous pillar bed of shipping weight, about seventy-five pounds. It showed a decline from $6.51 in 1890 to $3.50 in 1909. The explanation offered by a leading manufacturer is that the manufacture of this article in Canada has reduced the cost both of brass and iron bedsteads.

The general tendency in crockery and glassware, table cutlery and silver plated ware was downward.

There was an advance of from 12 to 15 per cent. in pails and tubs compared with 1890, and of approximately 30 per cent. compared with the low years, 1896-1897. The most extraordinary advance, however is shown under the heading of brooms, which, in the closing days of 1909, had considerably more than doubled, as compared with the prices ruling in 1890. This, however, was largely accounted for by the scarcity of broom corn last year following a failure of the yield in the United States, the cost of broom corn to the manufacturer having advanced from $6-$10 to $20-$24 per ton. Apart from this advance, the price of brooms was fairly stationary during the decade from 1900 to 1910.

The question of raw materials to manufacturers has been a prominent one in many countries, but Canada probably has felt this phase of the question less than a good many nations. Commenting on this, the London Times said, two years ago: "The steady advance in the cost of raw materials, which is becoming a very serious matter, is due to a number of causes, chief among which may be mentioned the comparative smallness of the production, the great increase in the consumption, the high cost of labor in the producing districts, and the effect upon production and wholesale distribution of artificial restrictions." This fact has affected the cost to the consumer of a large number of articles. Too often the apparently high price of a manufactured article is due to the desire of the manufacturer to create or maintain large profits. Aside from the question of wages, freight rates, the increased cost of factory sites, and many other important considerations, the factor of raw material is vital and has a tendency to fluctuate more widely than manufactured articles. On summing up the averages of wholesale prices noted by the Dominion Department of Labor, it is seen that in 1890, raw materials were 13.6 points above the average for the base period, 1890-99, while manufactured articles were only 9.6 points above that average. In the recession which followed until 1897 raw materials fell 28.2, while manufactured articles advanced only 26.4 points. Between 1909 and 1910, there was a gain of 4.8 points in raw materials and 2.2 points in manufactured articles. The statistics for 1910 show prices of raw materials at 42.6 per cent. above those of the base decade, and the prices of manufactured articles 17.1 per cent. above those of the base decade."

The Peterborough merchant who loves the look of those goods on his shelves and hates to let them go, should not advertise in The Times. An adv. in the g.f.j. not only shows that you are up-to-date, but greatly helps to change merchandise into ready cash.

The trains from Madoc have had trouble with snow drifts. Madoc thus produces not only gold, but the usual accompaniment of that mineral viz., trouble.

DEFENDS BOXING

A London Vicar Says There is Nothing Like it

Rev. A. [illegible]wman Guest, "the fighting vicar" of Stanbury, Buckinghamshire, [illegible] arranged a friendly spar on the village green with an army reservist of local fame, who offered to "take on the vicar." Unfortunately, the contest aroused such enthusiasm in the locality that enterprising villagers made books on the event, and the betting became fast and furious. People for miles around expressed their intention of being present, and the vicar fearing too much notoriety regretfully decided to abandon the fight. The vicar, giving a London paper his views on boxing in relation to the morals and physique of Englishmen, said:—

Now, it is evident that the whole range of the seven deadly sins—called "deadly" by the Church because of their effect on soul and body—are successfully resisted by the employment of nature's own knuckle dusters.

For example, a young man is given to bad temper. By sparing under an instructor he rids himself of the evil. No use boxing if the bile begins to rise—you are knocked out. Keep your head!

Take advice. The desire for mere money grabbing is changed into the desire for glory. "Excelsior!" as the poet said, even if one dies in the effort.

Envy becomes emulation. Instead of longing to drag down some fellow who has risen by his own exertions in life, [illegible] learns to rise to the [illegible]ing his principle.

[illegible] becomes good-will. No man [illegible] in the freemasonry of the [illegible] will leave the floor and [illegible] to any brother. He becomes altruist.

Gluttony in eating, drinking or smoking are all taboo. No beer, please!

Pride. Boxing is a great leveller. It knows no wealth, station, country only distinction. The votary slowly and surely learns real self-help and self-respect by many defeats and falls into the dust.

In fact, there is nothing like boxing. It kills the seven deadly sins. The fighter—not necessarily the prize-fighter—becomes a kind father, a good husband, a friend to his boys a good comrade, and a citizen who is a credit to the Union Jack.

He looks the world in the face with a clear eye, and says with Terence: "I am a man, and no element that is human is foreign to me."

LONGBOAT'S PURSE

The Indian Cashed About $800 in His [illegible] Glasgow Race

Tom Longboat got $375 and a percentage of the gate receipts, probably $800 in all, for winning the fifteen challenge race at Glasgow. The Indian went away at a red-hot clip, and tried to lose them all the first two miles. He did get about thirty yards but they brought him back in three miles. He led the bunch up to six miles, and at seven and a half led by 60 yards. Kohlemainen loosened up at nine miles, caught the Indian, and led to the thirteenth mile. Then the Indian came to life again, and from then on set a stiff pace. The Finn was right with him until the stretchhead where the Redskin cut loose his wonderful sprint, and came home a winner by two feet in the world's record time of 1.20.04 2-5. The world's record up to that time was Fred Appleby's 1.20.04 3-5, made at Stamford Bridge, in England, on October 22, 1894, while the latter was an amateur. The world's professional record was held by Jack Price, who, on August 19, in 1910, ran the fifteen miles in Glasgow on the same track in 1.21.40. The Indian's new world record is all the more creditable when it is considered that he made the journey in a snow storm.

GUNNER MOIR, the former English heavyweight champion. He claims that Bombardier Wells, in going to the United States, is side-stepping him.

TROTTING A POPULAR SPORT

New Zealand Sporting Review:—There is no shadow of doubt that to-day "trots" rank as one of the honoured pastimes of a large and ever increasing section of the public; in fact, trotting seems destined to become one of our national and most popular sports. The gratifying change effected has been almost solely due to the sport being brought under capable and zealous management, the better classing of races and the more strict scrutiny of the performances of contesting horses. Certainly it must be admitted that owners are entitled to a fair quota of praise, for they have undoubtedly given more careful attention to the breeding and training of their horses, and that naturally has had a marked benefit on the racing. But the all-important essential to popularising a sport is to gain the confidence of the public. Once that is achieved the improvement of the sport by a better system of classing, more attention to breeding, and the careful preparation of contestants are nature corollaries.

The Dominion Government has just issued a new set of maps which include all the Provinces, the Welland and the Trent Canals, which reached the Times yesterday.

The Labor Gazette, issued by the Dominion describes Peterborough as "active" regarding tailors, garment workers, bakers, leather workers railway, cabmen, barbers and retail clerks. Not a trade in this city but what is said to be active.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

TEDDY DECLARES HIMSELF.

Ex-President Roosevelt can no longer be charged with maintaining an equivocal attitude toward the presidential nomination. It is not now possibie for his enemies to insist—as the New York newspapers have long been doing—that he was secretly scheming to capture the Presidency while his friends were asserting that all thought of another term in the White House was repugnant to him. These were the contrasting types of opinion six months ago. It has for some weeks been evident to neutral-minded observers that he was getting into readiness to take the step just announced. His "hat-in-the-ring" utterance, in Cleveland, only deepened the impression that the latest Outlook deliverance on the third term had made. And these but accentuated the reports that have been coming regularly from visitors to Oyster Bay, who have found him steadily seeing more and more arguments for consenting to accept the nomination. His Cleveland speech was virtually the platform of a presidential aspirant. And he is not merely receptive: he wants the nomination, and is frank enough to express the hope that the people be given a chance through direct primaries to express their preference.

Mr. Bourassa is evidently boarding in "The House of Trouble" when he tried to whip Borden into line to suit himself and his followers.

The Ontario Government is going to spend one million dollars in the improvement of public highways. This will be good news for the Province, and it will now be up to Mr. Peck, our local representative to see that this County gets its full share of the appropriation. For instance, a few of those ten times one hundred thousand dollars would do a whole lot of good in the township of Smith, Ennismore, Otonabee, the Monaghans, Douro, Harvey, Galway, etc.

Brampton, Ont., is going to eliminate the "Blind Pigs" it is said are located there. Thanks to the Ontario Government and a wide-awake local inspector, Peterborough has none of these animals at large. What liquor is sold in this city, at present is dispensed under strict supervision.

Port perry has had a re-union of the Williams family of that town to celebrate the 80th anniversary of one of that name. We offer a leather medal to whomsoever will give us the name of any particular family in this city that has the largest list, all of the same name. Smiths are debarred.

AN EXCITING PRESENT-DAY ROMANCE

—BY—

WEATHERBY CHESNEY

Supplied Exclusively in Canada by The British & Colonial Press Service, Limited.

Elsa's upper lip tightened with the line of obstinacy that Scarborough had seen more than once before.

"I shall go with you and Mr. Scott to Sete Cidades," she said quietly, and he knew that it was useless to argue further.

"Very well," he said. "And Miss Davis?"

"Oh," Varney cut in, "Miss Davis won't be available. She and I had a talk on our way back from Furnas, and as the subject was rather an important one, she will stay and tell her father what we said. That isn't quite the proper arrangement, I know," he added, turning to Mr. Davis. "I ought to be the one to stay to 'talk to father,' but Scarborough has ordered otherwise."

"My dear boy," said Mr. Davis, heartily, "if what Muriel has to say to me is that she and you want my consent to an engagement—why are you blushing, Muriel?—I shall be just as glad to hear the news from her lips as from yours. But," he added slily, "it can't be that of course, because she doesn't approve of you."

"She is going to try to conquer her aversion," said Varney.

"Is she?" asked Mr. Davis, with a pretence at surprise. "Then I am afraid you will have to look forward to a very long engagement. Muriel's opinions about men are, as you know, the result of long and deep study on the subject of man's iniquities; consequently she is just a trifle obstinate in sticking to them. She is my daughter, so perhaps I oughtn't to say so; but no doubt you've noticed it yourself. She'll take a long time to learn to like you, I'm afraid."

Muriel came and wound her arms round her father's neck and kissed him.

"Don't be worried, dad," she said. "It won't take me long to learn to like Phil."

"Sure?" asked her father, smiling. "You don't mean to tell me that my daughter is going to abandon a cherished prejudice without a struggle? How do you know you will learn so easily to like him?"

"Because I love him now."

With flaming cheeks, and a laugh that was almost a sob, she ran from the room, and Elsa followed her. Mr. Davis turned to the three men.

"Gentlemen," he said, and there was a [illegible] quiver in his voice as he [illegible] had no more pressing [illegible] to attend to than the love affairs of my [illegible] little girl, I would ask [illegible] to stay to-night and drink bumpers to her future happiness; for I think that I have secured a capital fellow for my son-in-law, and that my daughter will have a good husband. Phil, my boy, I hope that you and she will be very happy together, and I think you will. But, if you will profit by her father's experience, don't give way to her crotchets too often. Stand up to her now and then, or she won't leave you in possession of a single opinion that you can call your own. There, boy, off with you to your post. Where is his post, by the way, Scarborough?"

"Somewhere along the coast opposite the Ring-Rock," said Scarborough.

"All right, off you go. But Phil—I don't know what you young people have found out to-day, so I don't know whether your duty to-night involves danger or not—but if the choice is offered to you between letting the diamonds go and risking your life to get them, think of my little girl and let them go. Mr. Scarborough, I ask you to back me up in this."

"I shall be all right," said Varney, before Scarborough could answer. "But how long am I to stick down there, Horace?"

Mr. Davis laughed.

"He wants to hasten back to his wooing!" he said. "I'll drive Muriel over to see you to-morrow, Phil, and you and she can have an hour together without the necessity of abandoning your duty to get it."

"But if there is danger—" Varney began, doubtfully.

"I don't propose to let my daughter share it, of course," said Mr. Davis. "You young people have been far too busy, I suppose, to have had time to observe the fact that the island of San Miguel has suffered to-day from an earthquake. I hear that a new islet has been suddenly formed in the sea near the Ring-Rock, and as it probably will disappear again in a few days, I want to see it. That's why Muriel and I will be in the neighborhood of your sentry-beat to-morrow."

Varney said no more, but set off at once; and when he had gone, Davis said to Scarborough:—

"I have to thank you for giving me the chance of making that young man's acquaintance. He possesses the excellent combination of high spirits and sound common-sense. He is a fine fellow, and I like him immensely. I shall give my daughter to him with perfect trust that he will make her happy, and that's a great thing for a father to be able to say now-a-days. Now won't you read your letter? Scott rode over with it from Ribeira Grande on the chance of meeting you here, and I gathered that he thought it was important. You need not grudge a minute or two. Miss Carrington won't be ready just yet, you know. The girls always have confidences to exchange on an occasion like this."

Scarborough had forgotten about the letter, which he still held unopened in his hand. He opened it now. It was from the uncle whom Scott had christened Croesus.

"My Dear Horace," it began. "As from the letter of yours which I received this morning I gather that you still consider that my opinion is of importance. I'll give it to you straight away. It's this—if you meet a good woman and love her, marry her, if she loves you in return. There's a lot of humbug preached now-a-days about the folly of marrying if you haven't this much or that much a year—the exact sum varies according to the social position of the preacher—on which to keep the house going. That's nonsense. Marry on nothing a year, if that is your income, and if you are both young and healthy, and if you love each other. Then put your heads together and find a way of making the nothing into a sum of four figures. If you reverse the process, and wait for the wife until you have the four figures to keep her on, the chances are that you will find that one of two things has happened: either a better and bolder man than you has stepped in and taken the prize from you, or you have outgrown the power of loving. For love, Horace, the real thing, the thing that poets sing of, comes to a man only when he is young; but if he gives it a proper welcome then, it will stay with him when he is old; if he does not, it flies, and it never comes back. There is many a middle-aged man in London now—prosperous, contented, perhaps, and very likely married to a woman whom he placidly loves—and yet he missed the supreme joy of life, missed it irretrievably, because he had not the grit to snatch it when it came. A man is apt to think that because he holds himself in hand, and will not ask a woman to share his early struggles, he is doing something noble; but the real truth is that he is merely doing something selfish. The joy is in the fight, the winning battle against the world, for the one person in the whole world whom you love best. but do you think that joy is an exclusively male prerogative? The woman, if she loves you, can fight as bravely, as joyously, as you. What right have you to deny her the chance of the battle?

"There, that's my philosophy, Horace. Probably you have skipped it to get to the practical part; but read it through again, when you have nothin' to do, or better, let the girl read it and see whether she doesn't agree with every word I say. I did not act on it myself, and that is why I am anxious that you should not repeat my mistake. I was just about as old as you when I let my chance go. Don't do as I did.

"I say all this to you because you seem to suggest a doubt whether you can manage on what you have got. You inquire whether my former offer is still open, and you hint that if it isn't, you have no right to ask the girl to marry you. My boy, if you love her, and have reason to believe that she loves you, you have no right to keep silent. Of course the offer is still open [illegible] offers, in point of fact—but if I refused to help you by so much as a shilling that would not alter your obligation. I've preached enough now for the practical part.

"You can have a place at my city office at three hundred a year, with the prospect of rapid promotion if you earn it; that is the offer which I hope you will accept. The other is, possibly, more to your taste. I have been investing largely in land lately, and I want a land agent to represent me. The salary in this case is [illegible] a year, because the position requires that you should make a certain amount of show amongst my tenants and you couldn't do it on less. But it is a stationary salary. Make your own choice.

"There is one thing more. When I die, you will be mentioned in my will, but not as my sole heir. The conditions will be somewhat peculiar, and the amount which you inherit will depend upon yourself. If you can prove to my executors that on the day of my death you were worth ten pounds, you will receive something; if you can prove a thousand, you will receive a great deal more. As you know, I preach the doctrine that nothing succeeds like success, and my will is to be my last sermon to you on that theme. The proportion of my property which comes to you is, therefore, a matter which I in your own hands; the surplus will go towards founding a charitable institution of some sort, whose nature I have not yet decided. Probably it will be an Ambler Home for consistent Failures amongst 'Varsity Men—the most melancholy class on earth, Horace!

"Give my love to the girl. Tell her there are no family diamonds, but there will be a cheque to help in the furnishings."

By the time that Scarborough had finished reading this characteristic letter Elsa returned.

"I am ready, Horace," she said. "Shall we start?"

"Yes," said Scarborough, and as they passed out of the room, he whispered to Scott:

"Ride a little in front, or behind, old man, will you?"

Scott answered with a grin.

"Uncle Croesus turned up trumps? Are you going to win, as he cabled to you?"

"I hope to win," Scarborough whispered back. "Anyway, I am going to follow Phil's example, and try."

CHAPTER XXVI.

Sete Cidades

Sete Cidades, the Seven Cities, are seven small craters which lie in the deep bowl of another and far vaster crater. They are round ponds of tinted water now, or shallow cups filled with a crowding vegetation; once they were volcanoes; but their rage is spent, their furnaces have long been cold, and on their ashes flowers grow. Nature by giving a rich fertility to the soil which their embers made, has covered with a garment of beauty the scars of her former wounds.

The sides of the main crater are steep, and difficult of descent, except in one place where the flowing lava found an exit. At the bottom of the great cup there are two lakes, the Lago Verde, filled with brilliant green water, and the Lago Azul, of an equally brilliant blue. On one of the many tongues of land which stretch into these lakes there is a tiny village of white houses, nestling amid the trees.

"That is the Blue Lake which the writing on the stone refers to," said Scarborough, "and the Dripping Well is on the opposite shore from here. If only Davis's photograph had told us how far from the well, instead of leaving a blank before the word 'feet,' we could go down and begin our fishing. I see no sign of Gillies."

The two young men and the girl were standing near the edge of the great crater, looking down. They had approached cautiously, thinking it was possible they might effect a surprise, and by coming on the clerk and Mrs. Carrington suddenly, win the secret of the stolen plan from them. But the waters of the Blue Lake lay quiet and mirror-like in the evening calm.

After a most successful series of services, the mission study classes which have been conducted at St. John's Anglican church by noted Church of England missionary leaders have been concluded. The Alarm Clock Wrong.

Yesterday morning a well known local citizen was awakened long before daylight by the strident clanging of an alarm clock. It seems he had decided, the night before to arise at 6 o'clock next morning to get through some work about the house before breakfast. When the bell woke him up, the citizen with a shiver, and some heated remarks about the length of the nights at this time of the year, hastily pulled on his nether garments and went down stairs to work. As the hours slowly dragged along he thought it was nearly time for day light. A comparison between the alarm clock and another in the hall awoke him to the fact that his little boy had been playing with the alarm clock the preceding night and he had thus been routed out of a warm bed at 4 a.m.

Mr. Jack Jacobs, one of the noted sports of Chemong, drove into the city a few days ago with a span of collies. He relates some very amusing stories about his trip, his first visit to the city. Owing to much water on the ice of the lake, the driver returned to the city. So Simcoe, his wife and little son, had to walk the rest of the way to Chemong Reserve. They remain here for a couple of weeks.

NORTH MONAGHAN COUNCIL MEETING

County Committee Rooms,
Peterborough, Feb. 24.

The Reeve, and Councillors May, Forster and Robson being present.

Mr. John McBride of Millbrook came before the Council with a proposition for them to buy a snow plough for clearing the deep snow off the roads after the severe winter storms.

Mr. McBride has a superior kind of a snow plough which makes travelling possible after such storms as we have had this winter, by using the plough on the drifted roads opening them up so that a horse and cart can trot right along as if it were a race track.

The only other method of getting through the country after these storms is to take a flying machine. However, the Council decided to see Mr. McBride's snow plough work before expressing themselves regarding the purchase of one of these machines.

Mr. Lillico was appointed road Commissioner in Mr. Robt. Fowler's place, he having resigned owing to lack of time to attend to such duty.

On motion of Messrs. Forster and Robson, the collector's roll was accepted as completed and the collector's salary was ordered to be paid.

The Ontario Railway Committee has reported favorably on the Act to incorporate the proposed Kawartha Transportation Co., which is to build an electric road from this city to Rice Lake and Apsley.

BOARD OF TRADE IS AGAINST STREET PAVING

Last night the Peterborough Board of Trade held a meeting in the Council Chamber. Mr. G. A. Gillespie, on motion of Mr. Morris, in absence of the president, filled the chair. The secretary read the minutes of the last meeting. As the president was absent the reading of the correspondence was held over until next meeting. The chairman said the meeting had been called to discuss some of the by-laws to be presented to the people. On the subject of street paving, he called upon Mr. F. H. Dobbin. That gentleman said, if street paving were to be done the city could not do as much building of pavements. The taxation question was the difficulty. It is necessary, before expressing an opinion to find what by-law will be formulated. The paving would entail great expense for care, flushing and cleaning. There is a great deal more to consider than the mere cost of paving.

Mr. Shooks agreed with Mr. Dobbin. The street grade, as compared with the pavements is too high. He came to the meeting for information.

Mr. R. B. Rogers, C.E., agreed with Mr. Shooks, that the paving was a question of "ways and means" Such discussion was premature.

Mr. Pennyfather said towns much smaller had paved streets. There is no reason why Peterborough should not be one of the leading towns of Canada. Improvements advertise the town. The street car service here is good.

Mr. Munro, of the Street Railroad, said his company was in favor of public paving. He had been instructed to consider double tracking the road on streets that are paved.

Mr. Wainwright thought there is as much need for pavement for Peterborough as for any other luxury we can get along without. The water that now soaks into the roadway would necessitate building of additional sewers. It's all nonsense to talk about paving George street. The poles should be got off George street first. He thought the street railroader should do the paving. He moved that the discussion be postponed.

THE GARBAGE BY-LAW.

Mr. Ruddy thought the Board of Trade could not help the Council. Some provision should be made to get rid of the city's garbage.

Mr. Shooks thought the Council should deal with the garbage question. Peterborough absolutely needs a system for getting rid of garbage. The Board of Trade should endorse the Council in providing a permanent system of disposing of garbage.

Rev. J. C. Davidson agreed with Mr. Shooks, as did Mr. Pretty.

Mr. Rothwell moved that the Board of Trade are in favor of a garbage by-law.—Carried.

HOTEL ACCOMMODATION.

Mr. Sherry thought Peterborough will progress fast. Its position, next to the Kawartha Lakes and the Trent Canal, would lead to a large tourist trade, with proper hotel accommodation. Peterborough's hotel accommodation is not as ample as other places of similar size. We have good hotels here.

Mr. Shook thought hotels could be run profitably without a bar, if they were enlarged.

Mr. Gordon said the temperance people had a right as citizens to advocate local option. He could not say what the result would be on hotel property.

Mr. Rothwell thought hotel accommodation was a matter for private capital, not for the Board of Trade.

The chairman said there had been good live discussion.

The meeting then adjourned.

THE RATE WILL BE 22 MILLS

tion Courts each of the Registrars named were absent four days, each appointed a deputy to act in his stead. And the Registrars have charged the city $10 a day for 12 days on which they did not personally act, together with $10 a day for 12 days on which their deputies actually did the work.

The committee contended that the city is only entitled to pay for the work actually done, and on motion of Ald. Johnston, seconded by Ald. Buller, no further action will be taken on Judge Huycke's demand for a settlement of the account for Registration services in full as rendered. But the Council will tender through their Solicitor, the amount they contend they are justified in paying, ignoring the considered overcharge of $120.

WHAT DID IT COST.

Unless intelligible data is to hand, Mr. Chipman and his engineers will be asked to report what the construction of the Romaine street sewer and drainage work has cost the city, as compared with what the expenditure would have been had Mr. Conroy carried out his contract.

SOME SAVING.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Beauty

is more than skin-deep — and cosmetics and other artificial applications to the skin will not restore personal comeliness.

It is a recognized fact that the pale-faced, anaemic girls in our large cities owe their ashen paleness to poor blood.

WILSONS INVALIDS PORT

(A la Quina du Pérou)

eradicates all poisonous accumulations, purifies and nourishes the blood, restoring healthy action to the skin by sending a supply of rich red blood to the cheeks, thus giving them the flush of health. By its action on the system, it causes the pores to open, the impurities to pass off, and the skin is made soft, smooth and velvety.

Replace that sickly paleness by the rosy hues of health—take Wilson's Invalids' Port.

Dr. J. M. BEAUSOLEIL, President of the Canadian Medical Association, says:

I know and recommend your excellent tonic "Wilson's Invalids' Port." I prescribe it to young persons and to debilitated women, and the result is most satisfactory.

I congratulate you for having filled with the greatest of care a time-honoured prescription, which is approved by the Medical Profession.

I heartily wish you all the success you deserve.

10,49,407 MEN NOW ON STRIKE--HUNDREDS OF STEAMERS ARE TIED UP--TRAINS CURTAILING SERVICE

MAY WRECK THREE PUBLIC SCHOOL SECTIONS IN OTONABEE

Protestant Ratepayers Are Becoming Indignant Over the Action of Their Roman Catholic Friends and Neighbors

Should the Effort Succeed Protestants Will be Forced to Unite and Form a New School Section

Which Will Cover a Very Extended Area, Forcing Children to Walk Many Miles to School

Our readers may remember an article we published some two weeks ago relative to School Section No. 8 in the township of Otonabee. This article showed clearly and beyond contradiction, the great inconvenience created, and the disruption of present satisfactory conditions caused by an attempt to introduce a Separate school. This, as explained was originally caused by the seeming insistence on the part of Roman Catholic minority to introduce religious (denominational) teaching against the regulations of the Education Department.

Confirming our former report. The Times was advised yesterday by a couple of Protestant ratepayers, of Otonabee belonging to the School Section above referred to, that a petition is being circulated amongst the Roman Catholic residents of the locality, demanding a Separate school. It is understood that the fiat of the church has gone forth demanding that a Separate school be established in that section. Our informants claim that this is a great hardship for the neighborhood. It is disrupting three of the already successfully operated public schools of the locality. It will probably mean, if permitted, that the three public schools will have to unite and thus children of the vicinity have to go much further daily to get their education. This disadvantage is irrespective of the probable ancrease in taxation all, both Protestant and Catholic.

It is said that many of the Roman Catholic ratepayers are reluctantly signing the petition. The Protestants are unanimously opposed to the project and it is said will apply to the Minister of Education to prevent this great injustice being perpetrated.

QUEEN'S ALUMNI BANQUET

Eloquent Address by Rev. Dr. Gordon, Principal Queen's University

About Fifty Members of the Local Alumni Association Present to Do Honor to Their Alma Mater—Some Excellent Addresses—Banquet Hall Handsomely Decorated for the Occasion.

THERE were gathered last night in Coleman's grill room, about fifty ladies and gentlemen interested in educational matters but especially interested in the educational status and progress of the Queen's University, Kingston. Among those present were a number of invited guests from a distance. The dinner was held under the auspices of the Peterborough and Victoria Counties Queen's Alumni Association. The guests included the local alumni and friends and subscribers to their Alma Mater. In the absence of the president, Rev. Mr. Wallace, of Lindsay, the vice-president, Mr. R. Lees, B.A., very ably filled the chair. A large percentage of the guests were graduates of Queen's.

Messrs. Coleman Bros. had taken special trouble to have their fine dining room handsomely and appropriately decorated with the colors of Queen's University. The bill of fare was all that the most exacting epicure could desire. Whilst Messrs. Coleman brothers had laid seats for fifty, as above noted, they had later on to lay tables for many more.

Amongst those present were Miss Alford, the Misses Dickson, Mr. and Mrs. Downey, Dr. Gallivan, Mr. and Mrs. Goodwill, Mr. Harvey, Mr. and Mrs. Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. Keyes, Mr. and Mrs. Lees, Mr. Mowat, Mr. and Mrs. Pettitt, Mr. and Mrs. Waddell, Mr. and Mrs. Rollins, Mr. Kerr, Mr. and Mrs. Chisholm, Mr. and Mrs. Robertson, Miss M. Robertson, B.A., Miss Weir, Mr. Jamieson, Mr. Cook, Hon. J. R. and Mrs. Stratton, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Wood, Mr. Bennett, Mr. Gates, of Peterborough, and Mr. and Mrs. Lawler, Mr. Cameron, Miss Cameron and Mr. McFarlane, of Norwood.

The large assemblage prior to the dinner went to their respective dressing rooms, according to sex.

Rev. Mr. Rollins asked the blessing

The chairman asked the treasurer to read the financial statement. The expenditure was $129 and the receipts $90.50. Treasurer Pettitt, however, expected that last night would make up the small deficit.

The chairman said the fees were due and the treasurer would be always glad to get them

The nominating committee, as represented by Mr. Goodwill, presented the officers for the coming year. They were elected unanimously as follows:

Hon. Pres.—Richard Lees, M.A.
Pres.—J. F. Harvey.
1st Vice-Pres.—L. J. Pettitt.
2nd Vice-Pres.—R. J. Lawlor.
3rd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. G. B. Brown.
Sec.-Treas.—Rev. Jas. Rollins.
Committee—Misses Ethel Alford, M.A., Mattie Robertson, B.A., M. G. Cameron, Misses E. L. Goodwill, F. J. Kirkconnell, Ross Downey and E. J. Keyes.

Principal Gordon then referred to the pleasant evening all had enjoyed. You can always tell a Harvard man, but you can't tell him much. Queen's men are always open for information. He always liked to meet friends of Queen's, such e.g. as the Misses Dickson. There is no corner in literature or research. One great aim of the University is to introduce its students to the knowledge and character

LOCAL COAL CONDITIONS ARE ENQUIRED INTO

The City of Kingston is making a searching investigation of coal conditions there. Residents of the Limestone City complained that, in some instance, they suspected short weight in their coal purchases. The police took the matter of weights in hand. As a result some twenty loads of coal, mostly weighed on various dealers scales, were taken to the city scales and a close test made. As a result, we are informed, eighteen out of twenty loads weighed were short, from fifty to one hundred and fifty pounds each. Prosecutions, it is expected will follow. Now fifty or even a hundred pounds short in a ton of coal may not seem a terrible matter to the rich man, but how about the poor? On the other hand, from the dealers' point of view (or pocket), here is a pretty good graft. Suppose a dealer sends out 20 tons of coal a day, and that there is one hundred pounds short on each ton, as the average shortage was claimed to have been in Kingston, here is just one ton, or $7.75 the dealer gets for nothing, and $7.75 that both rich and poor are deliberately swindled out of.

In view of this expose in Kingston, a Times representative called on Chief of Police Thompson of this city to enquire as to local conditions. The Chief, very courteously answered all questions put by our reporter.

"What system do you follow in checking weights of coal in Peterborough?" the scribe asked.

"Well, we follow what we think the most likely plan to ensure honesty or catch dealers who might try any funny work."

"Do you think there is much short-weight swindling done here?"

"No, I do not. You see the driver of any coal cart is apt to be stopped at any time or place and his load brought to the city scales. Thus they never know when they might be caught. We have several times found an excess weight and only once or twice a very trifling shortage."

"When you take a load to the city scales does the policeman in charge follow that load to place of delivery and then return to the scales and have the waggon or sleigh weighed?"

"No."

"Well," asked the newspaper seeker of information, "How do you know that a hundred pounds of lead or iron might not have been concealed about the vehicle, and its weight charged as coal?"

The Chief smiled and said, "Why the market clerk knows every dealers cart in the city and its weight. In fact he has not to take the weights of many well known farmers' sleighs or waggons. He knows them. There is no monkey work like that being done." The Chief seemed to have every confidence in the integrity of Peterborough's coal dealers. He instanced one case of a sale of wood. A lady bought half a cord of "long," four foot, wood, had it given three or four cuts, to make very short wood. She complained when the cut wood was delivered, that there was not the full half cord she had bought. The dealer replied: Mrs. ——— if you come down to the yard and have half a cord of long wood, cut as yours was, and then pile the same wood, when cut short, so as to make half a cord by actual measurement. I'll give you the wood for nothing." It might be noted that cord wood when cut short will not fill the same space as when four foot long. On the other hand, take a bushel of turnips and cut them up for the use of cattle. The cut up vegetables will make fully one-tenth more bulk.

Our reporter thanked the Chief for his courteous interview and left convinced that local coal dealers, although sometimes unjustly "knocked," are fully as honest as other dealers and possibly more so than one or two dealers in other communities.

It has later transpired that at least five of the Kingston short-weight dealers are to be prosecuted. The Council are considering confiscation of the coal in question as is done with light weight butter, potatoes, etc.

ALL COAL MINES ARE DESERTED HUNDREDS OF BOATS TIED UP

Prospects for a Settlement of the Coal Miners, Strike in Great Britain Still Distant--Leaders of Warring Parties Still Negotiating

London, March 1.—The deadlock in the British coal dispute which affects over 1,000,000 miners is complete. All of to-day's conferences were futile and attempts to reconcile the opposing forces were suspended until Monday, when both the coal owners and the miners again will see Premier Asquith and his Cabinet colleagues. Should it then be evident that the extremists refuse to abate their rigid demands, legislative action will be swift.

700,000 IRONWORKERS IDLE

The shortage of coal has had already disastrous consequences on commerce. Factories are shutting down in all directions, railroads are taking off some of their trains and steamers are being laid up.

One hundred thousand ironworkers will be idle in Scotland alone to-day as a result of the strike. The cotton manufacturers in Northwest Lancashire have coal enough to keep them going for another fortnight.

The miners everywhere are quitting work in the best holiday humor and there is no disposition anywhere for rioting.

THAT PETITION.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—It is rumored that at the Ministerial Association on Monday next, Rev. Canon Davidson will be given an opportunity to explain his signing of the petition to Ottawa, to retain Mr. A. H. Stratton as Postmaster, in view of his known attitude at the recent election. It is to be hoped the question of ethics will be thoroughly considered. Did he think the contents of that petition would never be made known?

I hope The Times will publish the petition in full, as suggested in a letter addressed to the editor of the paper in a previous issue.

THE NE TEMERE DECREE.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Stray "canonists and theologians" are now endeavoring to make out that the Church of Rome does not claim supremacy over the state, or over civil law, and that as a consequence the recent and present agitation re Ne Temere are ridiculous. Just let me ask one question of you, Mr. Editor. "If the Anglican Church told her children that under certain conditions they could not marry, although the state said that they could, what would we say of that church? Would we say that she was not in conflict with the state?" She would not ignore; she would not approve, but she would disapprove and defy, binding her children in conscience to disobey the state, and not to marry according to its laws. It is not true to say that the Church of Rome issued Ne Temere simply as a deliverance on runaway matches or the like. "Clandestine" is defined to mean marriages not celebrated according to the laws of Rome, and her deliverance applies to everyone she chooses to consider "baptized." They are her subjects whether they like it or not, she claims. As for the rest, the great unbaptised or unwashed, she regards them as outside the pale.

MARRIAGE.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—It is impossible to read the beautiful language of the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Montreal in reference to the vital question of marriage without being impressed with his sincerity, and with his strength of conviction. We are entirely of one mind with his Grace concerning the sacredness of marriage, and the terrible evil of divorce. Though we do not regard marriage as a sacrament on a level with baptism and the supper of the Lord, we nevertheless hold it to be an honorable estate instituted of God . . . signifying unto us the mystical union that is bet-

DIES HERE FROM RESULT OF A GUN SHOT WOUND

A most deplorable accident occurred at Lakefield, through the accidental discharge of a shotgun, whereby a young man named White, of that village, is now in St. Joseph's Hospital. It seems that White, who is of Italian descent, was out shooting with three companions along the river road, a few miles south of Lakefield. During the afternoon, White was walking in front, when the gun of one of his companions was accidentally discharged, the contents striking the unfortunate man in the leg. Medical aid was immediately summoned and temporary treatment was administered upon the arrival of Dr. Graham of Lakefield. Belleghem's private ambulance was sent for and he was conveyed to St. Joseph's Hospital. Dr. McNulty found it necessary to amputate the young man's leg above the knee. On enquiring at the hospital last night, it was ascertained that the young man died during the afternoon, probably as a result of shock from the accident. White, the deceased is supposed to be of Italian origin. The funeral arrangements were not known at the time of going to press.

JURY DISAGREES IN SNEED CASE

Fort Worth, Tex., Mar. 1.—With the case of John Beal Sneed, whose trial on the charge of murdering Capt. A. G. Boyce ended Saturday night, it is believed there is little prospect of a verdict Monday.

The jurors reported to Judge Swayne Sunday that a verdict was impossible and the quickness with which they reported is taken here to indicate that there is little chance for a verdict.

The judge asked them to return to their deliberations.

PORT HOPE MAN ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

A young man named Wesley Thompson, 23 years old, belonging to Port Hope, went to Rochester, N.Y. The young fellow had blown in all of the $57 he had earned on a railroad except forty cents. On arriving at the Garden City he went to the Rescue Mission on Front street. Shortly afterwards he attempted to commit suicide by the carbolic acid route. Fortunately his rash act had been anticipated and a man notified Patrolman Gabriel. The officer rushed to the mission and found Thompson in the act of raising a bottle to his lips. He knocked the vial from his hand and Gabriel marched Thompson to police headquarters. There he told Lieut. Mehle he wanted to die. He said remorse at spending all his money had driven him to desperation. Thompson was detained for examination later on.

NO CRIME TO RIFLE HUSBAND'S POCKETS

Philadelphia, Pa., Mar. 1.—According to a decision by Magistrate MacFarland here, a wife has a right to rifle the pockets of her husband take his last cent, and the husband has no redress.

The decision was made in the case of John Dorcas, arrested for non-support. Dorcas pleaded that he was forced to leave his wife because she insisted upon going through his pockets nightly, and relieving him of every cent she could find. The magistrate announced, that according to law that which belonged to Dorcas also belonged to Mrs. Dorcas, and it did not make any difference how she got it.

AMERICAN BANKER GIVEN SIX YEARS

SEND THEM TO HELENA

Washington, March 1. Speaker Champ Clark, himself a candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination, has issued a statement commenting upon Col. Roosevelt's candidacy for the Republican nomination. The Speaker's comments were phrased in characteristic language, and follow.

"There are some peculiar and interesting facts in the Republican embroglio. The big wigs appear to have forgotten historical facts or to scorn them. Many persons were amazed when the Republican National Committee fixed their convention for the 18th of June, the anniversary of Waterloo. Now comes Col. Roosevelt, on February 26th, anniversary of the day when Napoleon escaped from Elba. No doubt the result of the November election will complete the historic parallel by sending not only the Colonel, but the whole Republican party to Helena. A consummation devoutly to be wished. This year all things work together for the success of the Democrats and the good of the country."

36 LIVES PAY THE PENALTY

Laredo, Tex., Mar. 1.—Thirty-six lives paid the penalty of yesterday's revolt in the penitentiary at Monterey, Mexico, according to incoming passengers to-day. These passengers said that six of the prisoners were killed during the outbreak, and 25 others, regarded as ringleaders, were executed at four o'clock yesterday afternoon. There was about 3,000 prisoners in the institution. Last night's report said that the Warden of the penitentiary was among the slain.

The passengers were unable to describe in what manner the remaining five victims were killed, but it is assumed they were among the number slain in the first rush of revolting prisoners.

VANCOUVER 10 YEARS AGO

100,000 SHARES AT $1.00

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has been organized recently with an authorized capital of $500,000, to do a general building, real estate, and insurance business, and is actively engaged in Vancouver and Victoria—two most promising fields. The profits from building houses for cash and selling on instalments is well known, and will be one of the principal channels from which profits will be derived. BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its own building department and architect, and does its own construction. In addition to building houses, BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its real estate department, where it carries on a general real estate business, discounting agreements of Sale, subdividing and transacting a general insurance business.

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS LIMITED, is a new concern, having been in business less than two months in Vancouver, but is becoming well known as the Company without any promotion shares and with a strong board of directors, made up of well known Vancouver and Victoria business men.

Shareholders may conservatively look for a 10 per cent dividend the first year, increasing thereafter and a steady advance in the value of their shares caused by the substantial reserve it will always be the policy of the directors to build up.

Companies run on similar lines, notably the Los Angeles Investment Company' and "Home Builders," both of Los Angeles, have proved phenominally successful, the former, which has been in business some sixteen years, having accumulated assets of over $6,000,000, and paying 28 per cent. dividends; and the latter, which started business three years ago, with only $1,250 capital, has assets to-day of over $1,089,000, a surplus of over $308,000, is paying 17 per cent. dividends, and its $1.00 shares are selling at $2.30.

SHADES AND STYLES

Satin Gowns Will be Fashionable for Some Time—Models Suggesting the Apron Tunic

Satin finish crepe de Chine is included in the list of satin gowns, and will be fashionable for some time; in fact, is growing in favor again, although it has never been relegated entirely to the background. It is used for the draped gowns without trimming that are smart from their very simplicity and their artistic handling.

Heliotrope and Mauve

There are many shades in heliotrope and mauve in crepe de Chine that are wonderfully becoming, and these in draped gowns are fascinating. They have always a double skirt, but so draped that it is difficult to tell which is the lower and which is the upper. The design is high waisted in effect, with the straight lines looking straighter than ever and the figure appears more slender; the folds are caught together with a soft knot or rosette at one side, low down on the skirt. This is one of the models that is to all appearance most carelessly put together and without lining or bones. In reality it can never be well carried out unless there is a perfect fitted skirt lining; the skirt lining is short and finished with a deep flounce of chiffon to make the gown hang better, without being as stiff as if made of silk.

Tartan Plaid Frock

Handsome satins showing one-half or two-thirds of the width in black and the rest in bold plaid of skilfully blended coloring afford opportunity for border-like use of the plaid, while the border is also wide enough to be handled as bodice, sleeve or underskirt material. In one charming Tartan plaid frock, the big black satin collar, cuffs and girdle left but little of the plaid bodice in view, and that little in the blues and greens with lines of white and yellow, and in silk of exquisite lustre and texture, was gay and chic without being garrish. The skirt bottom showed clever detail in the slight shirring of the black satin where the over lapping right side of the front rounds away at the bottom from the left side, and in the narrow puff band of green silk which borders this curve, narrowing to the point of disappearance as the curve ends. Small jet buttons were used along the whole line of the skirt opening and on the collar and cuffs.

Tailored Skirts

A majority of the tailored skirts shown so far, open down the middle or left front, the sides being often rounded away toward the bottom, either in tunic line, showing an under-[illegible] V of contrasting material filling in a small space [illegible] by the cut away lines. If this under piece is plaited the skirt retains its straight narrow lines, yet gives comfortable walking width.

Side Opening Skirts

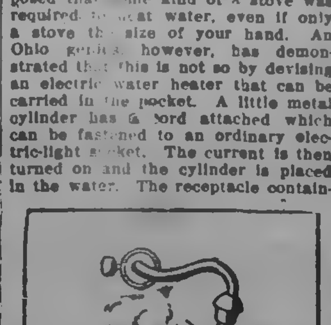
There are numerous side opening skirts with panel or underskirt arrangements, and a sort of apron tunic, which has been developed on some of the smart summer frocks, appears with variations in new models. A simple clinging robe of satin has an apron with square cornered bibs in fine cloth, front and back, the under robe showing for its full length at the sides. The cloth in one model of this type was cleverly braided, and a girdle passing under the apron which fell comparatively straight, was drawn snugly on the sides to define the natural waist curves.

A New Tunic

Another model suggesting the apron tunic had what might be called a triple apron, one section dropping over the other and each edged with a narrow fringe. The tunic was in black cloth and fell over an underskirt of black satin which buttoned for its full length on each side with white pearl buttons. Over a bodice of black satin fell flat separate panels of the cloth, fringed at the bottom where they met a girdle of the satin. White pearl buttons were upon the cuffs and upon the little satin yoke showing above the cloth over-blouse.

POCKET WATER HEATER

Heretofore it has always been supposed that some kind of a stove was required to heat water, even if only a stove the size of your hand. An Ohio genius, however, has demonstrated that this is not so by devising an electric water heater that can be carried in the pocket. A little metal cylinder has a cord attached which can be fastened to an ordinary electric-light socket. The current is then turned on and the cylinder is placed in the water. The receptacle containing the liquid must be brought to the heater, as the latter cannot be moved farther than the length of the cord. The heater will produce hot water in two minutes and boiling water in four minutes. It is useful to heat water for shaving, and as a sterilizer is just what is required. At the sam etime it does not charge the water and may be handled without fear of contact with the current.



Does Not Charge the Water

Judging by the physiognomy and features of Lord Erne, head of the Irish Orangemen opposing Home Rule the Register is away out when it charges that opposition to "the bar" or any other similar ridiculous charge.

What to Take With You When Leaving the Old Country

"It is nothing short of a misfortune that so many Englishmen should offend Canadian taste by landing in, and persisting in wearing, a costume which Canadians look upon as the acme of absurdity."

So writes Mr. L. O. Armstrong, a well-known Canadian railway official, says Answers. He continues: "I refer principally to the little tweed cap and red leather leggings. Canadians all over the Dominion immediately imbibe an ineradicable prejudice against a man who parades the street in such an outfit. They shun him; he cannot get work. It is, in fact, a terrible handicap, where competition is deadly keen."

Whether the emigrant goes to Canada, Australia, or South Africa, he should avoid any garb which makes him conspicuous. What he wants is quiet-patterned, strong, sensible clothes.

Don't leave smart suits or evening-dress behind, however. There is plenty of social life everywhere in the colonies, and party clothes are essential.

For the rest, the emigrant in purchasing an outfit must be guided by [illegible] to. In Canada the summers are infinitely hotter and finer than ours, the winters much colder. Therefore, take broad brimmed felt hats for summer, and very warm underwear for winter. [illegible] you are certain to need a good store of stout flannel shirts. These should be dark in color and of good quality. It will pay you to purchase these at home, and pay the duty on them.

Cotton goods, on the other hand, and boots, are fairly cheap in Canada, so do not overburden your trunks with these.

Some years ago the writer went out to farm in America and before he started spent twenty pounds on an outfit, which included three suits of white duck, a huge cork solar helmet with pugaree complete, a set of boot-mending implements, and a number of white flannel shirts.

And all these, and a good many similar things, he was only too glad to give away soon after his arrival.

Working-clothes suitable for the country can be bought ready-made at cheap prices anywhere in America, either in the States or Canada; therefore, you had much better wait till you reach your destination before purchasing them. If I were going out again I should take three good tweed suits of quiet pattern, one blue serge for better wear, a dozen good flannel shirts, two dozen pairs of strong merino socks, and all the boots I happened to have. I should also have four suits of thick underwear and four of thin, four suits of pyjamas, a good overcoat of dark-blue pilot-cloth, two soft felt hats, one bowler, one straw hat, three or four good knitted ties, some flannel collars, and a warm woollen comforter.

I should carry my goods in a very strong wooden trunk, clamped with iron and provided with two locks, and have in addition a kitbag for articles required on the voyage.

The emigrant must always remember that the more he takes the more he will have to pay in duty and in carriage.

A BERESFORD STORY

Of the many stories told of Lord Charles Beresford, few are better than the following. It is said that he made a wager of $500 with some clubmen that he would drive down Rotten Row in broad daylight. (Vehicles were forbidden in Rotten Row). Those interested posted themselves on the railings in the Park and awaited developments. The first thing to come along was a water-cart. The driver came slowly past to the railings and pretty nearly drenched the waiting ones in the Row. The water-cart man at once became the object of forcible and searching remarks. To the amazement of the bystanders he pushed his oilskin hat back and revealed the beaming face of Charlie Beresford, who said, "Hand over that hundred, old man." Lord Charles had squared the water-cart man to let him play the part, which he did to perfection. His friends had been watching for a smart turn-out of some description.

IN THE SCIENTIFIC WORLD

WHEN NATURE KICKS

Science Shows that Overfeeding is Responsible for Many Ills that Affect Mankind.

It is surely a reflection on our present-day "civilisation" to find that we are still immersed in, surrounded by, and suffering from an incalculable amount of illness and disease in every shape and form, says a scientific writer, who claims over feeding is at the root of the evil, and suggests a reform in our dietary that would eliminate disease, and maintain the average human frame in sound health. Advocating a two-meal-a-day plan, he says:

"If we would only, after rising in the morning, wait some two or three hours, exercise a little, or do some work, the whole system would be far more ready to digest and assimilate the food; therefore, it would be infinitely better for most of us if we would take our first meal at eleven or twelve o'clock, with nothing whatever before that, unless it be a little fruit; then wait for some six, seven, or eight hours before we have our second meal; we should thus have allowed sufficient time for the organs of digestion to empty themselves thoroughly; and be it remembered again, that it is not until such organs are thus emptied of food that actual incorporation of food into the tissues takes place. I must impress on my readers it is only that which is incorporated, and not what is eaten, which nourishes us.

"This plan of two meals a day would alone be the means of renovating in the case of many diseases. I see men and women constantly whom I know will, sooner or later, have a fit of apoplexy, simply because their blood vessels are over-charged, or have become degenerate through over-feeding. There are thousands of deaths annually due to this cause, and most of such are preventable."

Mr. Lee, of Pinehole, Alberta, who has been visiting his mother, Mrs. Wm. Lee, 710 George street, has returned home.

Wanted the Spanker Burned.

WHEN PRINCES GO A-WOOING

By the Author of "In Cupid's Toils."

In the annals of Royal love-making there are few prettier stories than that which tells how the German Emperor won (to quote his own words) "the jewel that sparkles by his side." When, more than thirty years ago, the youthful Prince Wilhelm left Berlin for a few days' shooting as the guest of Duke Friedrich of Secleswig-Holstein, he little dreamt, we may be sure, that he was making the most important journey of his life. The moment the castle came in sight, with boylike impatience, he left the carriage to take a "short cut" across the park; but he had not proceeded far before his steps were stayed at sight of a young lady swinging dreamily in a hammock, the book she had evidently been reading lying open in her lap.

It was an idyllic picture, which might well have arrested the steps of a much less romantic young man. Under the somewhat flimsy pretext of inquiring his way, the Prince advanced to the young lady and exchanged a few pleasant words with her before continuing his journey. An hour later he was laughingly making his formal bow on introduction to the blushing Princess Augusta Victoria whose siesta he had disturbed. Idyllic weeks followed, when, with the beautiful Princess by his side, he forgot, in many a blissful ramble, that there was such a weapon as a gun; and when at last he returned to Berlin it was to announce to his parents that he had left his heart behind in the Castle of Prinkenau.

The wooing of the present Emperor of Austria was no less romantic and "quick in the doing." When, nearly sixty years ago, Francis Joseph was spending his twenty-third birthday with his mother, the Archduchess Sophia, she decided to give a ball in honour of the anniversary; and among the invited guests were the Duchess of Bavaria and her two beautiful daughters, Hélène and Elizabeth. The Duchess accepted the invitation for herself and elder daughter, Hélène, but regretted that Elizabeth would be unable to come as she had not yet made her début, and moreover had no dress suitable to such an occasion. "But she must come," exclaimed the young Emperor imperiously; "let her wear the simplest dress and a rose in her hair, and we will make her 'Queen of the Ball.'"

To such a command there could be no refusal. Attired in a simple muslin dress, with a red rose nestling in her glorious hair, the Princess Elizabeth dazzled all eyes by the radiance of her girlish beauty, and so effectually captured the Emperor's heart that he would dance with no other lady, however fair. Long before the last strains of music died away, he took his lovely partner to an adjacent room, and, opening an album full of pictures of Austrian costumes, said, "All these are my subjects. Will you not help me to reign over them?" The Princess with downcast head and quivering lips, placed her hand timidly in the strong ardent grasp of her lover, and the sweet compact was sealed.

The love-romance of the Czar of Russia had for its first setting the nursery of the Palace of Darmstadt, when the youthful heir to one of the most splendid thrones in the world shared the romps and games of Princess Alix, the loveliest daughter of the Grand Duke of Hesse, and, child as he was, fell under the witchery of his "sunny" little playmate. But it was not until many years later that the romance thus begun in the Royal nursery reached its zenith, on the banks of the Thames, when the child-lovers were the guests of a royal relative at Walton-on-Thames.

Those were indeed halcyon weeks that the two young people spent together, in long, delightful rambles through the country lanes, "paddling in little wherries, or exploring backwaters"—the world forgetting in their blissful solitude à deux; and sealing the compact made when they had "played at sweethearts" among the toys of the Hesse nursery.

When Princess Elizabeth, the beautiful and gifted daughter of Prince Hermann of Wied, paid a visit some fifty years ago to the Court of Berlin, no maid, Royal or plebian, was more heart free. From early childhood, indeed, she had declared that she would never marry; but Cupid only smiled in his sleeve, and bided his time. On the very first day of her stay in Berlin she was running hurriedly down a palace staircase when she tripped, and was only saved from disaster by falling into the outstretched arms of Prince Charles of Hohenzollern. Though she little suspected it in her confusion, she had fallen into the arms of her future husband, who was to offer a crown as Queen of Roumania.

It was also by accident (if accident it can be called) that the present King of Italy met the charming lady who to-day shares his throne. When, some years ago, he was present at a gala performance at a Venice theatre his eyes fell on a radiant vision of girlish loveliness in an opposite box. So fascinated was he by a sight so fair that during the rest of the performance he had no eyes but for the unknown beauty with the glorious dark eyes, and he knew no peace until he had not only made the acquaintance of, but secured as his own, the Princess Hélène, the fairest of the daughters of Montenegro.

It was during a chance stroll in the Thuringian Forest that the young Queen and idol of Holland met her fate in the form of the stalwart and handsome Duke Henry of Mecklenburg-Schwerin—the first of many equally idyllic meetings which rendered their happy climax in the Odenwald when she gave her hand and a share of her throne to the young soldier. "Never," wrote one of the Queen's ladies, "has a wooing been more unalloyedly happy. They are just like two children, so frankly and blissfully happy in each other's company, and sharing all their pleasures and games."

And similarly romantic and charming are the love-stories of our own Royal Family, since the girl Queen, Victoria, "blushing deeply and trembling with emotion," took her courage in her hands and invited her cousin Albert (of whose love she was assured) to share her life. Nothing could have been more idyllic than the wooing of Queen Victoria's eldest daughter by the heir to the Russian Throne—the long rambles, hand in hand, over the Scottish moors, culminating in that moment when the Prince stooped to pick a sprig of white heather, and offered it with his heart to the blushing girl who was to wear with him an Imperial Crown.

The curtain rose on the life-romance of King Edward in the Cathedral of Worms when his eyes first fell on the beauty and exquisite grace of the Danish Princess Alexandra, who chanced to be visiting the cathedral at the same time. An introduction to the lovely stranger quickly followed, and the climax was reached when the Princess, flushed and radiant, one day produced a photograph from her pocket, and announced her betrothal to her excited relatives at Rumpenheim.

There is a charming story of the late King Oscar, of Sweden, who, when the "yes" had faltered from the pretty lips of the Princess Sophie, of Nassau, produced from his pocket a knife and carved on the nearest oak tree a heart between the letters of O. and S.

But it would be an easy matter to fill many columns with Royal love stories, all equally romantic and pretty.—Weekly Telegraph.

WESTMINSTER ABBEY TELLS ITS OWN STORY

The Famous Old Cathedral is Represented by Answers as Giving Its Own History.

I was built in fulfilment of a vow. Edward the Confessor had promised to make a pilgrimage to Rome, but hung back on account of the length and the difficulty of the journey. The Pope released him from his promise on condition he vowed a splendid church to St. Peter.

And so the tangled Isle of Thorns was cleared and the deer and wild oxen that straggled in from the forests around London banished for ever, and I arose. I was then low and squat, but the finest Saxon building ever erected, and covered almost as much ground as now. It was solemnly dedicated to St. Peter in 1065, only a few days before my founder's death.

I did not last very long in this form, however, for within two centuries I was ruthlessly torn down. That most religious of monarchs, Henry III., had determined, even in his boyhood, to build for himself the most glorious abbey in Christendom. He was barely fifteen when in 1220, he laid my new foundation-stone. He lived fifty-one years longer, and in those years he spent the equivalent of half a million sterling on me, all out of his own privy purse. He kept down his expenses, indeed, by living in turn on other English abbeys, so that he might devote his income to me.

Years after his death his plans were still being carried out, till at last they were complete. During three of those centuries I housed the House of Commons.

In Reformation times I was in great danger, as then abbeys and churches were being sacked and destroyed all over England. I sacrificed my lands to save myself. The Protector Somerset demanded twenty tons of my good Caen stone to help build his new palace in the Strand. I yielded, meekly hoping "that he would be good and gracious." All London rose to help me. There were riots in the Strand, and the crowd brought me the stones back.

The only outer change in me since then is that Sir Christopher Wren added a couple of towers at the west front. I had hitherto been towerless, and the matter had been discussed for generations. Though no fresh building has been done since then, the smoky air of London keeps eating my outer surface away, and I am always undergoing recasing.

Though not quite the biggest church in England, I am one of the tallest, inside. My transepts, nave, and choir are the highest in England, and average over a hundred feet from floor to vaulting.

The most beautiful thing about me is undoubtedly the Henry VII. chapel, an architectural jewel which holds the dust of some of our greatest monarchs. The ceiling, probably the most wonderful in Europe, is so intricately and delicately carved that it has been compared to old lace.

Nearly all the Kings and Queens from the time of Henry III. to that of George II. are buried beneath my floor. Nowdays I am not so much a royal as a national burying place; but for centuries every King as he was crowned had the solemn knowledge that has stood face to face with the spot where his grave would some day be dug.

THE TALL-HATTED HIGHLANDER

Field Marshal Sir Evelyn Wood, V.C., who assumed his new position as Constable of the Tower of London, surely holds the record for versatility among the distinguished Army officers, having served and fought in the Navy, Light Dragoons, Lancers, Irregular Horse, and Highlanders, in addition to which he joined the Middle Temple and was called to the Bar in 1874, and is the author of works renowned for their high literary distinction. A good story may be told of his attachment to a regiment of Highlanders, when the latter were stationed at Portsmouth. Sir Evelyn, then a captain, one day returned from London, and with great hurry proceeded to array himself for parade. When he at last emerged he observed that his men were evidently at great pains to conceal their laughter, and he quietly questioned his subalterns as to the probable reason.

"Well, sir," replied the latter, "you are dressed correctly as to kilt, sporran, and all the rest of it, but you have forgotten to remove your tall hat!"

WHALING OFF NEW ZEALAND

Graphic Description of the Work of the Whalers with Their Deadly Harpoons

A[illegible] "There she blows!" [illegible] go [illegible] steam launches to replace [illegible], three in number, that suf[illegible] the narrow channel. [illegible], are allowed to [illegible] the ends of each slightly overlapping. Kept taut by their own [illegible], they hang stretched on the float line, an invisible curtain of wire mesh barring the water run.

No human fastening, says the Wide World, has yet been invented that could stop the rush of a charging whale. The principal of the detached floating net is not to stop, but so to hamper the monster with a gossamer of wire rope that he falls an easy prey to the hunters. For this reason also the nets are so placed that on striking an entangled whale may race seaward or sound downward, carrying the enveloping net, without fear of disturbing the remaining two.

When the nets are in position the launches and attendant whaleboats with their crews, take up their stations at some distance to watch for an unusual [illegible] dancing floating line that marks the striking of a whale.

Often a whale's presence is first indicated by great masses of broken [illegible] and torn seagrass that [illegible] upward to the surface as the [illegible] floundering among the [illegible], eases himself [illegible] scratchings in the depths.

In the boats all is tense expectancy and [illegible] preparation. Harpoons [illegible] and made ready, lines [illegible] coiled down in the tubs, [illegible] to, and everyone is in the [illegible]. Suddenly a sort of [illegible] through the sea. There [illegible] and wild commotion made on the bobbing float lines. "Hurrah! [illegible] struck!" is the cry.

Away [illegible] boats, each racing to be the first [illegible] to the struggling fish and secure the bonus that rewards the winning crew. A mighty, grey black head, entangled in a clinging web of wire, rears from out the water. Up, up it goes, till a huge bulk of body towers a good fifty feet in the air, its [illegible] thrashing wildly in a smother of foam. It curves in an arch, and then, like an arrow, down go whale and net together for the sound.

Not for long though. The upward drag of [illegible] net floats, and its necessity for breath brings the animal quickly to the surface—a spouting, snorting, wallowing mass, mad with rage, wild with terror of the unknown clinging horror that envelops it.

Bang! bang!—go the guns from each boat in quick succession. Both irons are [illegible] placed. A wild quiver of flukes and fins, and the whale either sounds again or races along the surface, towing the boats after it at [illegible] speed. But the net holds fast, and at each new effort for freedom the victim becomes more helplessly wound up than before.

Soon exhausted with futile struggling, the whale comes to rest, and there is a momentary cessation of the mad fight, as the leviathan pauses for breath. Huge panting air gasps are plainly audible at a distance of half a mile.

The crews are quick to seize the opportunity. With the lancemen ready in the bow the boats sweep in, one on either side. "Steady with the lance." "Now!" Eight-foot steel blades drive deep for the heart behind the pectoral fins.

A shiver, a hissing spout of [illegible] and blood, a wallow and roll of huge wire-tangled carcass, flashes of red and white foam in the sunlight and the black heave of a twentyfoot fin that for one dread instant, scimitar-shaped, a falling wall of bone and sinew, hangs over the boat and its occupants. The boat's crew back out like lightning, just in time. Down crashes the mighty flail, missing its blow by a bare foot. There is a roar and clap of many thunders, and jetting spurts of spray leap high into the blue.

The boats, backed clear, still hang to the lines, the crews watching events and waiting the end. It may be that the dying whale will sound again or race in a final effort. But the lances have got home. A few more wallows of despair, the great tail flukes thrash the water with lessening force, and presently the huge body, inert, lifeless, lies quietly on the surface. Hawsers are made fast to the dead whale, and while the boats return to their stations to watch the remaining nets, it is towed by the launch to the jetty ashore.

SEVERE

A good story is going the rounds at a certain university regarding one of the sarcastic professors, who was recently conducting an oral examination in a very scientific way.

There was one student, handsome, easy, and self possessed, who appeared to be utterly ignorant of the simplest phases of the subject.

Professor W. put question after question to him, without receiving one intelligent reply. Finally, the student said, naively:

"I'm very unfortunate, Professor; you never ask me anything I know."

The professor said nothing, but gravely tore off a tiny piece of paper from a convenient pad.

"Here, Mr. B.," he said, handing it to the student, "write all you know. Take plenty of time—there's no hurry."

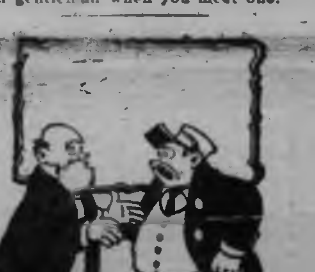
"Yes, and I bought a packet. Then he complimented the baby and I bought another packet."

"H'm!"

"Presently he said our hall was kept in better order than any in the neighborhood, and then I bought another packet."

"Great Scot!"

"Before he left he said he thought I was your daughter instead of being old enough to be your wife. Then I bought three additional packets. Oh, it doesn't do any harm to encourage a real gentleman when you meet one."



OH!

Householder:—"Do you guarantee that the meter registers the amount of gas we burn?"

Inspector:—"I'm not going to argue, sir. All I know is that it registers the amount of gas you've got to pay for."

LOST HER TRAIN

An Irishman was lately employed by one of our large railway companies as a porter. Shortly after he began his duties a woman went up to him and said:

"I have just lost the train; how long shall I have to wait for the next?"

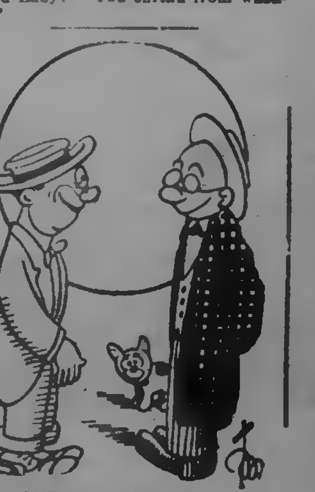
"Be jabers! you had better go and find the one you lost, else the company will be after yez," returned Pat.

SHRINKS FROM WASHING

Facetious Old Lady (to tramp):—"You remind me of a piece of flannel."

Tramp:—"I do, eh? And why so, missus?"

Old Lady:—"You shrink from washing."



EVEN AS YOU AND I

"Why does Phunny write so many jokes against motorists?"

"He's trying to earn enough money to buy a motor cycle."

Mr. Hutchison, former city editor of the Examiner, but more recently editor of Toronto's leading dry goods trade paper, is leaving the latter city to accept a similar position on the Regina Leader.

THE MORNING TIMES

SATURDAY, MARCH 2, 1912.

THE FIGHT FOR THE POLE.

It was on Feb. 28, 1909, that Lieut. Shackleton, exhausted and almost famished, reached the end of his homeward journey over the ice barrier to within one hundred miles of the pole. It was not a jubilant homecoming, for they found no sign of the ship and no smoke or other evidence of life at the hut. When he departed on the southern journey he had left instructions that coal and provisions to support a party of seven men for a year should be landed in the event of the non-arrival of the exploring party by Feb. 25. It was now Feb. 28 and no ship was to be seen. Two of the four men who had formed the southern party had been left out on the barrier in a serious condition. The prospect of a year's weary wait for a relief party was not a pleasing one, but on the morning of March 1 the ship returned for one more look for Lieut. Shackleton and his comrades, and it was not long before they were once more on the Nimrod and safe among their friends.

Spurred on by the rivalry between Scott and Amundsen this last try for the south pole should have been made in quicker time, and it is reasonable to suppose that one or both of these expeditions are now at their winter quarters eager to flash to the world the story of British or Norwegian triumph in this dual race for polar honors.

ENCOURAGING RESULTS.

It is particularly gratifying to learn that the intelligent and educative campaign against tuberculosis in Ontario is beginning to show results. The mortality tables indicate that there is a gradual and increasing decline of the death rate from the white plague and the difference from year to year is large enough to be significant. The Ottawa Journal says that in 1909, for example, there were 3,885 deaths in the province from tuberculosis. The returns for 1910 give the number as 2,287. In the former year 11.8 per cent. of all deaths were due to tuberculosis. In 1910 the proportion had fallen to 6.8 per cent.

These results have been accomplished it is interesting to learn, by comparatively small equipment. There are only twelve sanitoria and four dispensaries in Ontario, although there are many associations and visiting nurses. The work, however, has been taken up in an aggressive and thoroughly intelligent way.

Every year it is becoming more and more apparent that the chief reliance in fighting this disease is to be placed on preventive and educational measures. The visiting nurses' duties are not confined to medical attention, but the more important portion of her work is to teach the inmates of the home how to prevent infection. That this system is working admirably cannot be doubted in face of the statistics. The distribution of medicine and the opportunity for consultation with physicians afforded by the free dispensary, such as is in operation in Ottawa under the auspices of the May Court Club, is another great advantage where there is poverty as well as sickness.

It cannot be too strongly impressed upon the public that the cure of an incipient case of tuberculosis may mean the saving not only of the life of the particular patient affected, but of many lives. There is great need of a campaign of education and intelligent organized effort in the prevention of the spread of this disease in every province in Canada and even more need of an instructive campaign in the art of cheap and healthy living.

Editorial Notes

London papers say that Mde. Sara Bernhardt is to play, with Sir Beerbohm Tree for the moving pictures. Well, one thing sure is that photography of the present day is so accurate and swift in results that even the slight and divine Sara will be shown in the pictures. Why even a house fly is shown in such films magnified to the size of a robin.

For the last fiscal year, the quantity of spirits entered for consumption in the United States, was 138,585,989 gallons, being about five million gallons more than the consumption for the preceding year; and the quantity of beer produced and imported was 1,966,911,744 gallons, being about a hundred million gallons more than the consumption of 1910. The aggregate consumption of beer is the largest in the history of the United States, but the aggregate consumption of spirits is less than that of the year 1907, when the quantity taken for consumption was 140,084,436 gallons.

The above, taken from The Pioneer, is probably correct. One acquainted with liquor conditions in Peterborough would acknowledge that, in a vastly minor degree, a similar increase of fermented liquors over distilled is everywhere noticed. Where in a Peterborough licensed hotel there would be say fifty glasses of whisky, brandy, or rum sold and five to eight glasses of ale, there are now forty to fifty glasses of ale and lager and five to eight of the stronger beverages. The use of lager, a lighter kind of ale, containing a much smaller percentage of alcohol, is every year rapidly increasing in demand in this city.

SHOUT THE NEWS FROM THE HOUSETOPS

THAT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS CURE SUFFERING WOMEN.

Mrs. Savard Tells How They Cured Her Kidney Disease From Which She Had Been a Sufferer for Many Years.

St. Simeon, Dortel, Charlevoix Co., Quebec, March 1—(Special)—Only those who have suffered know the blessings of perfect health. The joy that it brings into their lives makes them want to shout the good news from the housetops. They want other sufferers to know the road to health. Such is the case with Mrs. Alfred Savard of this place.

"I have been a sufferer for many years with Kidney Disease," Mrs. Savard says. "Reading an advertisement telling what Dodd's Kidney Pills had done for a similar sufferer I decided to give them a trial. Six boxes cured me completely."

What Dodd's Kidney Pills have done for Mrs. Savard they have done for thousands of other sufferers in Canada. The daily papers tell of cures made by them every day. They always cure Kidney Disease and Kidney Disease is the cause of nine-tenths of the troubles from which women suffer.

CANNIBALISM IN NORTHERN PERSIA

Washington, D.C., Feb. 29.—Startling allegations of cannibalism among starving Persians are contained in letters from Teheran to the Persian-American Education Society here from Dr. Susan I. Moody, of Chicago. She declares fathers are eating their children, and children are eating each other in Northwestern Persia in the vicinity of Hamadan, where famine has followed the sacking of 25 towns and villages by the rebel troops of Salar el Dowleh, brother of the deposed Shah. Forty thousand people are starving, it is declared, and the society has started a relief fund.

MINISTER CUT TREES AND ERECTED CHURCHES

Sherbrooke, Que., Feb. 29.—The death occurred at Marbleton near here, this morning, of Rev. Thomas Shaw Chapman, one of the most remarkable ministers in Quebec.

Mr. Chapman was 88 years old and had lived all his life in the eastern townships, where he served as minister in several Anglican churches.

He showed wonderful enterprise in the early days. Not only did he cover a district 50 miles in area, but he personally and unaided erected four churches in it, his crowning achievement being the edifice in Marbleton, where he lived, which had a steeple which could be seen for miles around. He secured the logs for the lumber in the buildings by cutting trees in the forests himself and hauling them to his workshop. He built several school houses with bricks made by himself.

We note that the Ontario Government has raised the salaries of the officials of Rockwood Asylum, Kingston. The matron, who is a former Peterborough lady, Mrs. A. McNeil, daughter of the late Wm. Croft, gets an increase of $00 per annum.

LINERS CLOSE CALL BY A METEORITE

Boston, Feb. 29.—A narrow escape from being struck by a meteorite was experienced by the Leyland Line steamer Bostonian, which arrived yesterday from Manchester, England.

At five o'clock Saturday morning, Captain Perry reported he saw the meteorite, flashing brilliantly, falling to the southwest of the vessel. There was a loud hissing sound as it approached the water and then with a loud report it fell into the ocean a few ship's lengths from the bow of the steamer. So great a disturbance did it cause in the sea that water was dashed over the decks of the steamer.

There is great rejoicing in Weyburn, Sask., over a communication received by the Board of Trade from Mr. Chamberlain, the General Manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, stating that survey work will begin on two projected lines affecting that place as soon as the assent of the Provincial Legislature has been received and that grading will certainly be begun this year.

The lines in question run from Cedeux, a point on the Regina, Griffin branch, through Weyburn to the international boundary, and from Weyburn along the boundary to Lethbridge respectively. This construction together with the completion of the projected line from Brandon west will ensure that Weyburn is a Grand Trunk Pacific Divisional point.

AS USUAL

A certain editor had cause to admonish his son on account of his reluctance to attend school.

"You must go regularly and learn to be a great scholar," said the fond father, encouragingly, "otherwise you can never be an editor, you know. What would you do, for instance, if your paper came out full of mistakes?"

The boy looked up into his parent's face with childish innocence.

"Father," he said, solemnly, "I'd blame 'em on the printer!"

And then the editor fell upon his son's neck and wept tears of joy. He knew he had a successor for the editorial chair.

THE SUPREME JOY

There's joy in the smile of an artless child. There's joy in a maiden's eye. There's joy in the spring when the song birds sing. There's joy in a lover's sigh. But such joys all pale and easily fail to compare with the joyous thrill of the woman who knows that her newest clothes give her rivals a nervous chill!

A Lindsay paper has along article entitled "How to Fatten Chickens" Judging by Peterborough prices of poultry, the local feed must consist of bank bills with occasional gold pieces instead of gravel.

CORNWALL FARM LAND CO.

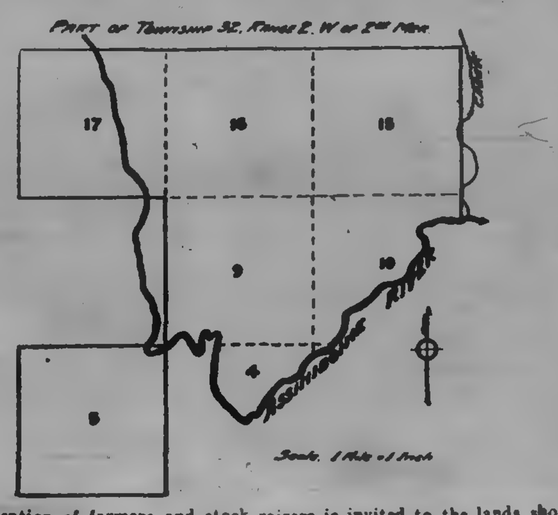
SASKATCHEWAN GRAIN AND RANCH LANDS



The attention of farmers and stock raisers is invited to the lands shown in the above plan.

The lands are situate in the Port Pelly District, Northern Saskatchewan, long known as probably the richest farming district in the Province. The parcel, which contains approximately 3,681 ACRES in one compact block, is watered on the west and south sides by the Assiniboine River, and by a large creek on the east. It is well wooded, thus assuring as well as evidencing ample rainfall, and plentiful supply of cheap fuel. It is undulating and well drained, having an elevation above the river, and rising gradually from it to a height of about 60 feet, and provides many beautiful residential sites.

In the advantages it offers for mixed farming it is unique, there being some 2,400 acres clear and ready for the plow, while the balance consists of timber and excellent pasture land, admirably suited to stock-raising. The soil is a rich, black loam, from 8 to 10 inches in thickness, resting on a clay subsoil, except along the river, where it is a rich sandy loam. Crops produced on similar neighboring lands are phenomenal for their quantity and quality.

The location is within ten miles of Mikado Station, on the main line between Winnipeg and Edmonton, of the Canadian Northern Railway, with good trails leading to it, and within a short distance of a school, While the settlement going on in the neighborhood is rapidly adding all the adjuncts of an up-to-date farming community.

This is an opportunity for a man with capital, business ability and practical experience. Such a man should clear his whole investment, including all improvements and equipment, in four or five years at the outside. And now is the time to purchase, as the price will shortly be advanced $5.00 per acre. Experienced men predict this land will be worth $50.00 per acre within ten years. Lands immediately adjoining, which last spring could have been bought for $14.00, are held to-day at $20.00 and $25.00 per acre.

We are also offering some 1,100 acres additional, in separate parcels of three half sections, and one quarter sections, situate in the same locality as above.

These lands were selected for the excellence of their location and the magnificent quality of their soil, which latter the official records of the Indian Agency demonstrate.

CHARMING EVENING GOWN

A truly beautiful evening gown of gray gauze dotted with silver beads over pale blue satin. The tulle tunic is bordered by a band of deep silver lace and a garland of forget-me-nots fasten at knee depth on left side under a rosette of narrow white lace, from which falls three flounces of wide lace arranged as indicated. Top part of decollete bodice is plain blue satin embroidered around neck and sleeves with silver beads and a wreath of forget-me-nots fastens on shoulder and at waist line under rosettes of lace.

CURIOUS MASCOTS

Singers Who Have Real Faith in Such Company

Madame Patti, who has enraptured all music-lovers, places great belief in an old doll, called "Henriette," which she has treasured as her special talisman since she was seven years of age.

Another great singer with a real faith in mascots is Madame Alice Esty, and she never sings in public without wearing a small green heart attached to a delicate necklace of gold.

The Shah of Persia and a small table, upon which are five splendid portraits, are quite inseparable. This mascot accompanies him everywhere, and is placed close to his pillow while he sleeps. The portrait consists of himself, the late King Edward and his Consort, and the Tsar and Tsaritsa of Russia. The late Baroness Burdett-Coutts was almost convinced that good luck would desert her if she parted with a lucky guinea. This coin was given to her grandfather, who dressed rather carelessly, by a benevolent old gentleman who had mistaken the former for one seeking charity!

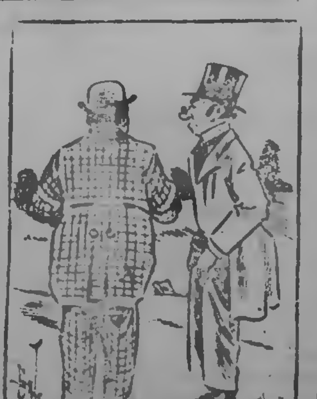
Among ladies in French society there is a great desire to possess for "luck" bits of the hangman's rope, and applications are frequently made—but without success—to influential Britons connected with the Home Office to obtain such unpleasant relics from the hangman!

ORANGE MARMALADE

Select one orange and one lemon with a thin skin. Cut in slices and then in cubes. To this add six cupfuls of water. Let stand over night. Next morning boil twenty minutes, measure liquid, and to one cupful of mixture add one cupful of sugar. Boil evenly for one-half hour, or until it jells. This will make eight medium sized glasses.

Grape Sherbet

Two pounds Concord grapes, two lemons, one quart water, one pound sugar; lay a square of cheesecloth over a large bowl; put in the washed grapes and mash thoroughly; squeeze out all the juice and add an equal amount of sugar, the lemon juice. Use sugar enough to make it quite sweet, then freeze.



WANTED TO KNOW

Prospective Purchaser (after a storm):—"How are you selling this land? By the foot or gallon?"

WONDERFUL SUCCESS

"I hear that Splasher has been wonderfully successful with his pictures lately."

"How many has he sold?"

"One."

"Only one. Do you call that wonderful?"

"Yes, rather. I've seen his pictures."

VERY UNFORTUNATE

Old Mr. and Mrs. Smiley were giving their annual party, and Mr. Smiley was making his usual speech.

"For forty years have my good wife and I travelled hand-in-hand down life's thorny path," he said. "In all those years not one single harsh, hasty, unkind word has passed our lips. Isn't that true, mother?"

"Mother" had quietly fallen asleep on the sofa, and as he laid his hand caressingly on her shoulder she snorted defiantly, and said sharply:—

"Get up yourself and light the fire, Sam. I lit it last, and I'll see you far enough before I'll do it this morning, you— Oh, oh, I—I—why, I must have dropped off to sleep!"

"And I think you'd better have stayed asleep," said Samuel.

FOR ASSISTANCE OF EMIGRANTS

British Society That Will Advance Part of Necessary Funds—Matrimonial Bureau

New impetus to emigration from Britain to her overseas dominions has been provided by the Empire Emigration Society, an undertaking organized to assist those who wish to emigrate but are unable to do so for lack of funds. Lord Ridley and Lord Stanhurst are actively interested in this society and act as trustees of its fund. Not the ill nourished and poverty stricken but the able bodied with some savings to their credit are the class of emigrant to whom chances are being offered. Soon after it was established, the Empire Emigration Society had over 1,500 people on its books with $10,000 at their disposal, who were anxious to save the balance in order to win through to hoped for prosperity in Canada, Australia or New Zealand.

The intending emigrants have to open an account with the Society with a minimum deposit of four dollars. Each subsequent payment must not be less than one dollar. As soon as the depositor has paid in half the necessary amount his passage is booked and arrangements made to supply him with employment when he arrives at his destination. Every class of worker is dealt with, and steps are taken to help emigrants to follow their own callings overseas. Typical of the variety of applicants in touch with the Society are four cases the secretary selected at random. A nurse, who desires to go to British Columbia has enough money to pay her passage, but is in need of advice as to the best means of going; a stonemason, who means to emigrate as soon as he can raise sufficient funds and who has paid a first instalment of seven dollars; a widow, who is an expert dressmaker, and hopes to have saved enough by the end of June to go out to Canada; a doctor with some capital who wants to know of a colony where he may practice his profession, and at the same time give his two sons a start in farming.

The Duke of Marlborough recently gave a broad hint to the surplus women of England to go to the dominions beyond the seas where men were waiting for wives. Said the Duke: "There are a million more women than men in England, and there are a million more men than there are women in the dominions." So, indirectly, the Empire Emigration Society is playing the part of marriage bureau for Canadian bachelors, and domestic helps all over the country are becoming infected with the travel fever or of dreaming of more congenial careers in new lands.

FAMOUS FOLK

Sir Charles Wyndham practised as a doctor before going on the stage.

Sir Edward Clarke's greatest hobbies are boating and piano-playing.

Violets have always been the favorite flowers of the ex-Empress Eugenie.

Stamp collecting is one of the pastimes of Mr. Alfred Austin, the Poet Laureate.

Lord Charles Beresford collects ball programmes as a hobby, especially favoring those painted by lady artists.

Mme. Patti possesses an old doll called Henriette, which was given to her when she was seven years old for singing nicely.

Mr. Hall Caine makes a practice of visiting every place he intends to describe in a novel. When engaged on a story he writes on an average 1,500 words a day.

Mr. Louis N. Parker, the dramatist, was born in France, his father was an American, his mother an Englishwoman, his first language was Italian, and he was educated in Germany.

NO ESKIMO WIDOWERS

At Least None of Long Standing, For They Remarry at Once

In civilization it is said that a wife does not always add to her husband's ease or render his life more supportable, but up on the barren grounds the worst of wives would be better than none.

There, among the heathen tribes, if a man's wife dies—provided he is not a polygamist, in which case, says the Wide World, there is less need for hurry—he often marries again within the week.

Even the Christian Eskimo widowers are with difficulty persuaded by the Moravian missionaries to allow six weeks to elapse between the death and remarriage. On the very day after the six weeks have elapsed the hunter presents himself with a new bride and asks that the marriage service may be speedily read.

The reason is not far to seek. It is said in civilization that "a woman's work is never done," and far more is that true of the helpmate of the savage and the semi-savage, the woman of the barren grounds or of the ice edge. She makes and breaks camp, cooks, cuts up and carries to camp her husband's kill; she dresses the skins of deer and seal.

She is responsible for the fashioning of footgear and clothes; on a journey she often paddles the canoe, and on portage she carries a heavy load. In fact, it is easier to write down the duties not expected of a squaw than those which by immemorial custom she must perform.

Throat Becomes Diseased from Neglecting Colds

THEN CATARRH SETS IN, MUCOUS DROPS INTO THE STOMACH, COUGHING, HEADACHES AND DEBILITY FOLLOW.

That the best method of curing catarrhal disease consists in using Catarrhozone is now freely admitted. Catarrhozone is infinitely superior to cough medicines, tablets, sprays and emulsions, which for the most part are of no practical value except to ease the cough for the time being. Often liquid cough remedies contain opium, morphine and cocaine. With Catarrhozone you take no drugs—you employ Nature's way—just inhale Catarrhozone's soothing healing vapor and relief and cure follows promptly.

Weak Throat, Racking Cough Cured.

"For five years I suffered from a severe bronchitis. A harsh, dry, racking cough kept my throat in a raw condition from one year's end to another. Before going to sleep at night I always had a bad attack, and in the morning before each breakfast I suffered greatly. My voice was harsh and raspy, and sometimes I found it difficult to make myself understood. Catarrhozone seemed to soothe and heal from the first day. It cured me, and now I wouldn't think of being without a Catarrhozone Inhaler—it means life to me."

The above experience is related by Mr. Alexander P. Savary of Hamilton, Pa., and proves the effectiveness of Catarrhozone, which will cure every cough, cold, bronchial or catarrhal attack. The dollar size of Catarrhozone contains two months' treatment and is guaranteed. Smaller size 50c, sample size 25c. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Company, Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

ALONE HE DID IT

A Captain Who for Three Days Ran the Ship Himself

For one man to do the work of twenty with his own hands for three days and nights, and with forty lives under his charge, is a feat that takes some beating. It was done by Captain Morell, who brought the steamship Scindhia home by himself, although the crew considered necessary to work her was twenty-five, including engineers.

With $35,000 worth of cargo and fifteen passengers on board, she broke down in the Atlantic, and was driven hundreds of miles north out of her course. An accident spoiled the fresh water, and distilled water gave the crew dysentery, which, together with mishaps, left the captain without an officer or a man capable of work. The first officer and five of the crew were washed overboard, the two chief engineers were injured in the mishap, and the third only managed to make the damage good before he was laid up.

The captain, when the storm subsided, actually started one of the fires himself, got one of the engines to work at slow speed, and, by superhuman efforts, he managed to navigate the ship and keep her going, backed by great good luck.

He brought the Scindhia homeward round the North of Ireland, getting no wink of sleep for three days and nights; as he was out of the line of traffic, nobody saw his distress signals. He brought his ship to within twenty miles of the Mersey, and there a pilot-boat met him. Once boarded, he collapsed, and slept soundly for twenty-four hours; but he had, says The Mariner, the biggest ovation any merchant captain ever received when he got ashore.

A Few of the Amazing Things We May Do in the Magical Future, According to Edison

What will the world be like a hundred years hence?

None but a "wizard" dare raise the curtain and disclose the secrets of the future; and what wizard can do it with so sure a hand as Thomas Alva Edison, who has wrested so many secrets from jealous Nature? He alone of all men who live has the necessary courage and gift of foresight; and he has not shrunk from the venture.

Already, Edison tells us, the steam-engine is emitting its last gasps. A century hence it will be as remote an antiquity as the lumbering coach of Tudor days, which took a week to travel from Yorkshire to London. In the year 2011 such railway-trains as survive will be driven at incredible speeds by electricity (which will also be the motive force of all the world's machinery), generated by "hydraulic" wheels.

But the traveller of the future will largely scorn such earth-crawling. He will fly through the air, swifter than any swallow, at a speed of two hundred miles an hour, in colossal machines which will enable him to breakfast in London, transact business in Paris, and [illegible] his luncheon in Cheapside.

Steel Cradles for Babies

The house of the next century will be furnished from basement to attic with steel at a sixth of the present cost—of steel so light that it will be as easy to move a sideboard as it is to-day to lift a drawing-room chair. The baby of the twenty-first century will be rocked in a steel cradle; his father will sit in a steel chair at a steel dining-table; and his mother's boudoir will be sumptuously equipped with steel furnishings, converted by cunning varnishes to the semblance of rosewood or mahogany, or any other wood her ladyship fancies.

Books of the coming century will all be printed on leaves of nickel, so light to hold that the reader can enjoy a small library in a single volume. A book two inches thick will contain forty thousand pages, the equivalent of a hundred substantial volumes of to-day; three such volumes, six inches in aggregate thickness, would suffice for all the contents of the "Encyclopaedia Britannica." And each volume would weigh less than a pound.

Already Mr. Edison can produce a pound-weight of these nickel leaves, more flexible than paper, and ten times as durable, at a cost of $1.25. In a hundred years' time the cost will probably be reduced to a tenth.

More amazing still, this American wizard sounds the death-knell of gold as a precious metal. "Gold," he says, "has even a [illegible] to live; the day is near when bars of it will be as common and as cheap as bars of iron or blocks of steel." We are already on the verge of discovering the secret of transmuting metals, which are all substantially the same in matter, though, "combined in different proportions. Before long it will be an easy matter to convert a truck-load of iron bars into as many bars of virgin gold.

We Shall Not be Here

In these magical days to come there is no reason why our great liners should not be of solid gold from stem to stern; why we should not ride in golden taxi-cabs; or substitute gold for steel in our drawing-room suites. Only, steel will be the more durable, and, thus the cheaper in the long run.

And in the world of manufacture the changes of the next hundred years will be just as revolutionary. Where we have now a score of machines, each responsible for a stage of manufacture, one will suffice.

"Before long," says Mr. Edison, without a twinkle in his eye, and certainly without his tongue in his cheek, "we shall have a machine into one end of which you will put cloth, thread, buttons, and so on, and from the other end draw suits complete to the last stitch, and ready folded for delivery."

All our present marvels of phonograph and telephone and aerial telegraphy are but blind gropings in the dark compared with the light that shall flood the next century.

The Briton of 2011 will be able to sit in his armchair and converse with his son at the Cape, or with a friend in Melbourne, as easily as across the hearthrug; and not merely to listen to his friend's or his son's voice, but to see each of them as clearly as if he were in the same room.

"WHERE'S THE MISSIS?"

During the tour round the world of the King and Queen as Duke and Duchess of Cornwall, one of the ceremonies was at the University of Melbourne in Australia.

The Duke was to receive an honorary degree, but the Duchess was unable to be present. There was a vast crowd. At last the solemn procession of the Council and Senate of the University emerged and made its way to the platform, the Chancellor escorting the Duke, gorgeous in his new hood and gown. In the hush of the moment, while the dignitaries were taking their places, a student of the University called out, in a disappointed tone:

"Hello, George! Where's the missis?"

The shocked expression on the faces of some of the bigwigs only added to the audience's delight at the good-natured smile with which the Duke looked up in the direction of the voice.

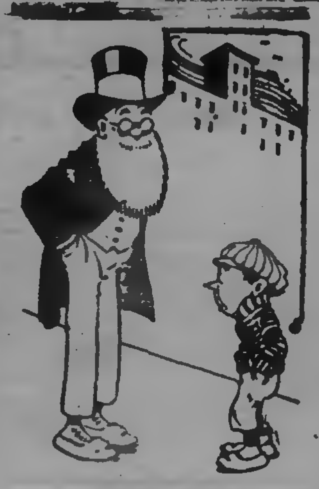
Mr. Elias Taylor, parish clerk of Polsted, has retired on reaching the age of ninety, after fifty-one years of service. During his term of office he daily ascended the church tower to wind the clock. He discharged that duty 18,[illegible] times, and climbed 100 miles of stairs.

Sutton—Bell.

A quiet wedding was celebrated at the George street Methodist parsonage on Wednesday night, by the Rev. Isaac Couch, when Miss Elma B. B. Bell, of Bridgenorth was united in marriage to Mr. Ralph E. Sutton, of Smith. They were unattended. Mr. and Mrs. Sutton will reside in the city.

The many friends in Peterborough of Mr. Tom Maher, of Campbellford, formerly gate keeper at the Simcoe street crossing will regret to hear of his serious illness.



FUTURE JOYS

Kid:—"Gee, but it must be nice to git whiskers an' not have to wash yer face."

NO PLAY, NO PAY

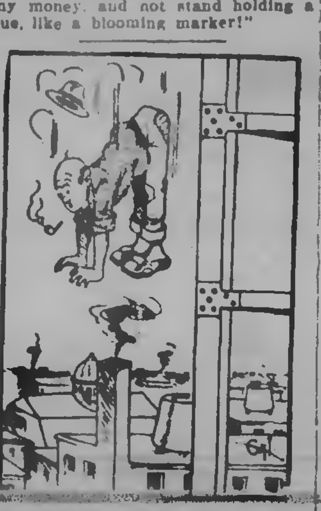
Some little time ago a stranger strolled into a billiard-room of one of our largest hotels, and was immediately accosted by a youth, who challenged him to a game of 100 up.

Nothing loth, the stranger accepted, won the toss for first shot, went to the table, and did not leave till he had amassed 102, and was still in play.

He then noticed that his would-be opponent had put away his cue, and was making for the door.

"Hi, there, young fellow," he called: "who's paying for this game?"

"Not me, you bet. No play, no pay! is my motto, and when I pay to be a spectator, I'll have a reserved seat for my money, and not stand holding a cue, like a blooming marker!"



NO VISIBLE MEANS OF SUPPORT

WHAT THEY WOULD DO

The captain of a certain pleasure-steamer relates an amusing yarn of one of his stokers, who was not given to wasting words:

On a sultry afternoon the stoker had popped up on deck for a breath of fresh air, when he was buttonholed by an inquisitive old lady, and the subsequent conversation was carried on in this fashion:

Old Lady:—"Are you the stoker, my man?"

Stoker nods.

"Aren't you afraid of an accident, leaving your boilers to look after themselves?"

"No."

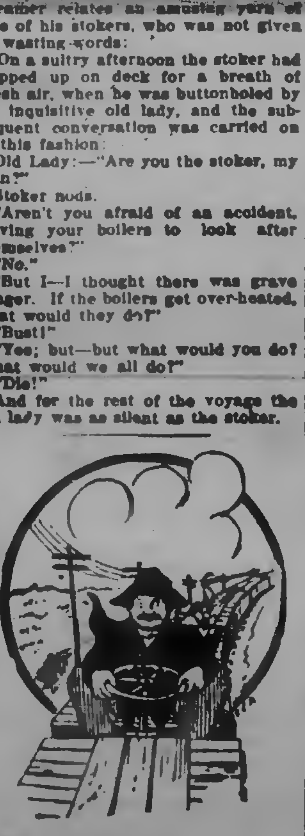
"But I—I thought there was grave danger. If the boilers get over-heated, what would they do?"

"Bust!"

"Yes; but—but what would you do? What would we all do?"

"Die!"

And for the rest of the voyage the old lady was as silent as the stoker.



SAME THING

Tramp:—"Those auto racers ain't got nothin' on me."

DRILLED HIM

Even an extremely aggressive enemy can be conquered by strategy; it is only a question of employing the stratagem fitted to the case.

An open-air preacher of East London understood this, and his stratagem fitted to a charm. He was addressing a crowd, when a soldier, who had been drinking, came up and ridiculed the service. Finding it was useless to ignore the man, the preacher said:

"Ah, my friend, you're no soldier. No servant of the King would get drunk and interrupt a peaceful service."

The man said he was a soldier, and asked the preacher to test him.

"Very well," was the reply, "I will. Now, then, Attention!"

This the soldier did as well as his condition would allow.

"About—turn!"

This order was also obeyed, though with some trouble.

"Quick march!"

And off went the valiant soldier, marching down the road at a quick pace, while the preacher returned to his address.

THE WORKING HEN

Select the Best Layers as the Foundation of a Flock

There is just as much difference in hens as in horses. It is the individual capacity to put feed to good use that makes a hen or a horse valuable, and pure-bred horses and hens have been bred for this sort of a capacity to make them good, because that is what careful breeding is for.

Otherwise, we might just as well go back to "pennyroyal" cows, scrub horses and mongrel fowls without considering their blood lines, writes W. M. Phillips, in the Twentieth Century Farmer.

If eggs are more profitable than poultry for market, then we should seek to select our best layers as the dams of our flocks. This is not such a hard task as one might think. If we select the long-bodied, bright-combed, healthy-eating hen we will find her among the best layers.

The hen that is out as soon as the poultry house is opened in the morning and lingers out of doors until all the others have gone to roost is almost sure to be the best layer in the flock.

A good layer is indicated by a big crop, legs set well apart and a body that is deep in the rear.

No delicate, dainty hen was ever a good layer; she lacks the vitality that leads to great powers of reproduction. The good layer is always alert; and any hen can be kept tame and quiet if she is properly treated. What a test of patience it is to have the hens dig up things that we have planted and get in the way in the places where they have no particular business!

It is often a temptation to throw clubs at them or set the dog on them when they get into mischief.

Hens lay better when yarded than they do when allowed to have a run. By this means they are kept from learning how to get into mischief.

NATIONAL FLOWERS

Plants Which Are Regarded as Symbolical in Many Nations

Every nation seems to have a desire to connect itself with a symbolical plant. Most people are acquainted with the legend of St. Patrick and the shamrock, which has given Irishmen their special decoration.

Scotchmen are said to owe theirs to the fact that, when a party of invading Danes were approaching the slumbering camp in the darkness, one of them trod on the prickly thistle, and announced his contact with it in rather loud tones. The Scots were awakened and drove off the enemy.

Patriotic Welshmen decorate their caps with a leek on the first of March, from an ancient custom of contributing a leek to the common repast at the annual gathering. England has always been famed for her roses; but the adoption of the rose as the national symbol does not seem to have taken place till Edward IV. introduced it on his seal. The lily of France has been traced to very early times, but probably owes its adoption to the Franks at the battle of Tolbiac, who crowned themselves with lilies after the battle.

Violets were especially associated with the fortunes of the Bonapartes.

In heathen countries certain trees are held sacred owing to their supposed connection with the heathen gods. The banyan of India is sacred to the Hindu because the Hindu god Vishnu was said to be born under it. The peepul was supposed to be the favorite tree of Buddha.

The national plant of Upper Egypt is the lotus, on which the sun was supposed to rise; that of Lower Egypt, a tuft of papyrus reed; while the palm is typical of Judaea. The leaf and flower of the chrysanthemum were long ago adopted and are still used as the special emblem of the Mikado of Japan, and a festival in honor of the golden chrysanthemum is held yearly.

THE KING AS A "LADY"

It was in Malta, years ago, when his Majesty (then Duke of York) was stationed there, and a dance was organised, literally on the spur of the moment, on one of the ships.

His Royal Highness was—and is, for the matter of that—always willing to join in anything that promises a bit of fun, so a "ballroom" was rigged up on the quarter-deck in about record time.

It was agreed that, since it was a men's party, those who were to take the ladies' parts were to wear a white handkerchief on their left sleeve.

Presently a "lady" approached the present King and, with what was meant to be a demure simper, asked for the pleasure of a dance.

"Go away, you juggins," was the Royal retort. "I am a 'lady' myself, but I have lost my blessed handkerchief. Come and have a cigar!"

FIDDLESTICKS!

It is said the beams and heavy timbers taken from old Swiss "chalets" and other old styles of houses make the source of supply from which some of the best violins are made.

But if age of material counts for anything, the violin made by an Indiana man should eclipse the finest "Strad."

The body of it, according to a violin paper, is made of a variety of cedar taken from an old log dug out of a New Jersey swamp, and is said by experts to be at least three thousand years old. The back of this instrument is from an old Scotch table that has reached the age of four centuries.

If age gives fineness of tone, how would a plank from Noah's Ark sound when worked into a fiddle?

He eats as he runs, or, rather, as the things run away with him. Snakes are the principal part of his diet, big and little. His crop is as elastic as his legs are swift, and when he wants to prepare for a long journey he coils up a rattler or two inside of his neck and sets out across the Mexican desert with a swiftness [illegible] makes it look like a bunch of [illegible] [illegible] around [illegible]

A FAMOUS HORSEMAN

James Newsome Was the Grand Old Man of the Circus World

Mr. James Newsome, the grand old man of the circus world, died at Cleethorpes, England, in his 87th year, [illegible] to be England's oldest [illegible] and horsebreaker. Mr. Newsome was the descendant of a long line of brilliant riders, indeed he claimed to be one of the family of Temple Newsome, near London, though it was comparatively late in life before he became aware of this.

He was born at Newcastle, and at 12 years of age was apprenticed to Mr. William Batley at Astley's, where he quickly became one of the cleverest as well as one of the most daring riders in the Batley retinue. At the age of 2[illegible] he fell in love with Mlle. Huins, the principal dancer at Astley's, and the union formed by their marriage only terminated about six years ago when Mme. Newsome died at the age of 79.

The fame of the happily mated couple noised abroad, and managers and proprietors came over from Paris and elsewhere to see the two stars. A three years' engagement at the Cirque du Champs Elysees in Paris followed and so sucessful did their performance prove that their contract was renewed for another three years. A tour through France, Holland, and Germany followed the Paris engagement.

Mr. Newsome returned to England about 18[illegible] and launched out on his own behalf, opening his first circus at Vauxhall Gardens. The following winter he [illegible] a spell at Drury Lane, and then [illegible] two others commenced to tour the country.

He soon became sole proprietor, and for [illegible] years Newsome's Circus was known throughout Great Britain. Mr. Newsome paid one jester in those days $[illegible] a night, and for one scene in "[illegible]-Whittington" he paid $25,000.

[illegible]ed at the cost of $40,000, but in con-

Then at the end came disaster. A fine circus he had built at Edinburgh was burnt down. Another was erected at the cost of $40,000, but in consequence of some litigation over this Mr. Newsome found himself a ruined man, and, though now getting old, he went back to the ring.

He by no means escaped scathless during his long list of brilliant achievements. He had one leg broken, a shoulder dislocated, and several ribs fractured, while he has been carried out of the ring as a dead man on several occasions. But his marvellous vitality always carried him through.

One of his most cherished possessions was the letter containing a glowing tribute from the late King Edward, then Prince of Wales, who expressed amazement that Mr. Newsome could break a very vicious horse without resorting to the slightest ill-usage.

RACING IN THE STATES

Horse Review Says the "Thoroughbred Brand is Disappearing

The following from the "Horse Review" will be read with a good deal of interest by horsemen who follow the fortunes of the thoroughbred. Says the "Review": Thoroughbred racing in America, worthy of the name, is now restricted exclusively to the state of Kentucky, where meetings are few and purses and stakes of minor value. There are some "merry-go-rounds" still running in out-of-the-way places, such as Jamestown, Va., etc., but they are hanging on by a mere thread, which at any moment is apt to be severed. There is the iniquitous "sink" at [illegible], Mexico, just across the border from El Paso, Tex., but word comes that "the game" there is bound to die a natural death and cannot last indefinitely. The recent attempt to establish so-called "racing" upon a large scale in the City of Mexico, in which project a syndicate of American gamblers was interested, has proved a failure. The similar project now under way at Havana is considered by those "in the know" sure to meet the same fate. In other words, "Last Chance Junction" is rapidly being reached.

INTERNATIONAL COCK MAIN

Hamilton Sports Cleaned up by Buffalo Birds

The days of cock fighting are proscribed but they are not over by long odds. Recently a big international main was held across the border in New York State between Hamilton and Buffalo birds. The large contingent of sports from the two cities had a bet on the main of $5,000 besides $100 a side on each of the battles. The Buffalo main cleaned up with seven wins on the ten fights and amassed the main stake and $400 on the side bets besides other pickings.

Bombay papers tell a good story of how a ram was too much for a tiger. A Shikari, or hunter, had tied a sturdy ram to a tree in the jungle as bait for a man-killing tiger. The ram bleated, and the tiger sprang at its victim. Before a shot could be fired, the ram sprang at the great cat and used its horns. The tiger, astonished, turned tail and fled. Some of the local political officeholders, confident in strength sprang on the Tory candidates last election and got what the ram gave the tiger.

SIXTY MILLIONS ON RAILWAYS.

The Winnipeg Free Press tells us that during the coming summer in Canada's four western Provinces there are to be built 3,000 miles of railway at an approximate cost of $60,000,000. The work will require about 60,000 men, and it is feared that there will be no little difficulty in securing enough men to carry out this great railway programme. It is estimated that at least 35,000 will have to be brought for this purpose from Great Britain and Europe. It seems unlikely that the programme can be carried out in its entirety because of this lack of workmen, but the fact that the plans have been laid and the money provided for such a gigantic programme of railway construction may give strangers some hint of the immenseness of our territory and the extraordinary rapid character of the growth of what is well termed, "the Great West." The proposal to spend $60,000,000 in one year within the limits of four Provinces whose combined population does not exceed 2,000,000 souls is significant of much.

ILLEGAL FISHERS FINED

Heavy Penalties for Catching and Trying to Dispose of Bass and Lunge—Three Men Caught.

Messrs. Carson and Watt, Fishery and Game Inspectors, on the evening of February 15th, caught three men by the name of Herron, near Jackson Park with twenty-four maskinonge and a baker's dozen of bass. The inspectors have heard of considerable illicit fishing of late, but the guilty parties have been slippery enough in their operations to elude them. This practice of catching and selling game fish out of season is one for which severe punishment will be meted out. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the defendants and on their behalf pleaded guilty to seven charges which were pressed by the inspectors. For Walter Herron he answered to five of the seven and for the other two one apiece.

The Chief Game Warden wanted an example made of these men. To each charge the Magistrate imposed a fine of $10. Walter Herron therefore thus had to pay $50 and costs, while each of the other men were assessed $10 and costs.

The Herrons live on an island in Chemong Lake.

The Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club presented a handsomely engraved napkin ring with the crest of the Belmont Club, in whose rooms the presentation was made, to Mr. G. E. Clarke. Mr. Clark is leaving the city.

AN EXCITING PRESENT-DAY ROMANCE

—BY—

WEATHERBY CHESNEY

Supplied Exclusively in Canada by The British & Colonial Press Service, Limited.

"There is no one working near the Dripping Well," said Scarborough. "You go down, Scott, and find out in the village if they have been here today. Neither of the pair knows you, so even if they are there now, and see you, possibly they won't think you are after them. We will wait for you here."

Scott went off down the rugged path which led to the lower ground, and when he was out of earshot, Scarborough said to Elsa:—

"Would you like to read my uncle's letter for yourself?"

"No," she said. "You have told me what he says."

"Most of it," said Scarborough, "but not all. He says that if there is love, nothing else matters. You said the same thing yourself this morning."

Elsa did not answer, and presently Scarborough asked in a low voice:—

"Elsa, is there love?"

"Yes."

The answer was lower than a whisper, hardly more than a movement of the lips; but she had turned her face to him, and was looking into his eyes. He heard it.

"My darling!" he whispered, and bent towards her to take her in his arms. But even now she drew back from him.

"It is true that I love you, Horace," she said, "but—"

"But nothing else matters, dear! You said so yourself."

She shook her head, saying softly:—

"There is one thing that matters—disgrace."

"It will not come near you,' he cried. "You are not disgraced. The crimes of others do not touch you."

"The crime was my father's," she answered steadily.

"But not yours!"

"Not mine, but the disgrace of it must be mine. And my mother is committing the crime over again now, perhaps has already committed it. My name is dishonored, and I should dishonor yours if I took it."

Scarborough took three steps away from her, and then turned, and before she knew what he was going to do she was in his arms, and his kisses were on her lips.

"You love me," he said passionately; "you have confessed it! Do you think that after hearing you say that I will take any answer from you but 'yes?'"

She did not resist. She had not expected his outburst, but she loved him for it the more. She returned his kiss, and was content. [illegible] up into his face, and asked:—

"Horace, do you really mean that [illegible] matters except love—nothing—not even disgrace? You say so now, but will you say so always?"

"Always, sweetheart."

She nestled closer to him, saying softly:

"Then tell me again that you love me, and in listening to you I will try to forget the rest."

He told her, and told her again, and it seemed that she would never tire of hearing the words, or he of saying them. They forgot all about Scott and his errand to the Blue Lake; for they were living through the supreme moment of existence, the moment when the first kiss has been given and returned, when Love has put the old question, and has been answered by a whispered 'Yes.'

But presently Scarborough jumped to his feet with an exclamation.

"Scott is signalling something with a glass!"

Down in the valley a point of light was flashing against the setting sun. Scott had a piece of broken mirror in his hand, and was using it as a heliograph, winking a message to them in the long and short flashes of the Morse code.

"What does he say?" asked Elsa.

"'Are you asleep up there?'" Scarborough read the message to her. "'Mrs. Carrington is in one of the houses, but Gillies has gone.'"

He took out his handkerchief, and waving it like a flag, signalled back by the same code "O.K.," the telegraphist's sign that the message has been read and understood.

"I'm going down," he said to Elsa. "Will you come or stay here?"

"I will come, of course. Together in all things now, Horace!" she said with a happy smile.

They clambered down the rough path hand in hand, and Scott met them at the bottom.

"Hullo," he said with a grin, "you look uncommonly cheerful, Scarborough! Anything happened? Been taking the prescription Uncle Croesus sent you? He was in rather a bad way, you know, Miss Carrington, and so he cabled to England for advice. Glad to see it has done him good!"

"This," said Scarborough, turning to Elsa with a laugh, "is my fellow cableman's uncouth way of congratulating me on winning the sweetest girl in the world for my wife. I hope you gather that, Elsa! Now, Scott, what about Mrs. Carrington?"

"She's at a little venta in the village. I think there has been trouble."

"Have you seen her?"

"No, but I saw a dress hanging on a line to dry, which didn't look like a native garment, and I asked a man whether anyone had been upset on the lake. He said that an English Senhor and Senhora had gone out in a boat, and that the Senhora had been found on the shore later, dripping wet and unconscious. She was at the venta now, but the Senhor had gone. I didn't wait to hear more, but telegraphed with a bit of glass to you. Better go to the venta, hadn't we?"

They went to the little inn, and found Mrs. Carrington sitting in a rough wooden rocking chair, clothed grotesquely in country garments which she had borrowed from the padrona, and with a white bandage wrapped about her head. There was a hot flush on her cheeks, she looked very ill, but she received them with a laugh.

"You are too late," she cried mockingly; "but of course I am glad to see you. Is Our Mr. Montague with you? Charming man! I was sorry to have to part with him so rudely this morning."

"Mother, are you hurt?" asked Elsa anxiously.

"Don't be silly, child. Of course I am hurt," was the ungracious answer. "Do you suppose I wear this thing around my head as an ornament?"

"What has happened? And where is Gillies?" asked Scarborough.

"I haven't the faintest idea where Gillies is," said the widow, "and my knowledge of what happened is vague. The only thing I am sure about is that we had a difference of opinion in the boat, and that he struck me. I don't remember any more. But as I was afterwards found lying on the bank, wet to the skin, and with a bleeding cut on my head, I think the probability is that I fell out of the boat and struck my head against something on the way. He seems to have taken the trouble to pull me out of the water; which is surprising, because he was in a great hurry."

"Had you found the diamonds?"

"What else should we quarrel about?" asked the widow, laughing again. "My husband's plan was very plain, after one knew the spot to which it referred; and Gillies showed great intelligence in guessing the meaning of those words, 'Blue . . . N. drip,' which I learned from you last night. Our difference of opinion occurred on the question as to who should have the custody of the stones until the thirty per cent. commission could be paid. I stuck up for my rights in the matter, but he seems to have carried his point. He has disappeared, and he has taken his thirty per cent. with him!"

"And your seventy per cent.?" asked Scarborough.

"Yes, that has gone, too. Disappointing, isnt it?"

Scarborough turned to Scott.

"Take Miss Carrington back to the Casa Davis," he said. "I shall go and join Phil by the boat. The man must not be allowed to get away."

"Mr. Scott can go with you," said Elsa.

"But you can't ride back alone. It will be dark in an hour," Scarborough objected.

"I shall stay here. I think my mother is ill."

Mrs. Carrington looked at her daughter with a curious surprise.

"You are a strange child, Elsa," she said. "I have not the slightest claim on your affection, or even on your services now; and I warn you that I don't propose, by any sudden repentance or reformation, to try to establish that claim. Still, I admit that I shall be glad to have you. My head is buzzing badly, and I think I am feverish. At my years a woman can't finish an exciting day by tumbling into a lake and being left unconscious on the shore to [illegible] haps it is nothing worse than a chill; but if I hadn't felt really ill, you wouldn't have found me here. I should have been off in pursuit of my vanished seventy per cent. You will let [illegible]"

"Yes," said Scarborough. "And meanwhile I will try to recover the seventy per cent., and the thirty per cent. with it!"

"Quite so. But not for me. You needn't smile, young man; I fully recognize that for the present I am defeated. Elsa, if you will help me, I will go to bed, in the store-room of yams and maize, which is the best guest-chamber which this inn affords. What a handicap it is to be old, and a woman! Good night, gentlemen. It may surprise you to learn that I wish you success. I grieve for the loss of my seventy per cent., but I should grieve more if I thought that Gillies had got away safe with his thirty!"

Two hours later Scarborough and Scott were standing on the sea-shore with Varney, looking out over the water towards the Ring-Rock. Darkness had fallen, but a bright moon sent long quivering flashes from the swell of the water, and shone upon a curious white cloud which lay upon the sea about half a mile out.

"It is the new islet which Davis spoke of," said Varney. "That cloud of steam has been rising continuously from it all the time that I have been here, and if you put your hand in the water, you will feel how warm it is."

"There is something black out there beyond," said Scott.

"Yes, it's a schooner. She has been there or thereabouts for the last three hours, but she doesn't show any lights. Gillies' boat is lying at the back of the headland there."

"No, it isn't!" exclaimed Scarborough, suddenly. "It has just put out to sea, and is making for the schooner! Come on!"

They ran Elsa's boat into the water and jumped aboard. Scarborough and Varney took the oars, and Scott steered. There was no wind for sailing, and Gillies' boat had only a single occupant. With two oars against his two sculls they should be able to catch him before he reached the orange schooner.

Presently Scott shouted:—

"He is making straight for the cloud of steam, and the steamer is standing in towards him!"

"Then follow him! He hopes to dodge us in the mist."

A minute later Scott stood up with a yell.

"Hold her hard! For heaven's sake, stop her! He's done for!"

There was a dull roar from the sea ahead. A cloud of steam shot hissing into the air, and a heavy wave rolled towards them. They held the nose of the boat to meet it as it came, and rode over it in safety. But the water which came overboard from the wave's crest was hot—hot enough to scald where it splashed upon them!

Their boat rocked in the heavy broken swell, which followed, and a warm steam closed around them and shut out the stars.

"A submarine eruption!" said Scott, in an awed voice. "It rose right under him. He's gone!"

CHAPTER XXVII.

Bumpers to the Brides!

"It was a horrible sight, sir," said Val B. Montague, with a shudder. "You may be thankful you were not there to see. The man had been boiled—absolutely and literally boiled! And his flesh—ugh!"

"It was an awful death," said Scott. "I witnessed it, you know. Horace had promised that I should be in at the death, but we did not think that the words would be interpreted in so literal a sense."

"I understand that your own escape was a narrow one."

IN THE SCIENTIFIC WORLD

AERONAUTIC INVENTIONS

Many Patents Have Been Granted for Aerial Improvements.

Aerial and marine navigation, while in most respects totally unlike, are yet in certain particulars closely analogous, and this is perhaps most clearly observed in considering the smaller auxiliary devices relating to these arts. Although aerial navigation, so far as heavier than air machines is concerned, has only recently been accomplished, the art in a broad sense has been, nevertheless, the subject of patent applications for many years, and a consideration of these patents indicates that not only has inventive genius been active along broad lines of development, but that it has been busily engaged in the perfection of details of construction which now that so great interest has been aroused in the practical side of the art, may be found of great value.

While the first marine anchors were probably crude affairs, consisting of a rock or crooked branch, the art of aerial navigation did not arise until long after marine anchors had reached a fairly high state of development and aeronautical inventors were thus able to confine their attention largely to the adaptation of these marine anchors to aerial use. Among the first patents granted in America for an aeronautical device is that to Mr. Bell, dated March 26th, 1850 which among other details shows a water anchor or drag, clearly adapted from marine use, and which consists of an umbrella-like structure supported upon a rod, the rod being provided with ropes at its opposite ends. It is evident from the construction that, if the device be immersed in water and attached to the flying machine by the rope being slack, the umbrella structure will remain closed and offer little resistance to travel through the water, while if one rope be pulled taut and rope be slackened, the pressure of the water will open out the umbrella device, thus presenting a large surface to the water and acting as a very effective drag or water anchor. Similar in type, but adapted for land use, is the device shown in the British patent to Alexander [illegible], 1898, in which a supporting rod similar to that of Bell's device is provided, but instead of the umbrella structure of the latter, the rod carries a series of backwardly projecting prongs or claws, which, when the rod is towed by one or the other of its ropes, respectively, slide easily over the surface of the ground, or engage with the same and act as a positive anchoring means.

Although there is a difference of the various universities and their graduates there is a similarity between all universities in spirit. Learning is not for the money that is in it, but that we may know and learn the minds of the great ones who have gone. The student is thinking of getting at the heart of the subjects of research. Education is not to enable one to fight (for money) his neighbor, but to understand and help him. Canadian colleges are blessed for the democratic spirit that pervades them, like the universities of Scotland. The universities of England are for the classes, not the masses. Queen's appeal to all classes of the community. In College days one sees things and dream dreams of purpose to be accomplished in life. The young man who was going into law, medicine, the ministry or business, whilst at college, thought of the good he might accomplish, not the money he might make. There are greater services a student can render his Alma Mater than giving her money; he can live up to her teachings. Canada is growing rich at a rate she can hardly realize. Education is asserting itself in every stage of life, whether professional or business. Character is the real element of greatness.

The speaker devoted some time deploring the difference between rich and poor, that is between the classes and the masses. The University can link these together more than by any other means. Everyone should try to bind together the various classes of society. In public life we all regret the corruption of election time. He would always like to have the former students return to Queens. More accommodation is needed at Queens. This he mentioned so that any of the millionaires around the table could contribute. No form of benefaction, except hospitals, gives as good return.

Mr. Mowat in a short, but well worded speech, thanked Principal Gordon for the excellent and interesting address he had given. The meeting then informally adjourned.

A PERSISTENT THIEF

Lindsay Police Capture Recently Released Convict Who Admitted Robbing Several Places There.

Lindsay has had a real excitement, and a yard wide thief. It seems that early Wednesday morning, just as the cocks of the town cleared their throats after giving the midnight crow, Constable Short met John Ferguson, of Harrington, Quebec, Co. on Kent street.

He interrogated the stranger and found that he had got off a late train to see some friends. He was on his way to Brockville. The officer told him that he could not roam the streets and took him to the Benson House, where he secured a room. Ferguson, after leaving the hotel in the morning, visited several residences and business places, and actually tried to open a safe or two. He visited St. Mary's church with a view to extracting the money from the poor box, but was frightened off by some children.

About 3 o'clock in the afternoon, he turned up in front of Fanning's repository just as the proprietor was driving away. Mr. Fanning asked him who he wanted to see. He replied that he wanted to see the proprietor about a team of horses.

When Mr. Fanning was out of sight Ferguson entered his residence. Miss Fanning heard someone walking around, and concluded that it was one of the members of the family. Later on, Miss Fanning while sitting in the kitchen heard footsteps again and was surprised to see a man coming out of her bedroom. He said he was "just looking round for the boss."

Ferguson then made his exit, and Miss Fanning found some jewelry missing as well as a small purse containing some change. Chief Chilton found traces in the melted snow. A search was immediately instituted, Mr. Fanning assisting with horse and cutter.

Shortly after five o'clock a young man employed at Fanning's Repository went in search of Ferguson. He found the man in a bar drinking with a companion. Special officer McGill was notified and spoke with the crook. The Chief then arrested Ferguson, who was identified at Fanning's. The missing articles were found in his pockets. He admitted having just been liberated from Manitoba Penitentiary. He was remanded for trial.

PUBLIC OPINION

wixt Christ and His Church, and we earnestly insist upon the binding nature of the divine words: "Those whom God hath joined together let no man put asunder."

We also respect the reasonable and righteous desire of the Roman Church to safeguard her own children by securing the publicity of their marriage by a priest to whom the contracting parties are known, and we might well as a matter of Christian fair-play, not interfere to prevent this laudable desire being carried into effect. We ought on both sides to work honorably together to prevent hasty and clandestine marriages, which are so frequently the cause of life-long sorrow.

Nevertheless, having gladly conceded all this, we are constrained to protest unceasingly against the following admitted encroachments of the Church of Rome upon our inherent rights and liberties as British subjects.

1. The Roman Church claims the power to annul marriage consummated between two Roman Catholics by a Protestant Minister acting under a license from the Crown and to brand this British legally married woman as unclean, and her child as a bastard. Divorce is horrible, but this violation of a lawful marriage, because of an ecclesiastical impediment is much more horrible. Divorce is granted for adultery, which destroys wedlock, but an ecclesiastical irregularity can never in the sight of God, justify the wrecking of a home.

2. The Roman Church boasts that no marriage between a Roman Catholic and a Protestant has ever been declared invalid by the law of the Province of Quebec. It is well. Yet the Roman Church claims and exercises the right to invade such a home and to tell such a lawfully wedded wife that she is a harlot and that her children are illegitimate, because being a Roman Catholic, she has not complied with the Roman canon law. This is not a right, it is a monstrous abuse of privilege, which will never be endured by a free people.

3. The Roman Church takes the ground that her claims are divine. In other words that our Lord Jesus Christ supports her in the above mentioned fundamental injustice. The mere suggestion carries with it its own swift condemnation.

In conclusion let me pay a just tribute to the glorious manhood and independence of our French Roman Catholic fellow-citizen, Judge Charbonneau. His noble and dispassionate judgment will go down to posterity as a monument of British liberty. We can only trust that it will be confirmed by the highest tribunal, and become the established law of Canada. His claim and stately utterance obliterates all racial and ecclesiastical differences, and makes us one national family, bound to the Crown in truest loyalty through the unfettered enjoyment of the fullest civil and religious liberty.

RICHESON BUT A SHADOW OF HIS FORMER SELF

Boston, Mass., Feb. 29.—Clarence V. T. Richeson, the condemned murderer, is rapidly becoming but a shadow of his former self, according to the officers of the Charles street jail. Practically all of the guards who came in contact with him are convinced that he is steadily losing his mind, describing his condition as the worst form of melancholia.

SLEEPS LITTLE.

Though every possible precaution is being taken by Sheriff Quinn against physical or mental disability of his charge the officers are beginning to doubt if Richeson will ever live to see the electric chair. His longest period of rest in sleep is seldom as long as one hour, and he has very few of these.

Richeson started in as a great eater, but he has now reached the point where the choicest dishes scarcely tempt him to break his fast. The constant pacing back and forth in his cell that characterized the first part of his stay in jail is giving place to a moving about from bed to chair never staying in either place for more than a few minutes at a time.

MRS. PANKHURST LED THE WOMEN

ONE Hundred and Fifteen Arrested---Disturbance Was Widespread

London, Mar. 2.—London last evening had another taste of the determination of the suffragettes to force matters owing to the Government's refusal to bring up a Woman Suffrage Bill in Parliament.

The women held a mass meeting at their headquarters, and then descended to the Fashionable West End, where they proceeded to break the windows of the large department stores. The police were taken completely unawares by the onslaught of the women, and before they were able to muster their forces and restrain them the streets were covered with shattered plate glass that once had been the show windows of stores.

WINDOW BREAKING TOUR.

It was a window breaking expedition solely, and a thoroughly organized one. Hundreds of windows in many of the most famous shops of the world and in several of the Government offices and clubs were wrecked by the Suffragettes. The damage done will aggregate many thousands of pounds. The losses, however, will not all fall upon the shopkeepers, as many of the show windows, especially the costly ones, were covered by insurance against breakage.

115 ARRESTED.

One hundred and fifteen women were dragged to the police stations by the police or excited or indignant merchants. Many others, however, escaped. All those arrested were released during the course of the evening on bail, coupled with promises that they would refrain from further activities in window wrecking.

QUEEN MOTHER HAS RELAPSE

The King and Two Physicians Hastily Summoned to Marlborough House

New York, Mar. 2.—A London cable to-day says:

It is reported to-day that Queen Alexandra, who is suffering from influenza, has had a sudden relapse and is in a serious condition. Two physicians and the King were summoned.

Shortly afterward a Royal carriage left Buckingham Palace and was driven to Marlborough House, the gate of which remained open fot a quarter of an hour.

MONTREAL'S MILLIONAIRES.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—In the report you had a few days ago concerning the millionaires of Montreal, you omitted Mr. M. Vineberg from your millionaire list. On a recount you will find that there are over 100 millionaires in that city, which is pretty good for a little place like Montreal. Why not let us hear from Toronto and some of the western towns where they make millionaires over night as a result of the real estate orgy?

—Another Reader.

A FARMER SPEAKS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Your correspondents must have very vague ideas of how butter and eggs are produced. They had better purchase farms and demonstrate to the public how they can feed, and raise stock, have them properly cared for, have them kept in a sanitary condition, and sell butter at 15c per lb., and eggs at the same rate. Why not purchase a supply of butter and eggs when they are a reasonable price? Will you kindly publish these remarks as your valuable paper has a large circulation in country and city, and do your utmost to further the interests of the farmer, as the majority of Peterborough's citizens grew up on the farm.

PARENTS SHOULD WATCH GIRLS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Is it not a pity to see the number of girls, who are just budding in to womanhood, idling about the streets, particularly George Street, at 11 o'clock at night sometimes in company with young men and other times flippantly jesting and flirting. There seems a strong opinion amongst those who realize the responsibilities of parenthood or guardianship, that home is the place for the young after a reasonable hour.

Should harm come to such girls the blame is more to be attached to careless parents, then to girls at "the silly age" who think more of fun than of the responsibilities of life.

GOOD LIQUOR GOES TO DAVY JONES LOCKER

Yo! Ho! Ho! and a bottle of rum. So sings Treasurer Island's pirate. The British steamship Saint Ronald, arrived yesterday from South America. Saints and shrines and rum are hardly a conventional mixture, but the South American freighter brought them all. The ship under command of Capt. Shrine, got into a hurricane off the Delaware capes and 600 gallons of rum in the after hold, with Old Boreas as the mixer, were turned into a monster bilgewater in short order. The rum was in 12 casks of 50 gallons each, and when the freighter started to do acrobatic stunts, the casks scrambled their contents among 3000 tons of wool, during the blow. For three hours the crew at the risk of their lives, battled with a threshing boom before it was again secured. The gale lasted for three days. When the freighter arrived and the news of her loss spread along the waterfront volunteer statisticians figured that 57,600 good drnks of Old West India rum was circulating in Davy Jones' locker.

ONE OF A GANG OF BANDITS SLAIN IN RUNNING BATTLE WITH CITIZENS

Yeggmen Fail in Their Attempt to Loot the Royal Bank at Montreal West and Four Narrowly Escape With Their Lives

Montreal, Mar. 2.—Five burglars broke into a branch of the Royal Bank of Montreal West, the junction of the Canadian Pacific Railway five miles west of the city, at three o'clock this morning, and in a running fight between citizens and robbers, one of the latter was shot dead. The other four escaped. The robbers secured nothing.

The fight at the end developed into a regular revolver battle between the burglars and the men of the town, who turned out in large numbers at the sound of the firing. Four men managed to get away across country on snow shoes and though a thorough search of the whole countryside was made, they seemed to have made a complete escape.

APPARENTLY AMATEURS

The body of the dead man was deposited in the Montreal Morgue. It was carefully examined by the police but nothing that would lead to identification was discovered.

In the pockets were thirty cartridges, a looking glass with a girl's photograph on the back, and a comb but no papers.

Chief Carpenter, of the local Detective force, thinks the thieves were young at the game, as they were not supplied with very up-to-date safe-blowing apparatus.

BURGLARS MADE A NOISE.

Attention was drawn to the yeggmen by the noise made grinding a hole in the safe in which to place nitro-glycerine. The watchman at the Montreal West station of the Canadian Pacific across the street heard the noise as he was returning to the station after doing his rounds of the yards. To reach the telephone in the depot he had to pass the watch which the safe-cracker had placed outside the bank. This he safely accomplished by crawling one hundred feet through the snow.

He called up the Chief of the Vigilance Committee of the town, J. J. Kirkpatrick.

ATTACKED THE ROBBER.

A son of the Chief, E. Kirkpatrick, was the first to reach the scene. With revolver in hand he approached the bank and called upon the guard to surrender.

The yeggman showed that he would offer no resistance, but when Kirkpatrick got within a few feet of him he fired almost point blank at Kirkpatrick's chest, the bullet, however, only piercing his coat. Kirkpatriev, in stepping back, tripped and fell, and before he could rise the guard had jumped upon him and had taken away his gun.

While the remainder of the men were getting out of the bank J. J. Kirkpatrick came up and opened fire. The yeggmen stopped in the get-away to engage him and for a few moments he was a living target with bullets striking the ground all around him.

Other men appearing, the thieves ran off, with both the Kirkpatricks in hot pursuit. The father caught up with one of the runaways and the two stood and fought out a duel, the chief of the vigilance committee finally shooting the yeggman in the side killing him.

DYNAMITE ATTACHED TO LAWRENCE CAR

Philadelphia, Pa., Mar. 2.—Enough dynamite to blow th the city of Lawrence off the map was found last Saturday attached to the trucks of a freight car which passed through Lawrence last Thursday and arrived here loaded with paper consigned to the Garrett-Buchanan Company, at 18 South Sixth Street. It is believed here that the dynamite was attached to the car trucks at Lawrence for the purpose of blowing up the entire freight train, in which there were thirty cars of woolen goods consigned to the American Woolen Company, the corporation against which the strikers are making their fight. Only the fact that persons attaching the dynamite to the truck made a miscalculation prevented a catastrophe and possible the loss of numerous lives.

ROBBED OF $100,000

Tampa, Fla., Mar. 2.—Declaring he lost or had been robbed of $184,000 which he had drawn from a bank in Savanah, Mo., J. E. Feseman, said to be a prominent merchant of that place was found here to-day, dazed and apparently unable to recall what had happened to him. He says he started from his home to go to Hot Springs, Ark., and that he fell or was slugged in Kansas City and that he knows nothing of what happened since that time.

SERIOUS CHARGE AGAINST AGENT OF CHILDREN'S AID

Young Girl Tells Shocking Story of a Trip From Waubashene With Official Working Under Supt. Kelso

Toronto, Mar. 2.—Charged with committing an improper assault upon 15-year-old Katie Woods, a ward of the Children's Aid Society, working under Superintendent of Neglected Children Kelso, Alfred Hunter was arraigned in the police court yesterday morning, and remanded a week without bail.

The girl's story is a shocking one. She says that Hunter went to Waubashene to bring her to a home in Avenue road, Toronto. They took the 6.20 train to the city on Friday. At Allandale, Hunter got out, and when he came back his breath smelled of whiskey. When they got off at Toronto, they took a street car and went to the C.P.R. Hotel in North Yonge street. There they went up stairs and Hunter was gone a few moments.

They went out and Hunter said they would walk. They went to the Lennox Hotel, 831 Yonge street, and there they entered and went upstairs. They met a maid, and asked if they might sit in the parlor. They sat there and Hunter went down and brought up a glass of wine which she gave the girl and she drank it.

She said that Hunter sat down beside her, put his arms around her and kissed her and opened an improper conversation. He then got up and went down for another glass of wine, which she refused to drink.

He then asked her if she wanted a room, but she said she did not. He took hold of her by the arm and pulled her over to a bedroom door which was open. He held her with his arm around her neck and again kissed her.

A woman came out of another room and Hunter let the girl go. Then a man, the proprietor, came and asked her what the man wanted to do to her. She told him that it was a man who was taking her to a home and the police were sent for and Hunter was arrested.

LOSS OF $75,000 IN BAD WINGHAM BLAZE

Wingham, Mar. 2.—Fire, which broke out shortly after two o'clock this morning, and raged for five hours completely swapted away the Vanstone business block, situated in the heart of Wingham and caused a loss estimated at $75,000. The fire was discovered in Knox's jewelry store, and although the brigade turned out quickly the flames had such a hold on the building that little could be done, and they spread rapidly to King's big dry goods store, Smythe's hardware store and the legal offices of W. Vanstone. A fire wall at this end checked the blaze. Half a dozen fire en had a close call when the front wall crashed out into the road. The loss is practically covered by insurance, and the origin of the fire is not known.

ALLEGED MURDERERS ARRESTED IN MAINE

Lewiston, Me., Mar. 2.—The murder of an unidentified man at Bay St. Paul, Que., about 50 miles northeast of Quebec City, is charged against Onofrio Rossi and his wife, who were arrested here yesterday. The alleged murder occurred on October 20, last, in a lumber camp. Rossi and his wife fled and were trailed through eastern Canada and Maine by a Canadian Government detective before they were located here. Rossi was arrested in a barber shop in which he found employment, and the woman was found in the tenement which they occupied.

Rossi, alias Montivano, alias Salvatore Daniels, refused to discuss the charge against him. His wife, also known as Wary Montivano, is said to be an American woman, whose maiden name was Cochrane. She admitted to the police that she and her husband had trouble with an unknown man at Bay St. Paul.

The couple made no objection to going back to Canada.

WELSH MINE OWNERS PLAN FOR LONG SIEGE

Iron Works and Tin Plate Industries, Employing Many Thousands, Have Closed Down

London, Mar. 2.—The great ports of the United Kingdom particularly those situated in Wales from which coal is shipped to every part of the world and the centres of the iron and steel industries have naturally been the first to feel the effects of the strike of over 1,000,000 coal miners in England, Scotland and Wales.

Many iron works in various districts were closed this morning and at Swansea and elsewhere the docks have come practically to a standstill. No vessels are arriving and the docks and workmen employed in the local industries have been thrown out of work. Great crowds of these men gathered together in the streets discussing the dispute.

NO DISTURBANCES YET.

Thus far there have been no disturbances anywhere. In South Wales, however, the mine owners are preparing for the worst. They have had walls built round the mines and have laid in great stores of provisions in anticipation of a long seige.

The railroad and street car services in many cities have been still further curtailed to-day.

Only two small non-union mines in the entire country are still at work. One of these is in North Wales and the other near Berwick on the Scottish border.

The tin plate work at Wales are closing down rapidly owing to lack of coal. Six hundred mills will be idle within a few days and 40,000 men who are employed there will be thrown out of work.

John Williams, Labor member of Parliament for the Gower Division of Glamorganshire, South Wales, and general secretary of the Amalgamated Society of South Wales Colliery Workers, told the Welsh miners at a meeting to-day that he expects a settlement of the strike to be reached by Thursday next on lines satisfactory to both men and the employers.

The prices of food are rising rapidly everywhere.

PATROLMAN SHOT DEAD NEGROES PAY PENALTY

Shreveport, La., Mar. 2.—Patrolman Porter Sanders, of Shreveport Police Department, was shot to death here last night by several negroes while attempting to arrest one of their number, Jack Campbell.

Within an hour two unidentified negroes answering the general description of Sander's slayers, were killed by policemen when the negroes resisted arrest.

THE WEATHER.

FATHER CAUSED DEATH OF CHILD

The Alleged Crime Dates Back to 1909 and Came to Light at Hull To-day

Ottawa, Mar. 2.—A story of alleged cruelty to a seven-year-old child was brought to light at Hull yesterday when Sheriff Wright laid a charge of murder against Alfred Gossett, a farmer of Marchand Township Que., about ten miles from Hull, who is at present serving a three months' sentence in Hull jail for wife beating.

Gossett is charged with inflicting injuries to his seven year-old daughter, Marcel, which eventually terminated in her death. The alleged crime dates back to the spring of 1909, and failed to come to light, because according to the story related by the mother of the child, her husband had threatened to "do away with her," if she ever told anyone of what he had done. Since her husband's incarceration for beating her the woman has been residing with two brothers in Montreal, to whom she told the story of the child's death.

They communicated with the Hull authorities and Sheriff Wright went to Montreal and heard her story. The charge of murder followed immediately.

According to Mrs. Gossett, the father became incensed for some trivial cause at the little one and picking it up by the legs hurled it across the room. A wound was caused where the girl's head came in contact with the wall. This was followed by an abscess and after lingering for many months she died. The physician who attended her was told the injury was accidental and pronounced death as due to natural causes.

Gossett appears for preliminary hearing on Monday.

MISSIONARIES SLAUGHTERED

Many Were Killed According to Report From Pao Ting Fu

Pekin, Mar. 2.—Many missionaries have been slaughtered by the mutineers in Pao Ting Fu, according to a report received here to-day. It is thought probable, however, in well informed circles, that only one or two have been killed, and it is believed that they were Roman Catholics.

BOY ROBS DRUNKEN MAN

Kingston, Mar. 2.—A Kingston 12-year-old lad has confessed to the police that he robbed a drunken man of $20 on Princess street in broad daylight. The man did not know he had lost the money, and the case would not have been revealed but for the fact that the boy's school teacher saw the lad flourishing money and reported it to the police. When questioned the lad confessed, returned the amount with the exception of four dollars and his parents will make good this. The man did not care to prosecute. He had $500 in his possession the day he was robbed.

BUIDERS' PROFIT with Bankers' Security

VANCOUVER 10 YEARS AGO

100,000 SHARES AT $1.00

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has been organized recently with an authorized capital of $500,000, to do a general building, real estate, and insurance business, and is actively engaged in Vancouver and Victoria—two most promising fields. The profits from building houses for cash and selling on instalments is well known, and will be one of the principal channels from which profits will be derived. BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its own building department and architect, and does its own construction. In addition to building houses, BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its real estate department, where it carries on a general real estate business, discounting agreements of Sale, subdividing and transacting a general insurance business.

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS LIMITED, is a new concern, having been in business less than two months in Vancouver, but is becoming well known as the Company without any promotion shares and with a strong board of directors, made up of well known Vancouver and Victoria business men.

Shareholders may conservatively look for a 10 per cent dividend the first year, increasing thereafter and a steady advance in the value of their shares caused by the substantial reserve it will always be the policy of the directors to build up.

Companies run on similar lines, notably the Los Angeles Investment Company' and "Home Builders," both of Los Angeles, have proved phenominally successful, the former, which has been in business some sixteen years, having accumulated assets of over $6,000,000, and paying 28 per cent. dividends; and the latter, which started business three years ago, with only $1,250 capital, has assets to-day of over $1,089,000, a surplus of over $308,000, is paying 17 per cent. dividends, and its $1.00 shares are selling at $2.30.

THE GREATEST MONEY-MAKERS

The Romance of the Great Coin Factory of England

Gold and silver and bronze.

Ever since the far-away days, when the Romans lorded it over Britain, Niagaras of coins have been pouring [illegible] where the grim, grey walls of the Tower rise. Coins in thousands of millions; coins oval and square and round.

Just a hundred years ago a handsome stone building arose on the site of a fourteenth century monastery, on Little Tower Hill—a building covering an area as large as that of the Tower itself—and to this spacious and splendid new home the Royal Mint was transferred.

Here there was room to move and breathe, and to introduce gradually those marvels of mechanism which make the British Mint one of the wonder-shows of the world. Gone are the "circus" horses, the "cow" which was used to raise protecting edges on the coins, the kitchen crucibles, and big-muscled laborers.

And their place has been taken by the most wonderful machinery the brain of man has evolved—machinery almost human in its intelligence, more than human in its meticulous accuracy.

A visit to the Royal Mint is more than education. It is a startling revelation—the sensation of a lifetime. The whirling belts, the clank and thunder of machiner, bewilder and deafen one; the miracles of some of the machines amaze one.

Briefly outlined, for the making of sovereigns the ingots of gold are melted and alloyed, and cast into small bars. The bars are flattened under rollers, from which they emerge in long yellow strips about an eighth of an inch thick.

Circular discs, or blanks, are then punched out of each strip, like so many dull yellow losenges—sovereigns in embryo. Round each golden blank other machines raise a protecting rim; and the faces are blanched and annealed before being taken to the coining-room, where they are fed into presses which, with one twenty-ton stroke, stamp both sides of each coin and mill the edge.

From each press the glittering stream of finished sovereigns pours at the rate of two a second—7,200 coins an hour!

Then comes the last stage of all—passing the crucial test of the weighing machines, of which there are fifty in the weighing-room. Each machine is fed with a constant succession of sovereigns from a tube.

Each coin, in its turn, drops on the balance, poises an instant, and, if it is a microscopic decimal of a grain too heavy or too light, is automatically dropped into a "heavy" or "light" drawer. Its fate is sealed; it must go back to the melting crucible, and go through all the processes once more.

All very simple in such brief telling, but so wonderful in the actual doing that many columns could not do justice to it. Such is some of the romance of the Royal Mint, which, during the last ten years, has worked its magic on 110 million pounds' worth of gold bullion, and which this year celebrates the centenary of its temple on Little Tower Hill.—Tit-Bits.

[illegible] TUBERCULOSIS

[illegible] Estimate is $100 [illegible] Family a Year

"Pr[illegible] disease, the greatest item in which is tubercul[illegible] and the other expenses which grow out of it, costs each family on this [illegible] at the minimum $100 a year." This is a verdict of a most thorough and cautious estimate by expert statisticians, and it errs, if anything, on the conservative side. It is a sentence, the nugget of the discourse, taken from an address on "Tuberculosis as a factor in the increased cost of living," delivered at Denver by Mr. Edward F. McSweeney, chairman of the board of trustees of the Boston Consumptives' Hospital. The guess that preventable disease has been a large share of the growing weight of living expenses is not a new one, but the thoroughness with which the proofs have been searched out by Mr. McSweeney is novel and convincing. The nations have searched and found five major causes of this increase, namely, waste, extravagance, armed peace, inefficiency and the burden of crime, pauperism, accident and disease. By the most cautious estimate the yearly money cost of tuberculosis alone in the United States is $622,512,904, and on the present ratio of deaths annually from this disease, as compared with the deaths from all other causes, 10,000,000 of people now living will eventually die of tuberculosis. The constructive part of Mr. McSweeney's discourse deals with the proof that the treatment of incipient cases is a failure, because returning to bad conditions, they relapse; and that the prevention of contagion from the advanced cases is where the resistance must be focussed. New York is following this lead, and it has now been recognised by Germany. The rigid medical inspection of school-children is one means of prevention and "we will solve the tuberculosis question when we settle the problems of child labor, city congestion, long hours and bad factory and housing conditions." This critic is emphatic that the crusade is not one primarily for physicians and charity workers: "This is essentially a business man's crusade, and should be led by the Chamber of Commerce."

A BIT OF STRATEGY

How the Quaker Succeeded in Getting His Money Back

A few years ago, when people were excited about a French invasion of our shores, a Quaker, residing at Epping, in Essex, being afraid, if such an event should take place, that he might lose his money, thought of the following stratagem to save it. He decided to hide $1,000 in Epping Forest, but for fear that he might die or be killed by the enemy he thought it would not be prudent to hide it without acquainting somebody. Accordingly, he fixed upon his neighbor, a smith, as a proper person to be entrusted with the secret.

They set out together, and chose a spot by the side of a large oak, where a hole was soon made and the money very carefully deposited; taking great care to cover it up with such exactness that no person travelling by chance that way might have any suspicion. They returned home. The next morning early the smith went and took the money away, not thinking the Quaker would so soon suspect his integrity. The Quaker, however, paid a visit to the spot where his beloved treasure was deposited, when, to his great surprise it was gone.

Suspicion immediately fell upon the smith, but, instead of accusing him, the Quaker thought of a stratagem to get his money back. He informed the smith he wished to add another $250. This had the desired effect, for the smith immediately went and replaced the $1,000, not only to prevent his neighbor from judging him to be the thief, but to get the other $250.

Away they both went together, and opening the hole, the Quaker, to his great joy, discovered his beloved treasure. He immediately fell into the following ejaculation:

"Ah, my friend, I find thee goest and comest; but for fear that thee shouldst go and never return, I'll e'en take thee home, for I think thee art as safe in my house as in Epping Forest."

Thus ended the matter, to the no small mortification of the smith.

SCHOOL FOR WATCHMAKERS

A Swiss Must be Fourteen Years of Age to Enter

The famous Swiss watch schools are said to be the most exacting industrial institutions in the world. In one of the most celebrated of these institutions in Geneva, for example, a boy must first of all be at least 14 years of age in order to enter. After being admitted, the student is introduced to a wood-turning lathe and put to work at turning tool handles. This lasts for several weeks, according to the beginner's aptitude, and is followed by exercises in filing and shaping screw-drivers and small tools. In this way he learns to make for himself a fairly complete set of tools. He next learns to make a large wooden pattern of a watch frame, perhaps a foot in diameter, and after learning how this frame is to be shaped, he is given a ready-cut one of brass of the ordinary size, in which he is taught to drill holes for the wheels and screws. Throughout this instruction the master stands over the pupil directing him with the greatest care. The pupil is next taught to finish the frame so that it will be ready to receive the wheels. He is then instructed how to make fine tools and to become expert in handling them. This completes the instruction in the first room, and the young watchmaker next passes to the department where he is taught to fit the stem-winding parts and to do fine cutting and filing by hand. Later on he learns to make the more complex watches which will strike the hour, minute, etc., and the other delicate mechanisms for which the Swiss are famous.—Weekly Telegraph.

PEARLS OF PRICE

The fact that the 116 pearls composing the necklace, audaciously stolen from a lady's neck in an Edinburgh street the other day, are valued at $32,500, might lead many people to look out hoarded heirlooms in the hope of obtaining big prices.

But unless kept in dry magnesia, pearls quickly deteriorate, and, of course, size and perfection of shape count for a great deal.

Artificial pearls can now be so perfectly produced, that only an expert can tell them from the real; and, still more remarkable, even experts have mistaken the real for the artificial.

Mr. Streeter, the famous Bond Street jeweller, once attended a sale where an antique diamond and pearl ornament, described as "paste," was offered. The bids were small, and he had no difficulty in buying it at $25. The diamonds were paste, but the pearls were real, and the lucky jeweller actually sold them for $2,500.

PERSIA'S PRICELESS PIPE

The Shah of Persia possesses, perhaps, the most valuable pipe in the world. It belonged to his uncle, who received it from his grandfather. It is the Persian official pipe, and is smoked only on State occasions.

It is set with rubies and diamonds, and is valued at $50,000. When the shah is not using it, it is kept in a glass case, and carefully guarded by a high court official, whose duties are as little onerous as those of a director of an arsenal.

The reason for keeping the pipe so closely guarded, and in a case, is that some years ago a Grand Vizier was surprised in the act of removing some of the stones with the point of his poignard. What happened to the Grand Vizier, we are not told.

HON. RICHARD McBRIDE

The Premier of the Pacific Province as Described by O'Connor

T. P. O'Connor, M.P., thus describes Hon. Richard McBride, Premier of British Columbia:

As my first impression there came the idea that there was something singularly appropriate in the man and the country he rules. Mr. McBride is massive. I should say he is over six feet high; he has shoulders so broad that even a professional athlete might envy them; a chest of great breadth and depth, and a physique altogether that is striking and imposing—I might say dominating. From any crowd of men, however big, this figure would stand forth in conspicuous and haunting relief; you would find it difficult to keep your eyes off him. And the face and head are as striking as the splendidly and broadly proportioned body. The face is massive but short and round. It is typically Irish in its features, but instead of the typically rubicund complexion of the men and women of the Emerald Isle, it has the pallor—healthy but pallid all the same—of those who live in the severer climate of the New World. The head is again massive and, surmounted by a mane of thick, snow-white hair, it makes even more striking the personal appearance. There is at first a curious resemblance to the head of Sir Wilfrid Laurier—the same complexion, the same massiveness of head, the same mane of white hair, but the resemblance is not as great when you examine the two men more closely. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has the long thin face of the typical Frenchman—indeed the Dominion Premier always looks to me as if he had walked out of portrait of the noblesse of France in the days before the Revolution. Mr. McBride has the short face, the massive head, and the thick hair of the Celt of the West. Analyzing still further the face and features of the figure of the great British Columbian, you see various contradictions with the impression of [illegible]. The mouth is small, the deep-set eyes are soft brown, the feet and hands are small—there are delicacy, sensitiveness, a certain artistic element in this big massive man as well as strength. And, above all, the dominating impression is of strength that is at the same time the simplicity, the geniality, and the comradeship of that true democratic sentiment you find in these new countries, where men all start from small beginnings before they reach to wealth and power.

HON. RICHARD McBRIDE

It is one of the secrets of Mr. McBride's unique hold over his people that he belongs to them in every nerve of his being. He was born in British Columbia, and though he went to the law school at Halifax, in Nova Scotia, to get his professional training, he has lived almost every hour of his life in his own province and among his own people. And he is never out of touch with them or with their outlook on things. Any day you can see him in Victoria, moving easily among the people, saluting every man he meets, for he knows them all; or seated in the vestibule in the beautiful Canadian Pacific Hotel over a cup of tea, talking easily and familiarly to everyone who comes to join his circle. He is the ruler with something of the Cadi in his methods and manners.

MORE ABOUT MEANNESS

In the ranks of those who have reduced meanness to a fine art, women are to be found as well as men.

A lady, with an income of several hundreds a year, exercised so stringent an oversight in her household, that only one match was allowed to the servant for lighting the kitchen fire in the morning. Personal application was necessary before a second could be obtained.

Another lady, a wealthy member of society was also persimoniously inclined.

One day she flashed into her milliner's, bringing with her a hat that had been altered a month previously, and had been worn since. She loudly demanded the attention of the manager, and inquired why it was that a different shade of trimming material had been used to that ordered.

It was a game of bluff, with the object of getting something for nothing.

Enterprising in her impudence was the young lady who walked into a banking office, examined the pens on the counter, and asked the cashier if he could let her have a clean one.

The cashier at once procured for her a new pen and nib. To his amazement, instead of dipping it in the ink well, she proceeded to skewer her hat on with it; then walked out with a brief "Thanks!"

J. R. Kerr, of Newton, Ont., is said to have purchased 5,158 muskrat skins in one day. They came from various sections between Kingston and Ottawa.

LAMENESS AND HORSE-SHOEING

Many Defects in Horses' Feet Can be Cured in the Blacksmith Shop

Dr. W. J. Taylor, a noted veterinarian, has made some interesting suggestions about horse shoeing. Many of the defects which cause lameness according to this experienced teacher, can be cured or relieved by proper shoeing. For corn, remove the pressure by cutting away the hoof at the point of contact with the corn, says Dr. Taylor, so as to relieve the pressure, and support the shoe if necessary by a half-bar. There are two kinds of founder, the true founder or the hoof founder, and the grain founder. The symptoms of these two are very much alike, but the former can be recognized by the fact that in this condition the hoof instead of being arched upward between the frog and the edge of the hoof bulges downward. This can be relieved by shoeing with a full-bar. The grain founder is due to feeding when the animal is too warm. For contracted heel, the shoe should be hinged at the toe, and provided with a thumb screw at the heel by which the tips of the shoe can be gradually pressed apart. For forging shorten the hoof at the toe, and put on an extra plate on the shoe at the toe, the effect of which will be to weight the hoof and so bring it to the ground a little sooner. Toe crack may be caused either from some injury to the hoof, in which case it cannot be cured, or it may be merely the result of lack of shoes. In the second case it can be cured and in either case it can be relieved. Cut away the hoof slightly just at the lower end of the crack to relieve the pressure, and hold the cracked edges together by a copper plate screwed on the outer surface of the hoof with short screws. Navicular disease is a disease of the coffin-joint above the hoof, and cannot be located by the finger as there is no external sore spot. The symptom is lameness when the horse is first taken from the stable a lameness which disappears temporarily when the horse has been driven for a time. This cannot be easily cured, but the lameness can be relieved by putting on what is called a double-rocker shoe, a shoe thicker in the middle that at either toe or heel. This distributes the pressure more evenly and relieves the shock more than a flat shoe. The hoof should be kept as soft as possible by an occasionall soaking, or by allowing the horse to stand on damp earth.

TREES VS. SILKWORMS

Many Valuable Varieties of Silk Obtained from Trees

A kind of vegetable silk is obtained from a tree attaining the size of an ordinary chestnut tree, which abounds in Paraguay. It can be woven into threads, but the chief use for it at present is for the stuffing of quilts and cushions, for which purpose it seems well adapted on account of its extreme lightness. This silk resembles a glossy down, but grows in balls about six inches long and about four and a half inches in diameter.

Near Stettin, in Germany, there is a manufactory that turns out skein silk made from wood pulp. It is said that no special kind of wood is needed to furnish the pulp. The latter, after undergoing a chemical treatment, is driven by hydraulic pressure through very fine tubes. The strands thus formed are, separately, hardly perceptible to the eye. Eighteen of them twisted together make a thread of silk. The silk is very soft and of a cream color. It is not as strong as genuine silk, but there is said to be a large demand for it abroad.

GERVAIS CREAM CHEESE

This dainty little cheese is made from a mixture of new milk and cream, the mixture being in the proportion of two parts of milk to one part of 22 per cent. cream. Take a quantity of this mixture, and bring to a temperature of 65 degrees F. Add rennet at the rate of 6½ drams per 100 pounds of the mixture, or enough to bring a coagulation in three hours. When the coagulum is firm enough, dip out into huckaback cloths placed over the bowls, with a long-handled culture dipper. Then tie up by the four corners and hang to drain. The cloths should be previously scalded, and used wet. After the cheese has been hanging up for a few hours, open out the cloths and scrape down the sides to aid the draining; repeat the scraping at intervals of a few hours, until the cheese is firm enough to mould. Salting is done by means of sprinkling fine dry salt over the cheese, and working in with a table knife or bone spatula, at the rate of one ounce of salt to every four pounds of cheese.

The moulds should be lined with clean white blotting paper, and placed on a scalded straw mat or cloth, and the cheese pressed in with a bone spatula or spoon. In the winter time, a few drops of color added to the milk and cream before renneting, will improve the color of the cheese.

MENDACIOUS WINDOWS

Chancellor Prescott, of Carlisle, is anxious that stained-glass windows should tell the truth, and not represent the pictorial fiction of artists. He granted a faculty for a window which is to be erected in St. Aidan's Church Carlisle, in memory of the late Bishop Ware, of Barrow-in-Furness, subject to an amended design being submitted. He did not think angels usually wore coats-of-arms, and one of them was represented clad in the coat-of-arms of the Dean and Chapter of Carlisle. Oswald, King of Northumbria, who died at the age of thirty-[illegible], was represented as an aged [illegible], and the artists in stained glass will now have to make him look more youthful.

BIG TREES

A Species in Australia Said to be Larger than in California

Not only does Australia dispute the claim of California to the possession of the highest trees in the world, but Mr. W. K. Harris writes an article in the "Lone Hand" with the object of showing that Australia has trees over 100 feet higher than the celebrated California "big trees."

Probably the majority of Australians are not aware (says the writer) that they can lay claim to possessing, in their eucalypti forests, not only the tallest trees, but the best hardwoods in the whole world.

These eucalypti trees possess many excellent qualities. Their timber is of great durability, strength and toughness. The eucalyptus is a genus of the trees of the natural order of Myrtaceae, mostly, if not all, indigenous to Australia and Tasmania. Australia has 400 species of the eucalyptus; or, as it is more popularly known, the "gum" tree. Its value has been ascribed to its antiseptic odors, and to its rapid growth (which sometimes exceeds ten feet per annum), and the consequent drainage of the soil through the enormous transpiration from the root surface.

The tallest species is to be found principally in Victoria. This species is a tree with tall white stem, smooth as a marble column, and generally without branches for 90 to 100 feet from the ground. It is singularly beautiful when seen in groves; for these have all the appearance of lofty pillared cathedrals. The average height is a little less than 300 feet. The south-western division of Victoria (Gippsland) has put forth the greatest claims to possessing the tallest giants. In this district a great number of trees measuring 300 feet have been found, while specimens of 400 feet are not uncommon, and individuals of over 400 feet are not rare.

Baron Mueller (formerly Government botanist of Victoria) is stated to have said that the gum trees attain a height of 500 feet; but the tallest tree even the Baron ever measured was a prostrate one on the Blacks' Spur, ten miles from Healsville, totalling 480 feet. This tree was 81 feet in girth near the root. Another, found in the same locality, was 415 feet high, with a circumference of 69 feet at the base of the stem. Mueller refers to this species as "the highest tree in the globe, surpassing the famous Californian Sequoin and Wellington pines." In 1880, Mr. G. W. Robinson, civil engineer, of Berwick (Victoria), in a journey from Gippsland to Mount Baw, measured a tree of 471 feet high. The heights of this specimen had previously been estimated at not less than 500 feet.

In the 'sixties Mueller measured a tree that a Mr. E. B. Heyne had discovered in the Dandenong, and this specimen was found to be 295 feet to first branch, and, to the point where it had broken off, another 70 feet; total, 365 feet. This was a splendid "columner vegetable," the trunk being perfectly straight.

The blue gum species is another of the world's giants, not a few specimens attaining a height of 375 feet. Since 1854 it has been successfully introduced into the south of Europe, Algeria, Egypt, Tahiti, New Caledonia, Natal, and India, and has been extensively planted in California; while along the Central Pacific Railway belts of this and other Australian trees have been formed to protect the line from snow drifts, and for a future supply of timber.

It has long been thought that California owns the world's tallest trees; but, while some are of gigantic dimensions, they do not come up to the Victorian natives. The Californians are noted not so much for their height as for their girth and diameter. The "Big Tree" of California occurs in groves or patches from lat. 36 degrees to 38 degrees, nowhere descending much below 4,000 feet in elevation, or rising above 7,000. There are eight or nine "groves" of these trees; and by far the largest is the one which extends along the tributaries of King's and Kaweah Rivers. The trees, however, are not grouped by themselves, but stand scattered among other species. The "Big Tree" is said to be the oldest of growing things on earth, with an age of 5,000 years. The average height is 275 feet, with a diameter of 28 feet, and a girth of 70 feet at six feet from the ground. The tallest gigantea ever discovered was found by actual measurement to be 340 feet high, or 140 feet shorter than the tallest tree found in Australia.—Weekly Telegraph.

"FOR THE BLIND"

A carpenter once hung a box outside his workshop with "For the blind" printed on it.

Several passers-by put money in it, and everything went smooth till, at the expiration of three weeks, a lady contributor who was passing noticed that the box was no longer hanging out, and so she queried—"Well, Mr. Carpenter, I see you have taken your box away."

"Yes," said Mr. Carpenter; "I got enough, thank you."

"Got enough?" asked the lady, in surprise.

"Yes," said Mr. Carpenter; "how do you like it?" as he pulled down the new blind on the workshop window.

THE REWARD OF CONSTANCY

The colonel of a regiment believed in a celibate army so far as possible, and disliked giving permission to marry.

One of his men came up for the desired permission and the colonel refused. Looking at the man's downcast face he so far relented as to say:

"If you are in the same mind this time next year come back, and ask me again."

In a year the soldier reappeared.

"Do you really still wish to marry?" asked the colonel.

"Yes, sir, very much."

"Well, well, take down his name," said the Colonel to the sergeant-major. "I never thought there was so much constancy in man or woman."

"Thank you, sir," replied the man, saluting, "but if you please, sir, it isn't the same woman."

THE FIGHT FOR THE POLE.

It was on Feb. 28, 1909, that Lieut. Shackleton, exhausted and almost famished, reached the end of his homeward journey over the ice barrier to within one hundred miles of the pole. It was not a jubilant homecoming, for they found no sign of the ship and no smoke or other evidence of life at the hut. When he departed on the southern journey he had left instructions that coal and provisions to support a party of seven men for a year should be landed in the event of the non-arrival of the exploring party by Feb. 25. It was now Feb. 28 and no ship was to be seen. Two of the four men who had formed the southern party had been left out on the barrier in a serious condition. The prospect of a year's weary wait for a relief party was not a pleasing one, but on the morning of March 1 the ship returned for one more look for Lieut. Shackleton and his comrades, and it was not long before they were once more on the Nimrod and safe among their friends.

Spurred on by the rivalry between Scott and Amundsen this last try for the south pole should have been made in quicker time, and it is reasonable to suppose that one or both of these expeditions are now at their winter quarters eager to flash to the world the story of British or Norwegian triumph in this dual race for polar honors.

THE CHANGE IN CHINA.

China for hundreds of years under the Manchu despotic dynasty has in an amazingly short time developed into a Republic, supplied with representative government, and that without any very great bloodshed or fighting. It looks as though for once the ancient government had properly gauged the public mind, when it issued its abdication in the historic, and somewhat pathetic terms: "From the preference of the people's hearts is the will of Heaven discernible. How could we oppose the desire of millions for the glory of one family!" Of course, the unexpected nearly always happens in China, and the immediate future may not be so clear as is now anticipated. But a strong man, Yuan-Shi-Kai, is now President, through the resignation of the patriotic Dr. Sun Yat Sen, and he has exhibited great diplomatic ability in dealing with his people so far. Probably matters could be in no more capable hands than his. It is greatly due to him that the world has not been shocked by any violence towards the royal family. The child Emperor, on the contrary, is to retain his title for the present, for which there are, perhaps, religious reasons, though this has not been suggested in the dispatches. He is also to be granted $4,000,000 (Mexican) a year, and will retain his staff of servants. Since he is but 5 years of age, he ought to get along very well on that, which will presumably be paid during good behaviour.

PROTECT MAPLE PRODUCTS.

A correspondent makes a strong appeal for Dominion legislation in the interest of the maple sugar industry, and we feel like backing him up as strongly as we know how. There is no other food product, be it a luxury or a necessity, that is so subject to fraud as maple products. All kinds of devices are put upon the market as so-called maple products, taking advantage of the average consumer's ignorance of what the real maple flavor is, to palm off something on him that is nothing but a poor substitute. So many and so varied is the list of spurious goods passed off as the real thing, that few consumers ever get pure unadulterated maple syrup, though they pay the full price for it. Important as such legislation would be in the interest of the consumer, it would be of far greater importance to the producer. Pure maple syrup is a distinctly Canadian product, and those who spend their time and money in producing so delicious and wholesome a food should be protected. The maple syrup producers are not asking that the purveyors of "make believe" syrups should be put out of business. They are only asking that all these "spurious" goods should be sold for what they are. If one producer has the genuine article let it be so labelled. If another puts on the market a brand that only has a small percentage of the real thing in it: let it be labelled accordingly and all others in like manner. It costs more to produce pure maple products than these half and half concoctions, and the producer in the former case should be protected.

A WASTER OF TIME.

But why look in a glass? There are members of sects in Holland living on the banks of the Zuyder Zee who consider the use of a looking-glass wrong. Lecky visited two villages where they were living in 1893 and described them as prosperous, with a curious air of refinement, and in their houses were china and silver ornaments and great Bibles with silver clasps. The neatness and daintiness of European nuns are proverbial, yet looking-glasses are prohibited in their convents. An English Protestant divine of the 17th century condemned the reflection of a woman's face: "To look in the glass was to make an image, to do it honor was idolatry."

Cobbett in his advice to a youth declared that a looking-glass is a piece of furniture worse than useless. "Looking at the face will not alter its shape or its color; and perhaps, of all wasted time, none is so foolishly wasted, as that which is employed in surveying one's own face." And Cobbett introduced this improving anecdote: "I once heard Sir John Sinclair ask Mr. Cochrane Johnstone whether he meant to have a son of his (then a little boy) taught Latin. 'No,' said Mr. Johnstone, 'but I mean to do something a great deal better for him.' 'What is that?' said Sir John. 'Why,' said the other, 'teach him to shave with cold water and without a glass.'"

This reminds us that some have inveighed against the sin of shaving with either hot or cold water. A book was published in 1847 entitled "Beard-Shaving and the Common Use of the Razor: An Unnatural, Irrational, Unmanly, Ungodly and Fatal Fashion Among Christians." A dozen years later another book appeared: "Shaving a Breach of the Sabbath and a Hindrance to the Spread of the Gospel."

FIRE LOSSES TOO HIGH.

Losses by fire on this continent are striking examples of gross carelessness and extravagance. According to statistics gathered by the New York Journal of Commerce, the United States fire losses in 1911 amounted to $234,000,000; Canada's fire bill was $21,000,000. The per capita loss in the United States was $4.05; in Canada, $3. The European average per capita is around 35 cents. Austria had a loss of 29 cents per head, Denmark of 26, France of 30, Germany of 49, Italy of 12, and Switzerland of 30 cents. A small population in big and rich country may not immediately feel the economic loss, but its seriousness may be gauged from the fact that the fire loss in Canada in a year would pay the interest on a national debt nearly half as big again as ours is. Lightning heads the list of causes, with incendiarism next, but the controllable causes could be greatly lessened by more care, by better building regulations and supervision, and more fireproof construction. It is quite true that some "fireproof" structures manage to blaze merrily when a fire is once set going, but the adoption of fireproof interior fittings would lessen this considerably. When lumber becomes scarce and high priced, and metal substitutes in fittings are adopted, the change will automatically occur.

It is well nigh impossible to put a stop to carelessness, any more than it seems possible to put a stop to gambling. A recognition of the fact that fire insurance is merely a co-operative contribution by property owners, and that the tenant himself, who pays the piper, should exercise a beneficent influence. When a fire occurs in the Dominion the fire is distributed amongst the policyholders of the Dominion. The destroying effect is not only felt in the town where the conflagration occurs; it permeates all over the continent.

MEN FOR MINISTRY.

One of the arguments used in favor of church union is that it would make available for new fields of labor a large number of ministers and prevent the waste of their energies in places where one minister would be sufficient and where there now are two.

The scarcity of ministers to supply the demand not only in Western Canada but in the east is becoming more real and noticeable year by year, and the question which now confronts the different denominations is where they are to secure their future supply of ministerial candidates. Dr. Jordan of Queen's University, writing in The Presbyterian Quarterly, discusses the scarcity of candidates for the ministry and the proposal of an assembly to prepare an emergency course which will fit men for missionary service. Dr. Jordan considers the suggested course as "thin and poor" unless some effective machinery for education and supervision is called into existence. He points out that the church should have the highest minds available because the minister is the teacher as well as the leader of men. People, he says, are becoming more exacting in their tastes. They are very critical with regard to their pastors, and these latter know how difficult it is to make a success of their work without the most cordial support of their parishioners.

The church is not having the pick of men or students, in its theological department. There are so many opportunities for success in other lines of life work that the clerical profession is not regarded as the one which offers the greatest rewards to its members. Some of those who are willing to enter the ministry are entirely unfitted for the work and should be advised to enter some other department of life in order to make the most of their attainments.

The church needs men but it needs men equipped by nature and culture for the work. The congregations even of the remote mission fields of the west require men of ability to minister to their spiritual needs and if these are not available the mission work of the church will suffer very severely.

Whether as a united church or working separately, the denominations affected, can best accomplish their mission is a disputed question which can only be solved by actual experience. The trend of the times is towards union and concentration of effort, but those who hold that the present condition is preferable to union must be given credit for the same sincerity of purpose as that which acuates the advocates of union.

Editorial Notes

In a local contemporary of Friday evening is a letter complaining that some of those who get local charity buy jelly, cakes, pie, nuts, candy. Surely, if people are in hard enough luck to have to ask charity, those who give it should not ask whether they eat cake or wire nails.

COAL PRICES IN PETERBORO'.

The big coal strike is supposed to have begun in England yesterday. Should a coal strike begin in Peterborough, it would be inaugurated neither by operators nor miners, but by the people, who, about once a month see a coal adv. signed by all the local coal dealers making, generally an advance in price. Strange to say, these advances made by the local coal dealers are invariably made on the same day and for the same amount of raise (or as the demand for that commodity drops off, rarely for a simultaneous decrease). Now, straight goods, is not this concentrated, evidently combined action, in soaking the public of this city enough to raise a strike or any old thing to get proper business competition in prices?

POSSIBILITIES OF DAIRYING

The Dairy Cow Can be Made to Produce $100 Revenue Annually

There are great possibilities of increasing our national wealth from the dairy cow. Increased wealth must come from the increased production, and it is possible to increase the annual production of wealth at least 30 per cent. by improved methods in feeding and breeding dairy cows and without increasing the number of cows kept.

A Nova Scotia dairyman estimates if the average production of the dairy cow in Nova Scotia could be increased from $40 to $100 a year it would mean an added income of $7,000,000 annually for that province. This would mean an increase in the total annual production of the province from all sources of 30 per cent., and in the agricultural products of almost 50 per cent.

The dairy cow can be made to produce $100 gross revenue annually. This has been proven by hundreds of good dairymen in various parts of the Dominion. In no other line of industry is it possible to increase the efficiency of plants by 60 per cent. through better methods of management. No other industry offers such opportunities of increasing our national wealth as does the improvement of agriculture and particularly of dairying. A few thousand dollars spent on agricultural education and in promoting the work of cow testing associations would do more for this country than the millions of dollars which are now being spent in building up urban industries, some of which are able to run only because of government aid and are no real addition to the wealth-producing power of the country. Governments, both federal and provincial, should not hesitate to spend money on agricultural education where the possible results are so great.—The Island Farmer.

The Natural Wealth Of The West

Now is the Time to get Larger Returns for an Investment in Oil Lands

We have got, and own 3200 acres of land, staked out, by one of British Columbia's pioneers, and practical oil experts. This land gives every indication of producing a rich harvest of oil. The natural seepage and geologic formation point to oil on almost every acre.

OIL A MONEY MAKER

The big fortunes of to-day are not made by the man or woman who put their capital or savings into mortgages or Savings Banks at 3 per cent. The millionaires of to-day are the men, mostly small investors at first, who invested in oil or oil lands. READ THE ASSAY OF SAMPLE SEEPAGE RECEIVED FROM F. G. RANNEY GIVEN BELOW.

NAPOLEONIC IDEALS

Prince Victor's Manifesto to the French Nation

In view of the crisis among French Royalists particular interest attaches to an account in the "Figaro" of a conversation which a representative of that paper had with Prince Victor Napoleon. The Prince begins by saying frankly that men were mistaken when they credited him with a blind and systematic species of opposition. He would never join in intrigues which would compromise the nation's interests and paralyse the action of the French Government abroad. Yet it must be admitted that trouble was rife in many quarters, and that authority was lacking.

He thinks, and many politicians, he says are of the same opinion, that Parliamentarism has reached its last phase. The Prince recalls the situation with which the first Napoleon dealt, and of the attitude of the Second Empire towards the social crisis, when it allowed to the working class the right of coalition, which the Republic of 1848 had refused. What France now needed, Prince Victor continued, was a Government of concord and of action, with no more quarrels of parties and coteries.

It was such a Government that the Party of Appeal to the People wished to give to France. It was much keener for reform of institutions than for a change of the personnel. He had not a staff around him anxious for places and favors; he had no cupidity to satisfy. Reaction was never a solution, and the very name of Napoleon was a programme.

"I claim no dynastic right. I am a son of modern France. I remain faithful to the traditions of the French Revolution—sovereignty of the nation, civic equality, liberty of conscience, social progress. I have as little to do with Jacobinism on the Right as with Jacobinism on the Left. I should like to see all the persecutions cease, and never be followed by others. France, who would reject a master, awaits a leader, and it is for her alone to select him freely. The party of the plebiscite is not for revolution, but for evolution. Whatever conception one may have of it, the Republic ought to have at its head a Government that governs."

The Prince concluded by saying that he firmly believed that France would soon return to the great principles represented by the name of Napoleon, which alone could assure order and progress.

COLD STORAGE EGGS

Likely to Supplant Limeing and Other Preserving Processes

According to Dr. Bordas, of the French council of public hygiene, the cold storage of eggs is rapidly increasing in France, and will soon supplant limeing and the other processes now employed for preservin geggs. Dr. Bordas insists on maintaining a rigorous distinction between fresh eggs and cold storage eggs, although the latter are very superior to limed eggs. Five, six, or even seven months of cold storage do not appreciably alter the appearance or odor of eggs, while lime water, acting for a much shorter period, makes the albumen slightly yellow and gives the egg the characteristic odor of lime. An egg which has been kept three or four months in cold storage is still in perfect condition to be eaten, soft-boiled, from the shell, but a limed egg of the same age is unfit for this use. After the fourth month of cold storage the air space of the egg becomes enlarged by evaporation, but the egg is still perfectly fit for pastrymaking and most culinary uses.

FLOWER POTS

The value of flower pots depends on the uses to which put, their hardness, and ease with which handled, an dwhen not in use stored. Then it is so easy to obtain them in so many diverse sizes from three inches across the tops, to others 18 to 20 inches. As a rule the amateur gardener finds the most useful to be four-inch, five-inch and six-inch broad. It is well in purchasing to obtain pots in several sizes, as all, if not too large, are wanted for various descriptions of plants. It is well when using new pots to dip them in water for a moment and then let them stand to drain before using, as otherwise being so dry they are too absorbent. In the case of old pots all should be well scrubbed in hot soda water and dried before using. A dirty pot should never be used.

Why Sniffle and Sneeze With Catarrhal Cold?

BY BREATHING THE HEALING VAPOR OF CATARRHOZONE YOU GET RELIEF IN TEN MINUTES.

Every second person that you meet seems to have a sneeze and stuffed feeling in the forehead and nostrils. To cure promptly, say, in half an hour, there is nothing worth using except Catarrhozone. You inhale its balsamic vapor, and feel as if you were among the Norway pines. This is because Catarrhozone contains a healing medicine, light as pine air, which is breathed straight into the lungs and bronchial tubes. Away goes the cold; sneezing and catarrhal cough cease, bronchial irritation stops; in short, you are cured of catarrh by a pleasant, simple remedy, free from sedatives and irritants.

That Catarrhozone is a swift, certain means of destroying colds and catarrh is proved by the following statement of Mr. Pulos, one of Brockville's best known merchants:

"In the fall of 1908," writes Mr. Pulos, under date of June 10th, 1910, "I contracted a very severe cold which developed into Catarrh. At that time I was living in New York State and treated with four different physicians, who afforded me no relief. On coming to Brockville I was advised by a friend to try Catarrhozone. I bought the dollar outfit, and was gratified by the results. I was completely cured by Catarrhozone, and have used it since to check a cold with unfailing results. It is the grandest medicine in existence, and I hope my testimony will be of some use to other fellow-sufferers."

(Signed) George Pulos.

An ideal protection for the chest, lungs, nose, and throat is the frequent use of Catarrhozone. Two months' treatment (the large size) costs $1.00, medium sizes 50c; at all dealers or the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

STRAINING MILK

The Milk Strainer Does Not Purify the Fluid

Straining milk does not purify it. Milking should be done with such attention given to cleanliness that it would be unnecessary to use the strainer. The utensil is of value chiefly because it removes the visible indications of impurity from milk, not because it really has any purifying effects. Small particles of manure, hairs, pieces of dead cuticle from the cow's udder and body, and dirt from the milker's hands find their way into the milk pail during the first manipulations of the udder, these impurities are churned around in the pail by the force of the streams as the milk is drawn, and by the time the pail is full this filth is all but dissolved, and no strainer yet produced can remove anything but the coarser and more insoluble substances which settle to the bottom of the bucket.

The millions of bacteria carried into the receptacle by these impurities are untouched by the strainer and go on their way rejoicing to carry ill-health and disease, maybe, to all who drink the milk or use the butter made from it. We use the milk strainer because we do not like the looks of small particles of dirt and refuse in the bottoms of the milk can, or perhaps in the drinking cup. It does no harm to remove these, but gives us a sense of relief in thinking that the milk is clean because it looks clean. We seem to have discharged a moral obligation in using the strainer, forgetting that the real harm comes from the dissolved material, the filth that goes into solution and carries its nauseating effect concealed in the pure white fluid.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

A moderate oven is one in which a piece of white paper will become golden brown in 12 minutes.

A convenience and economy for the oil or gasoline stove is a three part cooker which can be used over one burner. The parts are separated so that three articles can be cooked at the same time.

Rinse out the dish cloths frequently and let them bleach on the grass in the sun to keep them sweet. There is nothing like the sun as a purifier. Use it lavishly and your health will be better and the house purer.

To relieve ear ache, irrigate the ear with warm water. Arrange the patient so that the water can run out of the ear into a receptacle or into cloths which will absorb it. Have the water of slightly more than tepid warmth and allow it to run slowly into the ear until relieved. Cover the ear afterwards with warm woollen cloths.

Little chicks require plenty of fresh water in their reach in hot weather. If this is neglected you will be disappointed in the growth and health of your chicks.

AN ALL-BLACK HOLIDAY

How the Nations of the Rand Enjoy Their Spare Time

Perhaps it may interest readers to know how the natives on the Rand enjoy themselves in their spare time, and how curiously they conduct themselves on holidays.

Every Sunday morning they gather together at some appointed place—usually one of the mines—and prepare for their weekly march out. (I have seen as many as six hundred at one meeting). They are all dressed very funnily. Some have soldiers' old jackets; others old football jerseys; while others, again, wear little more than their smiles!

Most of them have an instrument of some sort, including cheap concertinas, melodeons, tambourines, tin whistles, and other such classical instruments. Those who cannot afford the luxury of an instrument commence to "sing." The terrible din when they all start playing different tunes at the same time can be imagined! They march for miles in this manner through the open veldt, and return in the afternoon, highly delighted with their outing.

The Kaffirs are a very happy-go-lucky class of people. Nothing seems to worry them, and they do not believe in too much work. They may work for about six months in one of the mines, save up most of their pay, and go home to their kraals for the rest of the year.

ELECTRICITY AND BEAUTY

The Electric Age Will at Least Add to Cleanliness

It remains for the philosopher to decide whether the natures of men and women as they exist in the electric age will be finer or less fine than those that were bred in days of greater simplicity, harder work, and less luxury. But this one can say with certainty, that much of the squalor and filth, the dirt that makes both buildings and people unseemly and hideous in our great cities, will have disappeared, and their smoky dens will have become as clean and wholesome as a country village; trees will grow in our city streets, and if environment counts for anything in the development of the human being, one may say without much doubt, the people will be a brighter, happier, and less sordid race than they have been under the domain of steam and coal. It is to electrical engineering, we believe, that one must look for much of the progress we hope for in the beautification of our towns, the preservation of our buildings, and the reduction of useless labor, and if some of the eerie mystery of a dimly-lighted side street disappears, and the more garish blaze of an electric-lamp shining on a clean and brightly-lighted street takes its place, it is the artist who must weep and the common man who must rejoice.—Railway News.

ATTENDING THE DEAD

Guiding Chinese Spirits On Their Way to Heaven

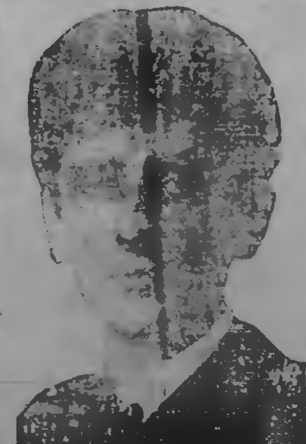
In Canton, about eighty miles from Hong Kong, there is a place known as the City of the Dead.

There are one hundred and ninety-four small houses, in each of which a corpse is lodged, at the rate of twenty-five dollars for the first three months, and then at a reduced rate until the geomancers employed by the relatives of the dead person decide when and where the corpse shall be buried.

Silk or paper lanterns an d imitation fruit are hung from the roof; there are screens in each room between the door and the coffin; tea, fruit, and any other kind of food which the dead person liked when on earth, are placed on an altar before the coffin each morning. There are cardboard servants standing about to wait on him with pipes or cardboard cups of tea. There are also two handsome paper females placed there to guide his spirit on the way to heaven.

COMMENDABLE KINDNESS

The following incident actually occurred in the streets of Rochester. A man was leading a dog by a chain. The dog had a big bone in his mouth, and dropped it. He strained at the chain in the effort to recover his bone, but the man dragged him on relentlessly. A little ragged girl playing in the street observed the dog's difficulty, picked up the bone, ran after the dog, and restored to him his property.



CARL AHRENS

A Canadian painter of Canadian scenes

A obliging young parson was driving home one evening after making his pastoral calls, when he overtook a young woman of his congregation, the maid-of-all-work at a farm which he would pass, so he offered her a place in his carriage. The offer was gladly accepted and they chatted pleasantly all the way to the farm gate.

"Thank you, sir," she said as she got down.

"Don't mention it, my dear girl. Don't mention it," he told her politely.

"No, indeed, I won't," she assured him.

A "window" was pierced near the Jungfraujoch, to give passengers on the wonderful Jungfrau Railway, while in the tunnel, a superb view of the Guggi Glacier. Unfortunately, the presence of snow obscured the view at the opening ceremony. The Jungfrau railway is being extended from Eismeer, above Grindelwald, its present terminus, to the Jungfraujoch, 1,090 feet above sea level, and thence ultimately to the sumit. The new "window" is on the far slope of the Monk, at an elevation of 10,800 feet.

ARE OUR HANDS LESS VALUABLE?

Eminent Surgeon Draws Attention to What Science and Machinery are Doing

Sir Frederick Treves, the eminent surgical authority, in a "Nineteenth Century" paper, declares very emphatically that "it would seem that the highest point of development in the use of the hands has been already reached; has been, indeed, passed, and that we have now entered upon a decline." Let us see to what extent Sir Frederick's contentions can be supported.

Two of the commonest handicrafts are those of writing and sewing, but they are being now rapidly supplanted by the typewriter on the one hand and the sewing machine on the other. The finer use of the fingers is thus becoming lost, so far as these simple crafts are concerned. There was occasion when penmanship was almost a fine art, and the writing master a power in the land. In these present days of hurry there is no time for elegant hand-writing. The script of the ordinary letter-writer is often as hard to interpret as the message on the Rosetta stone, and as there is, coincidentally, no leisure available for the decyphering of illegible writing, the typing machine becomes opportune.

Deliberate Surgeon of To-Day

Surgery during recent years has made amazing advances. Should it be asked if this progress has been associated with, or dependent upon, a corresponding development of the handicraft of surgery, the answer is, it has not. Before the days of anaesthetics the surgeon was operating upon a conscious being. Rapidity of movement was all essential; success was gauged by the stop-watch, every unnecessary second meant unnecessary torture. The surgeon had to be marvellously deft of hand, cool, yet alert as a fencer; quick, yet as sure as a matador. The combination of qualities that made up a good operating surgeon was rare, and so in those days the perfect operator was equally rare.

Now, with the use of anaesthetics, the surgeon can proceed with easy deliberation, every step can be measured and judged; there is no call to be brilliant; there is no element of hurry, for in place of the flashing blade is an action as studied as a movement on the chess-board. The result of it is this: Surgery, as a pure handicraft, has undoubtedly lost ground.

Some of the simpler crafts exhibit in striking fashion the decay of cultivation in the use of the hands. Take the very ancient occupation of spinning and weaving. In India it is still possible to see the whole process of making cloth from cotton carried out by hand. The process involves a fine training for the fingers—a training that has made nimble and sensi- [illegible] and women in this country. But the handicraft has vanished, the machine has replaced it, and the skill educed by centuries of practice has been lost forever. Not so many years ago it was possible to see in almost every fishing village half a dozen gossips strolling about knitting stockings and jerseys for men. The work was not, perhaps, elaborate, but it was a good training for the hands. The knitters are now hard to find. Hand knitting does not pay except as an amusement.

The ancient art of embroidery—as ancient as Babylon and Tyre—was a craft of wide possibilities. The handicraft is practically lost. It is true that the finer work is still done by the hand, but the major part is turned out of a machine with brutal unconcern. There are advantages resulting from this which are easy to appreciate, but at the same time a thousand hands have lost their cunning and handicraftsmanship has passed to a lower grade.

Lace-making occupies a somewhat similar position. It is probably the most elaborate work which has ever engaged the facile fingers of women. Lace-making has engaged whole colonies of women, and has enabled them to bring the culture of the hand to a marvellous degree of perfection. This has assuredly been an object worthy of attainment. But the days of the craft are nearly over, and the manual skill so laboriously attained is—in spite of all attempts to revive it—in process of being lost.

Probably the oldest domestic instrument is the needle. The needle-maker was a master of craft. The common needle is now made by a series of machines, which turn the implements out in pairs, two being united, head to head. The process involves manual skill, and in the production of special needles something of the cunning of the past but the fact remains that a great means for the culture of the hands has passed away.

The Degenerate Carpenter

The carpenter, with his primitive art, is still with us, but he is not the handicraftsman that he was. There are sawing engines and planing machines for boards of every kind. The "four-cutter machine" works all four faces of the wood simultaneously. Machines have been produced for fashioning all kinds of mouldings, for cutting dovetails, mortises and tenons, while the engine known as the "universal joiner" is a combination machine with superhuman powers. The "copying lathe" produces objects of regular or irregular shape automatically from a pattern, and can turn out with equal ease a gunstock or a broom handle, a boot-last or a toy horse. The sand-papering machine is almost uncanny in its imitation of human movements, while the self-directing lathe represents the callous absorption of whole centuries of manual skill.

Sir Frederick Treves goes through a long list of occupations, arts and accomplishments which formerly called into play great dexterity of the hand and fingers, and which are now done by machinery. Even piano playing is included in the list. The loss is both great and regrettable.—Glasgow Daily Herald.

HOME HINTS

When Making Mustard, add a few drops of vinegar if you wish it to keep.

Warm Dish Covers as well as dishes if you want your dinner to be served really hot.

Turnip Peelings should always be well washed, then added to soups to which they impart a delicious flavor.

Spanish Onion Salad.—A cold boiled Spanish onion makes an excellent salad if sliced and dressed with oil and vinegar in the usual manner.

Flies in the Larder are a pest in summer. Begin early in the spring to sponge the windows twice a week with a weak solution of carbolic acid and water. If this is done regularly it will keep away flies.

To Cook Salt Fish Nicely it should be soaked in cold water the night before it is used, with a few spoonfuls of vinegar. Place it in cold water to cover, and gradually bring to the boil. Simmer for a quarter of an hour.

Mahogany Stain is made thus: Into an earthenware jar put one pint of linseed oil, one ounce of alkanet root, and one ounce of rose pink. Let it stand twenty-four hours, stirring occasionally. Rub it well into the wood with a woollen cloth.

Burn all Kitchen Waste as far as possible in the closed stove. When the fire is red draw the fuel towards the front bars, place the refuse at the back of the grate, and if necessary, a little coal over. Open damper, and the rubbish will be quickly destroyed without smell.

Eggs and Cheese.—Cut some small squares of toast, butter them thickly, and put on each a slice of hard boiled egg. Melt in a pan any scraps of cheese you may have, with a little milk. Season with pepper, salt, and made mustard. When smooth and thick, pour over the eggs and serve at once.

When Cooking Salt Meat, first wash it well in cold water, then place in a saucepan, cover with fresh cold water, and bring to the boil. Skim, and simmer gently till the joint is cooked.

Pastry Requires a sharp steady oven, where it can cook quickly. Careful watching is necessary, and a wise cook will test her oven with a piece of paper or thin slice of bread before commencing her work.

MOTHERS' MISTAKES

Don't Handicap Girls by Doing Things For Them

I know a mother, says a writer, who is so managing and capable that she never gives the girls a chance to show what they can do.

If one of them is going to make a blouse, she will say, "My dear, you'll only spoil the stuff; you'd better let me cut it out for you."

And it generally ends in mother making the blouse.

Or one of the girls will offer to help [illegible] do it myself. "I know where everything is," says the managing-mamma.

The mother who does this kind of thing is placing her girls at a serious disadvantage.

If they don't experiment and learn how to do things, how are they to know?

When they have homes of their own, and have to do things, it will possibly be a very serious thing for them to be so very incapable, and have to start learning duties they should by rights be proficient in.

Don't make the mistake of handicapping the girls like that.

Let them have their share in the home duties, and, if they sometimes make mistakes, and even "spoil the stuff," the wise mother will comfort herself with the knowledge that it is all practice towards perfection.

CLOSED ROASTING PAN

Tray Slides In and Out and Cover Keeps the Flavor In

A combination pan that can be used either for roasting meat and potatoes or for baking bread has been invented by a Colorado man. The bottom portion is rectangular, and above it rises a slanting top like a mansard roof. A tray slides back and forth in the casing on slideways that run along the sides. The front end of this tray operates to close the lower half of the opening in the front end of the casing, and a hinged flap closes the upper half. Across the centre of the pan is a flat tray with perforations that allow the draining of liquid from anything that requires draining or keeps two articles separate. The advantage of an inclosed pan of this type is that in cooking meat, for example, all the flavor is kept in the pan instead of evaporating in steam, and the meat is done moister. Articles cooked in it require less attention than in an old-style utensil, too.

MEN AND WOMEN, ODD CONTRAST

A Writer Who Dilates on "The Curious Conceit of Men and the Modesty of Women"

If there is one sin from which the average man considers himself free, it is the sin of vanity. Vanity, he firmly believes, is the prerogative of women. Women are vain, dear creatures, he will tell his wife or lover while he fondly pinches her cheek, says Answers.

The wife or lover is generally too wise to correct him, but there never was a woman yet who did not wonder at the marvellous vanity of men.

As a matter of fact, there is scarcely any difference between men and children in this respect. A child with a new pair of shoes will not rest content until everybody in the house has gone into raptures over both shoes and wearer, separately and together. And a man's method of attracting notice to his splendor are—to women—hardly less simple.

For Those She Loves

Women, on the contrary, are singularly free from vanity. You laugh and point to my lady's mirrors, and her habit of looking in them at every possible moment? My dear young man, you do not understand. A woman will take infinite pains to dress herself to please somebody she loves—although he seldom notices it—or to annoy somebody she hates. If she pleases the loved one she is in the seventh heaven, as she certainly is if she annoys [illegible] woman. But she never admires herself in the way that a [illegible] admires his invisible moustache.

Men are free from a terrifying danger which hangs over a woman from the age of fourteen to the age of ninety or so—the criticism of other women. How terrifying this may be men can seldom understand.

A man can wear a battered straw hat [illegible] ever, and go about in [illegible] trousers on Sundays, and his friends will not think it worth while to notice; whereas a woman [illegible] a button out of place [illegible] all the ladies in the district noticing it.

Hence the agony of mind that a woman suffers if she thinks her back hair is coming down is not at all due to vanity. And hence the mirrors which [illegible] shopkeepers provide so abundantly.

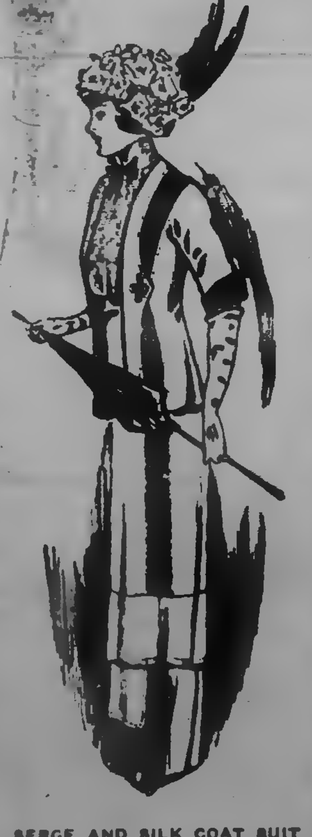
The Lady-Killing Youth

Even when you come to pretty girls, who might very well be excused for having their heads turned, there is no approach to the vanity of the lady-killing youth. A pretty girl takes her prettiness as a gift from the fairies, to be tended as the gardener tends a beautiful plant. It is her duty, a necessity to her self-respect, to look nice.

Contrast her with the average handsome man. Here you have vanity so monumental that a woman can only [illegible] friends the handsome [illegible] adopts a sorry-my-dear-you-love-me-but-I-can't-help-it [illegible] makes a sensible girl [illegible] you-know tone of voice, which at first makes a sensible girl want to slap him, then amuses her, and then makes her yawn.

But he never changes. He is the same year after year; and though he considers himself such a superior being, he is always as anxious to attract the attention of washerwomen as that of duchesses.

So, mothers, pray that your babies will lose their beauty when they become men. A woman will carry her beauty as it should be carried, neither scorning it nor worshipping it. The handsome man loses his head early in life, and never finds it again.



SERGE AND SILK COAT SUIT

A few wise designers have ventured to prophesy a vogue for green and blue in the wake of the flood of red which has rushed upon us this season, and some lovely models have been made up in these combined shades. Take for example this suit. The design is exceedingly chic and the material is a diagonal serge in the new king's blue. Inset pieces in skirt and coat are green taffeta. The idea of inset pieces of taffeta is new and effective, and may be copied in self-tone silk with equally good results.

LEARN TO READ BETWEEN LINES

A Parlor Philosopher Says Never to Credit All That a Man Tells You

If you would read the truth of a book, it is between the lines that you will find it. Likewise, if you would read the truth of a man, it is between the lines that you must seek for it, says the Family Journal.

One reader of character points to a man's eyes; another will declare that character can only be read by the lines of the mouth. Others there are who profess to read the truth of a man in the lines of his hand, in the color of his hair and eyes, in the tone of his voice. But it is between the lines—always between the lines that you will find the truth.

Our faces are masks trained by years of practice, tradition, and heredity to disguise the passions, the sorrows, and the thoughts that lie behind them, and it is only in a rare, unguarded moment that by a face you may read the soul that it masks. Just as we cannot read the sorrow and pain that may lie behind the painted face of a clown, so we are deceived by a semblance of cheeriness and hope used by brave folk to disguise their hearts.

So it often happens that many a one whom we would comfort and help, could we but know and understand his need, must go uncomforted, whilst less worthy brethren of longer face and more doleful visage share our charity.

We have not read between the lines—that is all!

It behooves us all, in our dealings with mankind, to learn the trick of reading 'twixt the lines, for only by close study and knowledge of our fellowmen can we do justice to all.

This study must be made in no cynical or critical spirit, but rather with a sense of humility and sympathy, for only by these aids may a just and proper insight be gained; and only with a good intent of service, and an entire freedom from vulgar curiosity, may we peep thus behind our neighbor's blinds.

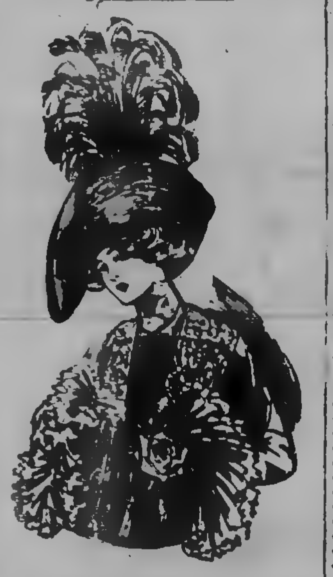
Every man has a right to his privacy; and, as an Englishman's house is his castle a man's troubles are his own, to hide behind such a mask of pride, cheerfulness, or roughness, as he may choose.

For those who would help their world, the only keys to these locked doors are sympathy and love of the sort that is content to wait humbly on the doorstep of sorrow till the door is opened.

Never go by all that a man tells you. It is what he does not tell you that matters.

Never think that because a man looks prosperous and comfortable that all is well in his world. His needs, hidden behind a brave exterior, may be greater than you would care to let pass unsatisfied, did you but know of them.

Because a house is clean and [illegible] "There is no need for me here!" and she bestow her gifts on squalor and idleness, failing only because she cannot read between the lines.



A NEW SPRING NOVELTY

Now we have straw and chiffon muffs. They are decidedly chic and pretty, but most American women are too practical to carry a muff for anything but protection from cold. This is not the case, however, with the French woman; she dresses for effect, but if one of these new novelties adds to the beauty of her toilette, she would not be without one.

A fetching model is black and white straw, with plaited frills in two shades of pink chiffon on each side. A huge pink rose rests artistically on top.

Other summer muffs are fashioned of loops of ribbon, giving the effect of immense flowers.

PINCERS AND HATPINS

How a Chicago Man Was Ready For An Emergency

Necessity once more becomes the maternal parent of invention—though the figure would better call for the paternal in this instance, for it was a Chicago man who took a pair of pincers from his pocket and bent up a hatpin which had stabbed him in the chin. Not more than one man in 10,000 is armed with a pair of pincers, but this ten-thousandth man was an architect. In his narrative he says: "A long hatpin in a woman's hat scratched my chin. The car was crowded. We were both hanging to straps. I took a pair of pincers and bent the pin, pointing the point skywards. The woman didn't know what I had done, but the people in the car laughed uproariously. Every man should carry pincers."

Fort Worth, Tex., Mar. 1.—With the case of John Beal Sneed, whose trial on the charge of murdering Capt. A. G. Boyce ended Saturday night, it is believed there is little prospect of a verdict Monday.

The jurors reported to Judge Swayne Sunday that a verdict was impossible and the quickness with which they reported is taken here to indicate that there is little chance for a verdict.

The judge asked them to return to their deliberations.

ENCOURAGING RESULTS.

It is particularly gratifying to learn that the intelligent and educative campaign against tuberculosis in Ontario is beginning to show results. The mortality tables indicate that there is a gradual and increasing decline of the death rate from the white plague and the difference from year to year is large enough to be significant. The Ottawa Journal says that in 1899, for example, there were 3,405 deaths in the province from tuberculosis. The returns for 1910 give the number as 2,287. In the former year 11.8 per cent. of all deaths were due to tuberculosis. In 1910 the proportion had fallen to 6.8 per cent.

These results have been accomplished, it is interesting to learn, by comparatively small equipment. There are only twelve sanitoria and four dispensaries in Ontario, although there are many associations and visiting nurses. The work, however, has been taken up in an aggressive and thoroughly intelligent way.

Every year it is becoming more and more apparent that the chief reliance in fighting this disease is to be placed on preventive and educational measures. The visiting nurses' duties are not confined to medical attention, but the more important portion of her work is to teach the inmates of the home how to prevent infection. That this system is working admirably cannot be doubted in face of the statistics. The distribution of medicine and the opportunity for consultation with physicians afforded by the free dispensary, such as is in operation in Ottawa under the auspices of the May Court Club, is another great advantage where there is poverty as well as sickness.

It cannot be too strongly impressed upon the public that the cure of an incipient case of tuberculosis may mean the saving not only of the life of the particular patient affected, but of many lives. There is great need of a campaign of education and intelligent organized effort in the prevention of the spread of this disease in every province in Canada and even more need of an instructive campaign in the art of cheap and healthy living.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

The Cableman

AN EXCITING PRESENT-DAY ROMANCE

—BY—

WEATHERBY CHESNEY

Supplied Exclusively in Canada by The British & Colonial Press Service, Limited.

"In the harbor of Ponta Delgada. The tide brought it to within a cable's length of the Sea-Horse. Sambo and I went out with a boat and secured it. If you remember that seven days have elapsed, and that the flesh had been litrally cooked by that eruption of boiling water—faugh! I can't describe it! You will understand. The diamonds were found in a tin case in his pocket."

"So I heard. What is going to be done with them?"

"I believe they are going to be sent home."

"To be made up? For whom?"

"For nobody, sir. They will be sold, and the proceeds will be used to relieve, as far as is possible, the distress and unmerited suffering which the failure of the firm of Carrington and Varney caused in countless homes in England. That this should be done is the wish of every person, except one, who has any concern in the matter at all. Scarborough says he would sooner see the things cast into the water from which the dead body of Gillies brought them. I honor him for that decision, sir, and I should unhesitatingly say the same thing myself."

"Who is the one person who objects?"

"Who do you imagine it is? There can only be one person."

"Miss de la Mar," said Scott. After all, she has every right to object, since the things were bought with her money in the first instance. Scarborough is a good chap, and I've promised to be his best man when the time comes, but it seems to me he's talking nonsense when he spouts about throwing the diamonds into the sea rather than let his bride wear them. They're not his to throw, or his bride's either. They are Mona's, and I shall take the liberty of pointing that out to him."

Montague laughed.

"Your indignation is generous," he said, "and in Miss de la Marr's name I thank you for it. But it is not she who objects; it is Mrs. Carrington."

"Oh," said Scott, "that doesn't matter. I don't care a rap about her. But I don't see why that poor girl should be defrauded of her inheritance just because you and Scarborough think it is a fine thing to do the noble generosity business with someone ele's diamonds. It's rot, you know, Montague!"

Val B. Montague laughed again, but did not answer. Then he looked up with a curious, half bashful, half-exultant expression on his face, and [illegible]

"I didn't mean anyone to know yet, but I'll tell you. I said just now that Scarborough would object to his bride wearing those stones, and that I sympathized with his feeling. I sympathize with it so much that if my bride wanted to wear them, I should forbid her."

"What's that got to do with it? You haven't got a bride."

"I hope to have, shortly."

Scott jumped up with a shout: "You are going to marry Mona de la Mar! By Jove, I congratulate you heartily, Montague! But how and when did it happen?"

"Sit down and don't bellow like that in a public restaurant, and I'll tell you. She overreached me in the negotiations for a partnership."

"Overreached you? What d'you mean?"

"Exactly what I say. I offered a partnership once before, and for certain reasons withdrew my offer as soon as it was made. Her subsequent behavior led me to believe that those reasons were no longer operative, so at Furnas the other day I renewed my offer. She accepted it, and it was not till the day before yesterday that I discovered that she had deceived me. I had been shamelessly duped, Mr. Scott; [illegible] in fact; and I think that I am at this moment the happiest biped in the island of San Miguel. I don't except the two younger lovers, Varney and Scarborough!"

"Then the fraud was not serious," asked Scott laughing.

Montague became very grave.

"It was [illegible] I was led to believe that I was offering marriage to a lady who, if not absolutely penniless, was at any rate not rich. She is preposterously rich, and she has been aware of the fact for three months. She had not the slightest need of my assistance."

"But it seems that she had need of you."

"She is good enough to tell me that she has; and on the evidence she offers I am inclined to be vain enough to believe the statement. As I told you just now, I am the happiest unfeathered animal in the island. But of course it is on false pretences."

"Well, I shouldn't let that worry you," said Scott laughing.

—Montague sighed profoundly.

"I don't," he admitted dolefully. "That is what I find somewhat distressing. I am marrying a rich woman, and if I were ashamed of myself on that account, I should think better of my own character. But Jehoshaphat, sir! there is no room for any emotion but joy in this contract! I can't feel sorry. I could jump up now and kiss that waiter! Jehoshaphat! Wouldn't he stare!"

"Do it," said Scott.

"No, sir! I should make myself ridiculous, and Mona dislikes my doing that more than is necessary. Have I told you that the repairs to the Sea-Horse are finished, and that she will be ready for sailing the day after tomorrow?"

"What are you going to do with her? Sell?"

"No, sail."

"But you won't stick to that kind of life now!"

"Why not, sir, if I like it and my wife likes it? We are going to finish the tour as advertised, and be married at the end of it. After that we shall probably go into the same line of business on a larger scale. I think of having a fleet. I don't consider because my wife happens, fortunately or unfortunately, to be rich, that there is any reason why I should be idle for the rest of my life. Besides, for the present tour I am under contract to my troupe."

"You are losing one of them, aren't you? Varney's wedding is to-morrow."

"Quite so, and a very charming bride he is to have. But you are wrong in thinking that I shall lose him. The honeymoon is going to be spent on board the Sea-Horse; Varney will perform as usual, his wife will be usefully employed in learning the duties of a chaperon; and at the end of the tour they will return to San Miguel, and Phil will grow pine apples in partnership with his father-in-law. The idea is quaint, perhaps. I am given to understand that it was the lady's."

"Muriel Davis proposed to go on tour with a circus company, and on her honeymoon, too!" cried Scott. "Impossible! And as for chaperoning you and Mona, why, she doesn't consider you respectable!"

Val B. Montague smiled.

"I am told that she was somewhat prejudiced against us," he said. "She has chosen this method of testing the truth of her theories, and her father agrees with me that it is a very sensible method, too. She is a very charming girl, but between ourselves, I believe her father thinks she will make a better wife to my excellent friend. Phil Varney, when she has learnt that between the inevitable right and the inevitable wrong there lies the vast country of the debateable. Many excellent people live in that country, whose coats are neither of a pure and heavenly white nor of an impossible black, but a hard-wearing respectable shade of grey; but she does not, or will not know them. Her eye at present can see only crude black and white; Mr. Davis hopes that under our tutelage she may learn to appreciate the artistic values of the half tones."

"Which is Phil black or white?" asked Scott, with amusement.

"He started black, and then became impossibly white, I believe," said Montague gravely. "The honeymoon will probably teach her that he is a very serviceable shade of pearl grey."

"You'll be a funny ship load," said Scott. "What a pity Scarborough has to go to London to arrange about that clerkship. You could have found room for another honeymoon couple couldn't you?"

"Easily. As it is, Miss Carrington is coming with us."

"What!"

"She will be Mona's guest for the remainder of the tour. The girls have become great friends. I am happy to say. When we have gone through our advertised programme of West Coast ports, we shall run up to London, to be present at Horace Scarborough's marriage. I hope to arrange to have my own celebrated on the same day."

Scott regarded the Yankee circus-man with a look of amused admiration.

"You've a rare head for detail, Montague," he said. "[illegible] your arrangement. But you've forgotten one person, haven't you?"

"I think not, sir. Who?"

"Mrs. Carrington."

"I did not forget her. When I heard that she had recovered from her chill, I went to Sete Cidades and offered her the post of wardrobe mistress on board my schooner, and cashier in the circus. I have an immense admiration for that woman's strength of mind and business capacity. However, she refused. I learned subsequently that some of the ladies who will be with me on the Sea-Horse would not have been pleased if she had accepted."

"Miss De la Mor, for instance!" queried Scott.

"I naturally consulted Miss De la Mar before going to Sete Cidades at all. I had her full permossion. She considered herself entirely capable of managing the widow."

"What is the widow going to do for a living?"

"I am not in her confidence, sir, so I cannot tell you. But I don't think we need worry. Before she came to this island she managed very well on an income which was officially returned, I believe, as nothing a year. Have you observed her dresses? They are not those of a woman who dines off a crust habitually. I don't know where she means to raise funds for the future, but I have no doubt at all that she will raise them. I have an immense respect for that woman's abilities, sir. However," Montague added, rising, "[illegible] the question of her future livelihood for the widow herself to settle. I want you to come with me to the circus now. We are giving our last performance in Ponta Delgada to-night, and I have advertised that it is for the benefit of Pampas Joe, the Revolver King, who is to be married to-morrow."

"A bottle of fizz first!" cried Scott. "Bumpers to the three pairs who are going into double harness!"

"I am with you, sir. A health to Pampas Joe and Muriel Davis!"

"To Val B. Montague and his leading lady!"

"To Miss [illegible] Carrington and the cableman!"

Another Family for the City.

Lakefield News: Mr. N. A. Nichols has disposed of his barber business and residence to Mr. Walter Northey, of Smith, who took over the business March 1st. We understand that Mr. Nichols is moving his family to Peterborough, while he will take a trip to the West.

Change in Local Business.

Mr. Geo Ruth, 395 Water street, on Friday sold out his real estate business to Mr. Al. Gibbs, a nephew of Mr. Robt. Gibbs, the local livery man. Mr. Gibbs, who is a local man has been on the road travelling for paints. Mr. Ruth has taken a trip to Winnipeg and other Western points.

Children Accepted the Invitation.

Saturday morning, the "Red Mill" that popular local place of amusement, had a great grist. The proprietor had very generously asked the school children to attend. There were few regrets sent. The kids certainly did enjoy the pictures and vented their appreciation by constant and hearty bursts of applause.

Another Week for Balloting.

The ballots of the vote on Church Union, which have been distributed among the congregations of St. Andrew's church, not yet returned may be deposited on Sunday, March 11. Ballot boxes were placed in the vestibule of the church and members of the congregation may drop their ballots in these on entering or leaving the church.

Does the Fur Ruff Belong Here?

Has any lady of Peterborough recently been a visitor to Lindsay. We noted in Saturday's issue that a checky thief, self confessed, captured in Lindsay, had surrendered all of his stolen booty. All of the stolen goods recovered have been claimed by the owners except a fur ruff, still in the hands of the Lindsay police.

Funeral Was Held Yesterday.

The funeral of Domenico Marchiegano, whose deplorable death in St. Joseph's hospital, was noted in Saturday's issue was held yesterday afternoon to St. Peter's cemetery. The deceased is survived by one half brother, Patrick White and a half sister, Margaret Bianca White, both of Lakefield. Mr. Tom. Minnecolo, of this city, is an uncle.

A Lakefield Theatre Party.

The following party of ladies and gentlemen drove down from Lakefield on Saturday to see Madame Sherry at the Opera House, viz.: Dr. and Mrs. Blakeman, Miss Elsie Graham, Miss Irene Perks, Miss Dot Davidson, Miss Dorothy and Miss Clementi (who had been the guest of the latter) and Mr. Chas. Dunn, the host of the theatre party.

Robins in Port Hope.

Port Hope Guide says: "Robins, sure harbingers of spring, and crows have made their appearance here. No doubt the soft weather of the past week encouraged the birds to come early; still we can hardly expect that the cold weather has entirely disappeared." We would not doubt the writer of the above, but it is almost impossible of belief in Peterborough in view of past and present weather.

Another Illicit Fish Case.

Fishery Inspectors Watt and Kane with policeman Kidd and Detective Newhall, made a seizure of about 100 pounds of bass at a local hotel Saturday afternoon. It is alleged that the fish came from the same people who were fined in the police court the other morning for the illegal possession of fish during the closed season. The case comes up at the police court this morning.

G. T. P. Bridges.

Work is to be rushed this spring on the big bridges of the Grand Trunk Pacific for the section of the line which follows the course of the Skeene River. The G. T. P. Steamer "Prince Rupert" left Vancouver last week with the advance guard of a large number of bridge and steel structural workers belonging to the Canadian Bridge Co. and a considerable quantity of material is to follow to Prince Rupert in the near future.

Government Isolation Hospital.

The new federal government isolation hospital which is situated on an unnamed island in one of the bays of Digby Island off Prince Rupert Harbor is now practically complete with the exception of the interior furnishings.

The building is both large and handsome so that it should meet the requirements of this Pacific Port for many years to come. Not a glimpse of it can be seen from the harbor as it is screened by large spruce and other coniferous trees some of which measure six feet in diameter.

Death of Mr. Leo Shannon.

The death occurred in Toronto on Friday of Mr. Leo Shannon, the adopted son of Mr. John Shannon, at the age of 22 years. The deceased resided in Peterborough until about seven months ago, when he moved to Toronto. He was recently taken ill with pneumonia. The late Mr. Shannon was married about nine months ago. He was employed for nine years at the Examiner office. The funeral will be held to-day to Mount Hope cemetery, Toronto.

A "Harrowing Tale.

A nearby local option town has a factory that turns out some of the best harrows in Canada. A local merchant, seeing a report of a big make of harrows there used a pun that should have resulted in his death. His remarks over the report in question were: "No wonder that local option town paper had a harrowing article about their local industries!" Now what do you think of a break like that?

Ex-Postmaster Is Honored.

The letter carriers and post office staff demonstrated their good will towards Mr. A. H. Stratton, the retiring postmaster, last week, by presenting him with a handsome gold headed cane. The presentation was made by Mr. Chas. Lacheur, while Mr. John Corkery expressed the appreciation of the staff over the kindly relations existing between Mr. Stratton and the employees of the office and regret at the departure of Mr. Stratton.

Spring Assizes for April 9th.

Only one or two criminal cases are up for trial at the Spring sitting of the Court of Appeal. The court opens on April 9th. One of the criminal charges to be tried is that of Samuel Newall, of Dummer, who is charged with an alleged indecent assault. The case was to have been dealt with at the Fall Assizes, but owing to the defendant being unable to attend through illness, the case was left over until the spring Assizes. His Honour Judge Latchford, of Toronto, will preside.

Snow Up to Telephone Wires.

Mr. Ernest Lawrence, who is one of Mr. Robt. Gibb's drivers has returned from Apsley, where he drove a couple of commercial travellers. He assured The Times that in several places between Burleigh and Apsley the snow was so deep that one walking on top of it could sit on the telephone wires or on top of the poles. Of course this was in places where a gully had been filled with drifted snow.

Asphyxiation at Gas House.

An employee of the local gas works had a close call on Saturday. It seems that a fellow employe found Daniel Anderson, who works there at night, at 7 a.m. lying on the brick floor in front of the machines. Anderson was unconscious. He was taken to an adjoining shed and Dr. Marshall was summoned. The doctor at once diagnosed Anderson's condition as due to inhalation of gas. Restoratives were given and the unfortunate man sent to his home on Auburn street. His recovery is now complete.

Two Children Had Narrow Escape.

Two children on Saturday came within a close shave of serious accident. They were "hanging on" at the rear end of a farmer's sleigh on Water street. They dragged a double bob-sleigh behind them. Another rig drawn at a swift rate followed close behind. The bobsleigh happened to upset. The two little girls jumped off to right their bobs. Evidently they did not see the coming sleigh. They only escaped the feet of the horses by a foot. The escape, seen by a Times reporter, was almost miraculous and certainly Providential.

Look Out for The House Swindle.

A new swindle is out. Let our citizens take note in time. Let us suppose you have intimated you want to sell your house. One or two slick well dressed gentlemen call and examine the premises. To the lady of the house (pardon the book agent's patented expression) they say the house suits them splendidly, but they think the walls are hollow. The lady is requested, in several rooms, to go to the adjoining apartment and pound on the wall, so that they can see whether it is solid or not. The rest is easy. Everything of value in sight is pocketed. One lady lost over $250 worth of silver plate and jewelry, as well as about 2½ inches of article from her right hand knuckles by the latest fraud.

Lakefield Masquerade Party.

Miss Elsie Graham "Uplands," Lakefield, on Friday night gave a masquerade party in honor of her guest Miss Dorothy Davidson, Toronto. Miss Graham was charmingly dressed as "Buster Brown," whilst Miss Davidson took the character of "Mary Jane." Over twenty guests, including a number from Peterborough, and ten of the "Grove" boys, were present, all in charming and unique costumes. The evening was spent in dancing followed by a dainty supper. Mr. Lawrence Graham, the host, wore the garb of his former regiment in Scotland and caused the young people to enjoy the masquerade to the limit.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

The Belleville St. John Presbyterian Church voted down Church Union by 67 to 46.

The Ontario government has laid aside $370 for incidental expenses of the Peterborough Normal School.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church of Lindsay, yesterday voted on Church Union.

The Canadian Order of Foresters, amongst their funds, own $5023.72 of Peterborough debentures.

It pays to keep sober in Lindsay! An ordinary everyday "drunk", without even the "disorderly" attachments was fined $10, with $3.45 costs.

Lindsay Post denies that Mr. Wise, brother of the Little Lake Cemetery Superintendent, had been appointed to a similar position in Lindsay. The office is still open.

Fifteen new autos are already ordered for this city for Spring delivery, and about ten more are coming in trade or exchange. And still people talk of hard times.

Wonderland, Lindsay's leading moving picture house, gave the whole proceeds of that theatre for last Thursday night to the local hospital. Here is a hint for one of the Peterborough picture houses to follow.

There were neither arrests, fines nor deaths in Peterborough yesterday, as far as could be found by enquiries at the fire hall, police station and undertaking establishments yesterday evening.

In the Supplementary Estimates of Ontario, the year ending October 31st, 1912, there is an item of $2,970.64, made up of painting and decorating $2000, tool house $800, and unpaid accounts 1911, $170.64 for the Peterborough Normal School.

Last night Murray street Baptist church was well filled by a congregation that thoroughly enjoyed the admirable sermon preached by Rev. J. R. Webb. The address of last night was the fifth of a series that talented divine has been giving.

PUBLIC OPINION

vative Elector." The impression one has on reading that letter is that "Conservative Elector," was a very poor Conservative, in fact it seems plain to me, he is no other than the man who under several pen names attacked me during the recent election. This is an old Liberal trick, and one everyone is well acquainted with. The object is plain. One man writes letters and instead of signing his own name, which would of course defeat his object and the object of his employers, he signs under several names to make it appear several different persons are writing.

The Liberal party and press are full of such tricks and they are vain enough to imagine they can gull the people by them, but the result of the last elections clearly show that the people are too wide-awake to be taken in by such tricks. Another fact which the people rightly assume is that when the Liberal press has to resort to such low and underhand practices, its position must of necessity be a very weak and insecure one. Then the sneer at Mr. Burnham for writing to The Times and The Review's easily seen through. Is it a crime for a man who is in Parliament to write to newspapers. I ask my fellow countrymen, how many members at home write for the press? Quite half of them do, and why not. The Examiner, of course, has not its own member to write for it from Ottawa, that is a very sure point with them. Canadians are familiar with the story of the "Minnie M." For the benefit of my fellow countrymen who may not know this story of Liberal trickery, I will quote it from "Canada, as it Is." This book was written by a well known Englishman John Foster Fraser. The book is in the Public Library and if you get it you will see I am quoting the story in Mr. Fraser's own words. He is speaking of Canadian politics, when he tells the following:

"Only a short time ago the case of the "Minnie M." was revealed. This was a vessel hired by the Liberal Party of Ontario, and carried a crowd of imported Americans. On the election day the "Minnie M." cruised in the Georgian Bay, where there were hundreds of lumber men. Care was taken to plant the polling booths a long way from the lumber camps. The "Minnie M." arrived at a place where there was a polling booth. The hired Americans were then Canadian lumbermen, who had come along from particular camps to record their votes. THEY ALL VOTED ONE WAY and under names that were given to them. They were taken on to another booth and VOTED AGAIN under other aliases. This took place half a dozen times, and the supporter of the Liberal administration was returned. He has since been unseated."

What do you think of that for a Liberal trick. These letters written by the same person under different names are in the same line as the trick of the "Minnie M." What a farce to those who know is the hypocritical attitude of the Liberal press when with evil eyes it sees evil in all its opponents say or do. Mr. Burnham will never be free from the venomous attacks of the Liberal press, but actions speak louder than words, but all fair-minded electors will judge him by his record and not by what the Examiner, or its writers say of him. A word to the Protestants of Peterborough. Notice the attitude of the Examiner towards Protestantism and Protestant questions and see if I am not right in saying that if the Roman Church here owned the Examiner they could not conduct it better to further their own interests. In the "Biglow Papers" occurs the following lines from "The pious Editor's creed":

"I do believe that whatever trash
Will keep the people in blindness,
That we the Mexicans can thrash
Right into brotherly kindness."

To my mind that expresses the attitude of the Liberal press very accurately.

Percival G. S. Webb.

LIGHT THAT DOES NOT FAIL

A Volcanic Beacon in San Salvador Republic

The republic of San Salvador is the only goverment on earth that collects lighthouse fees on account of a volcano that it owns, and without the slightest cost of upkeep.

The volcanic beacon is about eight miles inland from the port of Acajutla, and its pillar of cloud by day and its fire sky by night are visible for many miles out to sea. It bursts forth every seven minutes, and is just as accurate as any revolving light that warns mariners of danger in any part of the world."

This volcano has been keeping up this seven-minutes' service of eruptions ever since anyone can remember. It is a favorite amusement of visitors to sit by the hour during the lazy afternoons, and watch in hand, to time the eruptions till they tire of the occupation and fall asleep. No one has ever caught the volcano napping, however.

Every vessel that puts in at Acajutla has to pay its lighthouse fee. There is no other lighthouse than the volcano, but that is a sufficient excuse for the Government of Salvador to make a charge for its services. The explosions that accompany the eruptions sound like detonations of heavy charges of dynamite, but, fortunately, they are not sufficient to shake the ground perceptibly more than about a mile or two from the summit of the crater.

The Grand Trunk Railway has decided to establish a freight terminal on the east side of Carlaw Ave., North of Queen St., in Toronto, and to this end has acquired eight acres of property for $68,353 or $80 a foot. Seven acres will be taken up by freight sheds.

Farmers Bank Enquiry || Stoppage of Coal Supply Threatens Whole Life of the Nation

FACTORY AFTER FACTORY CLOSING DOWN IN BRITAIN

Railway Service is Disorganized and Vessels Tied up at Many Docks Throughout the United Kingdom

Over 200,000 Men Out, and This Number Sure to be Doubled in the Course of a Few Days

General Strike of Miners in Germany Feared as a Result of the Great British Conflict Between Capital and Labor

London, Mar. 4.—The coal strike is now affecting every class in the community. Tens of thousands of workers have been dismissed, and the railway service is dislocated and disorganized. Like creeping paralysis, the stoppage of the coal supply is threatening the whole life of the nation. The miners are making holiday. They are as they put it "having their fling" while the nation suffers; the poor go cold and hungry, and their fellow-workers are turned into the streets.

NO SETTLEMENT UNTIL END OF WEEK.

The Industrial Council has been summoned to meet to-day. It is a body of 26 business men and labor representatives, and has no compulsory powers. A statement by the Prime Minister in Parliament to-day is expected. Unless the arrangements are altered there will be no discussion between the Government and the Miners' Executive Committee until to-morrow evening. Whatever the Executive Committee decides must be ratified by the Federation, which usually takes two days to assemble. No settlement is in the least likely before Thursday or Friday at the earliest.

London, March 4.—Factory after factory is closing down all over the United Kingdom, as a result of the national coal strike, and those responsible for the trouble are simply marking time for the present, although it is expected that negotiations will soon be resumed.

Besides the miners, considerably over a million of whom have ceased work, it is now estimated that there are upwards of 200,000 workers in other industries idle owing to the strike, and this number is being added to hourly.

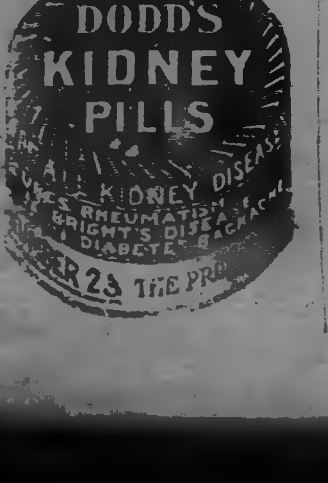
The crews of coal carrying vessels lying in coaling ports are now being discharged, ships are unable to get cargoes, and the railroad employees are suffering in a similar way because of the curtailment by the various companies of their train services. One short railroad line in Yorkshire has discontinued working entirely.

STRIKE BROKE OUT IN GERMANY.

Bochum, Germany, March 4.—A miners' strike which was totally unexpected and which had not been ordered by the miners' union, broke out in three mines here to-day, the men leaving work because, as they assert, unjustified deductions had been made from their wages.

The incident is regarded as a grave one since it is feared that it may precipitate a general strike of miners on the question of wages which the leaders of the Miners' Union and the mine owners are just now endeavoring to prevent in order to take advantage of the British coal strike.

In isolated instances the striking miners have refused permission to men to enter the mines in order to feed the ponies which have been left below to keep the workings clear. Generally, however, the utmost good feeling prevails between the men and the owners.



STREET WATERING WILL BE PAID FOR BY A GENERAL RATE

BUT COUNCIL THINK LEGISLATURE SHOULD NOT HAVE CHANGED THE ACT.

At last night's Council meeting Ald. Johnston enquired into the call for paying for street watering out of the general rate. Citizens who will not be benefitted by the service cannot see the justice in contributing towards the same and Council should make itself clear on the matter.

His Worship replied that it is hard for this or any other body to legislate so that all shall fare exactly alike. In past years half a mill had been put on the tax bill, chargeable against the assessed value of property benefited by the service. The law now says, however, that street watering must either be paid for by a frontage tax or by a general rate. It may seem a hardship to tax some citizens not directly benefited by the service through the adoption of a general rate system of paying for street watering, but a frontage tax would be still more unequitable. For instance, under the frontage system, business men on George street, where twice the amount of watering is done than elsewhere, would not pay a fare proportion of the cost, and their deficit would have to be made good by citizens in outlying streets where bigger frontages prevail than on George street. One particular store on George street last year paid $6.25 for street watering, charged against assessed value, and under a frontage tax that man's share of cost of street watering would be reduced to 42 cents. And the difference would have to be borne by the man outside with a bigger frontage, but less assessed value and enjoying inferior service.

Ald. Anderson agreed with his worship. "It is hard," he urged, "to find a citizen who does not enjoy some advantage over his neighbor. Some citizens may not have the watering cart pass their door, but still they enjoy its services more or less elsewhere. In the general tax the charge only amounts to one-third of a mill and the merchant pay his own share."

Ald Johnston—"I quite understand the principle. But the system was alright before, and why was the law changed."

Ald Morgan—"Because you people changed the Government."

Ald. Brown, wanted to know if, now that the general public was to pay for street watering, whether any petitions for street watering will be refused and by what date such petitions must be filed.

Ald Gordon thought the frontage tax would be a just measure.

The Mayor reiterated his arguments against it; and further added that the city will water all the streets served last year. But it would be of no use petitioning for any more streets to be watered as the money for any extensions of the limits is not available. The rate will be about 50c a ratepayer, which he did not think would prove a hardship.

Ald. Graham stood out for a frontage tax. He was willing to pay for street watering if he got it, but not without.

The Mayor—"Ald. Graham, can you tell me what benefit I get from paying taxes on a vacant lot towards the upkeep of the fire department?"

Ald Gordon—"That's one advantage of the single tax principle."

Ald. Morgan—"It's wrong to tax the outskirts and the streets not watered."

Ald. Graham—"I'm opposed to it, too; the man who does not get the benefit of street watering should not contribute toward it."

Ald Buller—"There are people on the outskirts who haven't hydrants nor light, and yet are contributing toward the maintenance. We can't do better than charge for street watering in the general rate. The people are not kicking, it's only among the Aldermen, where kicking is heard."

Ald Duffus agreed with the proposed principle of paying for street watering. We can't legislate to suit all, and the same principle applies to many things. When we get municipal owned power and lighting service people who reap no benefit from same will have to contribute towards its maintenance."

The much discussed system of paying for street watering in a general tax was here adopted.

AD. CLUB MEETS THIS EVENING

Interested local business men are looking forward with a deal of anticipation to the meeting of the Peterborough Ad. Club this evening, when Mr. C. H. Ashley, of the Toronto Saturday Night, will give an address on "More and Better Sales." Mr. Ashley will also discuss some of the things that a real live organization, such as the Ad. Club, can do individually for the members and in general for the city of Peterborough.

The programme committee of the local Ad. Club have secured in Mr. Ashley a man of unusual tact. While he is successfully engaged in the great business of salesmanship, and through print, (advertising) he will be known to not a few locally, as the one-time physical instruction in the West-End Y.M.C.A., Toronto. He it was who brought out and developed the now world famous Tom Longboat.

Mr. Ashley could require no better recommendation than that afforded by the position he holds with so important a publication as the Saturday night. The local business men and others who are interested in advertising may well consider it a privilege to hear Mr. Ashley this evening. Ideas of real worth and having a bearing on local business will be the order of the evening.

The meeting will take the form of a dinner, same to be held in Hoopers Palm Parlour, at 6.15. Immediately after the dinner Mr. Ashley will speak. The meeting will be brought to a close at 8 o'clock, thereby giving anyone in attendance the opportunity of getting away and spending the evening elsewhere not having to lose much time, or other engagements.

Accommodation provided for the evening is limited to fifty. Those wishing to attend will do well to secure tickets before noon to-day. Tickets, until the limit is reached, may be had by phoning the secretary treasurer, J. McNichol, at 1333. Mr. C. F. Hardy at 606, or Mr. A. A. Fowler, at 332.

Dispute Over a Civic Office—Contention That Salary in One Department is Being More or Less Wasted—Fees of Registrar's Deputies May Have to Be Paid, Council Doubtful of Its Position Legally. Law Should Be Amended—Dog By-Law Amended—Western Old Boys May Visit Peterborough This Summer.

The City Fathers met in regular monthly session last night, when there were present Mayor Bradburn, and Aldermen Gillespie, Anderson, Graham, Brown, Morgan, Duncan, Duffus, Johnston, Buller and Gordon.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From the Water Commissioners, asking that Council issue debentures for $10,000 to pay for construction work during the year 1911—By-law passed.

From Reid & Brown, Toronto, re construction of incinerator for the disposal of garbage.—Referred to Property Committee.

From the Great Water Ways Union of Canada asking for municipal co-operation in the matter of improving the inland waters. Referred to the Mayor for further consideration.

On motion of Ald. Duffus and Duncan, the Governor-General will, at the suggestion of Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., be invited to pay Peterborough an official visit—in 1913, if not possible this year as is advised.

From J. W. McCullough, Chief Health Officer of Ontario, enclosing the following complaint received at the Provincial Board of Health office: "(1) The police station is officially condemned. (2) The cells are wet and not drained properly. (3) The Chief Constable says, 'It is in an unsanitary condition and unfit for use.' (4) A man was found with his throat cut, dead in one of the cells recently. (5) The city puts its sewage into the river and poisons the whole Province."—Referred to the Property Committee.

REGISTRAR'S FEES.

Although the Finance Committee at the last meeting decided to dispute the demand of the Registrars for $10 a day for deputies' fees in connection with the last manhood suffrage registration, apart from their own charges, as reported in these columns of Friday's issue, his Worship last night was doubtful if the stand taken by the Council would be sustained in the courts. He advised his colleagues to give the matter further consideration, and leave the matter in abeyance for a few days, pending strictest enquiry into legality of the charges.

Ald. Johnston—"It may be law to pay the Registrars $10 per day each for work they did not do, and their deputies $10 a day for duties they discharged in the authorized Registrar's absence. And if that is the law, the sooner it is changed the better."

Ald. Buller, while recognizing the law in this particular to be unjust, advised that it would be better to pay the account than to have a law suit on the city's hands. The matter might be left in abeyance pending further enquiries, and if the charges are found to be legal then get our member to endeavor to effect an amendment of the law.

Ald Morgan offered that the Finance Committee had acted on the Solicitor's advice, and the Solicitor should be held responsible for the result.

The City Solicitor replied that he had given his opinion, but would not guarantee that the city would win in the courts. The law in this respect can be read in two ways, and one cannot tell how a judge could interpret it. The Dominion Parliament had paid such deputies as well as authorized Registrars. Still, Mr. Adams, City Treasurer, had written 12 municipalities in this connection, and finds that only one out of the twelve had paid their registrars for work they had not done.

Ald. Gillespie opined that were this matter taken up quietly with the Registrars they would be found reasonable and not inclined to force their claim, which may be in accordance with the law, but still unjust.

On motion of Ald. Buller, seconded by Ald. Gillespie, this question was referred back to the Finance Committee.

MILK BY-LAW AMENDED.

The milk by-law was amended by adding a clause making it a penalty offence to sell milk in bottles that have not been thoroughly cleaned after collected from customers.

GRANT TO S.A. BAND.

The Salvation Army Band was granted $200 by by-law.

TO BORROW $10,000.

A By-law authorizing the borrowing of $10,000 to pay for water works extensions during 1911 passed its several readings.

DOG BY-LAW.

The dog by-law was amended by the insertion of a clause absolutely prohibiting the running at large of bitches in the city of Peterborough.

PRICE OF MILK.

Ald. Brown reported that investigation by the Legal Committee had elicited the fact that the milk vendors' written agreement was more in protection against deadbeats than for any other purpose. They are willing to produce such document which contains no "forfeit" clause, at any time.

Ald. Gordon said that the prices charged now are not excessive, in the face of the price of feed and other conditions.

Ald Johnston took this view.

T.A.S. EXEMPTION.

At this juncture Ald. Morgan wanted to know if Ald. Brown had shelved the enquiry into the city's power regarding the T.A.S. exemption ruled valid by Judge Huycke.

Ald. Brown replied that the Council knew what had been done in the matter and had Ald. Morgan any concrete enquiries to make, both the Solicitor and he would answer them.

Ald. Duncan interposed that at the next meeting, he would be in a position to explain the situation in this regard.

Aldermen Brown and Graham raised the question of inviting the "Old Boys" excursionists from British Columbia and the West to Ontario and Eastern Canada this summer, to drop off at this city. The Clerk was instructed to write the Chairman of the Committee in charge of this coming event, to this effect.

IS IT A WASTE OF SALARY?

Ald. Gordon enquired of Chairman Ald. Duncan of the Property Committee, if the Plumbing Inspector had ever furnished a report of the lists he had made and other work done.

Ald. Duncan knew of no case where the Inspector had applied the smoke test.

Ald. Brown and Graham offered that they had found the plumbing inspector very thorough in his duties in fact they characterized him as a crank in insisting upon the proper execution of plumbing work.

Ald. Morgan—"I feel that the plumbing inspector is holding his position out of sympathy."

Ald Gordon moved that the plumbing inspector report to the Property Committee, as to tests applied and the working out of his duties.

Ald. Anderson seconded the resolution, and said "I agree with Ald Gordon. A report should be made. I don't believe the inspector is doing his duty, and his salary to a large extent is being wasted."

Ald. Duncan replied that he was willing to take this matter up, as whenever he wanted the inspector, he invariably found him in a 5c show or some other place than where duty called.

The resolution carried.

WATER GALORE!

Moved by Ald. Gordon, seconded by Ald Gillespie, That the 10th of an acre water lot adjoining the old Wm. English property be conveyed to the C.P.R., the city's interests in any adjacent land east of the spur line being duly safe-guarded.—Carried.

WHO OWNS THE BAND INSTRUMENTS.

Ald. Anderson contended that in view of the annual grant of $500 given to the 57th Regiment Band, the city should be clear as to the ownership of the instruments, which he understood were in reality city property. This band also gets use of their hall free another $100, and the city pays insurance on the instruments. In this case he thought the Council should hold a list of the instruments in use and should receive a report of all new ones added from time to time.

Ald. Buller replied, that Peterborough should be proud of its band, which deserved another $500 could the city but afford it. Lindsay gives its band $700 a year and Berlin $1000 a year. Our band is willing to play oftener if called upon, and wherever requested to give a concert; they admit to be at the service of the people.

Ald. Anderson—"I am justly as proud of the band as anyone else, in fact I am a past member of the organization, but I think it only right we should have a list of the instruments in case an adjustment of insurance is called for at ant time."

It was generally conceded that such a list is on file. However, the matter will be enquired into.

His Worship and Ald Duncan were authorized to settle Rutherford Bros account re Public Library.

MUNICIPAL AND SCHOOL TAX RULE OF PETERBOROUGH FIFTH LOWEST IN THE PROVINCE

IN REGARD TO OUR MUNICIPAL RATE ALONE WE STAND SECOND.

Finance Minister Ald. Anderson Contends That People Who Complain of Peterborough's Tax Rate are Not Conversant With the Facts in Comparison With Other Municipalities—Our 22 Mill Rate for 1912 Includes Street Watering on a General Rate and Provides for Considerable Increase in Demands Upon the City's Treasury.

The tax rate of 22 mills for 1912, as struck by the Finance Committee on Thursday night was sustained by the City Council last night, and a by-law passed to that effect. In presenting the estimates, as already published in these columns, Finance Minister, Ald. Anderson, offered that the Council should be congratulated in having kept the rate down to 22 mills—the same as last year—instead of striking an increase as was at one time felt would be necessary in order to meet the increased demands upon the City's Treasury. Amongst the institutions calling for enlarged appropriations for 1912 are the Board of Education $3000, Public Library $1000, Police Commissioners $1700, Queen Mary Hospital $600, Fire Department (in salaries) between $600 and $700, Water Commissioners $400. The actual appropriation for the latter, however, has been kept down to the same amount as that for 1911. To offset these increases there is an increase in the assessment of $300,000. But, Ald. Anderson urged, the chairmen of the several departments must take warning that it is absolutely necessary to keep within their appropriations, as no provisions has been made for excesses in this respect. The 22 mill rate for this year should be considered better than the 22 mill rate of last year, inasmuch as the cost of street watering—estimated at $3000—is to come out of the general rate. It is only fair, however, continued Ald. Anderson, to admit that the abolition of discounts on taxes evens things up in this regard.

In conclusion the Finance Minister contended that comparing Peterborough with 18 other municipalities in this Province, our municipal and school rate ranks fifth lowest, and on municipal rate alone, second lowest. A great deal of complaint has been heard as to Peterborough's high rate of taxes from citizens ignorant as to conditions elsewhere, and it would be well for the general public to bear in mind the foregoing facts.

The rate for 1912 is distributed as follows:

FARMERS BANK ENQUIRY MARCH 13TH AT OTTAWA

Preliminary Meeting Held This Morning at Osgoode Hall—Travers May be Called to Give Evidence

Toronto, Mar. 4.—An informal preliminary session of the inquiry into the wrecking of the Farmers Bank, to be conducted under Royal Commission by Chief Justice Sir William Meredith, was held this morning in the new wing of Osgoode Hall, when it was decided to open the investigation at Ottawa on Wednesday, March 13th, at 11 a.m.

The Royal Commission appointing Sir William to conduct the investigation, was first read, after which a short discussion took place as to the most convenient time to open the proceedings.

Mr. F. E. Hodgson, K.C., representing the Government in the case, suggested the above date and place, which were readily agreed upon by all those present, who included Messrs. James Bain, representing Mr. G. T. Clarkson the liquidator, who was also present; William Laidlaw, K.C., representing the depositors of Halton County and of Wingham; J. H. Spence, Mr. D. J. Grant, representing the directors of the bank; W. C. Mikel, representing depositors Chas. Swabey, and others.

WERE DELAYED.

Mr. Laidlaw pointed out that personal representatives of the depositors in Halton County and in Wingham were on their way to Toronto, but had been delayed by the train service.

AN ANSWER TO "ELECTOR."

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Does "Elector," writing in Saturday night's Examiner, think for one minute that he can mislead the rank and file Conservative voter? We have his measure and there are a hundred like him on the street—Conservative in name only. They voted Stratton and covertly sneered at Mr Burnham's chances, and now they are sore. Would a well-bred Conservative carry his complaints to the enemy's camp, when they could be aired through papers like the Times and Review? No one but a mongrel cur of the stamp of "Elector" would be guilty of such baseness. But, listen to me, Mr. "Elector," the day is past when the local big-wigs of the Conservative party in this city, who voted Conservative one day and Reform the next, can direct the party vote. Their days are numbered, and no matter how

OIL OIL OIL

Oil is King--King of Fuel for all purposes

Without it the automobile could not exist. Just as soon as a supply can be depended on, ships on every ocean, sea, lake, and river, will be propelled by it. The British Admirality are building warships to be propelled by it. The great railway transportation companies are altering their locomotives to be driven by it. The cooking stoves and heating plants in every district where it can be secured are being made to use it—in fact the whole civilized world is crying out for it.

And we have it—have the piece of the earth's crust where it is bursting out and spilling over in such quantities that we are able to collect it from the surface of the pools, put it in bottles, and have it analyzed, and here is what the analytical chemist has to say of it:

MILK YOU CANNOT SPILL

The people of Siberia often buy their milk frozen, and for convenience it is allowed to freeze about a stick which forms a handle to carry it by.

The milkman leaves one chunk or two as the case may be, at the homes of his customers. The children of Irkutsk, instead of crying for a drink of milk, cry for a bite of milk. The people in winter-time do not say, "Be careful not to spill the milk," but "be careful not to break the milk." Broken milk is better than spilled milk though, because there is an opportunity to save the pieces.

A quart of frozen milk on a stick is a very formidable weapon in the hand of an angry man or boy, as it is possible to knock a person down with it. Irkutsk people hang their milk on hooks instead of putting it in pans though, of course, when warm spring weather comes, pans and pails are used, as the milk begins to melt.—Answers.

THE HEAD OF THE HOUSE

There is a man who fancies he is the head of his house. This particular man has several small children, and it pleases him to discourse a great deal on the training of children. A few days ago he had friends visiting him. His two little sons began to play about noisily. It is one of his theories that children should obey implicitly. He wanted his friends to see how he carried it out in the training of his own children.

"Johnny," he said, sternly, "stop that noise instantly.

Johnny looked up in surprise, then grinned a little.

"Oh, Freddy," he said to his brother, as they went on with the noise, "just hear papa trying to talk like mamma."

KILLING FOWLS FOR THE MARKET

Some Useful Instructions to Amateur Poultry Keeper's Regarding Killing and Packing

There are many amateur poultry keepers who have surplus cockerels they wish to kill for the table but who find the operation unpleasant and difficult. Professional poulterers and many farmers have so much practice in killing fowls that it becomes easy and simple. The novice, however, is often unintentionally guilty of cruelty, and of causing needless pain, in his clumsy efforts to deprive the birds of life. When possible, it is desirable to have a practical lesson from a person who understands how it should be done, but this is not always to be had.

How to Kill

A method almost invariably adopted by poulterers, and one that is considered the best, is to dislocate the neck. This is accomplished by taking the [illegible] grasping the head with the right, with the thumb and fingers around the throat The fowl is then placed across the knees, breast downward, with the neck held over the right knee. The neck is then quickly and firmly extended and the head bent suddenly back with some force. By this means the neck should be dislocated just below the junction with the head. If the fowl is afterwards suspended by the legs the blood quickly flows into the cavity between the broken vertebrae and the neck.

Another Method

If the operator is too nervous or unable to manage this method, a simple way is to hang the bird up by the legs, which are tied together with a piece of string, and to stick it with a sharp, small knife in the jugular vein, behind the ear. Another way is to take the fowl by the legs, and with a short, thick stick, strike a sharp blow across the back of the head. This causes instant insensibility and death. The flesh will become white if the bird is hung up afterwards by the legs.

No Food for 24 Hours

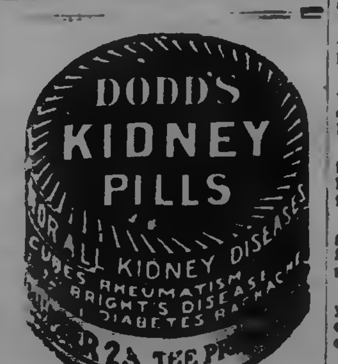
Before the fowls are killed they must have no food for twenty-four hours. If this is not done the food in the crop turns sour, the flesh becomes discolored, and the body quickly decomposes. If chickens are intended for the market the details of plucking and shaping must be carefully attended to. Some practice is necessary to enable the plucking to be done well. This can be accomplished more easily when the bird is warm, as the feathers then come out with little effort. Poultry that has been specially fattened and prepared for the table are tender, and the skin tears quickly.

Carefully Packed

When fowls are sent to a poulterer they must be carefully packed in a flat basket or box, lined with clean straw, and the straw covered with white paper. The birds are placed breast downwards, close together, and packed tightly to prevent shaking about on the journey. The feathers should be sorted at the time of plucking. Those from ducks and geese are worth more than those from ordinary fowls, and white feathers are more valuable than colored ones.

Killing Ducks

Ducks are generally killed by a knife thrust through the roof of the mouth into the brain. A usual way of killing geese is to strike a smart blow at the back of the neck, and then to run a sharp pointed knife into the hollow at the junction of the head and neck. Turkeys are killed much in the same way as ducks, the wings being crossed to prevent struggling.



Application To Parliament

NOTICE is hereby given that an application will be made on behalf of the City of Peterborough to the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario, at the present Session thereof, for an Act to amend the Acts relating to the City of Peterborough, to give the said City authority to expropriate the property, plant and appliances, situated within the Municipality, of any person, firm or Corporation engaged in the business of supplying light, heat or power for sale.

"UNDER THE WEATHER"

Why We Don't Work Well When It is Wet and Gloomy

Most of us know, in a general way, what to be "under the weather" means.

Gloomy, rainy weather brings depression, just as spring sunshine means light-heartedness. Scientists have of recent years been turning their attention to this interesting question of the effect of the weather upon our moods and actions, and they can show lots of curious results that most of us would never have guessed at.

The weather, for instance, has a decided effect on the work of bank clerks. Inquiries have been made from banks as to the number of serious slips made in computation—slips, that is, which are not corrected immediately, but only discovered next day. And the results of the inquiry are curious.

Most blunders are made in foggy, muggy, or excessively hot weather. The most accurate work is done in calm, fine weather, provided the barometer is not too high. For when the barometer is very high the work suffers. A very high barometer brings a tense, energetic feeling which, it is suggested, makes the clerk drive confidently on with his counting, instead of taking his usual care.

In the Bank of England the influence of the weather is recognized. Certain important books are never entrusted to the clerks on gloomy, foggy days, or very hot ones.

Practically the same results are shown in the case of typists, though, owing to the more sensitive nervous organization of women, the results are more marked. Typists and bank clerks alike, and, indeed, most workers, benefit by windy weather. The higher the wind the better, for wind brings into the stuffy air of cities that [illegible] oxygen.

Few people feel as energetic on damp days as they do on dry. The reason is that the earth is constantly radiating its electricity into space. The damper the air is the less well it acts as a conductor to this electricity. It is this electricity that gives our physical and mental energy the keen edge we miss on damp days.

A study of over 12,000 assault cases at the police courts shows that there is a steady rise in number from January to August. Temperature and fighting go together. But on the very hottest days assault cases are few. People are too limp.

Suicides increase in number from January to August, too. But for suicides the very hottest days are the worst. The number that take place in April, however, is curiously high each year—almost as high as the August figures, a fact for which all sorts of fanciful explanations have been given. One is that when no practical results come from the new hope that comes to even the most hopeless with the bright days of early spring, despair sets in again more bitterly than ever.

Statistics compiled from schools show that it is on hot, muggy days that boys do the most inaccurate work, and are most restless.

Calm, cold days are the best, from the teacher's point of view. Wind brings an amount of physical energy that makes discipline harder to keep. On dull, cloudy days behavior is good, but less work is done than usual. Girls, [illegible] though afterwards they change decidedly in this respect, do not seem to be affected by the weather at all.

It was only recently that the manager of a great northern firm declared that on a day that was either very wet, or very hot, or very close, the work of the three thousand men under him went down at least five per cent., both in quantity and quality.—Answers.

NEVER MISSED THE MATE

Summer had come, and the sea-captain's wife was accompanying her husband across the ocean. And it chanced also that the owner's sister was making the trip. She was a strong-minded woman, and the wife of the captain, knowing the argumentative nature of her husband, saw serious trouble ahead.

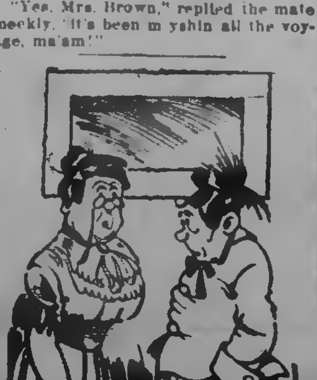
Wherefore, she warned him that, when at meals, if she thought he was approaching dangerous ground, she would give him a polite reminder by kicking him on the shins.

But, alas, her reminders passed unheeded, though her kicks grew harder and harder. And one day she kicked more vigorously than ever.

The shadow of pain passed across the face of the mate, who sat opposite her.

"Oh, Mr. Boddy," she said, "I'm so sorry; but was that your shin?"

"Yes, Mrs. Brown," replied the mate meekly, "it's been my shin all the voyage, ma'am!"



NOT SUPERSTITIOUS

Lady:—"I'll pay you twelve dollars a month. By the way, are you superstitious?"

New Maid:—"Not at all, ma'am. You can make it thirteen dollars if you like."

DECLINED A SECOND ROUND

The judge of a Western court decided a point adversely to a certain lawyer. The lawyer was stubborn, and insisted that the judge was wrong.

"I tell you that I'm right!" yelled the judge, with flashing eyes.

"I tell you that you are not!" retorted the counsel.

"Crier!" yelled the judge, "I adjourn the court for ten minutes."

He pitched into the counsel, and after a sharp fight placed him hors de combat, after which business was resumed. But it was not long before another misunderstanding arose.

"Crier!" yelled the judge, "we will adjourn this time for twenty minutes."

"Never mind, judge," cried the counsel; "keep on your coat—the point is yielded. My thumb is out of joint and I've sprained my shoulder."

A WONDERFUL CLUB

The Unique History of an Australian Racing Organization.

A remarkable organization is the Onkaparinga Jockey Club, a South Australian club, which has been in existence for thirty-six years, operating on only one day in the year, Easter Monday. Yet it is not an insignificant institution, by any means, and some interesting statistics were quoted at the recent meeting. Taking the figures for the last twenty-three years (since the totalizator was introduced) it had disbursed £163,251. Of this sum £52,920 had been paid in stakes; the improvements and upkeep of the course had cost £15,44[illegible]; and £27,087 had been spent in wages. Charities had benefited to the extent of £2,358, and the Government had been paid £1,920 as stamp tax (in n[illegible] years only). This year the club is offering 2,750 sovereigns for seven races. The club is making improvements to the extent of 2,000 sovereigns, and will carry forward a balance of about £1,000.

Ideal Protection Against Inroads of Catarrh

BY BREATHING THE RICH, BALSAMIC VAPOR OF CATARRHOZONE YOU PREVENT AND CURE ALL HEAD, NOSE AND THROAT DISEASE.

Remember this: You don't take drugs when using Catarrhozone; you simply inhale a healing vapor that cures every type of catarrh, bronchitis, asthma, throat and nose soreness and irritation.

No medicine brings such prompt relief, exerts such an invigorating influence, or so thoroughly and speedily following my occupation of furniture cures throat troubles, as "Catarrhozone." Doctors, hospitals, sanitariums, all say that for those who suffer from changeable weather, for those who are predisposed to catarrh, lung trouble, deafness, or bronchitis, no treatment is so indispensable as "Catarrhozone."

Victim of Chronic Catarrh Cured.

I contracted a severe cold while travelling, and eventually it developed into Catarrh. The desultory mode of life I was following gave me very little chance to attend to the Catarrh condition, and at last I became a victim of Chronic Catarrh. I bought a large package of Catarrhozone, used it as per directions, and have never been bothered since. I will be only too glad to give any information I possess to any person suffering from the disease that was the bane of my life two years.

RIGHT-HAND PITCHERS STEADIER THAN LEFT

Weird Performances Would Give Impression in Favor of the Southpaws.

The weird performances of some left-handed pitchers have given fans the impression that practically all southpaws are of the wild and woolly variety. The averages tell a different story. A comparison of the records of the five leading right-handed pitchers of the major leagues with those of the five best left-handers shows that the control of the southpaw is almost as good at that of the starboard fingers.

National League right-handers were somewhat steadier than left-handers, and the port hurlers of the National were a trifle wilder than those in the American.

Bender, Coombs, Ford, Johnson and Walsh are the leading American League right-handers. The five gave 359 passes in 1,525 innings, or 169 nine-inning games, making an average of little over two passes per game. Gregg, Plank, Collins, Vaughan and White, the leading southpaws gave 296 passes in 1,056 innings, or an average of 2½ per game in 117 nine-inning games.

Alexander, Matheson, Brown, Adams and Suggs, of the crack right-handers of the National League, averaged two passes for every nine innings. Marquard, Salle, Wiltse, Rucker and Leifield, the crack lefthanders of the same organization, averaged 2 2-3 bases on balls a game.

Christy Matheson, averaged one, Ed. Walsh's average was about 1½ per battle. "Doc." White was the steadiest of all the left-handers, with only 1½ passes per nine innings. Leifield of the Pirates was the steadiest National left-hander, with 2 1-8 passes per nine innings.

HARD TO RECOGNIZE

Critically the friend of the artist regarded the weird conglomeration of color which stood on the easel before him. He stepped back, bent forward, looked at it sideways, and twisted his head in all directions.

"What do you think of it?" questioned the aspiring R. A.

"Good! Very good!" his friend answered. "It's a perfect portrait; only —ah—I should be inclined to criticize one little detail. The original is scarcely so red in the face as you have painted him."

The artist gasped.

"What on earth are you talking about?" he asked.

"Your picture! It's your uncle's, of course?"

"My uncle's?" cried the amazed wielder of the brush. "That—that my uncle? Why, it's the sunset. Don't you see the title, 'Sunset and Evening Star'?"

Anti-Humbug.

THE "NE TEMERE" DECREE.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—In the report of the sermon of his Grace Archbishop Bruchesi in Monday's paper he is stated to have said:

"Marriage, like all other sacraments, belongs to the Church, and consequently it belongs to the Church to direct everything that concerns the validity of marriage. Such was the doctrine of the Catholic Church before the Protestant Reformation, and such will it be in all time. If, however, our separated brethren have rejected it, if they have made marriage a simple contract, submitted like all others to the civil power, which may be dissolved or governed at its will, let them at least allow us to remain faithful to our secular traditions, and in the name of that liberty which they claim for themselves let them permit us to act according to the convictions of our faith."

From this it would appear that his Grace has arrived at the conclusion that his "separated brethren" are in some way endeavoring to deprive Roman Catholics of some sacred privilege, or to interfere with their right to regard marriage as sacred and religious.

Nothing, however, is farther from the fact. It is because his "separated brethren" also regard the marriage tie as sacred and religious that they have protested, and probably will continue to protest, against his Grace or anyone else pretending or assuming to dissolve so solemn and sacred a tie for any insufficient and inadequate reasons.

His Grace refers to the doctrine of the Roman part of the Church prior to the Reformation, and assumes that it was then the same as it is now. It is true it did then, as now, regard marriage as a sacrament, and, therefore, a matter properly within the jurisdiction of the Church; and in this view the temporal powers of Europe generally acquiesced. But the doctrine of the Church prior to the Reformation is this—that the mutual consent of competent parties to take each other as husband and wife constituted a valid marriage, and that no religious ceremony whatever was essential to its validity; and, although its solemnization in the face of the Church was enjoined, still the omission of the religious ceremony did not render a marriage null from the religious point of view, although in England it would not be recognized by the temporal authority unless solemnized in the face of the Church.

The Council of Trent, held after the Reformation, endeavored to change the doctrine of the Church concerning marriage and endeavored to make solemnization before a priest essential to its validity; and for that purpose made a law quite suitable for a country where all the inhabitants were Romanists, to the effect that all marriages should be solemnized by a priest of the parish where the parties reside. But this law is not suited to the country where all the inhabitants are not Romanists, and where the State has seen fit to authorize others besides Roman priests to solemnize marriages. Such a country is Canada. And, moreover in Canada the State has made ample provision to guard against clandestine marriages, which it was the main object of the decree of the Council of Trent to prevent.

What has been objected to is not that Roman Catholics have regarded marriage with sanctity and reverence not that they regard it as a sacrament; not that they think when once entered into it is irrevocable, but the objection is absolutely the reverse of all this—viz., that, although professing to regard the marriage tie with great reverence and as a sacrament and as forming an indissoluble bond, they have nevertheless, in spite of these professions, declared marriages, which, according to the ancient doctrine of the Catholic Church, were valid and binding in the sight of God, to be invalid and null and void, because he who received the consent of the parties was not a priest of the Roman obedience, although according to the ancient doctrine of the Church no priest at all is essential to a valid marriage.

Yours, etc.,
Geo. S. Holmested.

Peter E. Summers relates his experience:
"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, but received little benefit. I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the New Method Treatment and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and continue to do so."

MOLLY ON THE MAKE

There never was such a baby!

Though father said it, who shouldn't, and mother said it, who shouldn't, and everybody said it but those who should —well, there never was!

"Molly, my love," cried daddy, bouncing in upon his seven-year-old, "Uncle George has just arrived, and he's enraptured. He said 'There never was such a baby!' and he offered to buy her for $5 an ounce."

"You're not going to sell her, are you?" asked Molly, with wide-open eyes.

"No, my precious," cried the delighted father, embracing her affectionately over this show of proper sentiment.

"Because," resumed Molly, "she'll be heavier when she's older and'll fetch more!"

NOT AN IMPOSTOR

He was a poor, downtrodden specimen of humanity, and the heart of the millionaire merchant was touched. He stopped for a moment to listen to the beggar's plea.

"I'm starving, sir," wailed the unfortunate one, and tears stood in his eyes. "And this is the last thing we have in the world—my poor wife's wedding-ring!"

Then the merchant remembered. He looked more closely into the man's face, and, all of a sudden, became exceedingly mad.

"You—you scoundrel!" he spluttered. "Why, it was only last week I bought your wife's wedding-ring from you to save you from starvation! You're an impostor, sir! Get—"

"An impostor!" cried the weary one indignantly. "Oh, no, sir! You're quite mistaken! This ring belongs to my second wife—I was married again last Monday!"

PRESENCE OF MIND

It was the annual concert of the Slowcombe Philharmonic Society, and the young man who came from the city was obviously bored.

At last one singer tried him more than usual. Lines of pain showed on his face as he leaned forward to express himself audibly to his elderly neighbor; for the young man, being musical, felt the need of sympathy.

"Did you ever hear, in the whole course of your existence," he whispered, in disgust, "such horribly discordant, ear-splitting—"

The old gentleman frowned.

"That's my daughter, sir, and if—"

But the young man waved aside the interruption, and, with scarcely a tremor, went on.

"Such ear-splitting chatter as these idiots behind us are making? Really, I can scarcely catch one word of the song!"

"Beg pardon, madam," replied the guard; "but I can't possibly attend to two trains at once."

OLYMPIC CHANCES

A. E. Wood Thinks American Athletes Will Defeat Those from England

A. E. Wood, Toronto, the professional ten mile champion of Great Britain is reported as giving the following interview in New York on the coming Olympic games:

"I do not think that England has a ghost of a chance to beat you," said Wood, "and if England cannot do it, who can? I have been in close touch with athletic doings at home, though I have been away for months. As far as I can see Great Britain will do well to hold her own in her favorite distance runs. In the sprints, jumps, and weights the quick-learning Yankees cannot be beaten. If Great Britain does anything startling in these events her colonists will have to turn the trick. Our people, for some reason, do not take to the athletic work with the enthusiasm that is shown by the Americans. We excel in the long races mostly because every lad learns to walk and run long distances as a matter of course. I believe that if Englishmen were to take to the jumps, weights, and sprints with the same fervor that the young men in this country do we could turn out just as good men as you do. The wonderful performances of your athletes in all branches, even this early in the year, bespeaks wonders for the sport in this country. I might say, too, that you will have to fear the Germans in the jumps and sprints, but not in the weights. However, I think that the Americans will triumph, because of the superiority of your training methods and the "headwork" that the Americans will show when the pinch comes."

THINKS QUEAL BEST MAN

Sherring Says That Yankee Crack Can Take Tom Longboat's Measure.

Billy Sherring, who in his day was one of Canada's best distance runners, and who has been the only man to bring the world's championship Marathon title to Canada, when he won the Grecian Marathon at Athens in 1906, says that Tom Longboat is not the best man in the world at the middle distances. He claims that Billy Queal, the Yankee crack of Alexandria Bay, N.Y., is the best man. Queal is the only man living that can show his heels to Longboat and make him taste defeat," said Sherring. "I am not underestimating the Indian, but Queal is the better of the two. Shrubb has only beaten him twice, although they have met on many occasions. He beat Longboat at the island, the only time they met, and he made the pace so hot that the Indian left the track at four miles. This boy Queal is only a youngster yet, and is the makings of a wonderful runner. I was in New York recently, and Martin Sheridan told me that he saw Queal run a mile in 4.21, and on another occasion, while working out with Mel Sheppard, he did better than 2 minutes for half a mile, and gave Sheppard a rattling chase in the bargain. I don't think Bonhag can beat this boy at George's own distance."

WANT THE STRAPS BARRED.

At the meeting of the Rules Committee of the American Trotting Association a deputation representing a large number of members appeared and argued that the rule barring hopples should not be rescinded at present; that in their opinion it had not been given a fair trail, as it had only applied to two or three year olds and that it should be continued in force at least two years longer. This deputation further showed that pacing races in which hopples had been barred offered by the State fairs of Iowa, Nebraska and South Dakota over half-mile tracks had proved more successful and received more entries and starters than had those in which hopples were hon barred.

WAR IS A SPORT

George Bernard Shaw in a Characteristic Dissertation

The Paris journal, Le Monde Illustre, publishes a remarkable and highly characteristic letter from George Bernard Shaw in connection with an international referendum on war.

"War," Mr. Shaw says, "is not a necessity; it is a sport. It is indeed the highest of sports, because men, as well as animals, are hunted and killed in it. Like all sports, it is hedged round with a code of artificial rules, the object of which is to restrict the possible results within tolerable limits."

He proceeds to draw a detailed parallel between war and boxing, pointing out that, just as hitting below the belt, putting the eyes out, and similar things are ruled out because, if they were allowed, the contest would degenerate from a sport into a brutal battle, so explosive bullets, the slaughter of non-combatants, pillage and rapine are forbidden in modern warfare, Red Cross services for the aid of the injured are organised and protected, and congresses are held from time to time at Geneva and The Hague to maintain the beauty of the ancient sport (for as such it is still considered) by putting new restrictions on its more unpleasant features. However, Mr. Shaw continues, these congresses have not succeeded in restoring the ancient etiquette of former times, when war was the sport of Kings. He goes on:—

"From the time when the French Revolution made it a democratic affair there has been growing a rather vulgar tendency to take it more and more seriously.

Napoleon, according to the time-honored rules, was beaten at Marengo, but he changed this defeat into a victory by refusing to accept the referee's verdict and making a fresh attack when the contest was, strictly speaking, over and the Austrians had gone home to tea.

OLYMPIA HORSE SHOW

An Elaborate Scheme of Decoration Will Convey Semi-Tropical Effect.

The International Horse Show at Olympia this year will open on June 17 and close on June 29. Olympia will again be transformed by an elaborate scheme of decoration, and the display will certainly not fail to surpass previous efforts.

There is to be a semi-tropical effect. Everything will be done to convey the impression of coolness. Large yucca trees will dot the arena and feathery dracaenas will delight the eye. Jassamine, clematis, wisteria, convolvus, and other flowering creepers will twine themselves around ornamental trellises above the heads of the visitors and mingle with the palms' foliage. There will be ramblers in choice variety. The royal terrace and the staircase leading to it will be of Sicilian marble.

The directors, with Lord Lonsdale at their head, are preparing a handsome prize list, totalling over [illegible].

Several novelties will be introduced to the already comprehensive programme. One of these will be a display of the dignified "haute ecole," now seldom seen in this country.

One of the most interesting features will be the riding display by the military teams of various nationalities, affording an excellent opportunity of contrasting the different schools of riding. The military jumping will certainly excite international rivalry.

The prize most treasured is the Edward VII. gold cup, open to teams of three officers. The nation has to win the trophy thrice before retaining it. France has now won it twice and Belgium once.

Another valuable gold cup is offered by the Duke of Connaught for competition among English officers.

FIGURE SKATING.

The figure-skating championship of the world for ladies was decided at Davos, Switzerland, and had seven competitors. The holder of the title, Frau L. Von Szent Gyorgyi-Kronenberger of Budapest, did not appear to defend it, but the honor went back to Budapest, nevertheless, the winner being Fraulein Opika Von Meray-Horvath, from the Hungarian capital. Mrs Greenhough Smith of London was second, and for third honors there was a tie between two other English ladies, Mrs. J. H. Johnson and Miss G. Lycett. The other competitors were Austrians.

SMILE YOUR WAY ALONG

"You can't smile your way to the top in the pugilistic game, but you can smile while your're fighting your way up." This is the motto of Ray Bronson, claimant of the welterweight championship and a willing defender of his claims against all comers in that division.

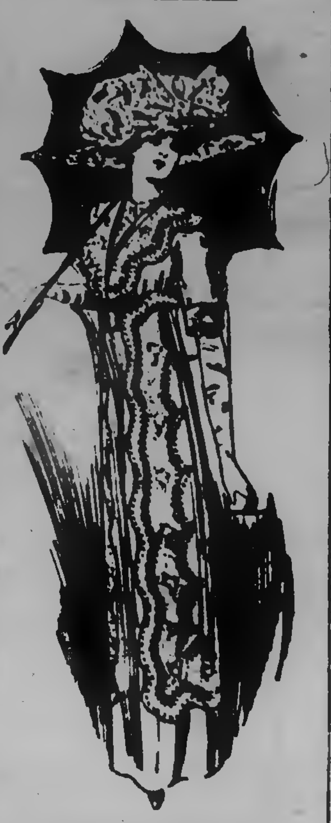
THE QUEEN AND DRESS

Her Majesty Dislikes the Collarless Blouse and Elbow Sleeve

It is a well-known fact that Queen Mary, although always beautifully dressed, is extremely strict on the subject of what she considers the correct garments to be worn by the ladies of her court. The latest freaks of Dame Fashion—viz., the collarless blouse and elbow sleeve, have incurred her displeasure to a great extent, and she has intimated that she would prefer her ladies to discard them.



STUNNING LINEN GOWN

Plain and embroidered linens are put together in the manner shown in above sketch, which introduces the short waist line and surplice collar on bodice. The latter when becoming is most effective, but one must be sure of one's figure to wear it satisfactorily. The tunic arrangement of embroidered line is new and opens over the plain linen in panel effect.

The hat worn with this frock is allover embroidery, trimmed with rose leaves.

CLEANING HINTS

Removing Grease Marks From a Wall —How to Make Boards White

To Clean Finger Marks from a painted wall damp a clean cloth and dip it in whiting, apply, and the stains will disappear.

Grease on a Wall can generally be eradicated by covering with clean blotting paper, and then passing a warm iron over it.

To Clean Enamelled Dishes when burned, dip a flannel cloth in fine ashes and rub with it, when all the stains will, without any further trouble, disappear.

Remove Ink Spots from furniture with a solution of nitre, white spots with spirits of camphor or hot milk and turpentine and stains on mahogany with a cork dipped in oxalic [illegible] diluted with water.

Before Washing new lace curtains, calico, or anything containing lime, soak overnight in water to which a penny packet of salt has been added. This takes out all the lime, and consequently saves much work, annoyance, and soap.

In Order to Make boards white they should not be washed with soap and water. Instead of soap use one part of newly-slaked lime and three parts of common white sand, and the boards will become beautifully white and clean.

When White Patches occur on the dining-table caused by hot plates and dishes being placed on it, touch them up with a brush that has been dipped in spirits of nitre, and directly afterwards rub with a cloth moistened with sweet oil.

If your Cellar is Damp, break up a lump of lime in a box, and place it on the floor, when all dampness and smell will quickly disappear. The same method can be followed with damp cupboards, but the lime must be changed from time to time, or it will cause dry rot in the woodwork.

The Wire Foundation of the modern bedstead soon ruins a hair or wool mattress unless some steps are taken to prevent the mischief. Either the wire portion must be covered over with coarse canvas or holland, or with sheets of strong brown paper. In the former case the material must be attached to the wire by tapes; in the latter, fasten with safety-pins.

An Easily-Made and effective cement for broken china is made by mixing a thick solution of gum arabic to a paste with plaster of Paris. Dissolve a pennyworth of gum arabic in a little boiling water; when cold mix with sufficient plaster of Paris, and apply to edges of article immediately. Press firmly together, and a strong joint will result.

Where Carpets are dispensed with in favor of rugs, a floor may be enamelled either in ebony or a nice rich brown shade. This makes a pleasing change to the ordinary staining and varnishing, and, moreover, an enamelled floor is easily washed and kept bright and new. Before painting the boards so that they are as clean and smooth as possible. Coarse emery paper will help to remove rough places, and if paraffin is used in the water, the washing of the floor will be an easy job, for there is nothing like paraffin for getting out the dirt quickly.

Fifteen new autos are already ordered for this city for Spring delivery, and about ten more are coming in trade or exchange. And still people talk of hard times.

Robins in Port Hope.

Port Hope Guide says: "Robins, sure harbingers of spring, and crows have made their appearance here. No doubt the soft weather of the past week encouraged the birds to come early; still we can hardly expect that the cold weather has entirely disappeared." We would not doubt the writer of the above, but it is almost impossible of belief in Peterborough in view of past and present weather.

FOOD VALUE OF CHEESE

Fresh Meat Has Little More Than Half its Nourishment

A comparison of the food value of cheese with that of other highly nitrogenous food materials may be of interesting value. No kind of meat excepting dried beef carries such a large percentage of protein as cheese, and as dried beef contains a much greater percentage of water, the other food constituents, apart from the protein, are much less than is found in cheese. Fresh beef as purchased has, weight for weight, little more than half the food value of cheese in either protein or fat, and the same is true of practically all other fresh meats, which have in many cases such a large percentage of water than they are noticeably inferior to cheese in food value. Bacon or pork fat are exceptions, but their food value is mostly in the fat, which can be and is replaced to a great extent by the carbohydrates of vegetables at a much less cost, and sometimes, perhaps, at a benefit to the health of the consumer. Fish and pork each have a notably large percentage of refuse, while eggs have a high percentage of water. To sum the matter up, a pound of cheese has nearly the same food value as two pounds of fresh beef, or any other fresh meat, as food; it is worth as much as or more than a pound of ham, and is more digestible, and it is equal to two pounds of eggs or three pounds of fish.

NOVEL PLACE OF WORSHIP

A Bishop Has Consecrated a Chapel on Wheels

A chapel on wheels has just been consecrated by Archbishop Bourne. This novel place of worship is to be sent on tour in charge of two priests, for whom it will also be a residence. It is an ordinary motor-van, the interior of which is fitted with a miniature altar for the celebration of Mass, with prie-Dieu kneelers for a dozen worshippers. When not in use for Divine services the benches are stowed away, the altar cleared of its ornaments, and the vehicle becomes a travelling van, with beds for the accommodation of the two priests. The chapel on wheels will start for East Anglia, and the first stopping-place is to be Haverhill, where Father Bernard Vaughan will deliver a series of lectures during a week's sojourn in that town.

BEAUTIFYING THE DOGS

A Veterinary Surgeon Undertakes to Remove Canine Wrinkles

We hear a good deal about massage, lotions and prescriptions, all calculated to transform even the plainest woman into a thing of beauty. Now, as it appears, the canine race is being similarly taken in hand under the auspices of a veterinary surgeon in Paris. At least, in a prospectus the following list of charges is drawn up:

"Alteration of the shape of the muzzle, 30 francs.

"Removal of wrinkles on the face of a bulldog, 50 francs.

"Change of the size of the tail, 20 francs.

"Removal of superfluous hair, 5 francs per hour.

"Change of the color of the skin, 20 francs."

There is some hope at last even for the veriest mongrel!

SOMETHING LIKE A PLAGUE

An Advancing Horde of Locusts Resembles a Dark Cloud

A locust invasion is an event not easily forgotten.

The first sign of the approaching army is usually a long, dark cloud on the horizon. As it comes nearer, it is seen to be composed of countless millions of locusts on whirring wings. Soon the cloud appears overhead, and is sufficiently thick to obscure the sun. Now we are in the midst of a dense swarm of flying, whirring locusts, which dash into our faces, enter our houses, and fill our rooms with their presence; the air is simply alive with them. All open wells must be instantly covered, or they will be polluted by the insects.

Fowls and turkeys, however, welcome the advancing hordes, they simply fatten on the locusts. But their flesh becomes so tainted by this diet as to be quite unsaleable, and even their eggs have an unpleasant taste. As soon as locusts make their appearance in a locality, the price of eggs drops to one-half or one-third of their former value.

Pigs also feed on locusts, and their flesh also becomes affected; in fact, all animals seem to be adversely affected, for horses have a strong aversion to grass which has been polluted by locusts, and, unless very hungry, will not touch it.—Answers.

A LIBEL ON THE EAST

A famous impresario of Italian opera had arranged to open at Covent Garden about the middle of May, but after having made his intention public, something caused him to alter his arrangements, and he announced the opening for the beginning of May.

The day his advertisement appeared he met the proprietor of a well known "gaff" then situated in Whitechapel, who exclaimed

"You have done a nice thing for me, making your season a fortnight earlier!"

"What difference can it make to you?" cried the West-ender. "Your audience won't patronize my theatre."

"No," replied the "gaffer"; "but they'll be outside it picking pockets!"

Government Isolation Hospital.

The new federal government isolation hospital which is situated on an unnamed island in one of the bays of Digby Island off Prince Rupert Harbor is now practically complete with the exception of the interior furnishings.

The building is both large and handsome so that it should meet the requirements of this Pacific Port for many years to come. Not a glimpse of it can be seen from the harbor as it is screened by large spruce and other coniferous trees some of which measure six feet in diameter.

GRADE CATTLE FOR FARMERS

Better Keep Hands Off the "Pure Breds," which is a Specialized Business

Does the breeding and feeding of a pure-bred dairy herd pay? This each man must consider according to his location, the capital that he has to invest and his general knowledge and understanding of the business.

The pure-bred business is a specialized business. It requires a watchful care, thorough knowledge of the heredity of the cattle in your herd, constant study in breeding, a better understanding of the wants of the community in which you are located and plenty of money to invest in new blood at any time the demands of the herd call for it.

Records must be kept, and a daily record of each item be entered; in fact, I might say you must ever be ready with pencil and paper to mark down dates of service, birth, etc. All this must be kept right, so that if called upon you can swear to your record. Even an application for registry papers amounts to an oath.

You must keep posted on the activities of your breeders' association. You must always be ready with a pen, ink, and paper, and always cheerfully reply to all inquiring letters and postal-cards received, and at times this alone will prove quite burdensome to the man on the farm.

Your sires must always be selected with the greatest care and judgment, and even then breeding requirements may force you to invest in a better one than you now own, although you may be compelled to dispose of your present high-priced sire for much less than he cost you. This alone would strongly test the nerve of many a successful farmer. Then again it is an undoubted fact that all pure-bred animals are more susceptible to disease than the more hardy grades that originated from the same breed; this renders them a more hazardous investment than grades.

All of us, by a little self-searching, can tell whether or not we are strict truth-tellers or whether we are individually given to misrepresentation or evasion of the cold, straight facts. All I can say to you if you are of this class is "to keep your hands off" of the business of breeding pure-bred cattle. If you make one mistake and go wrong, your occupation and business is ruined and you have a herd of cattle on your hands that no breeder with a reputation would dare to buy, even though he was satisfied that they were good individuals and worth the money you were asking for them. The discriminating buyer will study the breeder's pedigree fully as closely as he will that of the animal.

With grades, on the other hand, a man can start on a very little capital to lay the foundation for a successful business and, with the occasional purchase of a well-bred sire he will be able by careful selection to build up a good herd of cows. By raising all of the best heifers that come from good cows and feeding them so that they will be large enough to come to profit in the dairy by the time they are twenty-six to thirty months of age, he may expand the business as time goes on. If he will watch all the details of the business and use good judgment in selecting his first breeding bull to correct the deformities and deficiencies that may exist in the cows, and not be constantly trying new combinations, he will have in a few generations as good cows for all practical purposes as the pure-breds from which the grades were derived.—W. M. K., in Grain Growers' Guide.

FEEDING GRAIN TO FOWLS

Better Give It to Them in Straw if Available

Whenever grain in the straw is available use it for fowl feeding. It is the best system of feeding of any I ever tried. It delights the fowls and keeps them in grand trim. It is a real boon to fowls in confinement, and those at liberty never tire of it. The nature of all fowls is to scratch and search for food, however small the particles. They seem to enjoy this more than having it shoved down their throats in handfuls. Gobbling all their food up in a few minutes to be succeeded by hours of idleness is not in harmony with their natural habits. This is apt to induce mischief. What else is it but idleness that encourages feather-eating, which is such an objectionable habit? Over-fatness is also a result; then eggs are few. The busy hen is always the thrifty one, and all are kept industrious when corn can be picked from the straw. Give them a full furnished wisp in the morning and they will work at it all day. They will turn and re-turn it, and strive for the last pick. It is delightful to witness, and fills the egg basket. No food is more healthy for fowls than oats, barley and wheat. When in well-harvested straw it is prime, and the fowls know it. They leave bucketfuls of food to go straw scratching. Giving vacant straw to amuse them is a delusion they quickly detect, then they cease work, whereas if they eat every particle of grain out of the straw every morning they will be at it all day as brisk as ever. Never throw it down in the wet or muck. Put it on a clean surface under cover. The vacant straw can be removed before it accumulates too much. It will pay all to buy a quantity of grain in the straw and store it for daily use.

It is poor economy to keep old hens or old roosters. Hens are at their best at three years old, and when kept longer are apt to give poor returns. Roosters should never be kept longer than two or three years.

A "Harrowing Tale.

A nearby local option town has a factory that turns out some of the best harrows in Canada. A local merchant, seeing a report of a big make of harrows there used a pun that should have resulted in his death. His remarks over the report in question were, "No wonder that local option town paper had a harrowing article about their local industries!" Now what do you think of a break like that?

HUNTING WILD BEASTS WITH A CAMERA

Adventures in Taking Cinematograph Pictures in the Jungle.

The business of hunting wild beasts with a camera is attended by as much excitement and rather more danger than hunting them with the usual weapons. Two Englishmen who make a business of getting cinematograph pictures of the denizens of the jungle have had much success and enough thrilling experiences to give them something to talk about for the balance of their days.

They are Cherry Kearton and his brother Richard. Cherry Kearton is reported to be the only man who has photographed lions while they were being shot, speared or lassoed. To a writer for the Evening Standard he gave this account of one of his hunting trips.

"One of my most memorable trips was in quest of a tiger. I obtained an introduction to the Sultan of Johore and asked him if he would shoot a tiger at 15 yards while I took the photograph. He refused, saying I should certainly be killed. I was willing to risk my camera and myself, but he would not take part.

"I went along to Ceylon and explained my mission to the Maharajah of Mysore, who made out a traveling pass to facilitate my journey, and provided me with an elephant for the jungle. As time was pressing, I covered the first 60 miles with relays of horses, and the next day I was in a dense jungle. I sat 21 days on the elephant's back before I could get my tiger.

"There were marks of him to be seen, but the difficulty was to locate him. In the meantime I was hunting another very dangerous animal, the bison. The bison gave me eight days' hard work on the elephant's back. This statement may seem strange, but it was very awkward to push through the jungle, and at times I was swept off the elephant by overhanging branches. In a tropical climate this is very trying, and fatiguing, too.

"At the end of the eighth day I got my bison at from 15 to 20 yards. The trackers never went more than four yards without looking for a tree as a means of escape. They could tell by examining the blades of grass how long it had been since the animal had passed that way.

"While I was after the bison I got about 50 elephants around me. The game ranger who accompanied me was scared less they should charge the tame elephant, as they had done on previous occasions with fatal results.

"I was very disappointed at not being able to get the tiger, and I determined to prolong my stay in the hope that success would at last reword my efforts. I had been in the jungle 20 days without seeing the beast, when I reluctantly decided to commence my return journey. A quarter of a mile from the village I saw traces of a bullock having been dragged in the [illegible] and leaf growth.

"Jumping off my elephant, I found marks of the tiger as he had retreated backward, probably pulling the bullock by the nose. I crawled up the tunnel on my hands and knees with my revolver ready. It was very dark, and I had not gone far when I came upon part of the bullock's carcass freshly gnawed. Deeming it unsafe to penetrate further, I returned to the game ranger, who decided, as the beast was becoming a man-eater, that it should be destroyed.

"He obtained 300 men to act as drivers. I cut away the opening of the tunnel and waited developments behind a leafy screen. The tiger came toward me bellowing and grunting, and when he got opposite the screen he gave one of those fearful coughs which only the man who has been close to such a beast can appreciate. The tiger was 11 feet long, and was the biggest tiger the game ranger had ever seen. He told me he would not go through the same experience again for a thousand pounds, adding, 'I have done with this work.'

"The natives could not understand why I did not shoot the tiger. They expected to see bullets come out of the camera.

"It was decided to proceed to kill the beast and 15 men were selected to jump from behind the bushes and spear it. When the signal was given only three men obeyed, and one of these was clawed by the tiger. I was up a tree about eight yards away, and kept my eye fixed on the beast.

"At last I shouted, and with another terrifying grunt he trotted off into the jungle. I covered the last 60 miles of my journey and took boat to England."

RACING IN GERMANY

It Has Appealed to the French in Late Years.

German racing has of late appealed to French owners, says a European correspondent, for the market in that country has been widely opened to French produce. The Prussian State budget has just been voted, and contains a provision that every two years a first-class sire should be bought for the service of the State and private owners possessing a thoroughbred stud. The price to be given for such a suitable sire is fixed at $75,000 and each year half of that amount will be handed over to the Government buyers. A further grant of $20,000 has been made for securing a good thoroughbred sire for the half-bred stud while another $15,000 has been placed at the disposal of the Royal Grafits Stud for the purchase of a couple of brood mares. It is understood that this grant will be continuous, so that the different strains of racing blood may be continually renewed.

Ex-Postmaster is Honored.

The letter-carriers and post office staff demonstrated their good will towards Mr. A. H. Stratton, the retiring postmaster, last week, by presenting him with a handsome gold headed cane. The presentation was made by Mr. Chas. Lachour, while Mr. John Corkery expressed the appreciation of the staff over the kindly relations existing between Mr Stratton and the employees of the office and regret at the departure of Mr. Stratton.

FOUGHT WITH WILD DOGS

Nurse Who Ministered to Sick and Wounded in Two Continents

Soldiers have lost a valuable friend in Mrs. Janet Helen King (Sister Helen), who has just died in England.

On two continents Sister Janet had tenderly cared for sick and wounded soldiers. When only eighteen she entered the Protestant Deaconesses' Institution to be trained as a nurse for the sick and wounded in war, and was one of a party of nine sent out to assist in nursing the troops engaged in the war between Russia and Turkey.

Snow lay deep on the ground, the party lost its way, and the night was passed in the open carts, bitter cold and the howling of wolves effectively preventing sleep. Arriving at Vardia they found their services sorely needed, and for months the Sisters worked night and day.

To Sister Janet's care were allotted some two hundred patients who lay in huts scattered here and there amongst the hills. Daily as she trudged through the snow from hut to hut on her mission of mercy she was exposed to attacks from wild dogs which infested Bulgaria. More than once these brutes dragged her to the ground, but her stick and dagger protected her until her cries brought assistance. At the close of the war she received for her services the Imperial Order of the Red Cross of Russia.

She went out, too, to the Zulu War, and at Utrecht 3,200 sick and wounded passed through her hands. There she was personally thanked by Sir Garnet Wolseley. She was awarded the medal for the war, and received the Decoration of the Royal Red Cross from the Queen for "the special devotion and competency displayed in nursing duties with her Majesty's troops."

FOR VALOR

Various Methods by Which Nations Reward Great Bravery

As is well known, Britain decorates her soldiers with the Victoria Cross for conspicuous acts of bravery on the field of battle.

But most other countries have similar rewards for valor.

France confers her distinctive badges in the fairly familiar form of the Legion of Honor.

Germany is proud of her Iron Cross; while Austria confers her Ancient Order of Maria Theresa on her heroes. Russia distributes her Cross of St. Vladimir sparingly to her gallant soldiers.

Denmark has one of the most illustrious orders of chivalry, the Order of the Elephant, which ranks as high as our own Order of the Garter.

Sweden has her Noble Order of the Seraph, founded in 1220. This order is limited to twenty-three natives and eight foreigners.

Spain is justly proud of her Order of the Golden Fleece, which is, and has always been, most sparingly bestowed.

Italy decorates her most heroic warriors with her military Medal of Merit.

Portugal has the Tower and Sword, a very old order.

Sardinia has a medal for distinguished conduct on the field of battle, and a special military decoration besides for deeds of outstanding courage.

REFRIGERATOR WITHOUT ICE

How to Make a "Cooler" for Summer Use

A cooler can be made out of any box that has for its sides slats instead of solid boards. A peach crate makes a very satisfactory one. The box once chosen, all that is needed in the way of construction is to add as many shelves inside as desired, and a door on hinges. Then cover the door, sides and back with burlap or some similar material.

On the top place a pan, preferably enamel, and from this pan hang wicks made of strips of flannel four or five inches in width. These wicks should have one end resting on the inside bottom of the pan, and the other hanging over the edge of the crate and touching the burlap. Then fill the pan with water.

The cooler should be placed in a cool place, where the wind can blow upon it. The wicks absorb the water and distribute it through the mesh of the burlap by capillary attraction. The wind causes the moisture to evaporate, and the evaporation reduces the temperature inside the refrigerator. A writer in The Youth's Companion, in describing such a cooler, asserts that it will keep butter hard and firm on the warmest days in summer. If this be true, as it probably is, surely the idea is one well worth trying.

HOW GLASS-MAKING BEGAN

The Phoenicians and Egyptians the Most Renowned Glass Makers

Glass-making dates from the earliest times, and originated, no doubt, with the Egyptians, as the oldest-known specimens found are those discovered in the tombs of Egypt, and the earliest mention dates back to 3,300 B.C.

Second to the Egyptians, the ancient people most renowned for the manufacture of glass were the Phoenicians.

The legend of that people concerning the discovery of the art is consistently retold. Some Phoenician traders, returning to their home in a ship laden with soda, were compelled to land on a sandy tract on the Syrian coast.

They built a fire on the sand to prepare their supper, and placed their cooking pots on a lump of soda. The sand and the soda were both melted by the heat of the fire, and, flowing together, formed a substance which, although they knew it not, the sailors recognized as valuable. Such, says tradition, is the origin of one of our most useful commodities.

Spring Assizes for April 9th.

Only one or two criminal cases are up for trial at the Spring sitting of the Court of Appeal. The court opens on April 9th. One of the criminal charges to be tried is that of Samuel Newall, of Dummer, who is charged with an alleged indecent assault. The case was to have been dealt with at the Fall Assizes, but owing to the defendant being unable to attend through illness, the case was left over until the spring Assizes. His Honour Judge Latchford, of Toronto, will preside.

THIN, FRAIL WOMEN WITH PALE CHEEKS

NOW RAPIDLY LEARNING THE WAY TO HEALTH AND VIGOR BY THE USE OF DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS.

Thousands of half-dead, emaciated, worn-out women are dragging out their weary lives simply because they don't know what ails them. Nine times in ten it's indigestion, which directly leads to anaemia, poor circulation, and eventually invalidism.

The first step towards relief is to flush out all wastes and unhealthy matter. Loosen the bowels—stir up the liver—stimulate the kidneys. Once this is done, Dr. Hamilton's Pills will quickly manifest their health-restoring qualities.

"The best way to correct impaired digestion, to cure constipation, headache, liver trouble, and other ailments of the stomach and bowels," writes Mrs. Uriah A. Dempsey, from Woodstock, "is by the frequent use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I didn't know what it was to enjoy a good meal for months. My stomach was sour, I belched gas, was thin, tired, pale, and nervous. I simply housecleaned my system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and have been robust and vigorous ever since."

To keep the machinery of the body in active working order, no remedy is so efficient, so mild, so curative as Dr. Hamilton's Pills—good for men, women and children, 25c. per box, at all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE MORNING TIMES

TUESDAY, MARCH 5, 1912.

WHY BEEF IS EXPENSIVE.

Some figures supplied by Prof. Arkell to the cattle breeders last week give cause for reflection, and we might also say alarm, regarding the meat supply of this country. He stated that there was eight per cent. fewer cattle marketed in Toronto in 1911 than in 1910, and three per cent fewer in Montreal, while for the whole of Canada the decrease was seventeen per cent. If one stops to consider that during 1911 several hundred thousand more people were added to Canada's population, the real significance of the decrease in market cattle looms up in greater force. It is a situation that every farmer and every cattle raiser should ponder over. It takes a couple of years to bring a beef animal to maturity or better to a point where it can be classed as marketable beef, so that there can be no great increase in the meat supply for a few years at least. In the meantime the people in our towns and cities have to be fed, and the thousands who will come to Canada in the next few years will have to be fed also. The situation certainly points to a bright future for the beef cattle man for a few years at least, and the farmer who is in a position to take advantage of the situation may well pat himself on the back. There are good things in store for him if he gets into the game early and begins by producing the right kind of market animal. And there is a need for a better market animal, if we are to judge from the types that are offered for beef at the leading market centres. Of course a short feed supply will account to some extent for the inferior quality of the offerings during the past few months. But it will not account for all of it. There are hundreds of cattle sent to the block every day that should never have been put on the market as beef animals, though this may be an effective way of preventing an increase of their kind. They are not of the beef type, and lose money for the breeder and the man who feeds them. There are beef cattle produced in this country that would top the market anywhere, and we want more of them.

CANADA AHEAD OF THE U. S.

The New York Tribune thinks the legislators of its own country should get out and do something that will reduce the cost of living instead of standing about and perpetually talking about it. In this connection the New York daily speaks approvingly of the following resolution just passed unanimously at the Ottawa house: "That this house is of the opinion that the expansion of the parcels post system would be in the public interest." Under the Dominion postal act no legislation is necessary to extend the parcels post system, but the action taken by the house of commons will be accepted by the cabinet as a warrant for increasing the weight and size of parcels carried and extending the rural free delivery system.

The advantages of a parcel post service are obvious. It tends to put producers and consumers and sellers and purchasers into closer relations and to eliminate one source of waste in distribution. The government is willing to carry parcels at the bare cost of transportation. It seeks no profit. If, therefore, it undertakes to maintain parcels post of the modern sort it will encourage the producer at one end of the line to deal directly with the consumer at the other end. If the farmer could send his less perishable products direct to a city purchaser the latter could probably buy eggs, apples, potatoes and many other vegetables at a rate which would seem cheap to him, and yet give the farmer a larger return then he now gets from the wholesaler. Both producer and consumer would become to some extent independent of the intermediaries who now play the middle against both ends. Conversely, the farmer could deal with the city producer and avoid the drain of several handlings of goods and of several profits.

The Tribune regrets that the United States, almost alone among the leading countries of the world, still clings to an obsolete restriction upon the activities of the postal service. It is ashamed to treat foreigners as shabbily as it treats its own citizens, for it will carry larger packages at cheaper rates when they come in from abroad or are marked for delivery abroad. Congress should wake up and follow the Canadian parliament's example.

Anything that makes exchange of commodities easier should make living cheaper.

Editorial Notes

Now that a coal strike is on in England the people of the Mother Country will be able to sympathize with this city when they require coal.

The housewives of Peterborough and incidentally their husbands, will be pleased to learn that the price of tea will not be advanced. Anyway, tea is a ticklish subject. We all remember that Boston Tea Party that lost a Continent. That party was due to a contemplated raise in the price of tea.

Last week a lunatic created a sensation in the British House of Commons by doing a little harmless shooting off with a revolver. How much more safe and simple the procedure is in the Canadian House of Commons. Only "hot air" is shot off there, at the worst.

"The London Advertiser says that President Taft is friendly to Canada and we think there is no doubt of the truth of this statement." There is no doubt about Taft's friendship! Why, did he not do his best to gather Canada in. Canada, whilst friendly to the U.S., did not want to fall permanently into the fostering (?) arms of Uncle Sam. Vide last Dominion Elections.

Another case of "didn't know it was loaded." The Advocate tells how Wm. Smith, thinking the fire was out, threw some gasoline on the ashes. A flash! the surrounding air filled with flame! Wm. Smith's clothes on fire, and William's whiskers and hair considerably diminished. Why do not people like that play with a rattlesnake, and try how far it can strike at their hands?

Every time you vote for either Laurier or Borden, for the Liberal or the Tory party, you are voting for desolated homes and general hell. So says Cotton's Weekly, a Socialist paper of Cowansville, Que. The same paper deplores the fact that seven thousand women of Montreal have to "work for other women!" Possibly the 7,000 weekly pay envelopes come in mighty handy.

Whilst some few people in the city are raising an outcry because some of the local Civil Servants of Peterboro' have lost their jobs, there are two ways of looking at this subject. If a man enters politics looking for a situation thereby, or, after taking part in the game accepts a political job, and then gets out and works for the party that appointed him, he cannot expect that human nature has changed in the past few years. Whilst the system of "voe victis" woe to the vanquished, (or to the victors belong the plums) is greatly to be condemned, human nature cannot expect but, that those whom such Civil Servants worked against will make reprisals when the chance comes their way. Incidentally also, there are those who have spent (we will not say money) time, which is money, working for the winners.

Bobcaygeon Independent: The importation of butter from New Zealand and potatoes from Scotland, is an entirely new departure for this province. Surely this province is capable of raising sufficient food for its own wants. Last season was not specially favorable for potatoes, but care in cultivation should produce sufficient for home consumption.

Now is the price charged here for provisions, from the farm, entirely due to shortage of crops? Are not the farmers making twice to thrice the profit they used to? The average farmer now cannot drive into town except behind a $300 team in a high priced conveyance. His homes are vastly more expensive and his family dress in a way they would not have thought of a few years ago. Is not the townsman, in high prices, paying for this new-born luxury?

Sudbury is now in the same throes that Peterborough went through some twenty-two years ago. The government has purchased a location for a post office in that town. Some of the politicians and non-politicians have [illegible] which they want the post office placed. It will be remembered by our older local citizens how the corner where the Peterborough post office now stands was in strong rivalry for that building with the corner now occupied by the Customs House. Thousands of dollars were bet in Peterborough as to which spot would be chosen by the government. Each spot was owned by strong supporters of Sir John A. MacDonald's government. The owners of each corner backed their opinions by rolls of bills as thick as the present price of butter and eggs. Then, the compromise came. Each lot was bought.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS WORK WONDERFUL CURE.

Mrs. Ed. Lloyd, Weak and Worn and Wracked With Pain Found Relief and Cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Ardberg, Ont., March 4—(Special)—"Dodd's Kidney Pills have done wonders for me," so says Mrs. Ed. Lloyd, wife of a well-known farmer living on the line of the C. N. O. Railway near here.

"I was so weak I could hardly walk around," Mrs. Lloyd continues, "I suffered from female weakness and kidney trouble. My heart troubled me so that at times I would almost pant with the palpitations. I was treated by the doctor but he could give me no relief.

"I was sick all over when I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, Rheumatism, Lumbago and Neuralgia adding to my sufferings. But Dodd's Kidney Pills helped me almost at once. After taking eight boxes I was completely cured."

Naturally Mrs. Lloyd wants other suffering women to know how she found a cure, and Dodd's Kidney Pills will do for other sufferers just what they did for Mrs. Lloyd, make new women of them.

A MIXING OF COLORS

"Funny thing happened in my town last week," said the chatty man in the railway carriage.

"What was that?" asked the interested individual.

"Black, a white man, and White, a black man, thought a fellow named Brown was pretty green, and tried to sell him a white horse. But Brown was well read, and he deceived them both—in fact, he got all the money they had."

"And now?"

"And now Black and White are blue."

LONG THREADS OF ASBESTOS

They are Now Manufactured a Hundred Yards Long—Discovery of Deposits in Canada

All asbestos lands in Canada which belong to the Crown can be acquired either by purchase or concession or may be occupied and worked under a mining license. Any person may prospect without a license, however.

In 1877 a farmer named Fecteau discovered deposits of importance, and the first real mine began operations shortly afterwards. It is said that the enterprise was a paying one from the start. Seven mines in all were opened in the first few years. One of these is said to have paid $24,000 in one year upon an investment of $6,000.

Asbestos was first mined in Italy, and prior to 1880 it was the only country that produced it at a commercial profit. The Italian asbestos is very silky in appearance and grey to brown in color. Often the fibres are several feet in length.

Asbestos upon leaving the cobbing sheds is sent to the spinning mills in bags holding about a hundred pounds. Upon its arrival, it is first forecarded by a machine similar to the saw-tooth gin used in cotton mills. This separates the tangled fibres, after which a final carding takes place on a regular carding machine. When the asbestos leaves the carding machine it is combed smoothly and the fibres laid parallel in a uniform mass. This mass is treated in a rotary spinning machine.

This first spins it into a coarse yarn and then draws and spins this yarn until it becomes fine and quite strong. Where a hard, strong thread is required for certain fabrics the asbestos yarn is put into a doubling and twisting machine, where two or more of the yarn threads are combined. Of course, if the asbestos is to be impregnated with rubber a smooth, hard-finished thread is not desirable.

The spinning of asbestos for a long time seemed of great difficulty owing to the manner in which the threads persisted in slipping past each other. Finally it was discovered that under the microscope a thread of asbestos showed a notched surface, and that by means of special twisting the spinning could be made successful. Now, after much experimenting, manufacturers are able to spin a single asbestos thread of 100 yards in length not weighing over an ounce.—India Rubber World

PROGRESS AND PROFIT

JUST AS EVERY INDUSTRIAL CONCERN must look to the future and prepare a program of progress, so must every individual.

EVERYONE, WHATEVER THEIR POSITION, strives for betterment in the times to come.

IN REAL ESTATE INVESTMENTS the present and future are intimately connected.

EVERY CAR OF LUMBER, every street graded, and every tree planted, adds immediately to the realty value of the city or district affected.

THE FUTURE INCREASE IN VALUES is only controlled by the extent of such progressive operations.

THE PLACE TO INVEST is where progress is greatest, where the city strives for improvement. MOOSE JAW the coming metrpolis of SASKATCHEWAN is such a city.

ALREADY THE BUILDING PERMITS FOR 1912 almost eclipse those of the year of 1911, while extensive railway and industrial developments are actually going on.

BOULEVARD HEIGHTS is the district in which to buy.

THE VENDORS have linked the present with the future by preparing this subdivision for building operations now about to commence.

ALL STREETS AND BOULEVARDS are graded, the lake almost half a mile in length is completed, thousands of trees purchased, and now only await the frost to leave the ground to be planted.

AND YOU CAN BUY a building site in this unique residential district on terms of $10.00 cash and $10.00 monthly, with no interest or taxes.

IF YOU WANT TO MAKE FUTURE PROFITS, take this opportunity of the present.

To the lady of the house (pardon the book agent's patented expression) they say the house suits them splendidly, but they think the walls are hollow. PLOWING VS. DISCING

How the One is Made to Assist the Other

Plowing and discing are two of the most essential features of soil cultivation. To dispense with the former would spell ruin for the farmer, while if the latter were abolished at the present day, the loss would be keenly felt in agricultural circles.

In order to keep the land free of weeds and to get the most out of the soil, it is necessary to periodically turn the top earth down and bring fresh soil to the surface. For this reason, the modern plow cutting strips of land, say from ten to sixteen inches in width, according to the size of the plow, turns them completely over so that the under soil is exposed to the sun, and the weeds, if there are any, are completely buried.

That plowing should be well done is important, and there is no better proof of this than the comparison of farms that are accustomed to be well plowed with others that are poorly plowed. Plowing matches were organized not for the sport they afforded but that an improvement in the character of the work would result from the contests.

In the fall of the year, after the crop is harvested discing the land intended for fallow the ensuing season is a capital plan, and is regularly carried out by many farmers. The stirring up of the soil starts the weeds growing and forms a mulch which preserves the moisture. Early in the spring, as soon as the ground is dry enough for working, discing is again done to loosen the top soil and thus retain the moisture; placing the land in a good condition for plowing when the fallow season arrives.

As a cultivator for summerfallow, the disc has its merits and is widely used as it is a light machine, kills small weeds and aids in packing the soil.

Occasionally the disc is used in the spring to take the place of the plow. The stubble is sometimes burned off, and the land is disced to render it in shape for the crop. Under favorable conditions good crops have been taken off in the fall, but as a rule, this method is a failure and the farmer who practices this style of farming too frequently soon has his land polluted with weeds.

Only as a pulverizer and a cultivator has discing proved successful. When it is done in place of plowing the result is a failure. The disc will not take the place of the plow for the simple reason that it does not cut all the soil and does not go deep enough.—Grain Growers' Guide.

COLLEGE SPORTS

They Don't Shorten Life, Says Dr. William Anderson

New York Tribune: Vital statistics compiled by Dr. William Anderson of the Yale gynasium, indicate clearly that participation in college sports does not shorten life, as is contended by some. His investigation covered no less than 10,929 Yale athletes, from 1855 to the present day, and he concludes an interesting report by saying: "The Yale athlete does not die young, nor is heart disease a leading cause of death. Lung trouble is the cause of the greatest number, but the percentage of men dying from these causes is not greater than among non-athletes." In spite of this, those who have milk in their veins instead of blood will continue to harp about the danger of athletics, and, unfortunately, will find plenty to believe in their false theories.

JACK CHESTNUT, the energetic secretary of the Canadian Bowling Association.

SUPPRESSION OF TIME

An evil which should be Stamped from every track. 12. ... ...

The question of suppression of time is again causing quite an agitation among horsemen in the United States, and, judging by the numerous letters that have appeared recently in the leading turf journals on the subject, this evil is more prevalent than was generally supposed.

A few years back suppressing time was quite common in Ontario, but fortunately it is almost a thing of the past on the Canadian circuit. Last year from the opening meeting at Seaforth until the close of the regular circuit races at St. Thomas there was only one track where the time announced did not correspond with the watches of independent timers, and then the difference was in two heats only, and was more the result of careless timing on the part of the appointed timers than through any sinister motive.

Suppression of time is an evil the unfairness of which is so apparent that it is surprising any owner would look for favor from such a practice. At most it can benefit but one horse at the expense of all the others that are in competition with this horse, and the injustice to the others is so great the wonder is that open protest is not made wherever time suppression occurs.

In running races the time does not cut much of a figure, as the pace set in the race governs the time to a large extent, but the conditions are far different with the trotters and pacers. The harness horses are virtually handicapped according to the time made by the winners, and consequently if the welfare of the sport is to be regarded it is absolutely necessary that the time of each heat be recorded accurately and be announced properly, otherwise there is bound to be confusion for everybody except, possibly the owners of favored horses and those directly responsible for the improper timing.

Incapable timers are not uncommon at harness horse meetings; in fact, race managers as a rule pay less attention to the selection of timers for their meetings than they do the judges, and this is little enough, goodness knows. But, after all, this is only another illustration of the negligence of the National and American Trotting Associations, the parent bodies, that are supposed to govern all harness horse racing that takes place on tracks in membership with them.—Sunday World.

RUGBY FOR RUGBY'S SAKE

The Welsh do not look Kindly on giving Testimonials.

They hold very strict views, and draw a very sharp line in Welsh Rugby football, as witness this from the Swansea correspondent of a London newspaper:—

A national testimonial to Richard M. Owen, the famous Welsh half-back, has been proposed by his Swansea friends, and from what can be gathered this has met with general approval. From inquiries I have made to-day, however, I understand that the Welsh Rugby Union do not look upon the affair with a kindly eye at all. In fact, it has been said in all seriousness that Owen will be declared professional if anything on a big scale is attempted.

There is, of course, a well-known precedent for this. W. J. Bancroft, also of Swansea, who held the record for appearances in international football prior to Owen's recent game at Twickenham, was made a professional after acepting a testimonial on his retirement.

A Rare Wedding.

Prince Rupert witnessed a picturesque Montenegrin wedding.

Kingston, Mar. 2.—A Kingston 12-year-old lad has confessed to the police that he robbed a drunken man of $20 on Princess street in broad daylight. The man did not know he had lost the money, and the case would not have been revealed but for the fact that the boy's school teacher saw the lad flourishing money and reported it to the police. When questioned the lad confessed, returned the amount with the exception of four dollars and his parents will make good this. The man did not care to prosecute. He had $500 in his possession the day he was robbed.

RUGBY IN RHODESIA

The Game Enthusiastically Played Under Serious Difficulties.

The history of Rhodesia may be said definitely to have begun in October, 1889, when the British South African Company obtained their first charter from the British Government. Yet it is remarkable how soon the sporting instinct, existent in every British community, manifested itself in practical form, for the Rugby Union Board was founded in 1895, only six years after the occupation of the country. The early pioneers must have been real Rugby enthusiastics, too, for the climatic conditions are not those usually associated with the game, while the mere sight of a Rhodesian football ground is often enough for the new arrival from home. Imagine a brown, dusty expanse of ground, unrelieved by a singe blade of grass, the similarity of which to a London pavement is but thinly disguised by a layer of gravelly sand. During the course of a game the players are frequently hidden in a dense cloud of dust, which is gently wafted into the eyes of the spectators on a windy day. The unfortunate half-back, operating behind the scrim, is often unable to see the ball coming out of the back row of the forwards; and as it is his habit to keep his head bent down close to the ground to get a better sight of the ball, his throat and eyes soon become full of sandy dust. The dust, however, is not without its compensations, for the players' thirst is worth a fortune.

The surface of the ground is so hard that the ball bounces in a most unexpected and astonishing fashion even when heeled out of the scrum. To the player accustomed to the green grass of the old country the ball seems like an elusive eel. "Never let the ball bounce" is a well-known axion in Rugby football; in Rhodesia it is a sine qua non. After effecting an ordinary tackle, the player usually leaves the major part of his cuticle on the field, receiving in return a generous supply of gritty sand; and, as the soil is full of poison, great care has to be taken even with a scratch which one would ignore at home. Then a winter's afternoon out here is usually associated with brilliant sunshine and a cloudless sky. This makes it doubly difficult to watch the flight of the ball.

In spite of these climatic and local disadvantages, Rhodesian Rugby, tho still in its infancy, has flourished to a remarkable degree. The players themselves seem to have been benefited rather than handicapped by the hard grounds, as they suit themselves to the conditions and play a hard, robust game to show their indifference to such minor drawbacks.

PRESIDENT A. E. APTED of the Eaton A.A. hockey team.

A BRAINY PITCHER

Eddie Plank Knows Something of Hurling the Horsehide

"Eddie Plank pitched the greatest game in the recent world's series between the Giants and Athletics that this game of baseball has ever known." This declaration coming from Clark Griffith, the Washington manager, can be given a deal of value, for Griffith bears a reputation of having been one of the brainiest pitchers in the country and knows something of the art of hurling the horsehide. Griff goes on to explain that he means that Plank pitched the most finished game, taking in all the technicalities and the like of the pitching box, and it is certainly a flattering compliment to pay to the Athletics' veteran left-hander.

"Plank really worked to perfection," continued Griffith. "He had terrific speed and his curves broke to a nicety. His side arm delivery was very baffling and save for an error of the outfield the veteran would have scored a shut out. I have seen games in which pitchers struck out more men and did more sensational pitching stunts, but for some wonderful pitching, which took advantage of the opposition at every turn of the road, Plank carried off the honors."

"Plank had the Giants bewildered at all times. They did not seem to know where the ball was coming and their efforts with the stick were woefully weak. I have seen the Giants in action, too, and know that when a pitcher gets them in that condition he was doing some little twirling."

SNOW SNAKES WILL WRIGGLE.

F. O. Loft, a well-known Onondaga has secured some snow snakes from the Indian reservation in Brant county, and will present one to the Provincial Museum. The snow snake is a peculiarly constructed wooden implement, which is thrown somewhat after the manner of a javelin. It is thrust along the snow, and an expert manipulator can send it three hundred feet and more. It resembles a snake in action. The Cayugas and Onondagas have great sport with the snakes, and are particularly expert in use.

Lakefield Masquerade Party.

Miss Elsie Graham "Uplands," Lakefield, on Friday night gave a masquerade party in honor of her guest Miss Dorothy Davidson, Toronto. Miss Graham was charmingly dressed as "Buster Brown," whilst Miss Davidson took the character of "Mary Jane." Over twenty guests, including a number from Peterborough, and ten of the "Grove" boys, were present, all in charming and unique costumes. The evening was spent in dancing followed by a dainty supper. Mr. Lawrence Graham, the host, wore the garb of his former regiment in Scotland and caused the young people to enjoy the masquerade

CULL THE HERDS

Get Rid of the Stock that is Not Paying Its Way

Too many men hold the opinion that most everything on their farms is just about right. Their teams keep a little fatter on less feed, yet do more work; their cows give just as much milk as anyone's else, and of higher butter-fat content; their sheep always raise more or larger lambs, and their sows the largest and evenest litters of the settlement. But, in truth, there is scarcely a farm throughout the land that is not carrying too large a proportion of deadweight live stock. The sensible thing to do now is to divest the problem of all sentiment, and in a business manner discard every animal that is not handsomely paying its way.

In most every man's group of calves are to be found some stunted ones that for one reason or another give promise of a slowly-gained, dwarfed maturity. They will never pay. As beef animals, they will eat their heads off; the females will never make desirable breeders or milkers. The thing to do is to hasten them off the place.

Likewise, in almost every herd of milch cows, there are cows that have not paid for the pasture they have used and the labor expended on them. They have deadheaded their way for a number of years, being kept, perhaps, because their dams or their granddams were what were then thought to be good cows. If records have been kept by use of the scales and Babcock tester, the owners have at hand a very ready source of reliable information upon which they can convict these poachers with perfect safety. As soon as these culls—these non-producers—are located, fatten them up, and let the butcher have them.

And there are horses which have amply proven that they can neither do a draft horse's work day in and day out, nor a road horse's work at any time. Some of these have been kept for many a day. They are not good enough. They eat almost as much as the right kind of a horse, but never give satisfaction in harness. They are poor advertisements of your business acumen. If they are brood mares, they are still less desirable. Let the grocery man or the other city fellow have them; they can come nearer making good use of such horses than can farmers. Let them go, and, in place of three scrubs, get a pair of good (if possible, pure-bred) draft mares or other mares of the type preferred, study to use them rightly, and know by your own experience what you now believe is good practice.

Similarly can scrub brood sows and breeding sheep be located in every breeder's possession. Get rid of them; it seems costly to do so, but in reality it is an actual saving. One will be money ahead every time he discovers and discards an unprofitable animal. And that money can be put into profitable ones.—Farmer's Advocate.

Work Progressing on Power Line.

Now that the Ontario Power Co. has their material on the ground at Lindsay for the transmission belt between this city and Omemee, it is of interest to note that the company has advertised for tenders for construction of a Lindsay sub-station. Should Take the Gold Cure.

What is the matter with that Public utility (??) the post office clock? About a week ago it stopped, or at least the hands indicated so, four consecutive days at 2.10. Yesterday morning, as citizens on their way to work at their respective places of business and tried to compare their watches, they were stung. The clock said it was 10.10. One merchant remarked "either the main spring the pendulum or the hands should take the gold cure, when a big public clock stops twice within a fortnight.

Do We Eat Cold Storage Eggs?

A well known frequenter of the Peterborough market, yesterday told a Times representative that "during five months of the year nobody in Peterborough eats storage eggs. During seven months of the year almost everybody here eats eggs that have been in cold storage. Yet at no time of the year does the woman with the marnlet basket with the market basket find any storage eggs in the grocery or in the produce stalls, and very seldom does the delivery wagon bring a dozen to the kitchen door. That is as far as the delivery man would, or possibly could admit."

Fire Brigade Has a Run.

Yesterday evening at 6.30 a fire alarm came into the station from box 38. The incipient conflagration occurred at the corner of McDonnel and Reid streets, in the butcher shop of John Helmsley. The premises are owned by Mr. John James. The cause of the slight fire was an overheated stove. Chief Howard and his hardy lads were promptly on the spot, cutting through the icy air, as quickly as a politician goes after a job. The damage only amounted to about $10.00.

Butter is 31 cents in Duluth, as compared with 40 cents in this city and 50 cents in Port Arthur. Other commodities, necessary in the family sustenance, are sold at comparatively cheap prices.

A local merchant speaking yesterday about the London Suffragettes deliberately breaking hundreds of windows, said: "I think instead of the martyrdom sought by jail, two shingles should be employed. "Shingle" their sunny tresses and use another kind of shingle elsewhere." The brute!

Boundary Bill Carried

Special to The Times.

Ottawa, Mar. 5.—Amidst a scene of great excitement, Sir Wilfrid Laurier's amendment blocking the Manitoba Boundaries' Bill was defeated by a vote of 65 to 103, giving 38 majority to the Government.

The failure of the Liberals to unite upon any line of opposition to the Boundary Bill, was shown in the vote above recorded. The Government was quite prepared to deal with the question when the amendment was presented by Sir Wilfrid. The debate followed closely upon the resolutions of last week, and brought forth no very new features. It served, however, to exhibit the lack of unanimity among the Liberal members with respect to the arrangement with Manitoba and Ontario. Hon. William Pugsley asserted that Manitoba was receiving more generous treatment than it deserved, and urged that a Provincial conference be held in order that the Maritime Provinces might be heard upon the partition of the territories. Hon. Frank Oliver, on the other hand, argued that the money grants to be given Manitoba were excessive, but that Manitoba was not receiving adequate compensation for the return to the Dominion of swamp lands in the Province. This failure of the members of the party to agree upon a policy on the question was pointed out by Hon. T. W. Crothers in his address during the evening. Right Hon. Mr. Borden explained that the Government's policy was first to place Manitoba upon an equality with the other prairie provinces; it would then take up the consideration of the terms upon which the natural resources of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta should be placed under the control of the Provincial Administrations. When this question was studied the Maritime Provinces would not be forgotten.

BRITAIN ORDERS WORLD'S GREATEST BATTLESHIP

London, Mar. 5.—The British Admiralty have ordered a battleship which will break all records for size and horse-power, and which will be built by the firm of John Brown, on the banks of the Clyde. The ship will have a displacement of 30,000 tons, developing eighty-seven thousand horse-power and her builders fully expect she will develop one hundred thousand horse-power when she undergoes trials. Her speed must be thirty knots. She will have a battery of unprecedented power, consisting of eight fifteen-inch guns, each firing a projectile of two thousand pounds weight, and twelve six-inch weapons.

PULLMAN PASSENGERS HURLED INTO SASKATCHEWAN RIVER

[illegible] deep in the mud of the South Saskatchewan River, which runs through Saskatoon, there may be anywhere from six to ten bodies. They are Pullman passengers of the Regina express of the Canadian Northern Railway, which crashed through a bridge over the river between Saskatoon and Nutana at six o'clock last night. Of the passengers rescued, two, it is expected, will die.

The wreckage of the car and bridge burned, imperilling all the passengers and rendering them frantic before they were rescued. The car fell fifty feet when the bridge collapsed. Divers are searching amid the debris for the victims this morning.

The known injured are:

Dr. F. C. Sparling, Saskatoon, both legs broken and internally injured.

Rev. F. H. King, Watrous, concussion of the brain.

E. H. Ashby, Saskatoon, injured about the head.

Rev. E. W. Hughes, Regina, bruised about the body.

David Walters, Regina, spine seriously injured.

W. E. Kirsch, Saskatoon, both legs broken.

Reginald Wright, bruises about the head and shoulders.

Sam. Washington, porter, Saskatoon, hand amputated.

A. S. Mihalk, commercial traveler, Toronto, ankle sprained.

F. C. Lewin and Mrs. Lewin, internally hurt.

[illegible] shoulder dislocated.

D. J. Taylor, Western manager of the Goold-Shapley and Muir Co., home in Winnipeg, right side hurt.

Bruce Harris, sales manager of the Prince Albert Lumber Company, right leg sprained.

EUGENE HEBERT NOT SATISFIED

His Lawyers Say That the Case Will be Appealed to Supreme Court

Montreal, March 5. The lawyers for Eugene Hebert, one of the principals in the famous marriage annullment case, had an interview with their client and as a result of it the first move in the appeal procedure was taken in the courts here.

Mr. Lefebvre accordingly filed an inscription for a review of the case before three superior court judges, one of whom will be Sir Melbourne Tait, the chief justice of Quebec. A guarantee for costs was also deposited.

Mr. Lefebvre will now prepare his case to support his argument that as Hebert desisted there was no case to go before Judge Charbonneau.

When asked who was to foot the bill for the heavy costs entailed by continuing the litigation, he said that Hebert and himself were prepared to pay. He also said that no assistance had been received from the Roman Catholic Church, though it might help later on.

The French-Canadian Protestant Church last evening passed a resolution affirming its satisfaction at the Charbonneau judgment and against the "inroads of the Roman Catholic Church into the civil domain."

HAND LACERATED IN PLANING MACHINE

Yesterday afternoon at about 4 o'clock, an accident occurred at the reorganized Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Co. plant, whereby Fred Green, a young married man, had his hand very badly lacerated. It seems that Green was working at a planing machine, and in some way his hand was caught in the machinery. Dr. Morgan was summoned and had the young man sent home. As far as could be learned last night he was doing as well as could be expected.

Purchases Lubricator Co

The Peterborough Lubricator Co., as we remarked some days ago as likely, has sold out to Mr. Rollo Wilson, the well known local machinist. This sale included both plant and buildings. The price, we understand, paid by Mr. Wilson, was $12,000.

The plant will be added to the business—of the Peterborough Mach. Company and remove to the present situation on George street. At present Mr. Wilson is having plans prepared for the erection of a new factory, where will be combined the business of the Lubricator Company and his present machine works. A large automobile garage will also be erected.

BOARD OF EDUCATION IN MONTHLY SESSION

QUESTION OF NIGHT CLASSES DURING SUMMER MONTHS IS UNDER CONSIDERATION.

Additional Apparatus to Be Purchased for the Collegiate Institute Chemistry Laboratory—Reports of Committees—General Business.

The Board of Education met last night in regular monthly session. There were present Dr. Geo. Burnham, acting chairman in Mr. Crane's absence, and Trustees R. Fair, B. F. Ackerman, Col. Miller, T. H. Adams, V. Eastwood, W. H. Hill, Dr. Morrison, L. M. Hayes.

COMMUNICATION.

From the Secretary of the Y.W.C.A., asking permission to hold a gymnasium exhibition in the Collegiate Institute Assembly Hall on Friday evening, March 29th. Referred to the Supervision Committee to grant.

Mr. W. H. Hill moved, seconded by Dr. Morrison that Mrs. E. R. Brown now going through the Normal school be appointed a member of the Public school teaching staff, said appointment to go into effect immediately after ~~Easter~~.

Mr. Eastwood moved, seconded by Dr. Morrison, that the Supervision Committee be authorized to spend $100 in purchasing apparatus for the Collegiate Institute Chemistry Laboratory. Carried.

Dr. Morrison moved, seconded by Mr. Fair, that the Supervision Committee be authorized to go into the question of arranging for night classes during the summer vacation, and report back to the Board. Carried.

REPORT OF THE SUPERVISION COMMITTEE.

Dr. Morrison submitted the following:

Gentlemen, Regarding a letter from the Deputy Minister of Education re gymnasium accommodation at the Collegiate Institute, which was referred to this committee, we beg to report as follows:

In view of the fact that during the past five years this Board has expanded for Public school and Collegiate Institute Buildings, the sum of $166,000.00 and this year will spend another [illegible] making a total of [illegible] that the Public Schools should receive our first attention, for the great majority of our children do not go beyond these schools, and therefore it is our intention to make them the best possible, and with the addition of the necessary schools in the East and West Wards, we can say without boasting, that we will have one of the best set of Public schools in the Province, and with well equipped Public schools, we are at once benefiting the Collegiate Institute by being able to give them scholars, trained and having a good ground work.

Further, our present arrangement for gymnasium accommodation in which we have the use of the well equipped Y.M.C.A. gymnasium and the services of an expert teacher, reduces the objection of it not being under the same roof as the Collegiate, to a minimum. It is the policy of the Board that if in the near future Technical Education should be made a part of the curriculum of the Collegiate this Board will have to supply additional accommodation for such classes. Then the question of an addition to our present building would be before us and provision could be made for a gymnasium in that addition. Until then or until such other time as we feel that the people would vote the necessary money for the purpose, we cannot hope for any better arrangement that that which at the present satisfies everyone, but seemingly does not meet every requirement.

Your committee would recommend the purchase from Mr. McClelland of a clock for the Collegiate Institute, at the price of $18.00.

This report was adopted as read.

Breen cut quite a wide [illegible] his sojourn in this city he had charge of the splendid string of fancy horses belonging to Hon. J. R. Naturally Mr. Breen was the connoiseur of all eyes, and as he was young and good looking, he soon became quite popular with some of the young ladies of the city. During his residence here it is said that he was shadowed by detectives employed by his wife's father, Mr. Richard Croker, of New

WHAT ARE POTATOES?

Editor Morning Times.

Sir, A few friends were discussing the subject of Canada's food supplies last night. The item of potatoes entered into conversation and an argument arose as to the origin and original country producing this useful vegetable. Will you kindly tell me where Irish potatoes first came from? (2) Is the sweet potato the same vegetable as the regular potato, and are yams the same vegetable as potatoes.

—Information.

Reply—The potato came originally from South America. The miscalled "Sweet Potato" has no right to its name. That vegetable belongs to the morning glory family, botanically being known as "Ipomoea Batatas." The yam is another appellation of the sweet potato, although that, too, is an error, for the yams dioscoreae belong to a group of climbing plants. A number of varieties are found through-

Hundreds of Thousands of Additional Men Out of Work

No Coal Trains Now Moving in Great Britain on Any of the Roads

Sailing of Atlantic Steamships Cancelled, Throwing Many Out of Employment

General Strike in Germany Feared—Fruit Steamers from Spain to England Short of Coal and Are Not Running

New York, Mar. 6.—A cable from London to the New York Times this morning says: London has begun to realize what the prolongation of the coal strike may come to mean. Reduction of the railway service by some 300 trains has brought the seriousness of the situation home to the huge travelling public of the metropolis.

No Coal Trains.

No coal trains were run yesterday whereas in normal times over a million tons of coal are in transport daily throughout the country, representing receipts to the railways of about $400,000.

A quarter of a million of men, besides those directly employed in the mining industry, are already out of work.

The miners themselves are looking upon the strike, which is pursuing its fatal course, to what Premier Asquith described in the House of Commons as a "national catastrophe," as a junket, and are making trips to the seaside, going to football matches, dog races and [illegible]

Public Feeling Changing.

Mr. Asquith's statement caused considerable change in public opinion on the attitude of the miners. Even the radical papers are blaming their refusal to accept the Government's just and reasonable offers.

It is worth noting that the action of the Asquith Cabinet is judged far less favorably by conservative opinion on the Continent, than it is in this country. In England the prevailing idea is that the strike must be stopped, no matter what means are employed. The Paris Temps on the other hand, takes the view that the British Government is conducting the country toward a species of social Jacobinism, which is repugnant alike to reason and justice.

General Strike In Germany.

Berlin, Mar. 6.—The striking miners at one of the three mines at Bochum where a strike broke out unexpectedly yesterday, resumed work to-day, and the movement has not spread to other mines. The prospects, however, of a general mining strike in Germany are appreciable.

The answers of the mine owners to the miners' demand for a 15 per cent increase of wages, are due to-day. The first of them has already been given and is said to be typical of those that are to follow.

IN CAR 15 DAYS WITHOUT FOOD

Johnson City, Tenn., March 4.—A negro who had been without food or water for fifteen days was found in a carload of corn, when the car was opened here Tuesday. The negro was unconscious, but was soon revived. He stated that he was sealed up in the car at Cincinnati on February 12th, after he had entered it to spend the night.

ITALIANS BECOME PROTESTANTS

Hamilton, March 5.—The Orange Hall was the scene of a religious ceremony unique in the history of Hamilton, and possibly in that of the entire country. It was the occasion of a reception service under the auspices of the Presbyterian Church, the candidates being 20 men and six women, natives of Italy, who have been converted to the Protestant faith through the efforts of Vincent Delrossi, who has had charge of the Presbyterian Mission to the Italians in this city, for some time, and who has been doing excellent work. At the request of the committee of the Hamilton Presbytery, under whose direction the mission is being conducted, Rev. A. E. Mitchell, pastor of Knox Church, officiated at the service, and afterwards dispensed Holy Communion. He was assisted by Elders from Knox, MacNab Street and Central and St. Paul's Churches. These 26 new Italian Presbyterians have applied to the Presbytery to be organized into a mission, which request, it is thought, will probably be granted. Mr. Delrossi will later be appointed to the prospective mission.

BIG COAL STRIKE IN THE UNITED STATES

New York, March 6.—Anthracite coal operators in session here this afternoon decided to reject the demands of the miners for an increased pay. A committee of operators was appointed to notify union officials of the result.

The operators were in session less than an hour, and it is understood that the decision to reject the demands was unanimous. The committee which will notify representatives of the miners of the decision is composed of ten members with Joseph L. Cape, an independent operator, as chairman. This committee will frame a reply and will present it to the miners' representatives on March 14.

BOURASSA SEARCHING FOR PLAN TO SECURE SEPARATE SCHOOLS

Quebec, March 6. Mr. Henri Bourassa, who, in the course of an interview in which he condemned Mr. Borden for not granting Separate Schools in the newly-annexed territory of Manitoba, and declared, "it makes my British blood boil," returns to the subject in a review of the constitutional aspect.

He refused to state definitely, however, what plan of campaign he intends to follow.

"My mind is clear," he declared, "as to what the Government and Parliament at Ottawa should do, but as to the attitude I propose to adopt, I want to think the matter over before I make anything known to the public."

Manitoba Responsible.

Mr. Bourassa made a comparison in which he likened the situation in Keewatin to that of a person who contemplated buying a piece of land. "The purchaser of a piece of land," he said, "must accept and execute all mortgages and legal obligations existing at the time of purchase. Manitoba is seeking possession of a portion of Keewatin and in the acquisition must observe all pledges and rights created in that territory by the Federal authorities in 1875.

"At present the majority of the ratepayers in Keewatin have the right to establish such schools as they think hour, a local citizen walking along ant or Catholic, the right to open separate schools. That is the law, and it should be preserved."

Mr. Bourassa also pointed out that Manitoba is asking for the land, not having it forced on her, and is therefore all the less in a position to haggle over conditions and stipulations.

The Nationalist leader reviewed briefly the legislation involved in the question. "In 1870," he said, "by Act of the Imperial Parliament, the Dominion Parliament was given authority to create new Provinces and to annex to existing or future Provinces such sections of the partially organized Northwest Territories as might be expedient.

Legislation Irrevocable.

"In 1875 the Mackenzie Government, at the suggestion of the Hon. Edward Blake, introduced legislation establishing definitely the principle of separate schools in the Northwest. This was passed unanimously in the Lower House, the Conservatives endorsing the principle. In the Upper House Mr. George Brown made some objection, and declared that the principle once admitted would be established beyond recall for all time. The measure was passed, and on all sides it was agreed that the legislation was permanent, and absolutely irrevocable. The majority in the affected territory was then Catholic and the minority Protestant.

"Despite this legislation, however, the Northwest Territories Council and Assembly, which was not really a deliberative, but merely an administrative body, having authority over a portion of the territories in which Keewatin was not included, promulgated, between 1892 and 1901, certain ordinances encroaching upon the rights of the minority. It may be observed in [illegible] that by this time the majority had become Protestant and the minority Catholic.

"Protest was made to Ottawa, but Sir John Thompson, then Minister of Justice, refused to disallow the ordinances of 1892 on the ground that in so far as they might violate the statute of 1875, their vitality could always be contested before any tribunal.

Law of 1875 Holds.

"In 1905, Alberta and Saskatchewan were given Provincial status. As is well known to all, the first draft of the bill maintained the school clause of 1875, and thereby annulled the ordinances. This brought about Hon. Clifford Sifton's resignation and a Ministerial crisis, the importance of which was much exaggerated.

Finally the bills were amended so as to include the system of schools created by the ordinances.

"But this affected in no way the situation in Keewatin and the rest of the territories. There the law of 1875 as re-enacted in the Revised Statutes of Canada, is still the only law and constitution, and the Federal Parliament is bound in honor to keep it intact."

OIL OIL OIL

Oil is King--King of Fuel for all purposes

Without it the automobile could not exist. Just as soon as a supply can be depended on, ships on every ocean, sea, lake, and river, will be propelled by it. The British Admirality are building warships to be propelled by it. The great railway transportation companies are altering their locomotives to be driven by it. The cooking stoves and heating plants in every district where it can be secured are being made to use it—in fact the whole civilized world is crying out for it.

And we have it—have the piece of the earth's crust where it is bursting out and spilling over in such quantities that we are able to collect it from the surface of the pools, put it in bottles, and have it analyzed, and here is what the analytical chemist has to say of it :

Hungarian Cabinet Proposes to Take 15 Per Cent. of Their Revenues

A proposal was introduced in the Hungarian Parliament by M. G. Polonyi, M.P., to the effect that the 12 per cent. tax on bookmakers' net revenues should be raised to 15 per cent., and that the sum so gained, amounting to about $100,000 annually should be used for sporting purposes. The Cabinet, writes a Hungarian correspondent, has supported the proposal. It is already planned to utilize part of these sums for the expenses of an Olympic Games, which Hungary would like to arrange in 1920, and to build a large, modern stadium, which would serve for this purpose.

Pigs

Pigs that are apt to have "differences of opinion" should be separated. Fighting takes off flesh.

There should be placed in every pig yard and pasture a box with salt, charcoal, air-slaked lime, bonemeal and hardwood ashes, so the pigs can help themselves at will.

Hogs do not dig in the earth altogether for the fun of it.' They get a lot to eat that way—grass- roots, worms, bites of stuff of different kinds that help to make bone and muscle.

Horses

Horses with good dispositions are always safer and more valuable.

Raise the type of colt that sells best in your community.

Do not let the little colt follow the dam while she is at work.

If a colt is worth raising at all he is worth raising well.

Some folks get so in the habit of saing "Whoa!" to their horses when they do not mean it that these faithful animals cannot tell when their masters do really mean to have them stop, so they keep going. When you say "Whoa!" mean it. That is the only way your horses have of knowing what to do.

Sheep

Diseases get a fast hold of many a flock of sheep through foul drinking water. Never give stagnant water if you can help it.

A few trees in the pasture add greatly to the comfort of the sheep, these days. If you can't have them, set up a few posts and cover a bit of ground over for a shed.

To dip the flock in the first warm weather is good practice, as this spares the lambs. Any one of the carbolic dips is good. This poison destroys the tick and scab parasites by contact on the outside.—From June Farm Journal.

We regret to say that Mr. Chas. Stapleton, Peterborough's veteran auctioneer, was yesterday reported to the Times, as being very ill.

Why Your Fingers Crack.

Dr. Howard Marsh tells in a recent paper that the "snap," which is often both felt and heard when a joint that has long been stiff or at rest is suddenly moved, is a phenomenon to which bonesetters point as a plain demonstration that a bone was out and has been put in. These snaps, however, are not produced by the concussion of two joint surfaces as they come suddenly into contact but, on the contrary, are due to the sudden separation of two surfaces which have been stuck together by a too viscid and [illegible] synovial fluid (the synovial fluid is of the consistency of white of egg and is Nature's lubricator of our joints, in the cavities of which it is present). Many persons can make all their fingers crack by steadily pulling at them till the joint surfaces suddenly separate.

The Ivory Supply.

In view of the rapid disappearance of the herds of elephants which formerly roamed in Africa, and the limited number of those animals remaining in Asia, attention has been called to the enormous supply of ivory which exists in the frozen tundras of Siberia, and which, it is thought, will probably suffice for the world's consumption for many years to come. This ivory consists of the tusks of the extinct species of elephant called mammoths. The tusks of these animals were of great size, and are wonderfully abundant at some places in Siberia.

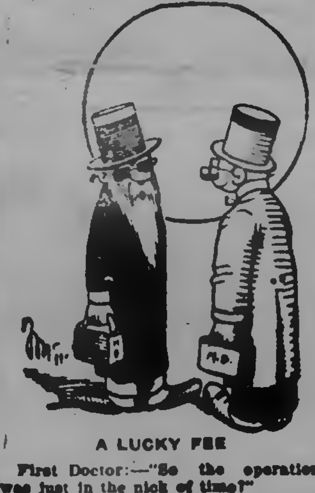
Last season was not specially favorable for potatoes, but care in cultivation should produce sufficient for home consumption.



A LUCKY FEE

First Doctor:—"So the operation was just in the nick of time?"

Second Doctor:—"Yes, in another week the patient would have recovered without it."

BEG PARDON!

"Look here, old man!" exclaimed the chief sub-editor to the man who mismanaged the manuscripe. "This is a mighty poor story you've passed me."

"Sorry I can't agree with you," snorted the man who mismanaged the manuscripts. "Thought it rather a good yarn myself."

"Did you?" said the chief sub-editor. "Well, listen to this as an example of the writer's style. He says, 'He was puzzled to death!' Now, I ask you, how could a man be puzzled to death?"

"Well," retorted the guardian of the waste-paper basket, "he might be riddled with bullets, you know!"

THE TOOTHSOME TEST

Enticed by a window-display of freshly-dusted tomatoes and lettuce-leaves, the unwary stranger dropped into the Betternot Buffet and called for the bill-of-fare.

An aged waiter approached, and flicked yesterday's crumbs from the table with a day-before-yesterday's napkin.

"What have you got good to-day, eh?" asked the stranger.

"Oysters," answered the waiter, nodding with kindly assurance. "And you needn't be afeard of 'em, sir, for their very good indeed. Why," he added confidentially, "we're eatin' 'em ourselves!"

NO THANKS

An actor and a "quack" were chatting. They were both hollow shows. One pretended he could amuse people; while the other pretended he could cure them.

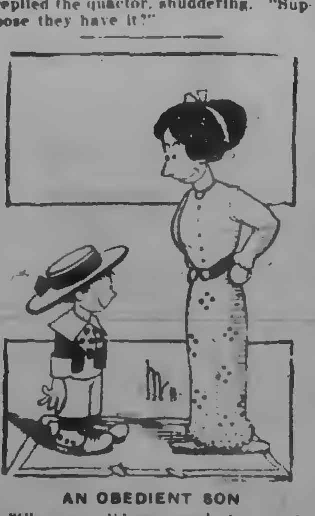
And they neither of them could do either.

"I've done you many a good turn," said the quack. "Now, I want you to do me one. Will you?"

The quactor nodded his flowing locks.

"On your next tour," pursued the quack, "will you ask for my Tiddlem's Tonic at every place you go to? It will be a splendid advertisement for me, you know, and will suggest that there is a demand for it."

"Yes, but be reasonable, old man," replied the quactor, shuddering. "Suppose they have it?"



AN OBEDIENT SON

"Clarence, did you peel that apple before eating it, as I told you?"

"Yes, mother."

"What did you do with the peel?"

"I ate it, mother."

When a man refuses to give his wife the last word he no longer loves her.

Now is the price charged here for provisions, from the farm, entirely due to shortage of crops? Are not the farmers making twice to thrice the profit they used to? The average farmer now cannot drive into town except behind a $300 team in a high priced conveyance. His homes are vastly more expensive and his family dress in a way they would not have thought of a few years ago. Is not the townsman, in high prices, paying for this new-born luxury?

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Some Good Suggestions to Paste Up for Reference

Combs should not be washed. Clean them by passing a piece of soft rag between the teeth.

Traces of Mud may be removed from black dresses by rubbing the stains with raw potato.

When Making Pastry add the juice of a lemon to the water for mixing. It will make the paste lighter and dispel the flavor of lard.

Milk and Eggs are great fat producers. Drink milk with your meals instead of water, and, if cared for, eggs can be added with advantage.

Coal-Ash is a fine polisher for the bright parts of the range. Dip a wet rag into the fine ash and rub well, and a fine polish will be the result.

After an Umbrella has been in use for a short time put a drop of oil in the centre of the top about once a month. This prevents the ribs from rusting.

It is recommended that a little vinegar be added to the water in which stockings are rinsed after being washed. The stockings should then be dried wrong side out. Colored stockings will not be faded, and black ones will retain their original lustre.

If when Boiling or Baking Meat you find it is smelling somewhat tainted, take a small piece of stick, put the end of it in the fire, and burn it just enough to make it black. If baking, place the burnt end in the dripping-pan. If boiling, place the end in the saucepan. The taint will be found to have disappeared.

Ink Spots may be removed from certain dress materials if moistened with turpentine, which should be allowed to remain on the spots for five minutes or longer (half an hour, if necessary) before the material is rubbed between the hands as in washing. Turpentine should never be used near an open fire or flame.

A Good Plan is to Rub Vaseline into the backs of ebony hair-brushes before washing, so that the soda will not affect the ebony. Then, when dry, a little olive oil, applied with a soft rag and rubbed in with a clean cloth, will give as much polish as is required, as ebony should not be very highly polished at any time.

Soap never should be used in cleaning paint, especially white enamel or any paint with a gloss, as it will remove the gloss, which is the chief charm of the wood. If, in washing woodwork a cupful of the glue used by carpenters is melted and poured into a pail of warm water, it will not only serve as a cleanser, but it will leave a high gloss such as new paint has.

When Linen has been Badly Scorched, try the following method. Boil to a good consistency in half a pint of vinegar two ounces of fuller's earth and the juice of two onions. Spread this mixture over the damaged part and leave it to dry. If the threads are not actually burnt through, the scorched place will appear after washing as white and perfect as the rest of the linen

FOOD VALUE OF CHEESE

Fresh Meat Has Little More Than Half Its Nourishment

A comparison of the food value of cheese with that of other highly nitrogenous food materials may be of interesting value. No kind of meat excepting dried beef carries such a large percentage of protein as cheese, and as dried beef contains a much greater percentage of water, the other food constituents, apart from the protein, are much less than is found in cheese. Fresh beef as purchased has, weight for weight, little more than half the food value of cheese in either protein or fat, and the same is true of practically all other fresh meats, which have in many cases such a large percentage of water than they are noticeably inferior to cheese in food value. Bacon or pork fat are exceptions, but their food value is mostly in the fat, which can be and is replaced to a great extent by the carbohydrates of vegetables at a much less cost, and sometimes, perhaps, at a benefit to the health of the consumer. Fish and pork each have a notably large percentage of refuse, while eggs have a high percentage of water. To sum the matter up, a pound of cheese has nearly the same food value as two pounds of fresh beef, or any other fresh meat, as food; it is worth as much as or more than a pound of ham, and is more digestible, and it is equal to two pounds of eggs or three pounds of fish

NOVEL PLACE OF WORSHIP

A Bishop Has Consecrated a Chapel on Wheels

A chapel on wheels has just been consecrated by Archbishop Bourne. This novel place of worship is to be sent on tour in charge of two priests, for whom it will also be a residence. It is an ordinary motor-van, the interior of which is fitted with a miniature altar for the celebration of Mass, with prie-Dieu kneelers for a dozen worshippers. When not in use the Divine services the benches are stowed away, the altar cleared of its ornaments, and the vehicle becomes a travelling van, with beds for the accommodation of the two priests. The chapel on wheels will start in East Anglia, and the first stopping place is to be Haverhill, where Father Bernard Vaughan will deliver a series of lectures during a week's sojourn in that town.

BEAUTIFYING THE DOGS

A Veterinary Surgeon Undertakes to Remove Canine Wrinkles

We hear a good deal about massage lotions and prescriptions, all calculated to transform even the plainest woman into a thing of beauty. Now, as it appears, the canine race is being similarly taken in hand under the auspices of a veterinary surgeon in Paris. At least, in a prospectus the following list of charges is drawn up:

"Alteration of the shape of the muzzle, 50 francs.

"Insertion of wrinkles on the face of a bulldog, 50 francs.

"Change of the size of the tail, 25 francs."

ANNUAL CLEANING DON'TS

Don't, because you love turning out and having a general rummage, throw the whole house into an uproar and reduce its members to discomfort and misery.

Don't forget to book the sweep for the days you will need him.

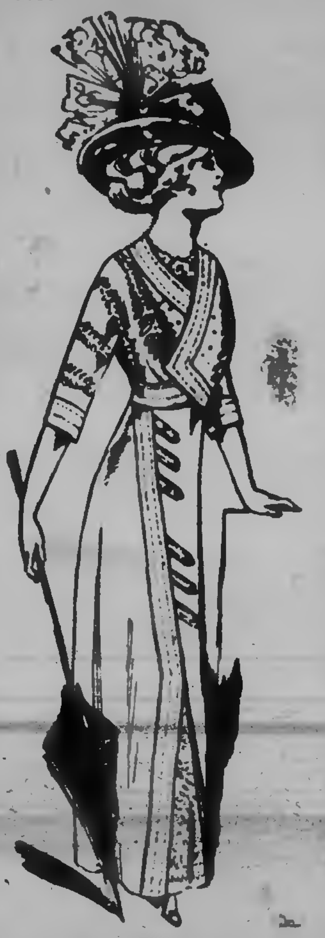
Don't put off getting in cleaning materials until the last moment. Lay in a good stock of soaps, soda, polishes, etc., as well as dusters, floor and paint cloths. See also that suitable brooms and brushes are ready.

Don't decide to let the meals look after themselves. Spring-cleaning is hard work, and appetising meals are a necessity. Prepare beforehand a few "stand-bys."

Don't begin in the cellar and work up to the attic, but vice-versa.

Don't attempt to turn out drawers and cupboards when actual cleaning has started. To sort out rubbish needs thought and leisure, and should be done beforehand.

Don't forget to scrub out drawers, etc., with carbolic soap; then dry in the open air, if possible, and, lastly, reline with clean white paper.



FOR LINEN OR SATIN

The much-heralded bolero has actually arrived, and is much in evidence for linens, serges and satins. This design employs the jacket with kimono sleeves and is most attractive developed either in linen or satin. If the former material is used eyelet embroidery is set in the opening of skirt; if satin, soutache is brought into play by braiding a design on the inset piece in skirt, and also on jacket and sleeves, as shown.

FOREHEAD CREASES

How to Eradicate the Furrows in the Brow

A perfectly smooth brow is not the least of youth's enviable possessions, and it is one of those tiresome accidents which makes a "fringey" style of hairdressing best becoming just when the forehead begins to record the wear and tear of time.

For the heavy lines known as "frown marks" the beauty doctors advocate what they call "wrinkle plasters." The lines are pressed out with the fingers, and the plaster is applied while the "frown mark" is thus forcibly held in abeyance. The plaster should be applied, it seems, every time one proposes to go into a "brown study," as well as during sleep.

To eradicate the fine lines, flannel wrung out of hot water and laid on the forehead for ten minutes at a time, and followed by a similarly lengthy dabbing—not rubbing—with olive oil is the treatment prescribed. Adopted twice a day for a fortnight, these means are said to ensure a smooth, white brow. The oil must be freely applied, as it is the oil which feeds the wasted tissues that cause the lines.

THE RULE OF THREE

Three Things to govern—Temper, tongue, conduct.

Three things to love—Courage, gentleness, affection.

Three things to hate—Cruelty, arrogance, ingratitude.

Three things to delight in—Frankness, freedom, beauty.

Three things to wish for—Health, friends, a cheerful spirit.

Three things to avoid—Idleness, loquacity, flippant jesting.

Three things to fight for—Honor, country, home.

Three things to think about—Life, death, eternity.

TO THE DEFENCE OF THE HOBBLE

A Writer Makes Some Comparisons Between the New Skirt and the "Crinoline" of Old

Once more the treacherous "hobble-skirt" is the harbinger of woe. A little while ago the papers told how the owner of a particularly dangerous type of this "elastic" garment found herself literally "held up." She had, she complained, to be lifted out of a boat, and it took her three hours to walk from Twickenham to Richmond, with many waits by the way to recover her "stride"!

She also complained that her jacket was so tight that it stopped the circulation, and in these circumstances one is almost tempted to declare that even "those dreadful crinolines" themselves might be preferable.

Certainly within their ample circumferences would be found a little more space to exercise the limbs, and, of course, "rests" could easily be managed if one felt at all fatigued

Clarissa, of the early Victorian era, simply had to raise her dainty slippered feet from the ground, and hang supported by the wooden structure round her slender waist.

But to both adherents of the "hobble" and the "crinoline" a loss of balance would prove fatal! Imagine a "hobble-skirt" wearer of to-day slipping on a piece of orange-peel, and assuming the lowly position of the pavement-artist, with [illegible] strapped helplessly together, unable to make the smallest successful effort to get up!

Then picture Clarissa of the "crinoline" in the same sad predicament, presenting the spectacle of a huge, blown-out, penny bladder, resting sideways on her head! What enviable positions in both cases!

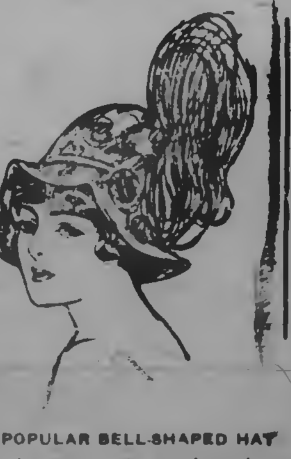
What delicate flutterings of "crinolined" and "hobbled" hearts, as the young man of each period hastens to the scene of action with commendable alacrity and gently but firmly rights the refractory feminine "craft"!

Such blushings and apologies! Such lowerings of the eyelids! Such thrilling, upward glances at the fair and gallant knights! Can it be that there is method in this madness?

Is it possible that the "timid crinoliner" and "stately "hobbler" have in their several periods discovered the vulnerable spot in the unplumbed depths of the wonderful masculine heart—its love of variety? It must be so. Times change, but the human heart never!

Then, too, it has been announced that the "hobble" may take first rank among the healthy garments. It does not "pick up," as does the ordinary gown, the dust and microbes which infest our public streets. As much might be said for the "crinolined" damsel. In her case also the skirt was made fairly short, and extending in a billowy circle round her, cleared the ground by several inches.

Remember, too, the "crinoline" and "hobble" only become the maids of slim proportions.—Answers.



THE POPULAR BELL-SHAPED HAT

For the woman who can becomingly wear a small hat, this is one of the most attractive shapes shown among spring models. It requires little or no trimming, and of the simplest kind—a plume or bow of ribbon is all that is necessary. Above model differs slightly from the majority of this type hat in that the brim is bent at intervals in small points. It is a fancy straw in green and blue shading, with a band of narrow blue velvet ribbon about the base of crown, and a blue willow plume, prettily arranged on left side, near back

Sudbury is now in the same throes that Peterborough went through some twenty-two years ago. The government has purchased a location for a postoffice in that town. Some of the politicians and non-politicians have other lots on which they want the post office placed. It will be remembered by our older local citizens, how the corner where the Peterborough post office now stands was in strong rivalry for that building with the corner now occupied by the Customs House. Thousands of dollars were bet in Peterborough as to which spot would be chosen by the government. Each spot was owned by strong supporters of Sir John A. Macdonald's government. The owners of each corner backed their opinions by rolls of bills as thick as the present price of butter and eggs. Then, the compromise came. Each lot was bought.

A MOTHER'S CARES DESTRUCTIVE TO HEALTH

ANAEMIA, BAD BLOOD, HEADACHES, AND LASSITUDE VERY COMMON.

Mrs. Wilkinson's Letter Gives Advice That Every Mother Can Well Follow.

From her home in Newton where she resides with her large family, Mrs. Wilkinson writes: "For years I was pale, anaemic and lacking in vitality. I was a constant sufferer from indigestion, and the distress and pain it caused me, coupled with ever-increasing anaemia, made me weaker day by day. Constant headaches, specks before the eyes and attacks of dizziness made me feel as if life were not worth living. My constitution was completely undermined and the constant pallor and dullness in my eyes showed what a sick woman I was. I began to take Dr. Hamilton's Pills and the improvement, although slow, was sure.

"I gradually got back my strength and my appetite grew much stronger, and I enjoyed my meals thoroughly. I felt happier and more contented and the sickly pallor of my face was replaced by a bright, rosy color, which proved that a strong medicine was at work. In a few months Dr. Hamilton's Pills brought me from a condition of deathly pallor to robust health."

You can obtain the same results by using Dr. Hamilton's Pills—beware of the substitutor that offers you anything except Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1.00, at all dealers or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

THE MORNING TIMES

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 6, 1912.

LOCAL AND ENGLISH COAL CONDITIONS.

Do you, or are you old enough to remember how, during the hard coal strike in the U. S., antracite, or hard coal in Peterborough jumped to $12.50 a ton? It looks as though coal in England, if Mr. Asquith does not "take the bull by the horns" will soon be stored in lockets as valuable as diamonds. It will be remembered how exercised our local citizens were over the awful prices charged here. Still, in England, as the Mother Country is absolutely dependent on coal for its railroad and steamship traffic, which means its food supplies, conditions there are many thousand per cent. than any Peterborough citizen feared the worst for.

PROTESTANT DISABILITIES IN QUEBEC.

If we had public schools where all the children of the people were taught together, which is the prevalent wish of Protestants, all the school funds and not those of the joint stock companies only, would be distributed according to population, and no one would call it unfair, even though the Protestants contributed most of the money and the Roman Catholics the great majority of the children, says the Montreal Witness. We are certain that the Protestants as a whole desire that all the children of the land should be educated, and that such is a proper use for the general talles, whether in the case of corporations or in the case of public money granted from Quebec. The only thing that makes the present system offensive is the extremely sectarian and separatist and therefore anti-national character of some of the schools, and that Protestant money is taken not only for the dissemination of a faith that is not their own, but with it of an ambiguous allegiance. It is this wrong that has been fought over for years back in Great Britain, some having gone to prison, others having taken the despoiling of their goods by the bailiff rather than admit the principle that the state had a right to take their money for the promotion of another form of religion than that to which they subscribed, even though that other religion was Protestant. We submit to this system because the great majority imposes it upon us. Indeed we joyfully see provincial money going to schools throughout the province, because we know that nothing contributes to this wrong so much as the general ignorance that has prevailed, and that the time is coming when it will be removed without our asking.

This is in reply to our correspondent Mr. A. J. Stevens, of Bedford, who resents the disabilities under which Protestants labor in this province. The second one he deals with is the forcing of Protestants to pay assessments for the building and repairs of Roman Catholic churches. This is not done unless the property is bought from a Roman Catholic with a church building lien upon it, sometimes the fact of such a lien is hidden, and only crops up after the property has been bought in good faith and possibly after due search. It is quite plain, however, that, if property can be assessed for church purposes, it will not do to allow it, after it has been so assessed, to escape taxation by selling it out of the Roman Catholic community. That would render the calculations of the assessment misleading and would be unfair to the other persons assessed. Mr. Stevens reaches the marrow of the subject when he says it is unfair to give one church this power of assessment on its members and deny it to all others. So it is; but we cannot imagine any other church claiming or any other people tolerating such a system. The people it affects most are the Roman Catholics themselves. The moment they do not want it, they will find means to get rid of it. All that we hear about treaty rights will amount to nothing when the majority thinks the other way. People will then say this is a self-governing province. Bargains between ancient kings were well enough for their day, but we want something else; and when it comes to that they will get something else.

Editorial Notes

The State of Louisiana is considering a bill to pension negro servants who served on the Confederate side in the late unpleasantness. That is those who fought against the U. S. in the Civil war, now that the United States is in supreme, are to be paid by a State formerly in opposition. Is this not somewhat a parallel case to that of "lip" Conservatives who really voted Reform in Ontario Elections, getting Dominion positions?

6. This By-law shall come into force on the 2nd day of July, A.D., 1912.

NOTICE.

A Wonderful Discovery

An eminent scientist, the other day, gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poison! Not one species of microbe has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or cut, or to a burn or bruise, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of the thing. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should never forget this.

Again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh healthy tissue from below is Zam-Buk's secret of healing. The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day Mr. Marsh, of 101 Delorimier Ave., Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Company and told them that for over twenty-five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. To-day over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the eczema!

All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box, or we will send free trial box if you send this advertisement and a 1c. stamp (to pay return postage). Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

FITZSIMMON'S SON MAY SUCCEED HIM

New Orleans, La., March 6. You do not hear much about Bob Fitzsimmons these days, but unless the signs are awry, it won't be long before the name of the old gladiator will again ring across the land.

For "Ruby Robert," he of the freckles and terrible punch, who lowered the colors of the best until he bumped into young Jim Jeffries, has planned to regain the heavyweight world's championship.

Fitz has no intention of returning to the ring. But the ex-middleweight and heavyweight champion has a broth of a boy on the farm at Dunnellan, N.J., who, although but sixteen, is six feet in his bare feet and weighs 160 pounds most of which is bone and muscle.

If there is anything in the "breed to the line" theory, "Bob, Jr.," should become a ring wonder. He has a better physique than his sire boasted of in his palmiest days and is built as symmetrically as an artist's model, his weight being distributed evenly, instead of over shoulders and chest, as was the case with Fitzsimmons, pere.

"Old Bob," hopes to see him wearing the crown as champion some day.

NE TEMERE DECREE

Strong Resolution Passed by Armstrong L.O.L., 137.

Toronto, March 4.—At the last regular meeting of the Armstrong L. O. L. No. 137, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"We desire to place on record our appreciation of the stand taken by Rev. W. H. Hincks in his recent series of sermons against the encroachments of the Roman Catholic Church, through the 'Ne Temere decree,' on our rights and privileges as loyal British subjects.

"We heartily concur, and endorse all that our reverend brother said, and join with him in strongly protesting against any interference whatsoever by the Roman Catholic Church with regard to our religious liberty as Protestants, especially that relating to the marriage law.

"And, furthermore, we are prepared to fall in line with all the other Protestant organizations in whatever steps they may lawfully take to make our position in this matter absolutely safe and secure.

TROOPS GUARDING MEXICAN CONSULATE

El Paso, Tex., March 6.—United States troops to-day are guarding the Mexican consulate here as the result of a demonstration against Consul Llorente because the latter insisted upon the release of the American soldiers who inadvertently invaded Mexico on Thursday.

Leon Martinez is under arrest charged with inciting the riot. It is reported that he and his wife led a mob which attacked the consulate late last night.

160 RUSSIANS DIED IN A SNOWSTORM

Omsk, Russia, March 5. A large number of persons were frozen to death during a snowstorm in this district Saturday. In Omsk thirty-one fatalities have been reported, while at Koktopakvak the death roll totals thirty-two and in Petropavalosk it reached 105.

TOWN IN HONDURAS TAKEN BY THE REBELS

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, March 6.—Jose Maria Villadares, a Honduran revolutionary from Amalpa, Thursday crossed the San Salvador frontier into Honduras with sixty men and captured the border town of Aramecina. There were only five Honduran soldiers stationed in Aramecina when the revolutionaries appeared.

The Honduran government is rushing troops to meet Villadares and expects to suppress the outbreak in a few days.

It is probable that Villadares will be captured, as he is virtually a political outlaw.

A number of prominent men in this city have been arrested. They had in their possession what are alleged to be compromising documents.

Villadares was formerly commandant of the port of Amalpa.

BIG LOAN MADE TO HONDURAN CONGRESS

New Orleans, La., March 4.—The $500,000 loan by the Whitney Central Bank to the government of Honduras, negotiations for which have been under way for some time, has been authorized by the Honduran congress. The loan will be effected as soon as the bonds by which it will be secured can be engraved.

The bonds are to run for ten years, at 5 per cent. interest. It is understood that they were taken at a fraction more than 90.

The loan just authorized, is merely the first step toward the making of a ten-million dollar loan, for which negotiations are now under way. This proposed loan is to be secured by an issue of fifty-year bonds, part of which will go toward the retirement of the ten-year bonds that were issued for the loan just authorized.

PROGRESS AND PROFIT

JUST AS EVERY INDUSTRIAL CONCERN must look to the future and prepare a program of progress, so must every individual.

EVERYONE, WHATEVER THEIR POSITION, strives for betterment in the times to come.

IN REAL ESTATE INVESTMENTS the present and future are intimately connected.

EVERY CAR OF LUMBER, every street graded, and every tree planted, adds immediately to the realty value of the city or district affected.

THE FUTURE INCREASE IN VALUES is only controlled by the extent of such progressive operations.

THE PLACE TO INVEST is where progress is greatest, where the city strives for improvement. MOOSE JAW the coming metrpolis of SASKATCHEWAN is such a city.

ALREADY THE BUILDING PERMITS FOR 1912 almost eclipse those of the year of 1911, while extensive railway and industrial developments are actually going on.

BOULEVARD HEIGHTS is the district in which to buy.

THE VENDORS have linked the present with the future by preparing this subdivision for building operations now about to commence.

ALL STREETS AND BOULEVARDS are graded, the lake almost half a mile in length is completed, thousands of trees purchased, and now only await the frost to leave the ground to be planted.

AND YOU CAN BUY a building site in this unique residential district on terms of $10.00 cash and $10.00 monthly, with no interest or taxes.

IF YOU WANT TO MAKE FUTURE PROFITS, take this opportunity of the present.

SLIPPERY ROCKS

A quaintly-worded notice is often more effective than one framed in mere official terms. At Aber Falls is a notice regarding the slippery condition of the rocks, making climbing dangerous. The notice concludes as follows:—

"In consequence of the above notice being disregarded, a stretcher is now kept at the cottage below the falls."

A WONDERFUL CLUB

The Unique History of an Australian Racing Organization.

A remarkable organizatioin is the Onkaparinga Jockey Club, a South Australian club, which has been in existence for thirty-six years, operating on only one day in the year, Easter Monday. Yet it is not an insignificant institution, by any means, and some interesting statistics were quoted at the recent meeting. Taking the figures for the last twenty-three years (since the totalizator was introduced) it had disbursed £103,251. Of this sum £52,920 had been paid in stakes; the improvements and upkeep of the course had cost £15,443; and £27,087 had been spent in wages. Charities had benefited to the extent of £2,358, and the Government had been paid £4,920 as stamp tax (nine years only). This year the club is offering 2,750 sovereigns for seven races. The club is making improvements to the extent of 2,000 sovereigns, and will carry forward a balance of about £1,000.

LAMENESS AND HORSE-SHOEING

Many Defects in Horses' Feet Can be Cured in the Blacksmith Shop

Dr. W. J. Taylor, a noted veterinarian, has made some interesting suggestions about horse shoeing. Many of the defects which cause lameness according to this experienced teacher, can be cured or relieved by proper shoeing. For corn, remove the pressure by cutting away the hoof at the point of contact with the corn, says Dr. Taylor, so as to relieve the pressure, and support the shoe if necessary by a half bar. There are two kinds of founder, the true founder or the hoof founder, and the grain founder. The symptoms of these two are very much alike, but the former can be recognized by the fact that in this condition the hoof instead of being arched upward between the frog and the edge of the hoof bulges downward. This can be relieved by shoeing with a full-bar. The grain founder is due to feeding when the animal is too warm. For contracted heel, the shoe should be hinged at the toe, and provided with a thumb screw at the heel by which the tips of the shoe can be gradually pressed apart. For forging shorten the hoof at the toe, and put on an extra plate on the shoe at the toe, the effect of which will be to weight the hoof and so bring it to the ground a little sooner. Toe crack may be caused either from some injury to the hoof, in which case it cannot be cured, or it may be merely the result of lack of shoes. In the second case it can be cured and in either case it cal be relieved. Cut away the hoof slightly just at the lower end of the crack to relieve the pressure, and hold the cracked edges together by a copper plate screwed on the outer surface of the hoof with short screws. Navicular disease is a disease of the coffin-joint above the hoof, and cannot be located by the finger as there is no external sore spot. The symptom is lameness when the horse is first taken from the stable a lameness which disappears temporarily when the horse has been driven for a time. This cannot be easily cured, but the lameness can be relieved by putting on what is called a double-rocker shoe, a shoe thicker in the middle that at either toe or heel. This distributes the pressure more evenly and relieves the shock more than a flat shoe. The hoof should be kept as soft as possible by an occasionall soaking, or by allowing the horse to stand on damp earth.

MENDACIOUS WINDOWS

Chancellor Prescott, of Carlisle, is anxious that stained-glass windows should tell the truth, and not represent the pictorial fiction of artists. He granted a faculty for a window which is to be erected in St. Aidan's Church Carlisle, in memory of the late Bishop Ware, of Barrow-in-Furness, subject to an amended design being submitted. He did not think angels usually wore coats-of-arms, and one of them was represented clad in the coat-of-arms of the Dean and Chapter of Carlisle. Oswald, King of Northumbria, who died at the age of thirty-eight, was represented as an aged man, and the artists in stained glass will now have to make him look more youthful.

REFUSED LEAD OF SIR WILFRID

Ottawa, March 6.—The Liberal opposition to the Manitoba boundaries bill, which is expected to come up in the House this afternoon for a second reading, is petering out. Sir Wilfrid Laurier himself was keenly anxious to fight the measure to the last ditch, as he has always blocked giving Manitoba fair play. He was in favor of moving a six months' hoist, on the ground that the other Provinces would have to be appealed to first before new financial terms will be granted. He hoped by doing this to keep his own followers together and to gain the support of the Nationalists without committing himself to the principle of Separate Schools.

Ontario Liberals Against Schools.

However, Sir Wilfrid found when a Liberal caucus was called, that it was impossible to unite his party on any one policy. The majority, or at least a large section, admitted that the arrangement was perfectly fair. The boundaries are the same as Sir Wilfrid himself drew up in 1908, while the Ontario Liberals admit that the arrangement with Ontario is very satisfactory. The French Liberals wanted to move an amendment for a Separate School clause, but the Ontario Liberals strongly objected. The Liberal party indeed found itself so hopelessly divided that it will probably not move an amendment at all to the bill, but will devote itself to general criticism of the financial terms. To help out Mr. Rowell, a protest will be put up in regard to the arrangement with Ontario, although Ontario Liberals admit it will be simply a perfunctory objection.

Nationalist Amendment.

The French Liberals will wait to see what the Nationalist bolters, who will not number more than ten at the outside, will do before taking action. If the Nationalists move an amendment for separate schools then a number of them will support it. One thing it is expected will result from the present agitation and that is a complete severance between Bourassa and Monk and probably the break-up of the Nationalist party.

ONTARIO'S EXAMPLE FOLLOWED IN U. S.

Now that the Ontario Government has established a prison farm, on which to keep the convicts "healthy and wise" if not wealthy, it is of some interest to note that the old State of Louisiana has followed suit. As may be seen in the appended clipping from a New Orlean's paper, that State goes even further in that move. The authorities have a similar farm but sell [illegible] it. The extract says :— "The most notable action taken by the Legislature to-day was the adoption by the lower house of the Hemphill resolution providing that after the State convict farms have been fully developed they shall be sold in small tracts, as a measure of encouraging immigration, and wild lands purchased on which the State's convicts will be placed at work."

MOLLY ON THE MAKE

There never was such a baby!

Though father said it, who shouldn't, and mother said it, who shouldn't, and everybody said it but those who should—well, there never was!

"Molly, my love," cried daddy, bouncing in upon his seven-year-old, "Uncle George has just arrived, and he's enraptured. He said 'There never was such a baby!' and he offered to buy her for $5 an ounce."

"You're not going to sell her, are you?" asked Molly, with wide-open eyes.

"No, my precious," cried the delighted father, embracing her affectionately over this show of proper sentiment.

"Because," resumed Molly, "she'll be heavier when she's older and'll fetch more!"

TAKING NO CHANCES

"Johnny," said the teacher, "this is the third time I have had to punish you this week. Why are you so naughty?"

"Because," answered the incorrigible youngster, "grandpa says the good die young, and I ain't taking any chances."

A MILLINERY THOUGHT

"They say that when an ostrich is surprised he hides his head in the sand."

"I wish to thunder he'd everlastingly hide his tail there," observed the man who had just settled a heavy millinery bill.

SPELLING HER NAME

A magistrate's clerk was taking down the evidence of a witness, and asked what her name was.

"Meddows," she replied.

"How do you spell it, madam?"

"Hem, He, D, D, Ho, Double U, Hess."

"Ah! then there's no 'Hay' in your meadows?" remarked the witty scribe to the amusement of the Court.

The Divorce Proceedings.

The proceedings against Breen were pushed with vigor and without regard to expense, as Croker is regarded as a millionaire several times over. The case was contested at every step by counsel for Breen, who has sued Richard Croker and his sons for $100,000 damages for alienating the affections of his wife. Mrs. Breen was in court with her mother.

The examination of a telephone operator in a hotel at Toronto, came to testify for Breen, and insisted that, although she was in Breen's room in the Grand Union hotel, Toronto, on Sept. 5th last, she did nothing wrong.

Miss Diehl is the only co-respondent whose name appears on the complaint, although there are charges concerning other women unnamed. Miss Diehl, who said she had come to New York with her fiance, stated that she had merely indulged in a little flirtation with Breen and that he had kissed her once while she was in his room.

Cross-examined by Francis L. Wellman, trial counsel for the plaintiff, Miss Diehl said that she had two drinks with Breen before she went to his room, one a rye whiskey and one a gin rickey.

Miss Diehl said that Breen had put his arm around her waist and kissed her once, when she got up and took another chair. Then there was a knock and when Breen opened the door, two detectives, Stanley P. Gorman and August P. Duryea entered.

The detectives told later of shadowing Breen from Aug. 8 to Sept. 8 and said that when they entered the room under pretense of delivering a telegram, Breen threw up his hands and said : "Well, it's all up now."

THE BELFAST SPEECH.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir, Many readers of The Times, were, no doubt, greatly interested in the events connected with Winston Churchill's Home Rule meeting in Belfast a few weeks ago, and Canadian sympathy was undoubtedly with the staunch and true-hearted loyalists of Ulster. According to the following paragraph from "Lady Gay's" page in Toronto Saturday Night, Mr Churchill's audience must have been largely composed of pickpockets and thieves, and what a farce the whole affair looks at this distance an address forced on a dissenting populace at the point of the bayonet, in a dripping tent, pitched in a boggy pasture field, surrounded by 3,000 troops. Here is what "Lady Gay" has to say of the event :—

"One's Irish mail is hot stuff just now. Really, blizzards almost melt before the Ulster talk which comes across the winter seas! I wish I dare print a perfectly feminine account of the visit of Winston Churchill, and his reception in Belfast. One feels sorry for the wife of that statesman who was terrified to the need of medical attendance, and there is a sinister suggestion of the quality of the audience of the speech by the fact that 300 empty purses and pocketbooks were found in the tent after the assemblage."

HIGH PRICE OF PROVISIONS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Your readers will no doubt have read in the important magazines of this Continent, how the Mayor of Indianapolis, Ind., cut the "Gordian Knot" of high prices in that city. Prices of potatoes, butter, eggs, and, in fact, all kinds of the necessities, make living almost impossible to the average man in Peterborough. Now the Mayor of Indianapolis heard the complaints of his constituents and fellow citizens about the prices they had to pay. What did he do? Go to his office, and sitting down with a 25-cent cigar in his mouth, yawn and, whilst waiting for his automobile, languidly remark, "Well, well, it's too bad! Why don't people save money when prices are low?"

No, Mr. Editor not on your life. He just went round the city and ascertained conditions and prices. Having found that everything was unreasonably expensive, he got the telegraph wires busy to points where potatoes, butter, eggs, &c., were at reasonable prices. Then the wires were kept hot with orders for car load lots. Arrangements were quickly made for reception and storage of the goods as they arrived. His Worship got a staff of men at work selling the stuff for cash, of course, but at prices from 25 to 50 per cent below current charges. In consequence both merchants and farmers, but particularly the latter, quickly brought down their prices to meet the competition. Both merchants and farmers are still in business and the good people of the Hoosier City rejoice, Is not this hint worth consideration by our local Chief Magistrate? He is a young man of business activity, intelligent, and, I think, ambitious. The whole question, does he think it practicable and would he take the trouble to give the citizens of Peterborough provisions at prices, so that they can eat three or even four square meals a day without watching each plateful.

BROTHER CAN'T GIVE EVIDENCE AT TRIAL

Boston, Mass., March 6.—Edwin M. Wyman, brother of Capt. Charles D. Wyman, who, it is alleged, was murdered by William De Graff, was excluded as a witness by Judge Putnam when he was called for the first time by the prosecution yesterday in the United States district court. In so doing the court sustained the objection of Attorney Feeney, the accused's counsel. Up to last June, when his brother was murdered, Edwin M. Wyman lived at 66 Saratoga street, East Boston, which was the address given the defendant's attorneys. Since that time he has been living in Phippsburg, Me., and Mr. Feeney based his objection on the ground that he had not been given the right address. Wyman is a marine engineer.

"Doctors' medicine did not help me in the least, and all other remedies I used were quite useless. In one case it was time wasted in snuffing powder up the nose ; in another using a greasy ointment, and so on. Not one of them was the least bit of good.

"I heard Catarrhozone favorably spoken of, and tried it. Really it benefited me more in a few hours than years of treatment with doctors' and other so-called remedies.

"Receiving such immense benefit, I continued using Catarrhozone, and in a few weeks I was completely cured of Catarrh and throat trouble."

CLERGYMAN'S HOME BURNT THRO' SPITE

Fort Worth, Texas, March 6.—The mystery of the alleged war against the Rev. J. Frank Norris stirred the State of Texas Saturday when his home was partly burned in an apparently incendiary fire, which imprisoned himself, his wife, and his two children on an upper floor, in the early morning hours. They were rescued with difficulty.

Norris, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Fort Worth, has taken an active share in the crusade which drove race track gambling out of Texas a few years ago. Since then Sunday observance violations have been his particular targets.

MUSIC TAUGHT FREE

SPECIAL OFFER TO READERS OF THE TIMES.

In order to advertise and introduce their home study music lessons in every locality the INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTE OF MUSIC of New York will give free to our readers a complete course of instruction for either Piano, Organ, Violin, Mandolin, Guitar, Cornet, Banjo, Cello or Sight Singing. In return they simply ask that you recommend their Institute to your friends after you learn to play.

You may not know one note from another ; yet, by their wonderfully simple and thorough method, you can soon learn to play! If you are an advanced player you will receive special instruction.

The lessons are sent weekly. They are so simple and easy that they are recommended to any person or little child who can read English. Photographs and drawings make everything plain. Under the Institute's free tuition offer you will be asked to pay only a very small amount (averaging 14 cents a week) to cover postage and the necessary sheet music.

No one should overlook this wonderful offer. Tell your friends about it—show this article to them.

The INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTE has successfully taught others and can successfully teach you, even if you know absolutely nothing whatever about music. The lessons make everything clear.

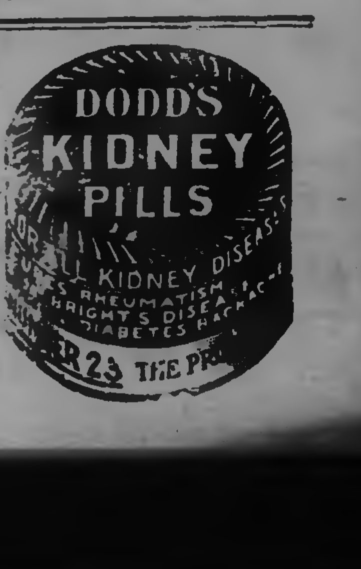
Auction Sales Conducted

I beg to announce to the residents of Peterborough County that I am prepared to conduct sales promptly and satisfactorily at reasonable rates. Your patronage is solicited. See me at home, Lot 16, Con. 5, Smith, (or at Massey Harris Office, Saturday P.M.), or write to S. J. Brooks.



REGGIE

Gladys:—"Reggie, dear, there is something of the old-time lovelight in your eyes to-night—something about you that reminds me of those sweet days of long ago. I hope you have—"

Reggie:—"Yes; I have a little left. How much do you want this time?"

POSERS

"Daddy," piped mother's little darling, but not father's, "is the sea a mile deep?"

Daddy, who was also an editor, glanced up crossly from a huge pile of manuscripts. "I don't know!" he snapped.

Mother's little darling looked disappointed. A little while later, he asked:

"Is the moon really made of cheese, daddy?"

Again came the response.

"I don't know!"

Another look of disappointment, another silence, and another question:

"Do cannibals use postage stamps?"

No less savage than the cannibals themselves was the distracted manuscript hunter as he roared, for the third time.

"I don't know!"

"Well, I say, daddy," exclaimed the youthful inquirer very seriously, "who made you an editor?"

RIVAL ATTRACTIONS

First Child:—"We've got a new baby at our house."

Second Child (contemptuously):—"We've got a new pa at ours."

QUITE IMPOSSIBLE

"You claim to be a great clairvoyant?" said the sad-faced man, as he entered the thought-reader's rooms. "They say you can tell the past, present, and future. Nothing is hidden from you."

"It is true," answered the medium. "For two dollars I will tell you—"

"I'll give you ten dollars if you can tell me one secret of the past," interrupted the sad-eyed one quickly, and put the money promptly on the counter. "What was it that my wife told me to bring home for supper to-night?"

And the thought-reader shook her head sadly, and handed back the money; but not very cheerfully, as the advertisement promised.

NOT CAUGHT NAPPING

He came from the country, but he was not green—not by any means. Had a confidence-man tried his tricks on him, there would have been serious trouble.

Nor was he taking any risks at the hotel. London might be a smart place, but they wouldn't catch him napping.

In the early hours of the morning the plaintive voice of the "boots" sounded outside his door.

"What is it?" asked William, prepared to do battle with his wits.

"Please, sir," came the answer, "you haven't put your boots outside, sir."

"No; you bet I haven't!" responded the wily William. They're under my pillow, and there they're going to stay. I know a bit too much for the likes of you! Good-bye."

STUNG!

Professor.—"To the geologist a thousand years or so are not counted as any time at all."

Man in the audience:—"Great Scott! And to think I made a temporary loan of ten dollars to a man who has such views."

ALL ON A SCALE

"Nurse," moaned the convalescent patient, "can't I have something to eat? I'm starving!"

The nurse, who had just enjoyed a big breakfast, smiled amiably.

"Yes. The doctor said you could start taking solids to-day. But we must begin slowly," she added, as she held out a teaspoonful of tapioca. "We must only advance by degrees."

He sucked the spoon dry, and felt more tantalizingly hungry than ever. He begged for a second spoonful. But she shook her head, saying that everything at the start must be done in similar small proportion.

Presently he summoned her again to his bedside. She hurried to him, and asked him what he required.

"Nurse," he gasped, "bring me a postage-stamp; I want to read."

MEN AND WOMEN, ODD CONTRAST

A Writer Who Dilates on "The Curious Conceit of Men and the Modesty of Women"

If there is one sin from which the average man considers himself free, it is the sin of vanity. Vanity, he firmly believes, is the prerogative of women. Women are vain, dear creatures, he will tell his wife or lover while he fondly pinches her cheek, says Answers.

The wife or lover is generally too wise to correct him, but there never was a woman yet who did not wonder at the marvellous vanity of man.

As a matter of fact, there is scarcely any difference between men and children in this respect. A child with a new pair of shoes will not rest content until everybody in the house has gone into raptures over both shoes and wearer, separately and together. And a man's method of attracting notice to his splendor are—to women—hardly less simple.

For Those She Loves

Women, on the contrary, are singularly free from vanity. You laugh and point to my lady's mirrors, and her habit of looking in them at every possible moment? My dear young man, you do not understand. A woman will take infinite pains to dress herself to please somebody she loves—although he seldom notices it—or to annoy somebody she hates. If she pleases the loved one she is in the seventh heaven, as she certainly is if she annoys the other woman. But she never admires herself in the way that a young man admires his invisible moustache.

Men, too, are free from a terrifying danger which hangs over a woman from the age of fourteen to the age of ninety or so—the criticism of other women. How terrifying this may be men can seldom understand.

A man may wear a battered straw hat for ever and ever, and go about in shabby trousers on Sundays, and his friends will not think it worth while to notice; whereas a woman dare not have a button out of place without all the ladies in the district noticing it.

Hence the agony of mind that a woman suffers if she thinks her back hair is coming down is not at all due to vanity. And hence the mirrors which thoughtful shopkeepers provide so abundantly.

The Lady-Killing Youth

Even when you come to pretty girls, who might very well be excused for having their heads turned, there is no approach to the vanity of the lady-killing youth. A pretty girl takes her prettiness as a gift from the fairies, to be tended as the gardener tends a beautiful plant. It is her duty, a necessity to her self-respect, to look nice.

Contrast her with the average handsome man. Here you have vanity so monumental that a woman can only gasp. To his lady friends the handsome boy invariably adopts a pretty-my-dear-you-love-me-but-I-can't-help-it-makes a sensible girl ywantshrdlu you-know tone of voice, which at first makes a sensible girl want to slap him, then amuses her, and then makes her yawn.

But he never changes. He is the same year after year; and though he considers himself such a superior being, he is always as anxious to attract the attention of washerwomen as that of duchesses.

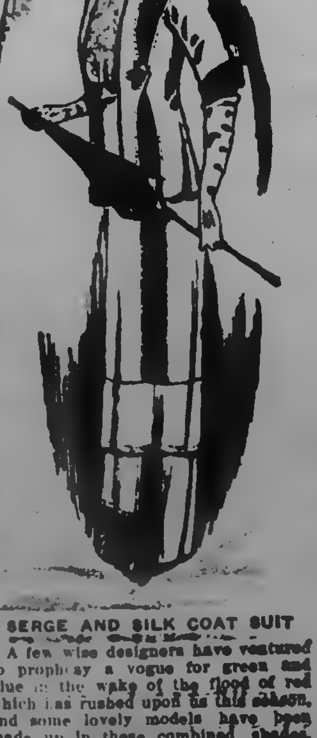
So, mothers, pray that your babies will lose their beauty when they become men. A woman will carry her beauty as it should be carried, neither scorning it nor worshipping it. The handsome man loses his head early in life, and never finds it again.



SERGE AND SILK COAT SUIT

A few wise designers have ventured to prophesy a vogue for green and blue in the wake of the flood of red which has rushed upon us this season, and some lovely models have been made up in these combined shades. Take for example this suit. The design is exceedingly chic and the material is a diagonal serge in the new king's blue. Inset pieces in skirt and coat are green taffeta. The idea of inset pieces of taffeta is new and effective, and may be copied in self-tone silk with equally good results.

A local merchant speaking yesterday about the London Suffragettes deliberately breaking hundreds of windows, said: "I think instead of the martyrdom sought by jail, two shingles should be employed. "Shingle" their sunny tresses and use another kind of shingle elsewhere." The brute!

The local political ex-office holders the Suffragettes and the British miners might pool their issues!

FOUGHT WITH WILD DOGS

Nurse Who Ministered to Sick and Wounded in Two Continents

Soldiers have lost a valuable friend in Mrs. Janet Helen King (Sister Helena), who has just died in England.

On two continents Sister Janet had tenderly cared for sick and wounded soldiers. When only eighteen she entered the Protestant Deaconesses' Institution to be trained as a nurse for the sick and wounded in war, and was one of a party of nine sent out to assist in nursing the troops engaged in the war between Russia and Turkey.

Snow lay deep on the ground, the party lost its way, and the night was passed in the open carts, bitter cold and the howling of wolves effectively preventing sleep. Arriving at Vardin they found their services sorely needed, and for months the Sisters worked night and day.

To Sister Janet's care were allotted some two hundred patients who lay in huts scattered here and there amongst the hills. Daily as she trudged through the snow from hut to hut on her mission of mercy she was exposed to attacks from wild dogs which infested Bulgaria. More than once these brutes dragged her to the ground, but her stick and dagger protected her until her cries brought assistance. At the close of the war she received for her services the Imperial Order of the Red Cross of Russia.

She went out, too, to the Zulu War, and at Utrecht 3,200 sick and wounded passed through her hands. There she was personally thanked by Sir Garnet Wolseley. She was awarded the medal for the war, and received the Decoration of the Royal Red Cross from the Queen for "the special devotion and competency displayed in nursing duties with her Majesty's troops."

FOR VALOR

Various Methods by Which Nations Reward Great Bravery

As is well known, Britain decorates her soldiers with the Victoria Cross for conspicuous acts of bravery on the field of battle.

But most other countries have similar rewards for valor.

France confers her distinctive badges in the fairly familiar form of the Legion of Honor.

Germany is proud of her Iron Cross; while Austria confers her Ancient Order of Maria Theresa on her heroes. Russia distributes her Cross of St. Vladimir sparingly to her gallant soldiers.

Denmark has one of the most illustrious orders of chivalry, the Order of the Elephant, which ranks as high as our own Order of the Garter.

Sweden has her Noble Order of the Seraph, founded in 1220. This order is limited to twenty-three natives and eight foreigners.

Spain is justly proud of her Order of the Golden Fleece, which is, and has always been, most sparingly bestowed.

Italy decorates her most heroic warriors with her military Medal of Merit.

Portugal has the Tower and Sword, a very old order.

Sardinia has a medal for distinguished conduct on the field of battle, and a special military decoration besides for deeds of outstanding courage.

REFRIGERATOR WITHOUT ICE

How to Make a "Cooler" for Summer Use

A cooler can be made out of any box that has for its sides slats instead of solid boards. A peach crate makes a very satisfactory one. The box once chosen, all that is needed in the way of construction is to add as many shelves inside as desired, and a door on hinges. Then cover the door, sides and back with burlap or some similar material.

On the top place a pan, preferably enamel, and from this pan hang wicks made of strips of flannel four or five inches in width. These wicks should have one end resting on the inside bottom of the pan, and the other hanging over the edge of the crate and touching the burlap. Then fill the pan with water.

The cooler should be placed in a cool place, where the wind can blow upon it. The wicks absorb the water and distribute it through the mesh of the burlap by capillary attraction. The wind causes the moisture to evaporate, and the evaporation reduces the temperature inside the refrigerator. A writer in The Youth's Companion, in describing such a cooler, asserts that it will keep butter hard and firm on the warmest days in summer. If this be true, as it probably is, surely the idea is one well worth trying.

HOW GLASS-MAKING BEGAN

The Phoenicians and Egyptians the Most Renowned Glass Makers

Glass-making dates from the earliest times, and originated, no doubt, with the Egyptians, as the oldest-known specimens found are those discovered in the tombs of Egypt, and the earliest mention dates back to 3,300 B.C.

Second to the Egyptians, the ancient people most renowned for the manufacture of glass were the Phoenicians.

The legend of that people concerning the discovery of the art is consistently retold. Some Phoenician traders, returning to their home in a ship laden with soda, were compelled to land on a sandy tract on the Syrian coast.

They built a fire on the sand to prepare their supper, and placed their cooking pots on a lump of soda. The sand and the soda were both melted by the heat of the fire, and, flowing together, formed a substance which, although they knew it not, the sailors recognized as valuable. Such, says tradition, is the origin of one of our most useful commodities.

HON. RICHARD McBRIDE

The Premier of the Pacific Province as Described by O'Connor

"T. P. O'Connor, M.P., thus describes Hon. Richard McBride, Premier of British Columbia:

[illegible] impression there came [illegible] there was something [illegible] appropriate in the man and the country [illegible]. Mr. McBride is massive. I should say he is over six feet high; he has shoulders so broad that even a professional athlete might envy them; a chest of great breadth and depth, and a physique altogether that is striking and imposing—I might say dominating. From any crowd of men, however big, this figure would stand forth in conspicuous and haunting relief; you would find it difficult to keep your eyes off him. And the face and head are as striking as the splendidly and broadly proportioned body. The face is massive but short and round. It is typically Irish in its features, but instead of the typically rubicund complexion of the men and women of the Emerald Isle, it has the pallor—healthy but pallid all the same—of those who live in the severer climate of the New World. The head is again massive and, surmounted by a mane of thick, snow-white hair, it makes even more striking the personal appearance. There is at first a curious resemblance to the head of Sir Wilfrid Laurier—the same complexion, the same massiveness of head, the same mane of white hair, but the resemblance is not as great when you examine the two men more closely. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has the long thin face of the typical Frenchman—indeed the Dominion Premier always looks to me as if he had walked out of portrait of the noblesse of France in the days before the Revolution. Mr. McBride has the short face, the massive head, and the thick hair of the Celt of the West. Analyzing still further the face and features of the figure of the great British Columbian, you see curious contradictions with the impression of athletic massiveness. The mouth is small, the deep-set eyes are soft brown, the feet and hands are small—there are delicacy, sensitiveness, a certain artistic element in this big massive man as well as strength. And, above all, the dominating impression is of strength that is at the same time the simplicity, the geniality, and the comradeship of that true democratic sentiment you find in these new countries, where men all start from small beginnings before they reach to wealth and power.

It is one of the secrets of Mr. McBride's unique hold over his people that he belongs to them in every nerve of his being. He was born in British Columbia, and though he went to the law school at Halifax, in Nova Scotia, to get his professional training, he has lived almost every hour of his life in his own province and among his own people. And he is never out of touch with them or with their outlook on things. Any day you can see him in Victoria, moving easily among the people, saluting every man he meets, for he knows them all; or seated in the vestibule in the beautiful Canadian Pacific Hotel over a cup of tea, talking easily and familiarly to everyone who comes to join his circle. He is the ruler with something of the Cadi in his methods and manners.

MORE ABOUT MEANNESS

In the ranks of those who have reduced meanness to a fine art, women are to be found as well as men.

A lady, with an income of several hundreds a year, exercised so stringent an oversight in her household, that only one match was allowed to the servant for lighting the kitchen fire in the morning. Personal application was necessary before a second could be obtained.

Another lady, a wealthy member of society was also persimoniously inclined.

One day she flashed into her milliner's, bringing with her a hat that had been altered a month previously, and had been worn since. She loudly demanded the attention of the manager, and inquired why it was that a different shade of trimming material had been used to that ordered.

It was a game of bluff, with the object of getting something for nothing.

Enterprising in her impudence was the young lady who walked into a banking office, examined the pens on the counter, and asked the cashier if he could let her have a clean one.

The cashier at once procured for her a new pen and nib. To his amazement, instead of dipping it in the inkwell, she proceeded to skewer her hat on with it; then walked out with a brief "Thanks!"

Bears are reported to have been raiding stock in Addington, and several farmers are losers from their visits.

Big Muskrat Purchase

J. R. Kerr, of Newton, Ont., is said to have purchased 5,168 muskrat skins in one day. They came from various sections between Kingston and Ottawa.

Remembering the numerous cases, in the city where a Christian Scientist was brought before the courts, because of deaths under his charge, it is interesting to note that a Boston Christian Scientist, who claimed to have cured a dog, was sued for damages. The jury split!

Lindsay is considering a new woodenware factory for that town. Are not raw material, power, transportation and other facilities as good here as there, for such a plant?

A local nurse might have used a fly-trap to catch the germs in such a case as Detroit papers tell about. A nurse in a hospital in that city resigned because she was ordered to the tuberculosis ward.

Another Dominion Government officer, in the person of Mr. George E. Elliott has resigned his position. Mr. Elliott has been for some time on the staff of the local Inland Revenue.

RIGHT-HAND PITCHERS STEADIER THAN LEFT

Weird Performances Would Give Impression in Favor of the Southpaws.

The weird performances of some left-handed pitchers have given fans the impression that practically all southpaws are of the wild and woolly variety. The averages tell a different story. A comparison of the records of the five leading right-handed pitchers of the major leagues with those of the five best left-handers shows that the control of the southpaw is almost as good at that of the starboard fingers.

National League right-handers were somewhat steadier than left-handers, and the port hurlers of the National were a trifle wilder than those in the American.

Bender, Coombs, Ford, Johnson and Walsh are the leading American League right-handers. The five gave 359 passes in 1,525 innings, or 169 nine-inning games, making an average of little over two passes per game. Gregg, Plank, Collins, Vaughan and White, the leading southpaws gave 296 passes in 1,056 innings, or an average of 2½ per game in 117 nine-inning games.

Alexander, Mathewson, Brown, Adams and Suggs of the crack right-handers of the National League, averaged two passes for every nine innings. Marquard, Salle, Wiltse, Rucker and Leifield, the crack lefthanders of the same organization, averaged 3 2-3 bases on balls a game.

Christy Mathewson, averaged one. Ed. Walsh's average was about 1½ per battle. "Doc" White was the steadiest of all the left-handers, with only 1½ passes per nine innings. Leifield of the Pirates was the steadiest National left-hander, with 3 1-3 passes per nine innings.

HARD TO RECOGNIZE

Critically the friend of the artist regarded the weird conglomeration of color which stood on the easel before him. He stepped back, bent forward, looked at it sideways, and twisted his head in all directions.

"What do you think of it?" questioned the aspiring R. A.

"Good!' Very good!' his friend answered. "It's a perfect portrait; only —ah—I should be inclined to criticize one little detail. The original is scarcely so red in the face as you have painted him."

The artist gasped.

"What on earth are you talking about?" he asked.

"Your picture! It's your uncle's, of course?"

"My uncle?" cried the amazed wielder of the brush. "That—that my uncle? Why, it's the sunset. Dont you see the title, 'Sunset and Evening Star'?"

BIG TREES

A Species in Australia Said to be Larger than in California

Not only does Australia dispute the claim of California to the possession of the highest trees in the world, but Mr. W. K. Harris writes an article in the "Lone Hand" with the object of showing that Australia has trees over 100 feet higher than the celebrated California "big trees."

Probably the majority of Australians are not aware (says the writer) that they can lay claim to possessing, in their eucalypti forests, not only the tallest trees but the best hardwoods in the whole world.

These eucalypti trees possess many excellent qualities. Their timber is of great durability, strength and toughness. The eucalyptus is a genus of the trees of the natural order of Myrtaceae, mostly, if not all, indigenous to Australia and Tasmania. Australia has 400 species of the eucalyptus; or, as it is more popularly known, the "gum" tree. Its value has been ascribed to its antiseptic odors, and to its rapid growth (which sometimes exceeds ten feet per annum), and the consequent drainage of the soil through the enormous transpiration from the root surface.

The tallest species is to be found principally in Victoria. This species is a tree with tall white stem, smooth as a marble column, and generally without branches for 90 to 100 feet from the ground. It is singularly beautiful when seen in groves; for these have all the appearance of lofty pillared cathedrals. The average height is a little less than 300 feet. The south-western division of Victoria (Gippsland) has put forth the greatest claims to possessing the tallest giants. In this district a great number of trees measuring 300 feet have been found, while specimens of 400 feet are not uncommon, and individuals of over 400 feet are not rare.

Baron Mueller (formerly Government botanist of Victoria) is stated to have said that the gum trees attain a height of 500 feet; but the tallest tree even the Baron ever measured was a prostrate one on the Blacks' Spur, ten miles from Healsville, totalling 480 feet. This tree was 81 feet in girth near the root. Another, found in the same locality, was 415 feet high, with a circumference of 69 feet at the base of the stem. Mueller refers to this species as "the highest tree in the globe, surpassing the famous Californian Sequoin and Wellington pines." In 1880, Mr. G. W. Robinson, civil engineer, of Berwick (Victoria), in a journey from Gippsland to Mount Baw, measured a tree of 471 feet high. The heights of this specimen had previously been estimated at not less than 500 feet.

In the 'sixties Mueller measured a tree that a Mr. E. B. Heyne had discovered in the Dandenong, and this specimen was found to be 295 feet to first branch, and, to the point where it had broken off, another 70 feet; total, 365 feet. This was a splendid "columner vegetable," the trunk being perfectly straight.

The blue gum species is another of the world's giants, not a few specimens attaining a height of 375 feet. Since 1854 it has been successfully introduced into the south of Europe, Algeria, Egypt, Tahiti, New Caledonia, Natal, and India, and has been extensively planted in California; while along the Central Pacific Railway belts of this and other Australian trees have been formed to protect the line from snow drifts, and for a future supply of timber.

It has long been thought that California owns the world's tallest trees; but, while some are of gigantic dimensions, they do not come up to the Victorian natives. The Californians are noted not so much for their height as for their girth and diameter. The "Big Tree" of California occurs in groves or patches from lat. 36 degrees to 38 degrees, nowhere descending much below 4,000 feet in elevation, or rising above 7,000. There are eight or nine "groves" of these trees; and by far the largest is the one which extends along the tributaries of King's and Kaweah Rivers. The trees, however, are not grouped by themselves, but stand scattered among other species. The "Big Tree" is said to be the oldest of growing things on earth, with an age of 5,000 years. The average height is 275 feet, with a diameter of 38 feet, and a girth of 70 feet at six feet from the ground. The tallest gigantea ever discovered was found by actual measurement to be 340 feet high, or 140 feet shorter than the tallest tree found in Australia.—Weekly Telegraph.

"FOR THE BLIND"

A carpenter once hung a box outside his workshop with "For the blind" printed on it.

Several passers-by put money in it, and everything went smooth till, at the expiration of three weeks, a lady contributor who was passing noticed that the box was no longer hanging out, and so she queried—"Well, Mr. Carpenter, I see you have taken your box away."

"Yes," said Mr. Carpenter; "I got enough, thank you."

"Got enough?" asked the lady, in surprise.

"Yes," said Mr. Carpenter; "how do you like it?" as he pulled down the new blind on the workshop window.

THE REWARD OF CONSTANCY

The colonel of a regiment believed in a celibate army so far as possible, and disliked giving permission to marry.

One of his men came up for the desired permission and the colonel refused. Looking at the man's downcast face he so far relented as to say:

"If you are in the same mind this time next year come back, and ask me again."

In a year the soldier reappeared.

"Do you really still wish to marry?" asked the colonel.

"Yes, sir, very much."

"Well, well, take down his name," said the Colonel to the sergeant-major. "I never thought there was so much constancy in man or woman."

"Thank you, sir," replied the man, saluting, "but if you please, sir, it isn't the same woman."

Local Farmers Get an Opportunity.

The farmers of this district have an opportunity, free of charge, to get pointers on better training from no less an authority that the Ontario's Dept. of Agriculture. On March 12, from 12.45 to 3.15 p.m. lectures will be given here on a special G.T.R. car. Special trains will be run to the city from Lindsay, Madoc Junction and other points to enable farmers to take part in this demonstration.

ARE OUR HANDS LESS VALUABLE?

Eminent Surgeon Draws Attention to What Science and Machinery are Doing

Sir Frederick Treves, the eminent surgical authority, in a "Nineteenth Century" paper, declares very emphatically that "it would seem that the highest point of development in the use of the hands has been already reached; has been, indeed, passed, and that we have now entered upon a decline." Let us see to what extent Sir Frederick's contentions can be supported.

Two of the commonest handicrafts are those of writing and sewing, but they are being now rapidly supplanted by the typewriter on the one hand and the sewing machine on the other. The finer use of the fingers is thus becoming lost, so far as these simple crafts are concerned. There was occasion when penmanship was almost a fine art, and the writing master a power in the land. In these present days of hurry there is no time for elegant hand-writing. The script of the ordinary letter-writer is often as hard to interpret as the message on the Rosetta stone, and as there is, coincidentally, no leisure available for the decyphering of illegible writing, the typing machine becomes opportune.

Deliberate Surgeon of To-Day

Surgery during recent years has made amazing advances. Should it be asked if this progress has been associated with; or dependent upon, a corresponding development of the handicraft of surgery, the answer is, it has not. Before the days of anaesthetics the surgeon was operating upon a conscious being. Rapidity of movement was all essential; success was gauged by the stop-watch, every unnecessary second meant unnecessary torture. The surgeon had to be marvellously deft of hand, cool, yet alert as a fencer; quick, yet as sure as a matador. The combination of qualities that made up a good operating surgeon was rare, and so in those days the perfect operator was equally rare.

Now, with the use of anaesthetics, the surgeon can proceed with easy deliberation, every step can be measured and judged; there is no call to be brilliant; there is no element of hurry, for in place of the flashing blade is an action as studied as a movement on the chess-board. The result of it is this. Surgery, as a pure handicraft, has undoubtedly lost ground.

Some of the simpler crafts exhibit in striking fashion the decay of cultivation in the use of the hands. Take the very ancient occupation of spinning and weaving. In India it is still possible to see the whole process of making cloth from cotton carried out by hand. The process involves a fine training for the fingers—a training that has made nimble and sensitive the hands of thousands of men and women in this country. But the handicraft has vanished, the machine has replaced it, and the skill educed by centuries of practice has been lost forever. Not so many years ago it was possible to see in almost every fishing village half a dozen gossips strolling about knitting stockings and jerseys for men. The work was not, perhaps, elaborate, but it was a good training for the hands. The knitters are now hard to find. Hand knitting does not pay except as an amusement.

The ancient art of embroidery—as ancient as Babylon and Tyre—was a craft of wide possibilities. The handicraft is practically lost. It is true that the finer work is still done by the hand, but the major part is turned out of a machine with brutal unconcern. There are advantages resulting from this which are easy to appreciate, but at the same time a thousand hands have lost their cunning and handicraftsmanship has passed to a lower grade.

Lace-making occupies a somewhat similar position. It is probably the most elaborate work which has ever engaged the facile fingers of women. Lace-making has engaged whole colonies of women, and has enabled them to bring the culture of the hand to a marvellous degree of perfection. This has assuredly been an object worthy of attainment. But the days of the craft are nearly over, and the manual skill so laboriously attained is—in spite of all attempts to revive it—in process of being lost.

Probably the oldest domestic instrument is the needle. The needle-maker was a master of craft. The common needle is now made by a series of machines, which turn the implements out in pairs, two being united, head to head. The process involves manual skill, and in the production of special needles something of the cunning of the past but the fact remains that a great means for the culture of the hands has passed away.

The Degenerate Carpenter

The carpenter, with his primitive art, is still with us, but he is not the handicraftsman that he was. There are sawing engines and planing machines for boards of every kind. The "four-cutter machine" works all four faces of the wood simultaneously. Machines have been produced for fashioning all kinds of mouldings, for cutting dovetails, mortises and tenons, while the engine known as the "universal joiner" is a combination machine with superhuman powers. The "copying lathe" produces objects of regular or irregular shape automatically from a pattern, and can turn out with equal ease a gunstock or a broom handle, a boot-last or a toy horse. The sand-papering machine is almost uncanny in its imitation of human movements, while the self-directing lathe represents the callous absorption of whole centuries of manual skill.

Sir Frederick Treves goes through a long list of occupations, arts and accomplishments which formerly called into play great dexterity of the hand and fingers, and which are now done by machinery. Even piano playing is included in the list. The loss is both great and regrettable.—Glasgow Daily Herald.

Every time you vote for either Laurier or Borden, for the Liberal or the Tory party, you are voting for desolated homes and general hell. So says Cotton's Weekly, a Socialist paper of Cowansville, Que. The same paper deplores the fact that seven thousand women of Montreal have to "work for other women!" Possibly the 7,000 weekly pay envelopes come in mighty handy.

TRINIDAD'S BUTTER TRADE

France Has a Large Percentage of the Trade

Trinidad imported $165,000 worth of butter last year, of which trade Canada furnishes less than 2.5 per cent., while France furnishes over 60 per cent. of the total trade. This is explained by the fact that years ago a French butter manufacturer took the trouble to find out the class of butter most suited for general trade in the tropics, and, what was most essential, the best package to put it in. Some time ago an attempt to compete was made from Canada, but it failed, solely for want of compliance with the conditions experienced had taught the French exporters. The firkins were made of interior wood. They were insufficiently hooped, four iron hoops, against about fifteen, wood and iron, in the French package, and the butter melted and leaked. This is a trade that should go to the Canadian, and that it would do if only our manufacturers make it worth while to fall in with local requirements. It should not be omitted, however, that one or two brands of tinned Canadian butter are in very favorable demand, and are appreciated as being pure and good.

ALL GONE

The cashier of a certain firm had absconded, and the head clerk was decided upon as being the proper person to acquaint the head of the firm of the fact on his arrival.

There had been a dog-fight in the street, and a small crowd was just dispersing when the chief's carriage dashed up.

"What's that crowd after, Jorkins?" demanded the head of the firm.

The chief clerk thought he had got a chance of breaking the news, and he seized it.

"The vacancy, sir," he replied.

"Vacancy! What vacancy?"

"Cashier, sir."

"But we want no cashier, Jorkins."

"Beg pardon, sir; but we have a vacancy for one."

"Jorkins, are you mad?"

"No, sir. That is, sir, I don't know, sir. Fact is, sir, all the cash is gone, and—and—"

"Well?"

"The cashier's gone with it, sir."

Another case of "didn't know it was loaded." The Advocate tells how Wm. Smith, thinking the fire was out, threw some gasoline on the ashes. A flash! the surrounding air filled with flame! Wm. Smith's clothes on fire, and William's whiskers and hair considerably diminished. Why do not people like that play with a rattlesnake, and try how far it can strike at their hands?

Birds of a Feather, &c.

By an almost startling coincidence, the old saying "Birds of a feather flock together," was exemplified here yesterday, in a local dispensary of liquid refreshment. Within one hour, Peterborough citizens by the respective names of Crowe, Jay, Partridge, Sparrow and Crane called to slack their thirst. It only wanted a Hawke to complete the circle.

Local Pro. Ball Ensured.

It now looks as though certain that Peterborough will have a professional team in the Canadian League. When the stock book, for this purpose was opened, stock in the Peterborough Baseball Club, Ltd., was quickly subscribed for. A strong Board of Directors has consented to take hold of the local ball tossers. Their names will appear later. The committee will meet to-night.

The Crows Have Arrived.

Yesterday a gentleman in the vicinity of the Barnardo Home, was surprised to hear the almost forgotten caw, caw, caw, of crows. He counted seven crows to the east of the Margaret Cox Home and four to the west. While these sharp eyed dusky plumed birds are not particularly beloved, their appearance, in such numbers, is an indication that spring is coming.

A serious case was tried in the police court yesterday. Reginald Winch, it seems, was charged with having forged a cheque for three hundred dollars. The names appended to this alleged spurious document were J. H. Chamberlain, and E. R. Winch for the Chamberlain estate. The prisoner, on request of Mr R. F. Wood, County Crown Attorney, was remanded for one week, without bail. Mr. F. D. Kerr appeared for the defence.

The Red Mill's Success.

That the new proprietor of the Red Mill, the former Crystal Theatre, has made good, is evident to everyone passing along George street. The Red Mill yesterday afternoon was crowded to its utmost capacity, and every evening there are people waiting right out to the pavement, for admission. Messrs. Ayres, tenor, and Donaldson, baritone, have delighted thousands of our citizens by their well blended and melodious voices. To-day, as may be seen, in the Red Mill advertisement, a wonderful fire film is to be shown.

Narrow Escape From An Icicle.

Yesterday, shortly [illegible] the noon fit, and the minority, whether Protest- George street, had a narrow escape. The bright rays of the sun had loosened a huge icicle. The mass of ice fell some fifteen feet and missed the pedestrian by only about twenty-six inches. The icicle was about four feet long and fully four inches thick. The lower end of it was sharp as a knife point. Had it struck this man, who asked his name left out, it would have carried part of his fur cap right through to his feet.

Local Experiment in Moths.

A well known local literary man captured a moth in his place of business a few days ago. This W. K. L.G. recognized the moth, hatched out of season in his office, as a particularly rare specimen, whose wings when fully developed, would measure several inches in their stretch. The W. K. L.G. gives the moth a scientific name that would result in the average citizen having lock-jaw, if he tried to pronounce it. Well this scientist put the half grown moth in a gem jar and also put therein a quantity of what looked to the Times reporter as crushed wheat. Anyway the poor little moth died before its wings developed.

A Presentation in Smith.

That the people of Smith are sorry that Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Edmison are leaving the township, was proven last Monday evening. A large number of their friends gathered at the Edmison home and presented an address descriptive of their affection and sadness over their loss. The address was signed by Messrs. George Walton and David Mahood. The address was accompanied by presentation of a beautiful silver tea service. Mr. and Mrs. Edmison were taken completely by surprise. Mr. Edmison made a feeling reply and thanked their many friends. After singing "Auld Lang Syne" the assembly departed.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

Sanford Lindsay, of Norwood was yesterday assessed $2 for being drunk. William Armstrong also paid $2, for the same offence.

During the past fiscal year, the Province of Ontario granted the public schools of the city $602.50, and $122.50 to the Separate schools.

The Post Office clock has once more resumed business! It ran all day yesterday without stopping one minute for a rest.

The Camrose Publicity Car, displaying what the Province of Alberta can raise, will be here at 8.10 a.m., March 13th.

Much talk was heard on the street yesterday concerning the illness of Queen Alexandra. Not a man or woman in the city but hopes for a speedy recovery!

Dispatches say that four million Chinese are starving. They should come to Ontario, where they could get eggs at 40 cents and butter at any old price the farmers ask.

Oh, You Kingston hen! The Limestone City has a hen which has laid an egg 7¾ inches in circumference and six in diameter. We could afford to pay 38 cents for such hen fruit.

Ottawa seems proud that she has the greatest aggregation of Colonels of any city in Canada. For her population, Peterborough would run the Capital a close second for Colonels.

What do the local Boy Scouts, the local troops, or the average citizen think of Mr. W. Madison Hicks who is delivering Socialistic lectures in Lindsay against the Boy Scout movement?

An Uxbridge girl took strychnine because she thought her sweetheart had gone back on her. A Peterborough girl would have made goo goo eyes at a better looking fellow. Wedding Bells!

When one sees the number of children, boys and girls, who roam the streets here, at too late an hour at night, a Peterborough man cannot wonder that Woodstock, Ont. is considering a "Curfew Bell" by-law.

A Peterborough man yesterday walked seven blocks to hand five cents to a merchant. He remembered, on arrival at his home, that he had given a 20-cent piece instead of a quarter. And still pessimists say the world is growing worse!

The Public Accounts report for Ontario has been issued. From this we learn that the County of Peterborough received from the Province $9,933.00 for Public Schools and $32.00 for Separate Schools. This was during the year ending October 31st, 1911.

By a funny coincidence here in Peterborough, we understand, is being used the same beverage, by fully ten citizens, that is used in "dear old Lunnon." A London dispatch says "The striking miners are drinking whiskey and soda." Still there is no strike here.

MANITOBA BOUNDARY BILL WAS CARRIED LAST NIGHT--NATIONALISTS MOVE FOR SEPARATE SCHOOLS

MISS PANKHURST ESCAPED POLICE AND IS IN HIDING

Suffragette Leader is Baffling Efforts of the Police to Locate Her--Can Direct Campaign

London, Mar. 6.—Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Pethick Lawrence, joint editors of Votes for Women, who were arrested last night, and Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst and Mrs. Tuke, the last two of whom were brought from Holloway jail, were arraigned at Bow street Police Court this afternoon on a charge of conspiracy and inciting to commit malicious damage to property.

Miss Christobel Pankhurst, who was erroneously reported to have been arrested last night, was included in the charge, but she has disappeared, and thus far has baffled all attempts of the police to trace her whereabouts.

The four prisoners were remanded by the Magistrate for a week, bail being refused.

CAN'T KILL MOVEMENT.

London, Mar. 6.—The indictment of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, and the arrest of Miss Christobel Pankhurst and Mr. and Mrs. Fred P. Lawrence, for conspiracy to incite certain persons to malicious damage to property last night, followed a conference between Premier Asquith and the Attorney-General. The maximum penalty is seven years, and the charge would enable the Government to seize the Suffragette Association Funds, which total $500,000. Mr. Lawrence is a wealthy barrister, and husband of the suffragette's principal editor.

The police also raided the headquarters of the Women's Social and Political Union. Miss Vaughan, the assistant editor of Votes for Women, was not arrested. In an interview she declared that the Government's action would not crush the movement but gain for it fresh supporters. She declared more violent measures would yet be taken.

The public amusement over the suffragette's action has largely given way to indignation

IMMENSE RELIGIOUS SIGN BLAZONED ON BROADWAY

1,300 Feet High and 62 Feet Long, It Advertises Men and Religion Forward Movement

New York, Mar. 6.—Broadway has seen almost everything, from corset strings to grand pianos, advertised in electric signs, but people gasped yesterday as they passed near the Metropolitan tower and saw an entirely new sign, advertising religion. Last night the fiery message read:

"Welcome for everybody in the churches of New York."

At one end was a large cross and the words, "Religion for men," at the other end another large cross and the words, "Men for religion." Along the bottom ran the flaming line, "Men and Religion Forward Movement!"

The sign is on the roof of a building on 23rd street, just east of Broadway, and is 1,300 feet high, 62 feet long. It is visible for blocks along Broadway. It is the beginning of a great advertising campaign for religion.

Two more signs will be placed on Broadway, and large and small posters will be placed on billboards in every part of Manhattan, all advertising the "Man and Religion Forward Movement" which has swept the country with wonderful strides, and which will close with a great series of meetings in the city.

LOCAL CHAUFFEUR SUES FOR WAGES

Last Friday a somewhat amusing case was heard before his honor Judge Huycke. It seems that a chauffeur, by name Percy Grimes, who last summer operated the autobus belonging to Rutherford Bros. Co., sued that company for $38.00, wages alleged to have been due. Mr. Tom Rutherford was defendant in the case. Mr. Rutherford produced documents to show that Grimes owed the company much more than he claimed in wages. In fact, it is understood that Mr. Rutherford, some months ago, on receipt of Mr. Grimes bill notified him, that if he persisted in annoying the company it might "lead to seriou sconsequences." At Friday's trial, Mr. Grimes did not appear, so the case was adjourned. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for Mr. Rutherford and Mr. D. O'Connell for the prosecution. It is understood that a mutual settlement will be attained.

WHOLE POLICE FORCE GUARDS THE CITY

Lawrence, Mar. 6.—The city tonight nervously waits for what tomorrow will bring forth. Hundreds of operatives who have entered the mills since the strike began, are expected to return to work because of the concessions offered by the manufacturers, but the militant section of the I.W.W. is prepared to send out such a formidable force of pickets that trouble may result.

Every policeman, regular, special and metropolitan, numbering more than 200, has been ordered to report for duty and the militia will have a strong guard out in the mill district.

LOCAL FORESTERS GIVE ENTERTAINMENT

Last night Queen Alexandra Circle of the A.O.F. held a successful concert in the Sons of England Hall. Over the stage was a large banner, bearing, in big letters, the words "Queen Alexandra give a Welcome to All." Mayor Bradburn presided in his usual happy way, and introduced the evening's program by a few well chosen words, stating how such fraternal societies had done good work and instancing the beneficial effects wrought by Queen Alexandra Circle. A most interesting program of recitations and music, both vocal and instrumental was rendered. The audience filled the hall comfortably. Little Ruby Moss, not seven years of age, gave a song that was well received. The A.O.F. have every reason to be proud of the fine program they presented last night.

STEERAGE PASSENGERS KEPT IN QUARANTINE

Portland, Me., Mar. 6.—The Cunard steamer Ascania, which arrived here Saturday from Liverpool with a case of smallpox in her steerage, sailed Sunday night for Boston to land the 580 steerage passengers at the quarantine station there. The Portland quarantine was not adequate to handle all the passengers, who will be detained 14 days before they can be allowed to proceed to their destination.

The first and second-cabin passengers were permitted to leave the steamer before she sailed. After the steerage passengers have disembarked the steamship will be fumigated and will return to Portland. The smallpox patient is a young Scandinavian.

Coal Strike May End in Great Britain

London, Mar. 6.—The continued meetings of the disputants in the coal trade war are interpreted as indicating a growing desire of both parties to find a way out of the difficulty. While the formal reports issued do not give any evidence of material relief of the tension, there is an increasing belief that the executive committee of the Miners' Federation received a wider mandate from the men during the week-end, empowering them to negotiate with the Government on the subject of a minimum wage schedule.

Any reduction of the rigidity of the miners' demands would offer a hopeful basis for a speedy agreement.

At the request of the Premier, the members of the Miners' Executive Council conferred with Premier Asquith in his office in Downing street, this afternoon. The Premier showed the miners the completed draft of the minimum wage bill.

Lloyds have written thousands of dollars' worth of anti-riot policies during the last few days.

Aldershot, Eng., Mar. 6.—The great military barracks here are absolutely without heat because of the coal strike. There is much complaint among the soldiers.

DAUGHTERS OF EMPIRE MEETING IS TO-MORROW

The officers commanding the 57th Regiment desire that all the members of the Regiment should have the ladies of their family, their wives, mothers and sisters, at the meeting to be held in the Recreation Room of the Armouries to-morrow afternoon at 3.30, for the purpose of considering the organization of a 57th Regiment Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire. Mrs. John Bruce, of Toronto, the Honorary Treasurer of the Order, will be present to explain the aim and object of the work.

HAS REACHED SOUTH POLE

London Paper Publishes a Rumor, Which Is Echoed All Over Metropolis

London, Mar. 6.—Reports are in circulation here that Captain Scott, heading the British South Polar Expedition, has landed the prize, defeating the Norwegian and Japanese aspirants, who started before him in the effort to locate the South Pole.

At the Geographical Society it was said the report had been heard there but nothing was known of its authenticity.

WIFE HAS NOT HEARD.

London, Mar. 6.—A rumor is published in an evening paper that Captain Robert F. Scott, the British Antarctic explorer, has reached the South Pole.

Mrs. Scott declares that she has heard nothing from her husband, and there is no confirmation obtainable from any source.

No word was expected from Capt. Scott until April.

MR. DUMBLE EXPLAINS EX-OFFICIO REGISTRAR

In the evening press of last night Mr. D. W. Dumble has a letter respecting the Registrar's charges. The writer says he notes that some of the Councillors charge the ex-officio Registrars with asking from the Council payment for "work they did not do." Mr. Dumble explains that the Manhood Franchise Act enacts that the Board of Registrars shall be composed of the County Judge, the Police Magistrate, the Registrar and the County Court Clerk, three of these also compose the Court of Appeal. The duty of carrying out the entire work is entrusted to them. The days for registration are fixed, and the hours of sitting. Each of these ex-officio registrars must, by law be in his respective office during hours which conflict between their respective callings. However, they managed to be in two places at once, so to say. Mr. Dumble quotes from sections of the Act to endorse his contention.

THE WEATHER.

Not much change in temperature.

COAL STRIKE IN THE STATES

New York, Mar. 6.—The flat rejection of the demands of the anthracite miners by the coal operators is expected to be followed by submission of modified demands on the part of the mine workers. A committee of coal operators will at the conference with the miners next week, submit their reply to the miners rejecting the demands. The mine workers had expected that the demands would be refused, but that the operators would offer a counter proposal.

Many of the operators, however, believe that the mine workers will submit modified demands and ask the operators to join with them in a series of conferences so that a settlement may be reached and a strike averted when the present working agreement expires on March 31.

President White of the Mine Workers has said that the men would quit work the minute the agreement expires.

AVIATOR FOUND A FLOATING CORPSE

New Orleans, La., Mar. 6.—The body of Herbert Johnson, the young yachtsman who was drowned in Lake Ponchartrain last week, was found Thursday morning. While flying over the lake in his hydroplane, Fred Dobel, the aviator, saw the head and shoulders of a man floating in the water about two miles off the shore.

Dobel returned to shore and notified several men, who went to the scene in a launch and secured the body, returning to the shore where, after being viewed by the coroner, it was turned over to an undertaker to be prepared for burial.

FURTHER REPLY TO "ELECTOR."

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Do you think the original of "Elector's" communication with the "scare" heading in Saturday night's Examiner ever saw the light of day outside The Examiner office? Is it customary or even good form for newspapers to plaster letters from their readers with poster type? Do you think a decent Conservative, unless he had a yellow stripe the breadth of your hand down his back, would carry his grievances to his arch enemy? The Peterborough electorate have been "humbugged" with this class of claptrap for many a long year, but, thank goodness, have at last awakened to a sense of its true value.

Decency.

THE DECREE AND MARRIAGE.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Three statements are persistently made by the defendants in the Ne Temere decree: That the Catholic Church regards marriage as a sacrament; that she is opposed to clandestine marriages; that the Ne Temere decree concerns Catholics only.

It is less than five years since the decree was promulgated in Ontario. Did the Catholic Church in this Province not regard marriage as a sacrament previous to 1907? Did the Church forbid and oppose clandestine and secret marriages for years before we ever heard of the now famous decree? Is not the truth of the matter that the decree has been promulgated for purely disciplinary purposes, to give the Church an added rein in the control of her members? Discipline is one of the strong points in the policy of the Catholic Church, in a thousand different ways a close student can see it in the daily life of the Church. I do not mean to be harsh when I say that when a layman objects to the action of his superiors the matter to which he objects is not examined and remedied if found wrong. Oh, no, the layman is disciplined first of all, his complaint may or may not be investigated later on, but the vital thing in the [illegible] of the Church is first and foremost to whip the recalcitrant into line. Marriage was regarded as a sacrament and clandestine marriages were opposed by the Catholic Church long before the Council of Trent began its session in 1545, and the reasons given by priests in defending the decree cannot be the true ones.

Let us examine the third statement. Mixed marriages may not be desirable, but they take place. There is no use in speaking of what gracefully and suitably ought to be, it is wiser to consider what is. Many marriages between Catholics and Protestants have taken place in this country, there are many such unions in this city, some of the ceremonies were performed by Catholic priests and some by Protestant ministers.

A decree that enables an ill-bred busybody to tell the non-Catholic member of a mixed union that he or she is not married at all and that his or her children are illegitimate does concern non-Catholics. The long and bitter controversy has inhibited lay Catholics in this Province from expressing their views on the Ne Temere decree, but nine out of every ten is bitterly opposed to it. They want to live in peace and harmony with their neighbors to associate with them in business and in general society; not necessarily to go to church with them, but in all secular matters to dwell in concord, and in particular does the lay Catholic wish to avoid offense either by implication or expression to the religion of his non-Catholic neighbor and in return he expects the same consideration for his religion.

The Archbishop of Montreal could not have had any deep regard for the sanctity of marriage when he annulled the Hebert marriage and declared the child of that union to be illegitimate; he could not have been a very firm believer in the inviolability of marriage nor a bitter opponent of divorce when he granted Hebert a divorce. One could understand a bishop forbidding the Heberts the sacraments, or of imposing a penance on them for contracting marriage outside the Church, but to grant a divorce to a cad who tired of a wife, to attach the stigma of a concubine to a woman who married in good faith, and worst of all to brand an innocent child with the bar sinister is not in accordance with the professions of the Catholic Church.

Two persons in the celebrated Hebert case do not appear to advantage. The man Hebert and the bishop who granted him an annulment of his marriage, an infinitely worse thing for the woman than a divorce.

SECOND READING OF THE MANITOBA BOUNDARY BILL

Was Carried by a Majority of 38--Extreme Nationalists Voted Against Government

Special to The Times.

Ottawa, Mar. 7.—On the second reading of the Manitoba Boundary Bill, the Government was sustained by a majority of 38. The extreme Nationalists voted with the opposition.

The Liberals are pleased over the outcome so far as they figure that they have succeeded in side-stepping the school issue and Laurier will be able to continue his old game of playing to both Ontario and Quebec.

The Liberal whips yesterday morning notified the Conservatives that Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux would be the last speaker and that they were then prepared to vote on the second reading of the bill. The Liberals introduced no other amendments although on the third reading E. M. MacDonald moved an amendment to the effect that the Maritime Provinces should be consulted before increased financial terms are given Nova Scotia.

The Nationalists who voted against the Government said that they regretted voting against their fellow members, but as they had given a distinct pledge there was no other position for them to take. Paul Lamarche, who is the spokesman of the bolters, claims that there are vested rights in the district of Keewatin which must be protected.

"In the Province of Manitoba," said Mr. Lamarche, "there has been a school question which has been incompletely settled, a judgment of the highest tribunal of the Empire has recognized that the Catholic minority of Manitoba was suffering serious grievances.—It would not be policy of coercion, but rather a policy of conciliation to insert a clause in that bill to protect the rights of the minorities in the new district."

PROTESTS AGAINST CANADA TRADING WITH THE INDIES

New York Produce Exchange Fears Dominion Will Cover the Flour Trade

New York, Mar. 6.—The New York Produce Exchange has launched a campaign through which it hopes to stir the State Department into immediate action to prevent the enactment of the proposed reciprocal trade agreement between Canada and the British West Indies. Four is the chief commodity in which the produce exchange is interested, and the proposed agreement, it is said, provides for admitting Canadian flour into the West Indies at a preference of 24 cents a barrel.

Such a step, it is declared, would raise a barrier which the American miller could not surmount. The loss of business would be several million dollars a year.

A statement issued by the produce exchange special committee says:—"The flour trade to the West Indies is very important to this market, and it would be foolish to stand by idle and see it taken away, if we have at hand some weapon to prevent it. The United States offers an immense market for West Indian products, a market more important than that offered by Canada, and it ought to be possible to make an effective protest."

RECIPROCITY WITH STATES BACK OF HOME RULE BILL

London, Mar. 6.—The Times this morning says, from the Home Rule and Nationalists' point of view, the strength of the case put forward by a certain section of Irishmen is not fully realized yet by a considerable section of the Home Rule Party. One of the chief reasons why control of the Customs is desired by many Irishmen is in order that the Irish Parliament may enter into tariff arrangements with the United States. It is stated that Irish farmers could double the value of their land if they could get free entry into Boston and New York for Irish potatoes, onions, baled hay and mackerel.

If the Irish Parliament had a right to bargain, it is argued that they could offer to put American boots, maize and bacon on the free list in exchange for the free listing of Irish potatoes, onions, etc., and it is claimed that the Irish Parliament could get strong support for such arrangements from the Irish in the United States, who would be prepared to put pressure on their Congressmen in Washington.

APOSTOLIC DELEGATE IS HONORED BY POPE

Rome, Mar. 6.—Mgr. Giovanni Bonzano, recently appointed apostolic delegate to the United States, was consecrated as titular bishop of Mitylene. All the officials attached to the papal court and the secretariat were present. Mgr. Bonzano received many gifts, which included a gold cross studded with diamonds from the Pope and a gold lamp from the papal secretary. Later the Pope received the apostolic delegate in private audience. Mgr. Bonzano is to leave Naples April 19th for New York.

OIL OIL OIL

Oil is King--King of Fuel for all purposes

Without it the automobile could not exist. Just as soon as a supply can be depended on, ships on every ocean, sea, lake, and river, will be propelled by it. The British Admirality are building warships to be propelled by it. The great railway transportation companies are altering their locomotives to be driven by it. The cooking stoves and heating plants in every district where it can be secured are being made to use it—in fact the whole civilized world is crying out for it.

And we have it—have the piece of the earth's crust where it is bursting out and spilling over in such quantities that we are able to collect it from the surface of the pools, put it in bottles, and have it analyzed, and here is what the analytical chemist has to say of it:

LOCAL AND ENGLISH COAL CONDITIONS.

Do you, or are you old enough to remember how, during the hard coal strike in the U. S., antracite, or hard coal, in Peterborough jumped to $12.50 a ton? It looks as though coal in England, if Mr. Asquith does not "take the bull by the horns" will soon be stored in lockets as valuable as diamonds. It will be remembered how exercised our local citizens were over the awful prices charged here. Still, in England, as the Mother Country is absolutely dependent on coal for its railroad and steamship traffic, which means its food supplies, conditions there are many thousand per cent. than any Peterborough citizen feared the worst for.

The State of Louisiana is considering a bill to pension negro servants who served on the Confederate side in the late unpleasantness. That is those who fought against the U. S. in the Civil war, now that the United States is in supreme, are to be paid by a State formerly in opposition. Is this not somewhat a parallel case to that of "lip" Conservatives who really voted Reform in Ontario Elections, getting Dominion positions?

DEFENDS BOXING

A London Vicar Says There is Nothing Like it

Rev. A. Newman Guest, "the fighting vicar" of Stanbury, Buckinghamshire, recently arranged a friendly spar on the village green with an army reservist of local fame, who offered to "take on the vicar." Unfortunately, the contest aroused such enthusiasm in the locality that enterprising villagers made books on the event, and the betting became fast and furious. People for miles around expressed their intention of being present, and the vicar, fearing too much notoriety, regretfully decided to abandon the fight. The vicar, giving a London paper his views on boxing in relation to the morals and physique of English manhood, said:

Now, [illegible] at that the whole range of the seven deadly sins called "deadly" by the Church because of their effect on soul and body, are successfully resisted by the employment of nature's own knuckle discipline.

For example, a young man is subject to bad temper. By sparing [illegible] No use [illegible] you are knocked out. Keep your head!

Take advice. The desire for [illegible] money-grabbing is changed into [illegible] poet said, [illegible] sport.

Envy becomes emulation. Instead of longing to drag down some [illegible] who has [illegible] by his own exertions in life, a [illegible] learns to rise to the level by [illegible] his principles.

Hatred becomes good-will. No [illegible] feeling in the freemasonry of the gymnasium will leave the floor and work ill to any brother. He becomes altruist.

Gluttony in eating, drinking [illegible] smoking are all taboo. No [illegible] please!

Pride. Boxing is a great leveller. It knows no wealth, station, country [illegible] only distinction. The votary slowly and surely learns real self-help and self-respect by many defeats and falls into the dust.

In fact, there is nothing like boxing. It kills the seven deadly sins. The fighter—not necessarily the prize fighter—becomes a kind father, a good husband, a friend to his boys, a good comrade, and a citizen who is a credit to the Union Jack.

He looks the world in the face with a clear eye, and says with Terence: "I am a man, and no element that is human is foreign to me."

LONGBOAT'S PURSE

The Indian Cashed About $500 in His Glasgow Race

Tom Longboat got $375 and a percentage of the gate receipts, probably $500 in all for winning the fifteen challenge race at Glasgow. The Indian went away at a red-hot clip, and tried to lose them all the first two miles. He did get about thirty yards but they brought him back in three miles. He led the bunch up to six miles, and at seven and a half led by 60 yards. Kohlemainen loosened up at nine miles, caught the Indian, and led to the thirteenth mile. Then the Indian came to life again, and from then on set a stiff pace. The Finn was right with him until the stretchhead where the Redskin cut loose his wonderful sprint, and came home a winner by two feet in the world's record time of 1.20.04 2-5. The world's record up to that time was Fred Appleby's 1.20.04 3-5, made at Stamford Bridge, in England, on September 22, 1894, while the latter was an amateur. The world's professional record was held by Jack Price, who on August 10, in 1910, ran the fifteen miles in Glasgow on the same track in 1.21.40. The Indian's new world record is all the more creditable when it is considered that he made the journey in a snow storm.

Local Experiment in Moths.

A well known local literary man captured a moth in his place of business a few days ago. This W.K.L.G. recognized the moth, hatched out of season in his office, as a particularly rare specimen, whose wings when fully developed, would measure several inches in their stretch. The W.K.L.G. gives the moth a scientific name that would result in the average citizen having lock-jaw, if he tried to pronounce it. Well this scientist put the half grown moth in a gem jar and also put therein a quantity of what looked to the Times reporter as crushed wheat. Anyway the poor little moth died before its wings developed.

Birds of a Feather, &c.

By an almost startling coincidence, the old saying "Birds of a feather flock together," was exemplified here yesterday in a local dispensary of liquid refreshment. Within one hour, Peterborough citizens by the respective names of Crowe, Jay, Partridge Sparrow and Crane called to slack their thirst. It only wanted a Hawke to complete the circle.

THE WORKING HEN

Select the Best Layers as the Foundation of a Flock

There is just as much difference in hens as in horses. It is the individual capacity to put feed to good use that makes a cow or a horse valuable, and pure bred horses and hens have been bred for this sort of a capacity to make them good, because that is what careful breeding is for.

Otherwise we might just as well go back to "pennyroyal" cows, scrub horses and mongrel fowls without considering their blood lines, writes W. M. Phillips, in the Twentieth Century Farmer.

If eggs are more profitable than poultry for market, then we should seek to select our best layers as the dams of our flocks. This is not such a hard task as one might think. If we select the long-bodied, bright-combed, healthy-eating hen we will find her among the best layers.

The hen that is out as soon as the poultry house is opened in the morning and lingers out of doors until all the others have gone to roost is almost sure to be the best layer in the flock.

A good layer is indicated by a big prop, legs set well apart and a body that is deep in the rear.

No delicate, dainty hen was ever a good layer; she lacks the vitality that leads to great powers of reproduction. The good layer is always alert; and any hen can be kept tame and quiet if she is properly treated. What a test of patience it is to have the hens dig up things that we have planted and get in the way in the places where they have no particular business!

It is often a temptation to throw clubs at them or set the dog on them when they get into mischief.

Hens lay better when yarded than they do when allowed to have a run. By this means they are kept from learning how to get into mischief.

NATIONAL FLOWERS

Plants Which Are Regarded as Symbolical in Many Nations

Every nation seems to have a desire to equip itself with a symbolical plant. Most people are acquainted with the legend of St. Patrick and the shamrock, which has given Irishmen their special decoration.

Scotchmen are said to owe theirs to the fact that, when a party of invading Danes were approaching the slumbering camp in the darkness, one of them trod on the pricky thistle, and announced his contact with it in rather loud tones. The Scots were awakened and drove off the enemy.

Patriotic Welshmen decorate their caps with a leek on the first of March, from an ancient custom of contributing a leek to the common repast at the annual gathering. England has always been famed for her roses; but the adoption of the rose as the national symbol does not seem to have taken place till Edward IV. introduced it on his seal. The lily of France has been traced to very early times, but probably owes its adoption to the Franks at the battle of Tolbiac, who crowned themselves with lilies after the battle.

Violets were especially associated with the fortunes of the Bonapartes.

In heathen countries certain trees are held sacred owing to their supposed connection with the heathen gods. The banyan of India is sacred to the Hindu because the Hindu god Vishnu was said to be born under it. The peepul was supposed to be the favorite tree of Buddha.

The national plant of Upper Egypt is the lotus, on which the sun was supposed to rise; that of Lower Egypt, a unit of papyrus reed; while the palm is typical of Judaea. The leaf and flower of the chrysanthemum were long ago adopted and are still used as the special emblem of the Mikado of Japan, and a festival in honor of the golden chrysanthemum is held yearly.

THE KING AS A "LADY"

It was in Malta, years ago, when his Majesty (then Duke of York) was stationed there, and a dance was organised, literally on the spur of the moment, on one of the ships.

His Royal Highness was—and is, for the matter of that—always willing to join in anything that promises a bit of fun, so a "ballroom" was rigged up on the quarter-deck in about record time.

It was agreed that, since it was a men's party, those who were to take the ladies' parts were to wear a white handkerchief on their left sleeve.

Presently a "lady" approached the present King and, with what was meant to be a demure simper, asked for the pleasure of a dance.

"Go away, you juggins," was the Royal retort. "I am a 'lady' myself, but I have lost my blessed handkerchief. Come and have a cigar!"

FIDDLESTICKS!

It is said that the beams and heavy timbers taken from old Swiss "chalets" and other old styles of houses make the source of supply from which some of the best violins are made.

But if age of material counts for anything, the violin made by an Indiana man should eclipse the finest "Strad."

The body of it, according to a violin paper, is made of a variety of cedar taken from an old log dug out of a New Jersey swamp, and is said by experts to be at least three thousand years old. The back of this instrument is from an old Scotch table that has reached the age of four centuries.

If age gives fineness of tone, how would a plank from Noah's Ark sound when worked into a fiddle?

South African War

Now completed, the official History of the South African War has cost in all a net sum of $170,000.

A Mary in Every Seven

"Mary" is the name of one in every seven of the girl scholars at North Harringay School, London.

By a funny coincidence here in Peterborough, we understand, is being used the same beverage, by fully ten citizens, that is used in "dear old Lunnon." A London dispatch says "The striking miners are drinking whiskey and soda." Still there is no strike here.

An Uxbridge girl took strychnine because she thought her sweetheart had gone back on her. A Peterborough girl would have made goo-goo eyes at a better looking fellow. Wedding

A BIT OF STRATEGY

How the Quaker Succeeded in Getting His Money Back

A few years ago, when people were excited about a French invasion of our shores, a Quaker, residing at Epping, in Essex, being afraid, if such an event should take place, that he might lose his money, thought of the following stratagem to save it. He decided to hide $1,000 in Epping Forest, but for fear that he might die or be killed by the enemy he thought it would not be prudent to hide it without acquainting somebody. Accordingly, he fixed upon his neighbor, a smith, as a proper person to be entrusted with the secret.

They set out together, and chose a spot by the side of a large oak, where a hole was soon made and the money very carefully deposited; taking great care to cover it up with such exactness that no person travelling by chance that way might have any suspicion. They returned home. The next morning early the smith went and took the money away, not thinking the Quaker would so soon suspect his integrity. The Quaker, however, paid a visit to the spot where his beloved treasure was deposited, when, to his great surprise it was gone.

Suspicion immediately fell upon the smith, but, instead of accusing him, the Quaker thought of a stratagem to get his money back. He informed the smith he wished to add another $250. This had the desired effect, for the smith immediately went and replaced the $1,000, not only to prevent his neighbor from judging him to be the thief, but to get the other $250.

Away they both went together, and opening the hole, the Quaker, to his great joy, discovered his beloved treasure. He immediately fell into the following ejaculation:

"Ah, my friend, I find thee goest and comest; but, for fear that thee shouldst go and never return, I'll e'en take thee home, for I think thee art as safe in my house as in Epping Forest."

Thus ended the matter, to the no small mortification of the smith.

SCHOOL FOR WATCHMAKERS

A Swiss Must be Fourteen Years of Age to Enter

The famous Swiss watch schools are said to be the most exacting industrial institutions in the world. In one of the most celebrated of these institutions in Geneva, for example, a boy must first of all be at least 14 years of age in order to enter. After being admitted, the student is introduced to a wood-turning lathe and put to work at turning tool handles. This lasts for several weeks, according to the beginner's aptitude, and is followed by exercises in filing and shaping screw-drivers and small tools. In this way he learns to make for himself a fairly complete set of tools. He next learns to make a large wooden pattern of a watch frame, perhaps a foot in diameter and after learning how this frame is to be shaped, he is given a ready-cut one of brass of the ordinary size, in which he is taught to drill holes for the wheels and screws. Throughout this instruction the master stands over the pupil directing him with the greatest care. The pupil is next taught to finish the frame so that it will be ready to receive the wheels. He is then instructed how to make fine tools and to become expert in handling them. This completes the instruction in the first room, and the young watchmaker next passes to the department where he is taught to fit the stem-winding parts and to do fine cutting and filing by hand. Later on he learns to make the more complex watches which will strike the hour, minute, etc., and the other delicate mechanisms for which the Swiss are famous.—Weekly Telegraph.

PEARLS OF PRICE

The fact that the 116 pearls composing the necklace, audaciously stolen from a lady's neck in an Edinburgh street the other day, are valued at $32,500, might lead many people to look out boarded heirlooms in the hope of obtaining big prices.

But unless kept in dry magnesia, pearls quickly deteriorate, and, of course, size and perfection of shape count for a great deal.

Artificial pearls can now be so perfectly produced, that only an expert can tell them from the real; and, still more remarkable, even experts have mistaken the real for the artificial.

Mr. Streeter, the famous Bond Street jeweller, once attended a sale where an antique diamond and pearl ornament, described as "paste," was offered. The bids were small, and he had no difficulty in buying it at $25. The diamonds were paste, but the pearls were real, and the lucky jeweller actually sold them for $2,500.

PERSIA'S PRICELESS PIPE

The Shah of Persia possesses, perhaps, the most valuable pipe in the world. It belonged to his uncle, who received it from his grandfather. It is the Persian official pipe, and is smoked only on State occasions.

It is set with rubies and diamonds, and is valued at $50,000. When the shah is not using it, it is kept in a glass case, and carefully guarded by a high court official, whose duties are as little onerous as those of a director of an arsenal.

The reason for keeping the pipe so closely guarded, and in a case, is that some years ago a Grand Vizier was surprised in the act of removing some of the stones with the point of his poignard. What happened to the Grand Vizier, we are not told.

ADDED MANY ANIMALS

Many improvements have been made at Assiniboine Park, Winnipeg, and the birds and animals in captivity include two eagles, three swans, fifteen pheasants, three beaver, three wolves, three buffaloes, four elk, four jumping deer, three Angora goats, two monkeys and one badger.

A Silver Fox Skin

A silver fox pelt was purchased at Sudbury recently for $225.

Local Ladies at Barrie Wedding.

The Misses Elizabeth and Florence Scott of East City were present at the wedding, in Barrie, of Miss Isabel E., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Scott, to Mr. Rudolph Dunbar, of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. McLeod, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church. The bride was given away by her father, and Miss Mabel Tate was bridesmaid. Mr. George Brown supported the bridegroom.

SHADES AND STYLES

Satin Gowns Will be Fashionable for Some Time—Models Suggesting the Apron Tunic

Satin finish crepe de Chine is included in the list of satin gowns, and will be fashionable for some time; in fact, is growing in favor again, although it has never been relegated entirely to the background. It is used for the draped gowns without trimming that are smart from their very simplicity and their artistic handling.

Heliotrope and Mauve

There are many shades in heliotrope and mauve in crepe de Chine that are wonderfully becoming, and these in draped gowns are fascinating. They have always a double skirt, but so draped that it is difficult to tell which is the lower and which is the upper. The design is high waisted in effect, with the straight lines looking straighter than ever and the figure appears more slender; the folds are caught together with a soft knot or rosette at one side, low down on the skirt. This is one of the models that is to all appearance most carelessly put together and without lining or bones. In reality it can never be well carried out unless there is a perfect fitted skirt lining; the skirt lining is short and finished with a deep flounce of chiffon to make the gown hang better, without being as stiff as if made of silk.

Tartan Plaid Frock

Handsome satins showing one-half or two-thirds of the width in black and the rest in bold plaid of skilfully blended coloring afford opportunity for border-like use of the plaid, while the border is also wide enough to be handled as bodice, sleeve or underskirt material. In one charming Tartan plaid frock, the big black satin collar, cuffs and girdle left but little of the plaid bodice in view, and that little in the blues and greens with lines of white and yellow, and in silk of exquisite lustre and texture, was gay and chic without being garrish. The skirt bottom showed clever detail in the slight shirring of the black satin where the over lapping right side of the front rounds away at the bottom from the left side, and in the narrow puff band of green silk which borders this curve, narrowing to the point of disappearance as the curve ends. Small jet buttons were used along the whole line of the skirt opening and on the collar and cuffs.

Tailored Skirts

A majority of the tailored skirts shown so far, open down the middle or left front, the sides being often rounded away toward the bottom, either in tunic line, showing an underskirt, or merely disclosing an inverted V of contrasting material filling in a small space left by the cut away lines. If this under piece is plaited the skirt retains its straight narrow lines, yet gives comfortable walking width.

Side Opening Skirts

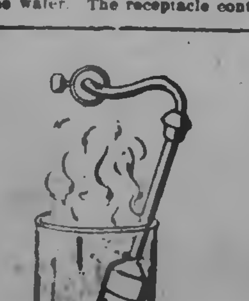
There are numerous side opening skirts with panel or underskirt arrangements, and a sort of apron tunic which has been developed on some of the smart summer frocks, appears with variations in new models. A simple clinging robe of satin has an apron with square cornered bibs in fine cloth, front and back, the under robe showing for its full length at the sides. The cloth in one model of this type was cleverly braided, and a girdle passing under the apron which fell comparatively straight, was drawn snugly on the sides to define the natural waist curves.

A New Tunic

Another model suggesting the apron tunic had what might be called a triple apron, one section dropping over the other and each edged with a narrow fringe. The tunic was in black cloth and fell over an underskirt of black satin which buttoned for its full length on each side with white pearl buttons. Over a bodice of black satin fell flat separate panels of the cloth, fringed at the bottom, where they met a girdle of the satin. White pearl buttons were upon the cuffs and upon the little satin yoke showing above the cloth overblouse.

POCKET WATER HEATER

Heretofore it has always been supposed that some kind of a stove was required to heat water, even if only a stove the size of your hand. An Ohio genius, however, has demonstrated that this is not so by devising an electric water heater that can be carried in the pocket. A little metal cylinder has a cord attached which can be fastened to an ordinary electric-light socket. The current is then turned on and the cylinder is placed in the water. The receptacle containing the liquid must be brought to the heater, as the latter cannot be moved farther than the length of the cord. The heater will produce hot water in two minutes and boiling water in four minutes. It is useful to heat water for shaving, and as a sterilizer is just what is required. At the same time it does not charge the water and may be handled without fear of contact with the current.



Does Not Charge the Water

A Presentation in Smith.

That the people of Smith are sorry that Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Edmison are leaving the township, was proven last Monday evening. A large number of their friends gathered at the Edmison home and presented an address descriptive of their affection and sadness over their loss. The address was signed by Messrs. George Walton and David Mahood. The address was accompanied by presentation of a beautiful silver tea service. Mr. and Mrs. Edmison were taken completely by surprise. Mr. Edmison made a feeling reply and thanked their many friends. After singing "Auld Lang Syne" the assembly departed.

THE GREATEST MONEY-MAKERS

The Romance of the Great Coin Factory of England

Gold and silver and bronze.

Ever since the far-away days, when the Romans lorded it over Britain, Niagaras of coins have been pouring from one small corner of London, where the grim grey walls of the Tower rise. Coins in thousands of millions; coins oval and square and round.

Just a hundred years ago a handsome stone building arose on the site of a fourteenth century monastery, on Little Tower Hill—a building covering an area as large as that of the Tower itself; and to this spacious and splendid new home the Royal Mint was transferred.

Here there was room to move and breathe, and to introduce gradually those marvels of mechanism which make the British Mint one of the wonder-shows of the world. Gone are the "circus" horses, the "cow" which was used to raise protecting edges on the coins, the kitchen crucibles, and big-muscled laborers.

And their place has been taken by the most wonderful machinery the brain of man has evolved—machinery almost human in its intelligence, more than human in its meticulous accuracy.

A visit to the Royal Mint is more than education. It is a startling revelation—the sensation of a lifetime. The whirling belts, the clank and thunder of machinery bewilder and deafen one; the miracles of some of the machines amaze one.

Briefly outlined, for the making of sovereigns the ingots of gold are melted and alloyed, and cast into small bars. The bars are flattened under rollers, from which they emerge in long yellow strips about an eighth of an inch thick.

Circular discs, or blanks, are then punched out of each strip, like so many dull yellow lozenges—sovereigns in embryo. Round each golden blank other machines raise a protecting rim; and the faces are blanched and annealed before being taken to the coining room, where they are fed into presses which, with one twenty-ton stroke, stamp both sides of each coin and mill the edge.

From each press the glittering stream of finished sovereigns pours at the rate of two a second—7,200 coins an hour!

Then comes the last stage of all—passing the crucial test of the weighing machines of which there are fifty in the weighing-room. Each machine is fed with a constant succession of sovereigns from a tube.

Each coin, in its turn, drops on the balance, poises an instant, and, if it is a microscopic decimal of a grain too heavy or too light, is automatically dropped into a "heavy" or "light" drawer. Its fate is sealed; it must go back to the melting crucible and go through all the processes once more.

All very simple in such brief telling, but so wonderful in the actual doing that many columns could not do justice to it. Such is some of the romance of the Royal Mint, which, during the last ten years, has worked its magic on [illegible] million pounds' worth of gold bullion, and which this year celebrates the centenary of its temple on Little Tower Hill.—Tit-Bits.

It may sound like exaggeration, but a man has almost as many buttons on his suit of clothes as a woman has on the back of her waist.—Greenwood Lake.

Freedom is a good thing, but let us not make too much of it. In Pennsylvania, for instance, a man is free to marry his mother-in-law, but no man ever does.—Bishop Mallalieu.

Back full of Aches Headaches and Depression

MUCH OF WOMEN'S SUFFERIN IS NEEDLESS AND CAN BE PREVENTED BY THE USE OF DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS.

That Stab-like Pain in the Back is Sure Indication of Kidney Trouble.

Mrs. Anna Rodriguez writes as follows from her home in Valencia: "For a long time I suffered with failing strength and nagging headaches. My condition grew steadily worse, my limbs became bloated and shaky, I was sallow and thin, felt rheumatic pains, dizziness and chills. I unfortunately didn't suspect my kidneys, and was nearly dead when I discovered the true cause of my sufferings. I read so much about the wonderful health and strength that comes to all who use Dr. Hamilton's Pills that I felt sure they would help me.

Such blessings of health and comfort I got from Dr. Hamilton's Pills I can't describe. They speedily put me right, and their steady use keeps me active, energetic, strong and happy. I strongly urge others to regulate and tone their system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut."

No greater medicine exists than Dr. Hamilton's Pills for the cure of indigestion, constipation, flatulence, liver bladder and kidney trouble. Refuse substitutes for Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1.00, at all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

THE ONLY PLAN.

Mr. E. A. Peck's bill, before the Ontario Government, which aimed at levying charges for street sprinkling, according to the assessed value of property, rather than on a franchise basis, [illegible] Hanna, Provincial Secretary, was not in sympathy with it. He said the question was very carefully considered during the last session, and the decision was that the frontage plan was the only plan.

Editorial Notes

Hastings Star notes that the Bell Telephone Co. wires in that burg have been replaced by cables, and says 'The wire nuisance is gone." This city is fortunate in the respect that cables have, wherever practicable, replaced overhead wires.

There are yet 17,000 of those interested in the defunct York Loan Co. who have not sent in their pass books or got their dividends. How many of these pass book owners belong to Peterborough? It's worth while to make your claim! Two 25 per cent. dividends have been paid. Get after it!

Lindsay Post calls down Col. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, for his "blustering methods"! If it were not for some of those blustering methods would Lindsay have a real live Minister of the Crown, and one whose "Say-so" carries some weight in Ottawa?

The Toronto Telegram has a lot to say about Col. Sam Hughes, "wandering into a Government ambush". It's dollars to a cancelled postage stamp that the Minister of Militia, from local and South African training in actual war, could extricate himself and followers from any ambush that could be arranged for him.

New Orleans despatches say that they had rows at the polling places of that city on Tuesday morning. Many arrests followed. Right here in town we have no rows at the polling places. The row starts when the government offices are handed out. Still, the hander does not seem to lose hair, weight, or reputation, by the handing.

Dr. Cook, the intrepid traveller, who claimed to have found the North Pole, but did not hang his cap or overcoat on it, was in Ottawa a few days ago. In an interview at the Capital, Dr. Cook told how he did and how he might not have discovered the Pole. Dr. Cook might better use his time by discovering "who struck Billy Patterson," or why eggs cost 38 cents a dozen in Peterborough.

Farm, Stock, and Home, of Minneapolis, says one of the most successful farmers in the Northwestern States, places the total wage of his help for the eight months at $240, but begins in April and May with a credit to the hired man of $18 a month. In June the help is credited with $20, in July with $22, in August with $30 and in September during the rush of harvest, there is an increase of $35. The balance of $97 is distributed over the next two months. This plan secures the farmer from loss by the hand quitting notice by some of our local farmers. The average immigrant help could not be fired from a job except by the use of dynamite.

SOMETHING LIKE A PLAGUE

An Advancing Horde of Locusts Resembles a Dark Cloud

A locust invasion is an event not easily forgotten.

The first sign of the approaching army is usually a long, dark cloud on the horizon. As it comes nearer, it is seen to be composed of countless millions of locusts on whirring wings. Soon the cloud appears overhead, and is sufficiently thick to obscure the sun. Now we are in the midst of a dense swarm of flying, whirring locusts, which dash into our faces, enter our houses, and fill our rooms with their presence; the air is simply alive with them. All open wells must be instantly covered, or they will be polluted by the insects.

Fowls and turkeys, however, welcome the advancing hordes; they simply fatten on the locusts. But their flesh becomes so tainted by this diet as to be quite unsaleable, and even their eggs have an unpleasant taste. As soon as locusts make their appearance in a locality, the price of eggs drops to one-half or one-third of their former value.

Pigs also feed on locusts, and their flesh also becomes affected; in fact, all animals seem to be adversely affected, for horses have a strong aversion to grass which has been polluted by locusts, and, unless very hungry, will not touch it.—Answers.

HOME HINTS

When Making Mustard, add a few drops of vinegar if you wish it to keep.

Warm Dish Covers as well as dishes if you want your dinner to be served really hot.

Turnip Peelings should always be well washed, then added to soups to which they impart a delicious flavor.

Spanish Onion Salad.—A cold boiled Spanish onion makes an excellent salad if sliced and dressed with oil and vinegar in the usual manner.

Flies in the Larder are a pest in summer. Begin early in the spring to sponge the windows twice a week with a weak solution of carbolic acid and water. If this is done regularly it will keep away flies.

To Cook Salt Fish Nicely it should be soaked in cold water the night before it is used, with a few spoonfuls of vinegar. Place it in cold water to cover, and gradually bring to the boil. Simmer for a quarter of an hour.

Mahogany Stain is made thus: Into an earthenware jar put one pint of linseed oil, one ounce of alkanet root, and one ounce of rose pink. Let it stand twenty-four hours, stirring occasionally. Rub it well into the wood with a woollen cloth.

Burn all kitchen waste as far as possible in the closed stove. When the fire is red draw the fuel towards [illegible] the refuse at the [illegible] and if necessary, a [illegible] Open damper, and [illegible] be quickly destroyed without smell.

Eggs and Cheese.—Cut some small squares of toast, butter them thickly, and put on each a slice of hard boiled egg. Melt in a pan any scraps of cheese you may have, with a little milk. Season with pepper, salt, and made mustard. When smooth and thick, pour over the eggs and serve at once.

When Cooking Salt Meat, first wash it well in cold water, then place in a saucepan, cover with fresh cold water, and bring to the boil. Skim, and simmer gently till the joint is cooked.

Pastry Requires a sharp steady oven, where it can cook quickly. Careful watching is necessary, and a wise cook will test her oven with a piece of paper or thin slice of bread before commencing her work.

MOTHERS' MISTAKES

Don't Handicap Girls by Doing Things For Them

I know a mother, says a writer, who is so managing and capable that she never gives the girls a chance to show what they can do.

If one of them is going to make a blouse, she will say, "My dear, you'll only spoil the stuff; you'd better let me cut it out for you."

And it generally ends in mother making the blouse.

Or one of the girls will offer to help with the housekeeping. "Thank you, dear, but it's less trouble to do it myself; I know where everything is," says the managing mamma.

The mother who does this kind of thing is placing her girls at a serious disadvantage.

If they don't experiment and learn how to do things, how are they to know?

When they have homes of their own, and have to do things, it will possibly be a very serious thing for them to be so very incapable, and have to start learning duties they should by rights be proficient in.

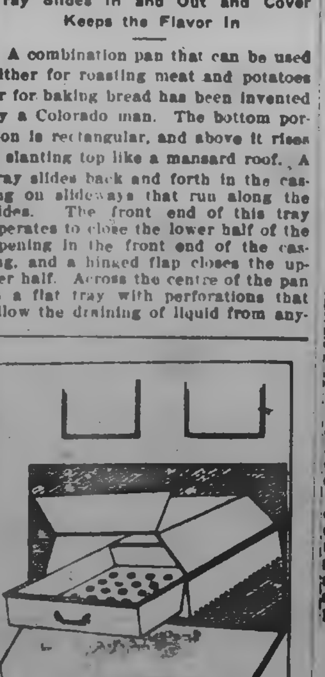
Don't make the mistake of handicapping the girls like that.

Let them have their share in the home duties, and, if they sometimes make mistakes, and even "spoil the stuff," the wise mother will comfort herself with the knowledge that it is all practice towards perfection.

CLOSED ROASTING PAN

Tray Slides In and Out and Cover Keeps the Flavor In

A combination pan that can be used either for roasting meat and potatoes or for baking bread has been invented by a Colorado man. The bottom portion is rectangular, and above it rises a slanting top like a mansard roof. A tray slides back and forth in the casing on slideways that run along the sides. The front end of this tray operates to close the lower half of the opening in the front end of the casing, and a hinged flap closes the upper half. Across the centre of the pan is a flat tray with perforations that allow the draining of liquid from anything that requires draining or keeps two articles separate. The advantage of an inclosed pan of this type is that in cooking meat, for example, all the flavor is kept in the pan instead of evaporating in steam, and the meat is done moister. Articles cooked in it require less attention than in an old-style utensil, too.



A obliging young parson was driving home one evening after making his pastoral calls, when he overtook a young woman of his congregation, the maid-of-all-work at a farm which he would pass, so he offered her a place in his carriage. The offer was gladly accepted and they chatted pleasantly all the way to the farm gate.

"Thank you, sir," she said as she got down.

"Don't mention it, my dear girl. Don't mention it," he told her politely.

"No, indeed, I won't," she assured him.

TREES VS. SILKWORMS

Many Valuable Varieties of Silk Obtained from Trees

A kind of vegetable silk is obtained from a tree attaining the size of an ordinary walnut tree, which abounds in Paraguay. It can be woven into threads, but the chief use for it at present is for the stuffing of quilts and cushions, for which purpose it seems well adapted on account of its extreme lightness. This silk resembles a glossy down, but grows in balls about six inches long and about four and a half inches in diameter.

Near Stettin, in Germany, there is a manufactory that turns out skein silk made from wood pulp. It is said that no special kind of wood is needed to furnish the pulp. The latter, after undergoing a chemical treatment, is driven by hydraulic pressure through very fine tubes. The strands thus formed are, separately, hardly perceptible to the eye. Eighteen of them twisted together make a thread of silk. The silk is very soft and of a cream color. It is not as strong as genuine silk, but there is said to be a large demand for it abroad.

GERVAIS CREAM CHEESE

This dainty little cheese is made from a mixture of new milk and cream, the mixture being in the proportion of two parts of milk to one part of 22 per cent. cream. Take a quantity of this mixture, and bring to a temperature of 65 degrees F. Add rennet at the rate of 6½ drams per 100 pounds of the mixture, or enough to bring a coagulation in three hours. When the coagulum is firm enough, dip out into huckaback cloths placed over the bowls, with a long-handled culture dipper. Then tie up by the four corners and hang to drain. The cloths should be previously scalded, and used wet. After the cheese has been hanging up for a few hours, open out the cloths and scrape down the sides to aid the draining; repeat the scraping at intervals of a few hours, until the cheese is firm enough to mould. Salting is done by means of sprinkling fine dry salt over the cheese, and working in with a table knife or bone spatula, at the rate of one ounce of salt to every four pounds of cheese.

The moulds should be lined with clean white blotting paper, and placed on a scalded straw mat or cloth, and the cheese pressed in with a bone spatula or spoon. In the winter time, a few drops of color added to the milk and cream before renneting, will improve the color of the cheese.

MOVING DAY

The following incident occurred a short time ago: It was moving day at the office, and Mr. Jones had just moved into a new room which had not been used for a long time. The dust had not yet settled, and things were not straight when Mr. Smith, feeling pleased with himself, enters the room and remarks:

"Great Scott! Mr. Jones, this room is full of microbes."

Mr. Jones:—"Yes, I know it is; there's a big one just entered."

ORANGE MARMALADE

Select one orange and one lemon with a thin skin. Cut in slices and then in cubes. To this add six cupfuls of water. Let stand over night. Next morning boil twenty minutes, measure liquid, and to one cupful of mixture add one cupful of sugar. Boil evenly for one-half hour, or until it jells. This will make eight medium sized glasses.

Grape Sherbet

Two pounds Concord grapes, two lemons, one quart water, one pound sugar; lay a square of cheesecloth over a large bowl; put in the washed grapes and mash thoroughly; squeeze out all the juice and add an equal amount of sugar, the lemon juice. Use sugar enough to make it quite sweet,

A WONDERFUL CLUB

The Unique History of an Australian Racing Organization.

A remarkable organization is the Onkaparinga Jockey Club, a South Australian club, which has been in existence for thirty-six years, operating on only one day in the year, Easter Monday. Yet it is not an insignificant institution, by any means, and some interesting statistics were quoted at the recent meeting. Taking the figures for the last twenty-three years (since the totalizator was introduced) it had disbursed £103,251. Of this sum £52,920 had been paid in stakes; the improvements and upkeep of the course had cost £15,443; and £27,087 had been spent in wages. Charities had benefited to the extent of £2,358, and the Government had been paid £4,920 as stamp tax (nine years only). This year the club is offering 2,750 sovereigns for seven races. The club is making improvements to the extent of 2,000 sovereigns, and will carry forward a balance of about £1,000.

SPELLING HER NAME

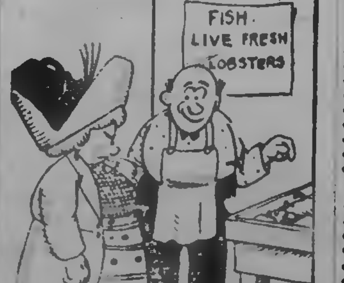
A magistrate's clerk was taking down the evidence of a witness, and asked what her name was.

"Meddows," she replied.

"How do you spell it, madam?"

"Hem, He, D. D. Ho, Double U, Hess."

"Ah! then there's no 'Hay' in your meadows?" remarked the witty scribe, to the amusement of the Court.



RED PREFERRED

Shopkeeper: — "Lobsters, madam? Here are some fine ones."

Housekeeper:—"Aren't those rather green? I think I'd rather have some ripe ones."

STRAINING MILK

The Milk Strainer Does Not Purify the Fluid

Straining milk does not purify it. Milking should be done with such attention given to cleanliness that it would be unnecessary to use the strainer. The utensil is of value chiefly because it removes the visible indications of impurity from milk, not because it really has any purifying effects. Small particles of manure, hairs, pieces of dead cuticle from the cow's udder and body, and dirt from the milker's hands find their way into the milk pail during the first manipulations of the udder, these impurities are churned around in the pail by the force of the streams as the milk is drawn, and by the time the pail is full this filth is all but dissolved, and no strainer yet produced can remove anything but the coarser and more insoluble substances which settle to the bottom of the bucket.

The millions of bacteria carried into the receptacle by these impurities are untouched by the strainer and go on their way rejoicing to carry ill-health and disease, maybe, to all who drink the milk or use the butter made from it. We use the milk strainer because we do not like the looks of small particles of dirt and refuse in the bottoms of the milk can, or perhaps in the drinking cup. It does no harm to remove these, but gives us a sense of relief in thinking that the milk is clean because it looks clean. We seem to have discharged a moral obligation in using the strainer, forgetting that the real harm comes from the dissolved material, the filth that goes into solution and carries its nauseating effect concealed in the pure white fluid.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

A moderate oven is one in which a piece of white paper will become golden brown in 12 minutes.

A convenience and economy for the oil or gasoline stove is a three part cooker which can be used over one burner. The parts are separated so that three articles can be cooked at the same time.

Rinse out the dish cloths frequently and let them bleach on the grass in the sun to keep them sweet. There is nothing like the sun as a purifier. Use it lavishly and your health will be better and the house purer.

To relieve ear ache, irrigate the ear with warm water. Arrange the patient so that the water can run out of the ear into a receptacle or into cloths which will absorb it. Have the water of slightly more than tepid warmth and allow it to run slowly into the ear until relieved. Cover the ear afterwards with warm woollen cloths.

Little chicks require plenty of fresh water in their reach in hot weather. If this is neglected you will be disappointed in the growth and health of your chicks.

WHALING OFF NEW ZEALAND

Graphic Description of the Work of the Whalers with Their Deadly Harpoons

At the cry of "There she blows!" out go the steam launches to replace the nets, three in number, that suffice to close the narrow channel. These, unanchored, are allowed to float loose, the ends of each slightly overlapping. Kept taut by their own weight, they hang stretched on the float line, an invisible curtain of wire mesh barring the water run.

No human fastening, says the Wide World, has yet been invented that would stop the rush of a charging whale. The principal of the detached floating net is not to stop, but so to hamper the monster with a gossamer of wire rope that he falls an easy prey to the hunters. For this reason also the nets are so placed that on striking an entangled whale may face seaward or sound downward, carrying the enveloping net, without fear of disturbing the remaining two.

When the nets are in position the launches and attendant whaleboats with their crews, take up their stations at some distance to watch for an unheaval and dancing floating line that marks the striking of a whale.

Often a whale's presence is first indicated by great masses of broken barnacles and torn sea grass that come floating upward to the surface as the whale, floundering among the rocks of the sea-floor, eases himself with delighted scratchings in the depths.

In the boats all is tense expectancy and ordered preparation. Harpoon guns are loaded and made ready, lines are carefully flaked down in the tubs, lances are looked to, and everyone is on the qui vive. Suddenly a sort of shudder runs through the sea. There are tossing billows and wild commotion made by the bobbing float lines. "Hurrah! she's struck!" is the cry.

Away go the boats, each racing to be the first fast to the struggling fish and so earn the bonus that rewards the winning crew. A mighty, grey black head, entangled in a clinging web of wire, rears from out the water. Up, up, it goes, till a huge bulk of body towers a good fifty feet in the air, its side fins thrashing wildly in a smother of foam. It curves in an arch, and then, like an arrow, down go whale and net together for the sound.

Not for long though. The upward drag of bunched net floats, and its necessity for breath brings the animal quickly to the surface—a spouting, snorting, wallowing mass; mad with rage, wild with terror of the unknown clinging horror that envelops it.

Bang! bang! go the guns from each boat in quick succession. Both irons are home and well placed. A wild quiver of flukes and fins, and the [illegible] sounds again or races along the surface, towing the boats after it at express speed. But the net holds fast, and at each new effort for freedom the victim becomes more helplessly wound up than before.

Soon exhausted with futile struggling, the whale comes to rest, and there is a momentary cessation of the mad fight, as the leviathan pauses for breath. Huge panting air gasps are plainly audible at a distance of half a mile.

The crews are quick to seize the opportunity. With the lancemen ready in the bow the boats sweep in, one on either side. "Steady with the lance." "Now!" Eight-foot steel blades drive deep for the heart behind the pectoral fins.

A shiver, a hissing spout o[illegible] and blood, a wallow and roll o[illegible] huge wire-tangled carcass, flashed [illegible] red and white foam in the sunlight, and the black heave of a twentyfoot fin that for one dread instant, scimitar-shaped, a falling wall of bone and sinew, hangs over the boat and its occupants. The boat's crew back out like lightning, just in time. Down crashes the mighty flail, missing its blow by a bare foot. There is a roar and clap of many thunders, and jetting spurts of spray leap high into the blue.

The boats, backed clear, still hang to the lines, the crews watching events and waiting the end. It may be that the dying whale will sound again or race in a final effort. But the lances have got home. A few more wallows of despair, the great tail flukes thrash the water with lessening force, and presently the huge body, inert, lifeless, lies quietly on the surface. Hawsers are made fast to the dead whale, and while the boats return to their stations to watch the remaining nets, it is towed by the launch to the jetty ashore.

MENDACIOUS WINDOWS

Chancellor Prescott, of Carlisle, is anxious that stained-glass windows should tell the truth, and not represent the pictorial fiction of artists. He granted a faculty for a window which is to be erected in St. Aidan's Church Carlisle, in memory of the late Bishop Ware, of Barrow-in-Furness, subject to an amended design being submitted. He did not think angels usually wore coats-of-arms, and one of them was represented clad in the coat-of-arms of the Dean and Chapter of Carlisle. Oswald, King of Northumbria, who died at the age of thirty-eight, was represented as an aged man, and the artists in stained glass will now have to make him look more

TROTTING A POPULAR SPORT

New Zealand Sporting Review: There is no shadow of doubt that today "trots" rank as one of the honored pastimes of a large and ever increasing section of the public; in fact trotting seems destined to become one of our national and most popular sports. The gratifying change effected has been almost solely due to the sport being brought under capable and zealous management, the better classing of races and the more strict scrutiny of the performances of contesting horses. Certainly it must be admitted that owners are entitled to a fair quota of praise, for they have undoubtedly given more careful attention to the breeding and training of their horses, and that naturally has had a marked benefit on the racing. But the all-important essential to popularising a sport is to gain the confidence of the public. Once that is achieved the improvement of the sport by a better system of classing, more attention to breeding, and the careful preparation of contestants are natural corollaries.
